PREFACE

Since the publication of the Sixth edition enactments of great importance, such as The Motor Vehicles Act IV of 1939, the Indian Income-tax (Amendment) Act VII of 1939, The Trade Marks Act (V of 1940), The Arbitration Act (X of 1940), The Excess Profits Tax Act (XV of 1940) have been passed. So far as the Indian Companies Act, the Indian Insurance Act, The Indian Income-tax Act and the Excess Profits Tax Act are concerned, numerous Amending Acts have been added to the Statute book in quick succession. These have been incorporated in this edition.

As usual, the demand for a new edition was persistent and orders were registered far in advance. We have therefore ventured to bring out the seventh edition, despite the abnormal increase in the prices of all Printing materials owing to the present war conditions.

It occurred to us that, in view of the numerous enactments which have now been added and the consequent increase in the bulk, it would be easier to handle the publication if it is published in three volumes. The first volume contains alphabetically the Acts from A to C. The remaining Acts will be distributed evenly between the other two volumes.

All Acts of any importance published up to the end of March 1942 have been incorporated. Subsequent Acts passed in 1942 up to the date of publication have also been included in the second and third volumes. The case-law has been brought up to the end of February, 1942.

The Provincial Amendments of the Court-Fees Act have been put in the form of an Appendix to the first volume, and those relating to the Stamp Act will be added at the end of the third volume.

THE GOVERNMENT OF INDIA (ADAPTATION OF ACTS OF PARLIAMENT) ORDER, 1937.

AT THE COURT AT BUCKINGHAM PALACE

The 18th day of March, 1937.

*Present:—*THE KING'S MOST EXCELLENT MAJESTY IN COUNCIL.

WHEREAS by sub-section (5) of section three hundred and eleven of the Government of India Act, 1935 (hereafter in the recitals to this Order referred to as "the Act") it is provided that any Act of Parliament containing references to India or any part thereof, to countries other than or situate outside India or other than or situate outside British India, to His Majesty's dominions, to a British possession, to the Secretary of State in Council, to the Governor-General in Council, to a Governor in Council or to Legislatures, courts or authorities in, or to matters relating to the government or administration of, India, or British India, shall have effect subject to such adaptations and modifications as His Majesty in Council may direct, being adaptations and modifications which appear to His Majesty in Council to be necessary or expedient in consequence of the provisions of the Act or of the Government of Burma Act, 1935:

AND WHEREAS by sub-section (2) of section one hundred and seventy-eight of the Act it is provided that all enactments relating to any such loans, guarantees and other financial obligations of the Secretary of State in Council as are referred to in sub-section (1) of that section shall in relation to those loans, guarantees and obligations continue to have effect with certain substitutions and with such other modifications and such adaptations as His Majesty in Council may deem necessary:

AND WHEREAS under section three hundred and twenty of the Act His Majesty by Order in Council has appointed the first day of April, nineteen hundred and thirty-seven, as the date on which the provisions of the Act, other than the provisions of Part II thereof, are, subject to any exceptions mentioned in the Order, to come into force:

AND WHEREAS a draft of this Order has been laid before Parliament in accordance with the provisions of sub-section (1) of section three hundred and nine of the Act and an address has been presented to His Majesty by both Houses of Parliament praying that an Order may be made in the terms of this Order:

NOW, THEREFORE, His Majesty, in the exercise of the said powers and of all other powers enabling him in that behalf, is pleased, by and with the advice of His Privy Council, to order, and it is hereby ordered, as follows:—

1. This Order may be cited as THE GOVERNMENT OF INDIA (ADAPTATION OF ACTS OF PARLIAMENT) ORDER, 1937, and shall come into operation on the first day of April, nineteen hundred and thirty-seven.

2. The Acts of Parliament referred to in the Schedule to this Order shall have effect subject to the adaptations and modifications specified in the said Schedule.

3. In any Act of Parliament passed before the commencement of this Order and not referred to in the Schedule thereto references to the revenues of India shall be construed, in relation to the period after the establishment of the Federation of India, as references to the revenues of the Federation and, in relation to the period between the commencement of Part III of the Government of India Act, 1935, and the establishment of the Federation, as references to the revenues of the Governor-General in Council.

4. The provisions of this order which adapt or modify any Act by transferring functions to another authority shall not render invalid any order, bye-law, rule or regulation duly made, or anything duly done, before the commencement of this Order and any such order, bye-law, rule, regulation or thing may be revoked, varied or undone in like manner, to the like extent and in the like circumstances as orders, bye-laws, rules, regulations or things made or done by the authority to which the functions are transferred.

5. Nothing in the Aden Colony Order, 1936, shall be construed as requiring that references in Acts of Parliament to India or British India shall continue to be construed as including references to Aden.

THE SCHEDULE.

PART I.

THE GOVERNMENT OF INDIA (ADAPTATION OF INDIAN LAWS) ORDER, 1937.

N.B.—The Acts and Regulations contained in these volumes are to be taken as subject to the amendments made by the Government of India (Adaptation of Indian Laws) Order, 1937.

AT THE COURT AT BUCKINGHAM PALACE.

The 18th day of March, 1937.

Present:—THE KING'S MOST EXCELLENT MAJESTY IN COUNCIL.

WHEREAS by section two hundred and ninety-three of the Government of India Act, 1935 (hereafter in the recitals to this Order referred to as "the Act"), His Majesty is empowered by Order in Council to provide that as from such date as may be specified in the order any law in force in British India or in any part of British India shall, until repealed or amended by a competent legislature or other competent authority, have effect subject to such adaptations and modifications as appear to His Majesty to be necessary or expedient for bringing the provisions of that law into accord with the provisions of the Act:

AND WHEREAS a draft of this Order has been laid before Parliament in accordance with the provisions of sub-section (1) of section three hundred and nine of the Act and an address has been presented to His Majesty by both Houses of Parliament praying that an Order may be made in the terms of this Order:

NOW, THEREFORE, His Majesty, in the exercise of the said powers and of all other powers enabling him in that behalf, is pleased by and with the advice of His Privy Council to order, and it is hereby ordered as follows:—

1. This Order may be cited as THE GOVERNMENT OF INDIA (ADAPTATION OF INDIAN LAWS) ORDER, 1937, and shall come into operation on the first day of April, nineteen hundred and thirty-seven.

2. (1) In this Order the expression "Indian law" means a law as defined in section two hundred and ninety three of the Act.

(2) The Interpretation Act, 1889, applies for the interpretation of this Order as it applies for the interpretation of an Act of Parliament.

3. The Indian Laws mentioned in the Schedules to this Order shall, until repealed or amended by a competent Legislature or other competent authority, have effect subject to the adaptations and modifications directed by those Schedules to be made therein or, if it is so directed, shall cease to have effect.

4. (1) Whenever an expression mentioned in the first column of the table hereinunder printed occurs (otherwise than in a title or preamble or in a citation or description of an enactment) in a Central or Provincial Act or Regulation, whether an Act or Regulation mentioned in the Schedules to this Order or not, then, unless that expression is by this Order expressly directed to be otherwise adapted or modified, or to stand unmodified, or to be omitted, there shall be substituted therefor the expression set opposite to it in column two of the said table.

Governor-General of India in Council: Governor-General of India: Governor-General in Council: Government of India.

Governor in Council: Governor (except in the expression "Governor's Province"): Lieutenant Governor in Council: Lieutenant Governor: Chief Commissioner (except in the expression "Chief Commissioner's Province"): Local Government: Local Administration.

Gazette of India: Local official gazette: local gazette: any other expression denoting a gazette in which official notices of a government are published, not being the gazette of a district or other sub-division of a Province.

Official Gazette.

Advocate High Court

Jammu & Kashmir

Any reference to the Governor (or Lieutenant Governor) of a named Province in Council shall be treated for the purposes of this paragraph as if it were a reference to the Governor (or Lieutenant Governor) in Council of that Province.

(2) A direction in the Schedules to this Order that a specified Indian law or section or portion of an Indian law shall stand unmodified shall be construed merely as a direction that it is not to be modified or adapted in accordance with the foregoing provisions of this paragraph.

5. (1) Where this Order requires that in any specified Indian law, or in any section or other portion of an Indian law, certain words shall be substituted for certain other words or that certain words shall be omitted, that substitution or omission, as the case may be, shall, except where it is otherwise expressly provided, be made wherever the words referred to occur in that law, or, as the case may be, in that section or portion.

(2) Where this Order requires that in any Indian law a plural noun shall be substituted for a singular noun or vice versa, or a masculine noun for a neuter noun or vice versa, there shall be made also in any verb or pronoun in the sentence in question such consequential amendment as the rules of grammar may require.

6. (1) The following provisions shall have effect where any Indian law which under this Order is to be adapted or modified has before the commencement of this Order been amended, either generally or in relation to any particular area, by the insertion or omission of words, or the substitution of words for other words:—

(a) Effect shall first be given in the amending law to any adaptation or modification required by paragraphs three and five of this Order to be made therein;

(b) the original law shall then be amended, either generally or, as the case may be, in its application to the particular area, so as to give effect to the directions contained in the amending law or, where any adaptation or modification has fallen to be made under sub-paragraph (a), in that law as so adapted or modified; and

(c) all adaptations or modifications required by this Order to be made in the original law shall then be made in that law as so amended, except so far as in the case of any particular area they may be inapplicable.

(2) In this paragraph references to the amendment of a law by the insertion or omission of words or the substitution of words do not include references to an amendment which is effected merely by directing that certain words shall be construed in a particular manner.

7. Subject to the foregoing provisions of this Order, any reference by whatever form of words in any Indian law in force immediately before the commencement of this Order to an authority competent at the date of the passing of that law to exercise any powers or authorities, or discharge any functions, in any part of British India shall, where a corresponding new authority has been constituted by or under any Part of the Government of India Act, 1935, for the time being in force, have effect until duly repealed or amended as if it were a reference to that new authority.

8. In any Indian law in force immediately before the commencement of this Order any reference by name or description to any territory shall, unless the contrary intention appears or unless it has been, or is by this Order, otherwise expressly provided, be construed as a reference to the territory which bore that name or answered to that description at the date when the enactment containing that name or description came into operation:

Provided that in the application of any enactment to Madras, Bombay, Bihar, or the Central Provinces, references in that enactment to Madras, Bombay, Bihar or the Central Provinces, as the case may be, shall be construed as exclusive of so much of those Provinces respectively as was separated therefrom on the constitution of the Provinces of Orissa and Sind.

9. The provisions of this Order which adapt or modify Indian laws so as to alter the manner in which, the authority by which, or the law under or in accordance with which, any powers are exercisable, shall not render invalid any notification, order, commitment, attachment, bye-law, rule or regulation duly made or issued, or anything duly done, before the commencement of this Order; and any such notification, order, commitment, attachment, bye-law, rule, regulation or thing may be revoked, varied or undone in the like manner, to the like extent and in the like circumstances as if it had been made, issued or done after the commencement of this Order by the competent authority and under and in accordance with the provisions then applicable to such a case.

10. Save as provided by this Order, all powers which under any law in force in British India, or in any part of British India, were immediately before the commencement of Part III of the Government of India Act, 1935, vested in, or exercisable by, any person or authority shall continue to be so vested or exercisable until other provision is made by some legislature or authority empowered to regulate the matter in question.

11. Nothing in this Order shall affect the previous operation of, or anything duly done or suffered under, any Indian law, or any right, privilege, obligation or liability already acquired, accrued or incurred under any such law, or any penalty, forfeiture or punishment incurred in respect of any offence already committed against any such law.

12. For the avoidance of doubt it is hereby declared that—

(a) nothing in this Order transferring or assigning any functions to the Central Government shall be construed as excluding those functions from the operation of section one hundred and twenty-three or section one hundred and twenty-four of the Government of India Act, 1935;

(b) the transfer by this Order to a Provincial Government of any jurisdiction therefore exercisable by the Local Government of the Province shall not be construed as excluding that jurisdiction from the operation of sub-section (2) of section two hundred and ninety-six of the said Act;

(c) nothing in this Order shall affect the provisions of any Order in Council for the time being in force made under section one hundred and fifty-eight, section one hundred and fifty-nine or section one hundred and sixty of the said Act (which empower Orders to be made regulating the relations of India and Burma as to their monetary systems, relief from double taxation, customs, and ancillary and related matters), or under any corresponding provisions in the Government of Burma Act, 1935; and

(d) no repeal effected by this Order shall affect the operation of subparagraph (2) of paragraph fifteen of the Government of India (Commencement and Transitory Provisions) Order, 1936.

[Schedule omitted as the amendments have been carried out in the Main Acts.]

THE GOVERNMENT OF INDIA (ADAPTATION OF INDIAN LAWS) SUPPLEMENTARY ORDER, 1937.

AT THE COURT AT BUCKINGHAM PALACE.

Present:—THE KING'S MOST EXCELLENT MAJESTY IN COUNCIL.

WHEREAS by section two hundred and ninety-three of the Government of India Act, 1935 (hereafter in the recitals to this Order referred to as "the Act"),

NOTES.

State to receive processes in respect of cases concerning the East India Railway and where after the Government of India Act, 1935, no Crown pleader has been appointed, then by virtue of Rr. 9 and 10 of the Government of India (Adaptation of Indian Laws) Order,

Short title, extent and commencement.

1. (1) This Regulation may be called THE ORISSA LAWS REGULATION, 1936.

(2) It extends to the whole of the Province of Orissa except the districts of Angul and the Khondmals and the tracts of country specified in section 2 of the Ganjam and Vizagapatam Act, 1839.

(3) It shall come into force on the 1st day of April, 1936.

Definition.

2. In this Regulation the expression "areas transferred to Orissa" means areas transferred to the Province of Orissa by the Government of India (Constitution of Orissa) Order, 1936.

Cesser of the Madras District Police Act, 1859, and extension of the Police Act, 1861.

3. (1) The Madras District Police Act, 1859, shall cease to have effect and the Police Act, 1861, shall take effect in the areas transferred to Orissa from the Presidency of Madras.

(2) All appointments, rules and orders made, powers and duties conferred or imposed and all other things done under the Madras District Police Act, 1859, shall be deemed, so far as may be, to have been respectively made, conferred, imposed or done under the Police Act, 1861.

Cesser of the Madras Civil Courts Act, 1873, and the Central Provinces Courts Act, 1917, and extension of the Bengal, Agra and Assam Civil Courts Act, 1887.

4. (1) The Madras Civil Courts Act, 1873, and the Central Provinces Courts Act, 1917, shall cease to extend and the Bengal, Agra and Assam Civil Courts Act, 1887, shall extend to the areas transferred to Orissa from the Presidency of Madras and the Central Provinces.

(2) All Courts constituted, appointments, rules and orders made, jurisdiction and powers conferred and other things done under the Madras Civil Courts Act, 1873, or the Central Provinces Courts Act, 1917, shall, so far as may be, be deemed to have been respectively constituted, made, conferred or done under the Bengal, Agra and Assam Civil Courts Act, 1887.

Cesser of the Central Provinces Local Self-Government Act, 1920, and extension of the Central Provinces Local Self-Government Act, 1883.

5. (1) The Central Provinces Local Self-Government Act, 1920, shall cease to extend and the Central Provinces Local Self-Government Act, 1883, is hereby extended to the areas transferred to Orissa from the Central Provinces.

(2) All notifications, orders, schemes, rules, forms and by-laws issued, made or prescribed under the Central Provinces Local Self-Government Act, 1883, are hereby extended so far as they are applicable, to the areas transferred to Orissa from the Central Provinces.

(3) (a) The areas transferred to Orissa from the Central Provinces shall, for the purposes of the Central Provinces Local Self-Government Act, 1883, be deemed to be part of the district of Sambalpur and to be under the control and administration of the Sambalpur District Council.

(b) The Provincial Government may nominate not more than three persons to be members of the Sambalpur District Council to represent the aforesaid areas, and the persons so nominated shall, notwithstanding anything contained in the Central Provinces Local Self-Government Act, 1883, or the rules made thereunder, be deemed to be members of the Sambalpur District Council, and shall hold office as such members until representatives of the said areas are elected, in accordance with the Central Provinces Local Self-Government Act, 1883, and the rules made thereunder.

6. Section 3 of the Madras Deputy Collectors Act, 1914, is hereby repealed.

7. Subject to the provisions of paragraphs 16 and 17 of the Government of India (Constitution of Orissa) Order, 1936, all enactments other than enactments repealed by this Regulation made by any authority in British India and all notifications, orders, schemes, rules, forms and bye-laws issued, made or prescribed under such enactments, which were, immediately before the 1st day of April, 1936, in force in any of the areas comprised in the Province of Orissa, shall, in their application to such areas, be construed as if references therein by whatever form of words to the authorities, territory or gazettes mentioned in column 1 of the First Schedule were references to the authorities, territories or gazettes respectively mentioned or referred to opposite thereto in column 2 of the said Schedule.

8. Nothing in any law in force in the Province of Orissa which requires that the draft of any notification, order, scheme, rule, form or bye-law shall before being made by the Provincial Government be laid on the Table of, or be approved by, <sup>1</sup>[the Chamber or Chambers of a Provincial Legislature] or which requires that any objections or suggestions made in any manner whatsoever by <sup>1</sup>[such Chamber or Chambers] with respect to any such draft shall be considered by the Provincial Government or which confers on <sup>1</sup>[a Chamber or the Chambers of a Provincial Legislature] the power to make any modifications in any such draft, shall apply to any notification, order, scheme, rule, form or bye-law made or issued by the Government of Orissa.

Certain provisions of law to be inapplicable to notifications, orders, etc.

that the draft of any notification, order, scheme, rule, form or bye-law shall before being made by the Provincial Government be laid on the Table of, or be approved by, <sup>1</sup>[the Chamber or Chambers of a Provincial Legislature] or which requires that any objections or suggestions made in any manner whatsoever by <sup>1</sup>[such Chamber or Chambers] with respect to any such draft shall be considered by the Provincial Government or which confers on <sup>1</sup>[a Chamber or the Chambers of a Provincial Legislature] the power to make any modifications in any such draft, shall apply to any notification, order, scheme, rule, form or bye-law made or issued by the Government of Orissa.

9. The enactments specified in the Second Schedule are hereby repealed.

Repeal of certain enactments.

10. The enactments specified in the Third Schedule are hereby amended to the extent and in the manner mentioned in the fourth column thereof.

Amendments of certain enactments.

11. The enactments specified in the Fourth Schedule are hereby extended to the areas specified in the fourth column thereof.

Extension of the application of certain enactments.

12. All notifications, orders, schemes, rules, forms and bye-laws issued, made or prescribed under any of the enactments mentioned in column 3 of the Fourth Schedule, are hereby extended so far as the said notifications, orders, schemes, rules, forms and bye-laws are applicable, to the areas respectively mentioned against such enactment in column 4 of the said schedule.

Extension of applications, notifications, orders, etc.

13. Without prejudice to any provisions made in this behalf by or under the Government of India (Constitution of Orissa) Order, 1936, revenue proceedings pending immediately before the 1st day of April, 1936 (including cases where an appeal lies or will lie from a decision made or to be made) or in respect of any of the areas transferred to Orissa shall, unless the <sup>1</sup>[Provincial Government] otherwise directs in any case, be continued and disposed of as if the said Order had not been made.

Disposal of pending revenue proceedings.

14. Save as otherwise provided by this Regulation, the repeal by this Regulation of any enactment shall not affect any Act or Regulation in which such enactment has been applied,

THE ORISSA CONSOLIDATION OF APPEALS REG. (III OF 1936).

A Regulation to provide for the consolidation of certain appellate and revisional powers in the Province of Orissa.

WHEREAS it is expedient to provide for the consolidation of certain appellate and revisional powers in the Province of Orissa; It is hereby enacted as follows:—

Short title, application and commencement. 1. (1) This Regulation may be called THE ORISSA CONSOLIDATION OF APPEALS REGULATION, 1936.

(2) It applies to the Province of Orissa.

(3) It shall come into force on the 1st day of April, 1936.

2. Where appellate or revisional powers which were immediately, before the coming into force of the Government of India (Constitution of Orissa) Order, 1936 vested in separate Courts or authorities have, by reason of any direction issued under the provisions of the said Order, or by reason of any Regulation issued under section 71 of the Government of India Act, become vested in the Revenue Commissioner for Orissa, Consolidation of appeals when separate appellate powers are vested in Revenue Commissioner.

(a) the appellate or revisional powers which are so vested in the said Revenue Commissioner shall be deemed to be consolidated, and

(b) the period of limitation for an appeal or application for revision to the Revenue Commissioner shall be the longest period within which an appeal or application for revision could have been made to any of the Courts or authorities whose powers are so consolidated, if such powers had not been consolidated.

HOME DEPARTMENT.*JUDICIAL.

New Delhi, the 1st April, 1936.

No. F. 210/36 Judicial.—In the exercise of the powers conferred by paragraph 20 of the Government of India (Constitution of Orissa) Order, 1936, the Governor-General in Council is pleased to direct as follows:—

1. Every proceeding pending on the appointed day before any Court, other than a High Court in, or in respect of, any area transferred by the said Order to Orissa shall be continued, as if the said Order had not been made.

2. Any appeal or application for revision in respect of any proceeding so pending or of any decision made before the appointed day in any such Court in or in respect of any such area shall lie in the Court which has appellate or revisional jurisdiction as the case may be over the Court which would have jurisdiction to try such proceeding if the proceeding were instituted after the appointed day:

Provided that, where the proceeding relates to any property situate partly within and partly without any area transferred by the said Order to Orissa, any appeal or application for revision shall lie as if the said Order had not been made.

THE GOVERNMENT OF INDIA (FEDERAL COURT) ORDER, 1937.

AT THE COURT AT BUCKINGHAM PALACE.

PRESENT:

THE KING'S MOST EXCELLENT MAJESTY IN COUNCIL.

WHEREAS by sub-section (1) of section two hundred of the Government of India Act, 1935 (hereafter in this Order referred to as "the Act") provision is made for the establishment of a Federal Court consisting of a Chief Justice of India and such number of other Judges as His Majesty may deem necessary, so, however, that (except in the circumstances mentioned in the said sub-section) the number of those other Judges shall not exceed six:

AND WHEREAS by section two hundred and one of the Act the Judges of the Federal Court are to be entitled to such salaries and allowances, including allowances for expenses in respect of equipment and travelling upon appointment, and to such rights in respect of leave and pensions, as may from time to time be fixed by His Majesty in Council:

AND WHEREAS by virtue of the powers vested in him by sub-section (3) of section three hundred and twenty of the Act His Majesty in Council has made provision as to the dates on which certain sections of Chapter I of Part IX of the Act (being the chapter which contains the provisions of the Act with respect to the Federal Court) shall come into force, but no such provision has yet been made with respect to section two hundred and fifteen of the Act:

AND WHEREAS a draft of this Order has been laid before Parliament in accordance with the provisions of sub-section (1) of section three hundred and nine of the Act and an Address has been presented to His Majesty by both Houses of Parliament praying that an Order may be made in the terms of this Order:

NOW, THEREFORE, His Majesty, in the exercise of the said powers and of all other powers enabling him in that behalf, is pleased by and with the advice of his Privy Council to order, and it is hereby ordered as follows:—

Introductory.

1. (1) This Order may be cited as "THE GOVERNMENT OF INDIA (FEDERAL COURT) ORDER, 1937."

(2) Paragraph three of this Order shall take effect forthwith, but, save as aforesaid, the provisions of this Order shall come into operation on the first day of October, nineteen hundred and thirty-seven.

2. (1) In this Order, except where it is otherwise expressly provided or the context otherwise requires—

"Chief Justice" means the Chief Justice of India, but does not include an acting Chief Justice;

"acting Chief Justice" means a Judge appointed under section two hundred and two of the Act to perform the duties of the Chief Justice of India;

"Judge" means a Judge of the Federal Court and includes the Chief Justice, an acting Chief Justice and <sup>1</sup>[in this paragraph and in paragraphs 5, 17, 18, 22 and 23 but not otherwise], an acting Judge;

"Puisne Judge" includes an acting Chief Justice [but not]<sup>2</sup> an acting puisne Judge;

"High Court" means a Court which is a High Court for the purposes of the Act;

"Chartered High Court" means a High Court other than a Chief Court or a Judicial Commissioner's Court;

"actual service" includes—

(a) time spent by a Judge on duty as Judge, or in the performance of such other functions as he may at the request of the Governor-General undertake to discharge;

(b) vacations; and

(c) joining time on transfer from a High Court to the Federal Court;

"service for pension" includes—

(a) actual service;

(b) joining time taken on return from leave out of India;

"service as a Judge in India" means such service rendered either in the Federal Court only or in that Court and in one or more of the High Courts, and

"Judge in India" and "service for pension as a Judge in India" shall be construed accordingly;

"term-time" means any part of the year not included in a vacation;

"vacation" means a vacation fixed by or under Rules of Court made with the approval of the Governor-General in his discretion under section two hundred and fourteen of the Act.

(2) The Interpretation Act, 1889, applies for the interpretation of this Order as it applies for the interpretation of an Act of Parliament.

3. The provisions of section two hundred and fifteen of the Act (which relates to ancillary powers of the Federal Court) shall come into force on the making of this Order.

Expenses for Equipment and Voyage.

4. There shall be paid to a Judge who was permanently resident in Europe at the date of his appointment an allowance of five hundred pounds for expenses in respect of equipment and travelling on appointment.

Salaries.

5. There shall be paid to a Judge in respect of time spent on actual service salary at that one of the following rates which is appropriate to him, that is to say—

Any other Judge, [* * *] <sup>1</sup>	Rs. 5,500 per month;

Provided that, if a Judge at the time of his appointment is in receipt of a pension (other than a disability or wound pension) in respect of any previous service under the Crown in India, his salary in respect of service in the Federal Court shall be reduced by the amount of that pension.

6. Leave may be granted to a Judge during term-time in the following circumstances:—

(a) on medical certificate, for a period not exceeding six months, or for two or more periods not exceeding in the aggregate six months during the whole period of his service as Judge;

(b) for a period not exceeding six months, and not more than once during the whole period of his service as a Judge, otherwise than on medical certificate.

7. There shall be payable to a Judge in lieu of salary—

(a) in respect of any period of leave, an allowance at the rate of one thousand one hundred and ten rupees a month if resident in Asia during his leave, and at the rate of one hundred and eleven pounds a month if resident outside Asia;

(b) in respect of joining time on his return from leave out of India, an allowance at the rate of one thousand one hundred and ten rupees a month.

8. Extraordinary leave not exceeding six months in duration may be granted during term-time not more than once during the period of a Judge's service as such in excess of any leave permissible under paragraph six of this Order, but no salary or allowances shall be payable in respect of the period of such leave.

9. (1) If a Judge overstays his leave or any vacation, he shall receive no salary in respect of the period of his absence in excess of the leave granted to him or beyond the end of the vacation, as the case may be:

Provided that, if such absence is due to circumstances beyond his control, the period thereof may be treated as leave entitling him to such allowances as are mentioned in paragraph seven of this Order, but no account shall be taken of that period for the purposes of paragraph six of this Order.

LEG. REF.

(2) Nothing in this Order shall be construed as requiring a Judge to rejoin on the expiration of a period of leave when that period expires immediately before the commencement of a vacation, nor as authorising any acting Chief Justice or acting Judge to continue to hold his acting appointment during a vacation.

10. The power to grant, refuse, revoke or curtail leave shall be vested in the Governor-General exercising his individual judgment, after consultation with the Chief Justice.

Passages.

11. (1) A Judge who is a member of the Indian Civil Service shall have such rights in respect of passages for himself and his wife and children, if any, as under the rules of that Service he would have had if he had not been appointed a Judge, his services as a Judge in India being treated as service for the purpose of determining those rights.

(2) Any other Judge whose domicile at the date of his first appointment as a Judge in India was elsewhere than in Asia shall have such rights in respect of passages for himself and his wife and children, if any, as under the rules for the time being applicable to persons who became members of the Indian Civil Service on that date, he would have had if he had become a member thereof on that date and if his service as a Judge in India were treated as service therein for the purpose of determining those rights:

Provided that—

(i) if he has received an allowance for equipment and voyage on appointment as a Judge in India, he shall not be entitled to a passage (whether for himself, or his wife or children) until the completion of five years, nor to a second passage until the completion of ten years, total service as a Judge in India; and

(ii) if he dies while serving as a Judge, his wife and children shall not be entitled to any concession in respect of passages in addition to the gratuity for which provision is made in this Order.

Pensions.

12. (1) Subject to the provisions of this Order, a pension shall be payable in accordance with the provisions thereof to a Judge of the Federal Court on his retirement if, but only if,—

(a) he has completed not less than seven years' service for pension as a Judge in India; or

(b) he has completed not less than three years' service for pension as a Judge of the Federal Court and has attained the age of sixty-five years; or

(c) he has completed not less than three years' service for pension as a Judge of the Federal Court and his retirement is medically certified to be necessitated by ill-health; or

(d) he is a member of the Indian Civil Service who under the rules of that Service is entitled to retire with a pension.

(2) The Secretary of State may for special reasons direct that any period not exceeding three months shall be added to a Judge's service for pension, and any such period so added shall count for pension purposes—

(a) in the case of a Judge who has served in the Federal Court as Chief Justice only, as service as Chief Justice; and

(b) in the case of any other Judge of the Federal Court, as service as a puisne Judge.

13. Subject to the subsequent provisions of this Order, the pension payable thereunder to a Judge who on his retirement is entitled to a pension shall be calculated—

(a) in the case of a Chief Justice, other than a Chief Justice who is so entitled only by virtue of being a member of the Indian Civil Service, and in the case of a puisne Judge who is not a member of the Indian Civil Service, in accordance with the rules in Part I of the First Schedule to this Order;

(b) in the case of a Chief Justice who is so entitled only by virtue of being a member of the Indian Civil Service and in the case of a puisne Judge who is a member of the Indian Civil Service, in accordance with the rules in Part II of the said Schedule.

14. The pension payable to a Judge to whom paragraph twenty-seven (provision as to existing Judges) of the Government of India (High Court Judges) Order, 1937, applied before the date of his appointment to the Federal Court shall in no case be less than the pension which would have been payable to him under the rules to which he was subject immediately before that date if his service, if any, as Chief Justice of the Federal Court had been service as Chief Justice of the Calcutta High Court and his service, if any, as a puisne Judge of the Federal Court had been service as Chief Justice of one or more of the Chartered High Courts, other than those at Calcutta or Nagpur.

15. (1) The provisions of this paragraph shall apply in relation to a Judge who is a member of a civil service of the Crown in India.

(2) If any such Judge is entitled to a pension under the foregoing provisions of this Order he shall elect to receive either that pension or such pension as is referred to in the next succeeding sub-paragraph.

(3) If any such Judge is not entitled to a pension under the foregoing provisions of this Order, or, being entitled to such a pension, elects not to receive that pension, the pension payable to him shall be—

(a) the pension for which he would have been eligible under the rules of his civil service if he had not been appointed a Judge in India, his service as a Judge in India being treated as service for the purpose of calculating that pension; and

(b) if he is not a member of the Indian Civil Service, a special additional pension of five hundred rupees per annum in respect of each completed year of service for pension as a Judge in India, but not in any case exceeding two thousand five hundred rupees per annum.

16. If at the time of his appointment to the Federal Court a Judge is in receipt of a pension in respect of previous service as a Judge of a High Court the pension payable to him under this Order shall be an additional pension for service in the Federal Court equal to the difference between his original pension and the pension to which he would have been entitled under this Order if his service in the Federal Court had been rendered in continuation of the previous service for which his original pension was granted.

17. There shall be paid to the legal personal representatives of any Judge who dies while in possession of his office and who was at the time of his first appointment as a Judge in India permanently resident in Europe—

(a) if the death occurred more than six months after the date of his assumption of office as a Judge in India a sum equal to six months' salary in addition to any salary due to the Judge at the date of his death; or

(b) if the death occurred within six months after his assumption of office as a Judge in India or during his voyage to India for the purpose of first assuming office as such, such sum as with any amount received by or due to the Judge on account of salary will make up the amount of one year's salary.

18. The rules for the time being in force with respect to the grant of extraordinary pensions and gratuities and privileges in regard to special disability leave and passages to, or in respect of, members of the Indian Civil Service who may suffer injury or die as a result of violence shall apply in relation to a Judge, whether a member of a civil service or not, subject, however, to the modification that references in those rules to tables of injury gratuities and pensions and of family gratuities and pensions shall be construed as references to the tables in the Second Schedule to this Order.

19. Pensions expressed in sterling only shall, if paid in India, be converted at such rate of exchange as the Secretary of State may from time to time prescribe:

Provided that nothing in this paragraph shall affect any specific privilege in respect of the conversion of sterling pensions which was conferred by any Rules previously in force on persons who on the 1st February, 1921, were members of a civil service of the Crown in India.

20. The Civil Pensions (Commutation) Rules applicable to persons appointed by the Secretary of State shall with any necessary modifications apply to Judges of the Federal Court.

21. Save as may be otherwise expressly provided in the relevant rules relating to the grant of extraordinary pensions and gratuities, the authority competent to grant pension to a Judge under the provisions of this Order shall be the Governor-General, exercising his individual judgment.

Travelling Allowances.

22. A Judge shall receive such reasonable allowances to reimburse him for expenses incurred in travelling on duty in India and shall be afforded such reasonable facilities in connection with travelling as the Governor-General may from time to time prescribe exercising his individual judgment.

Subsidiary.

23. Subject to the provisions of this Order and of any other Order in Council made under the Act, the conditions of service of a Judge shall be determined by the rules for the time being applicable to an officer of non-Asiatic domicile or, as the case may be, of Asiatic domicile, appointed by the Secretary of State to a civil service of the Crown in India and holding the rank of Secretary to the Government of India:

Provided that nothing in this paragraph shall have effect so as to give to a Judge who is member of a civil service of the Crown in India less favourable terms in respect of any of his conditions of service than those to which he would be entitled as a member of his civil service if he had not been appointed a Judge, his service as a Judge in India being treated as service for the purpose of determining those terms.

Repeal and Saving.

24. Subject as hereinafter provided, paragraphs two and four to ten of the Government of India (Federal Court) Order, 1936, shall cease to have effect:

Provided that in relation to the first Chief Justice of India this Order shall have effect as if for the provisions of paragraphs twelve to seventeen thereof there were substituted the provisions of paragraphs five and six of the said Order of 1936.

FIRST SCHEDULE.

PENSIONS OF JUDGES.

PART I.

1. The Judges to whom the provisions of this Part of this Schedule apply are a Chief Justice, not being a Chief Justice who is entitled to a pension only by virtue of being a member of the Indian Civil Service, and a puisne Judge who is not a member of the Indian Civil Service.

2. The pension payable to a Chief Justice who has completed seven years' service for pension as a Judge in India shall be an amount equal to the sum of the following amounts, that is to say—

(i) an amount equal to the pension which would have been payable to him in accordance with the scale and rules in Part I of the Third Schedule to the Government of India (High Court Judges) Order, 1937; if his service as Chief Justice of the Federal Court had been rendered as Chief Justice of the Calcutta High Court, and his service, if any, as a puisne Judge of the Federal Court had been rendered as Chief Justice in any one or more of the Chartered High Courts other than those at Calcutta and Nagpur;

(ii) an additional amount of £15 for each completed year of service as Chief Justice of the Federal Court until he has become entitled to a pension of £1,800, and thereafter an additional amount of £90 for each completed year of such service:

Provided that the aggregate amount of his pension shall in no case exceed £2,000 per annum.

3. The pension payable to a puisne Judge to whom this Part of this Schedule applies and who has completed seven years' service for pension as a Judge in India shall be an amount equal to the pension which would have been payable to him in accordance with the scale and rules in Part I of the Third Schedule to the Government of India (High Court Judges) Order, 1937, if his service as Judge of the Federal Court had been rendered as Chief Justice in any one or more of the Chartered High Courts other than those at Calcutta and Nagpur.

4. The pension payable to a Judge (whether a Chief Justice or a puisne Judge) to whom this Part of this Schedule applies, and who has completed three years' service for pension in the Federal Court, but less than seven years' service for pension as a Judge in India shall be—

(i) for each completed year of service as Chief Justice of the Federal Court, £140,

(ii) for each completed year of service as a puisne Judge of the Federal Court, £105:

Provided that a Judge who has rendered service for pension both as Chief Justice of the Federal Court and also as a puisne Judge of that Court may claim that any period of service for pension less than a completed year rendered by him as Chief Justice shall be treated for the purposes of this sub-paragraph as service for pension rendered by him as a puisne Judge.

5. If a puisne Judge of the Federal Court who has served as acting Chief Justice thereof is subsequently appointed Chief Justice, his service as acting Chief Justice shall, for the purposes of paragraphs two and four of this Part of this Schedule, be treated as service as Chief Justice.

6. For the purpose of calculating, under paragraphs two and three of this Part of this Schedule, the pension which would have been payable in accordance with the scale and rules in Part I of the Third Schedule to the Government of India (High Court Judges) Order, 1937, the period during which a Judge of a Chartered High Court who is appointed Chief Justice or a puisne Judge of the Federal Court performed in an acting capacity the duties of a Chief Justice of a Chartered High Court shall count as though he had been subsequently appointed to be Chief Justice of that High Court.

PART II.

1. The Judges to whom the provisions of this Part of this Schedule apply are a puisne Judge of the Federal Court who is a member of the Indian Civil Service, and a Chief Justice of the Court who is entitled to a pension only by virtue of being a member of the Indian Civil Service.

2. The pension payable to any such Judge shall be—

(a) the pension to which he is entitled under the ordinary rules of the Indian Civil Service his service as a Judge in India being treated as service therein, and

(b) an additional pension of £105 for each completed year of service for pension in the Federal Court:

(i) his aggregate pension shall not exceed £1,500;

(ii) his aggregate pension shall not be less than the pension to which he would have been entitled under the Government of India (High Court Judges) Order, 1937, if his service in the Federal Court had been rendered as Chief Justice in one or more of the Chartered High Courts, other than those at Calcutta and Nagpur.

THE GOVERNMENT OF INDIA (HIGH COURT JUDGES) ORDER, 1937.

[As amended by the Government of India (High Court Judges, Amendment) Orders, 1937, 1939, and 1940].

AT THE COURT AT BUCKINGHAM PALACE,

The 18th day of March, 1937.

Present:—THE KING'S MOST EXCELLENT MAJESTY IN COUNCIL.

WHEREAS by sub-section (1) of section two hundred and twenty of the Government of India Act, 1935 (hereafter in this Order referred to as "the Act") it is provided that the Judges appointed by His Majesty to any High Court in British India, together with any additional Judges appointed by the Governor-General under sub-section (3) of section two hundred and twenty-two of the Act, shall at no time exceed in number such maximum number as His Majesty in Council may fix in relation to that Court:

And whereas by section two hundred and twenty-one of the Act it is provided that the Judges of the several High Courts shall be entitled to such salaries and allowances, including allowances for expenses in respect of equipment and travelling upon appointment, and to such rights in respect of leave and pensions, as may from time to time be fixed by His Majesty in Council:

And whereas a draft of this Order has been laid before Parliament in accordance with the provisions of sub-section (1) of section three hundred and nine of the Act, and an address has been presented to His Majesty by both Houses of Parliament praying that an Order may be made in the terms of this Order:

Now, therefore, His Majesty, in exercise of the said powers and of all other powers enabling him in that behalf, is pleased by and with the advice of His Privy Council to order, and it is hereby ordered, as follows:—

Introductory.

1. This Order may be cited as "The Government of India (High Court Judges) Order, 1937", and shall come into operation on the first day of April, nineteen hundred and thirty-seven.

2.—(1) In this Order, except where it is otherwise expressly provided or the context otherwise requires—

"High Court" means a Court which is a High Court for the purposes of the Act;

"Chartered High Court" means a High Court other than a Chief Court or a Judicial Commissioner's Court;

"Chief Justice" includes a Chief Judge and a Judicial Commissioner;

(High Court Judges) (Amendment) Order, 1937.

"acting Chief Justice" means a Judge appointed under sub-section (1) of section two hundred and twenty-two of the Act to perform the duties of a Chief Justice;

"acting Judge" means a person appointed under sub-section (2) of the said section to act as a Judge;

"additional Judge" means a person appointed under sub-section (3) of the said section to act as an additional Judge;

(i) time spent by a Judge on duty as Judge, or in the performance of such other functions as he may be directed by the Governor-General or the Governor to discharge;

(ii) vacations, excluding any time during which the Judge is absent on leave;

<sup>1</sup>[(iii) joining time on transfer from one High Court to another or from the Federal Court to a High Court;

and, except in Rule 5, also includes—

(iv) time spent by a Judge on duty as an acting puisne Judge of the Federal Court; and

(v) joining time on transfer from a High Court to the Federal Court;]

"service for pension" includes—

(i) actual service;

(ii) one month or the amount actually taken, whichever is less, of each period of leave on full allowances;

(iii) joining time on return from leave out of India;

(2) In the calculation of service for the purposes of this Order previous service at any date or dates as acting Judge or additional Judge <sup>2</sup>[and service as an acting Judge of the Federal Court] shall be reckoned as service as Judge; but, save as expressly provided, previous service as acting Chief Justice shall not be reckoned as service as Chief Justice.

(3) Any period of leave taken by a Judge before the commencement of this Order under the rules then applicable to him as an acting Judge or additional Judge shall for the purposes of this Order be treated as if it were leave taken by him under this Order.

(4) The Interpretation Act, 1889, applies for the interpretation of this Order as it applies for the interpretation of an Act of Parliament.

Maximum Number of Judges.

3. The maximum number of Judges in each High Court shall be as specified in the First Schedule to this Order.

Expenses for Equipment and Voyage.

4. There shall be paid to a Judge who was permanently resident in Europe at the date of his appointment an allowance of five hundred pounds for expenses in respect of equipment and travelling on appointment.

Salaries.

5. There shall be paid to a Judge in respect of time spent on actual service salary at the rate specified in the Second Schedule to this Order.

Leave.

6. Subject to the provisions of this Order, leave granted to a Judge may be at his option either—

(a) leave on full allowances; or

(b) leave on half allowances; or

(c) leave partly on full allowances and partly on half allowances.

LEG. REF.

7.—(1) A leave account in terms of leave on half allowances shall be kept for each Judge and in that account there shall be credited to him one-fourth of the time spent by him on actual service, and be debited to him all leave with allowances taken by him.

(2) For the purposes of this paragraph and of sub-paragraph (1) of the next succeeding paragraph, any period of leave on full allowances shall be reckoned as double that period of leave on half allowances.

8.—(1) The aggregate amount of leave granted to a Judge during his whole period of service as such shall not exceed in terms of leave on half allowances three years.

(2) The aggregate amount of leave on full allowances granted to a Judge during his whole period of service as such shall not exceed one twenty-fourth of the period spent by him on actual service.

(3) The maximum period of leave granted at any one time shall be, in the case of leave on full allowances, five months, and, in the case of leave with allowances of any kind, sixteen months.

9. Subject to the provisions of sub-paragraph (1) of the preceding paragraph, leave on half allowances may be granted to a Judge in excess of the amount at his credit—

(i) on medical certificate; or

(ii) for not more than six months and not more than once during the whole period of his service as a Judge, otherwise than on medical certificate.

10.—(1) The monthly rate of leave allowance payable to a Judge while on leave on full allowances shall be for the first month of such leave a rate equal to the monthly rate of his salary, and thereafter two thousand two hundred and twenty rupees if resident in Asia during his leave, and two hundred and twenty-two pounds if resident outside Asia.

(2) The monthly rate of leave allowance payable to a Judge while on leave on half allowances shall be one thousand one hundred and ten rupees if resident in Asia during his leave, and one hundred and eleven pounds if resident outside Asia.

11. There shall be payable to a Judge in respect of joining time on his return from leave out of India an allowance at the rate of one thousand one hundred and ten rupees a month in lieu of salary.

12. Extraordinary leave not exceeding six months in duration may be granted not more than once during the period of a Judge's service as such in excess of any leave permissible under the foregoing provisions of this Order, but no salary or allowances shall be payable during or in respect of such leave.

13.—(1) A Judge may be allowed to combine vacation on full salary with leave, if—

(a) where the vacation consists of one continuous period, the leave is taken either at the commencement or at the end of the vacation but not at both;

(b) where the vacation is divided into two separate periods, the leave is taken for the interval, or part of the interval, between the two periods of that vacation, or for the interval, or part of the interval, between the second period of that vacation and the commencement of the next ensuing vacation.

(2) Permission to combine vacation with leave shall not be granted under this paragraph if it will be necessary to appoint an acting Judge during the period of the vacation.

14. If a Judge overstays his leave on any vacation, whether combined with leave or not, he shall receive no salary for the period of his absence in excess of the leave granted to him or beyond the end of the vacation, as the case may be:

Provided that, if such absence is due to circumstances beyond his control, the period thereof may be treated as leave and be debited to his leave account.

15. The power to grant, refuse, revoke or curtail leave shall be vested in the Governor of the Province in which the principal seat of the High Court is situate, exercising his individual judgment, after consultation with the Chief Justice.

Passages.

16.—(1) A Judge who is a member of the Indian Civil Service shall have such rights in respect of passages for himself and his wife and children, if any, as under the rules of that Service he would have had if he had not been appointed a Judge, his service as Judge being treated as service for the purpose of determining those rights.

(2) Any other Judge whose domicile at the date of his appointment was elsewhere than in Asia shall have such rights in respect of passages for himself and his wife and children, if any, as, under the rules for the time being applicable to persons who became members of the Indian Civil Service on that date, he would have had if he had become a member thereof on that date and if his service as Judge were treated as service therein for the purpose of determining those rights:

(i) if he has received an allowance for equipment and voyage on appointment he shall not be entitled to a passage (whether for himself, or his wife or children) until the completion of five years, nor to a second passage until the completion of ten years, total service as a Judge; and

(ii) if he dies while serving as a Judge, his wife and children shall not be entitled to any concession in respect of passages in addition to the gratuity for which provision is made in this Order.

Pensions.

17.—(1) Subject to the provisions of this Order, a pension shall be payable to a Judge on his retirement if, but only if, either—

(a) he has completed not less than 12 years' service for pension; or

(b) he has completed not less than 7 years' service for pension and has attained the age of sixty; or

(c) he has completed not less than 7 years' service for pension and his retirement is medically certified to be necessitated by ill-health.

(2) The Secretary of State may for special reasons direct that any period not exceeding three months shall be added to a Judge's service for pension:

Provided that a period so added shall be disregarded in calculating any additional pension under Part I or Part II of the Third Schedule to this Order.

18.—(1) Subject to the provisions of this Order, the pension payable to a Judge who on his retirement is entitled to a pension shall be calculated—

(a) in the case of a Chief Justice or Judge who is not a member of the Indian Civil Service, or of a Chief Justice of a Chartered High Court who is a member of the Indian Civil Service, in accordance with the scale and rules in Part I of the Third Schedule to this Order.

(b) in the case of a Judge who is a member of the Indian Civil Service and is not a Chief Justice of a Chartered High Court, in accordance with the scale and rules in Part II of the said Schedule.

19.—(1) The provisions of this paragraph shall apply in relation to a Judge who is a member of a civil service of the Crown in India.

(2) If any such Judge is eligible for a pension under paragraphs 17 and 18 of this Order he shall elect to receive either that pension or such pension as is referred to in the next succeeding sub-paragraph.

(3) If any such Judge is not eligible for a pension under paragraphs 17 and 18 of this Order or, being eligible for such a pension elects not to receive that pension, the pension payable to him shall be—

(a) the pension for which he would have been eligible under the rules of his civil service if he had not been appointed a Judge, his service as a Judge being treated as service for the purpose of calculating that pension; and

(b) if he is not a member of the Indian Civil Service, a special additional pension of five hundred rupees per annum in respect of each completed year of service for pension in any one or more of the High Courts, <sup>1</sup>[or as acting Judge of the Federal Court], but not in any case exceeding two thousand five hundred rupees per annum.

(4) The pension payable to any such Judge part of whose service includes service as a Chief Justice shall in no case be less than the pension for which he would have been eligible if all his service for pension had been service rendered otherwise than as Chief Justice.

20. The rules for the time being in force with respect to the grant of extraordinary pensions and gratuities and privileges in regard to special disability leave and passages to, or in respect of, members of the Indian Civil Service who may suffer injury or die as a result of violence shall apply in relation to a Judge, whether a member of a civil service or not, subject, however, to the modification that references in those rules to tables of injury gratuities and pensions and of family gratuities and pensions, shall be construed as references to the tables in the Fourth Schedule to this Order.

21. Pensions expressed in sterling only shall, if paid in India, be converted at such rate of exchange as the Secretary of State may from time to time prescribe:

Provided that nothing in this paragraph shall affect any specific privilege in respect of the conversion of sterling pensions which was conferred by any Rules previously in force on persons who on the 1st February, 1921, were members of a civil service of the Crown in India.

22. The Civil Pensions (Commutation) Rules applicable to persons appointed by the Secretary of State shall with any necessary modifications apply to Judges.

23. There shall be paid to the legal personal representatives of any Judge who dies while in possession of his office and who was at the time of his appointment permanently resident in Europe.

(a) if the death occurred more than six months after the date of his assumption of office a sum equal to six months' salary in addition to any salary due to the Judge at the date of his death; or

(b) if the death occurred within six months after his assumption of office or during his voyage to India for the purpose of first assuming office, such sum as with any amount received by or due to the Judge on account of salary will make up the amount of one year's salary.

24. Save as may be otherwise expressly provided in the relevant rules relating to the grant of extraordinary pensions and gratuities, the authority competent to grant pension to a Judge under the provisions of this Order shall be the Governor of the Province in which the High Court is situated, exercising his individual judgment.

Travelling Allowances.

25. A Judge shall receive such reasonable allowances to reimburse him for expenses incurred in travelling on duty in India and such reasonable facilities in connexion with travelling as the Governor of the Province in which the principal seat of the High Court is situated may from time to time in his individual judgment prescribe.

Subsidiary Conditions of Service.

26. Subject to the provisions of this Order and of any other Order in Council made under the Act, the conditions of service of a Judge shall be determined by the rules for the time being applicable to an officer of non-Asiatic domicile or, as the case may be, of Asiatic domicile appointed by the Secretary of State to a civil service of the Crown in India and holding the rank of Secretary to the Government of the Province in which the principal seat of the High Court is situated:

Provided that nothing in this paragraph shall have effect so as to give to a Judge who is a member of a civil service of the Crown in India less favourable terms in respect of any of his conditions of service than those to which he would be entitled as a member of his civil service if he had not been appointed a Judge, his service as Judge being treated as service for the purpose of determining those terms.

Provisions as to existing Judges.

27. (1) The foregoing provisions of this Order (other than paragraph three) shall not apply in relation to a Judge who—

(a) was serving as a Judge in India at the commencement of this Order; or

(b) was serving as a Judge in Burma at that date and is subsequently appointed to be a Judge in India.

(2) The conditions of service of any such Judge as aforesaid shall continue to be governed by the rules to which he was subject immediately before the commencement of this Order and, for the purposes of those rules, service by any such Judge as a Judge in Burma, whether before or after the said date, and leave taken by him during such service, shall be treated as service rendered in India and as leave taken during service so rendered.

(3) For the purposes of this paragraph a person who was serving as Acting Judge or additional Judge at the commencement of this Order shall be deemed to have been serving as a Judge at that date if, but only if, his service as such Acting Judge or additional Judge continued without interruption until his subsequent permanent appointment as Judge.

PENSIONS OF JUDGES.

PART I.

1. The provisions of this Part of this Schedule apply to a Chief Justice or Judge who is not a member of the Indian Civil Service and also to a Judge who is a member of that Service and is Chief Justice of a Chartered High Court.

2. The pension payable to such a Judge who has completed twelve years' service for pension, including not less than six years' service as Chief Justice of one or more of the Chartered High Courts, other than Nagpur, shall, if six years or more of his service as Chief Justice has been rendered in the High Court at Calcutta be eighteen hundred pounds per annum and, in any other case, fifteen hundred pounds per annum.

3. Subject as aforesaid, the pension payable to a Judge to whom the provisions of this Part of this Schedule apply shall be the basic pension for which provision is made in the next succeeding paragraph increased by the additional pension, if any, to which he is entitled under the subsequent provisions of this Part of this Schedule.

4. The basic pension to which such a Judge shall be entitled shall be—
(a) for the first seven completed years of service for pension, £375 per annum; and

LEG. REF.

<sup>1</sup> Short title, "The Acting Judges' Act, 1867". See the Indian Short Titles Act (XIV of 1897). The bill which was passed on the 1st March, 1867, and published as Act XVI of 1867, was introduced and passed at one sitting. See the Proceedings in Council published in Gazette of India, 1867, Supplement, p. 180. This Act has been declared, by notification under S. 3 (a) of the Scheduled Districts Act (XIV of 1874), to be in force in the following Scheduled Districts, namely:—The Districts Hazaribagh, Lohardaga and Manbhum, and Pargana Dhalbhum and the Kolhan in the District of Singhbhum—see Gazette of India, 1881, Pt. I, p. 504.

to appoint persons to act temporarily as such Judges, and it is expedient to remove such doubts; it is hereby enacted as follows:—

1. In every case in which the <sup>1</sup>[Central Government], or the <sup>1</sup>[Provincial Government], as the case may be, has power under any Act or Regulation to appoint a Judge of any Court in British India, such power shall be taken to include the power to appoint any person capable of being appointed a permanent Judge of such Court, to act as Judge of the same Court for such time as the <sup>1</sup>[Central Government] or the <sup>1</sup>[Provincial Government], as the case may be, shall direct. Every person so appointed to act temporarily as a Judge of any such Court shall have the powers and perform the duties which he would have had and been liable to perform in case he had been duly appointed a permanent Judge of the same Court.

Certain enactments to be construed as if they contained a clause like section 1 of this Act.

2. Every such Act and Regulation shall be construed as if it contained a special clause to the purport or effect of the first section of this Act.

THE ADMINISTRATOR-GENERAL'S ACT (III OF 1913).

PREFATORY NOTE.—The jurisdiction of the Court to compel due administration of the estate of deceased persons has existed from a very early period. It seems to have been of gradual growth, and founded rather on the necessity of supplying the defects of the Courts of common law and the ecclesiastical Courts, than on execution of trusts cognizable in equity alone. (Ency. of Laws of England, Vol. I, p. 176.)

In ancient times, when a man died without making any disposition of such of his goods as were testable, it is said that the king, who is parens patriae, and has the supreme care to provide for all his subjects, used to seize the goods of the intestate, to the intent that they should be preserved and disposed for the burial of the deceased, the payment of his debts, to advance his wife and children, if he had any, and if not, those of his blood. This prerogative the king continued to exercise for some time by his own Ministers of Justice, and probably in the County Court, where matters of all kinds were determined, and it was granted as a franchise to many lords of manors, and others, who had, until the passing of the Court of Probate Act, a prescriptive right to grant administration to their intestate tenants and suitors in their own Courts Baron and other Courts. Afterwards the Crown, in favour of the Church, invested the prelates with this branch of the prerogative; for it was said, none could be found more fit to have such care and charge of the transitory goods of the deceased than the Ordinary, who all his life had the cure and charge of his soul. (Williams on Executors, 11th Edn., 312, 313.)

The flagrant abuses of this power by the Ecclesiastical Courts occasioned the Legislature to interpose, in order to prevent the Ordinaries from keeping any longer the administration in their own hands, or those of their immediate dependents and therefore, S. 31 Edw. III, St. 1, was passed.

The term "administration" applied broadly denotes the management of an estate by a person appointed by authority of law to take charge thereof in place of the proper owner. (Amo. Cyc., Vol. 1,—Title, Administration.)

Referring to the origin of the office of Administrator-General in British India, Mr. Kenny in his book on Administration Practice in British India says:—"The office of the Administrator-General in this country grew out of the Mercantile and Trading Community of Bengal, whose interest were safeguarded by the Charter establishing the Supreme Court of Judicature at Fort William in Bengal, dated the 26th March, 1774. Its functions have been developed, and regulated on lines which experience have shown to be necessary; and it is an illustration of the adoption, and modification, to suit local circumstances of those principles which underlie the law of trusts, and the law affecting the administration of the estates, of deceased persons."

The earliest office out of which the office of the Administrator-General was developed is that of the Ecclesiastical Registrar in Bengal. The first parliamentary statute which dealt with the powers of Ecclesiastical Registrar in Bengal and the other provinces to obtain administration to estates was 39 and 40, Geo. III, Cap. 79. In order to understand the position of the Registrar under this statute, attention may be directed to S. 21 of the Act which reads as follows:—"And whereas great inconveniences have arisen from the practice of granting Letters of Administration by the said Supreme Court of Judicature at Fort William aforesaid in cases where the next-of-kin or any of the creditors of the deceased do not apply for the same, to persons calling themselves friends of the deceased. Be it therefore further enacted that from and after the first day of March which will be in the year of our Lord one thousand eight hundred and one, whenever, any British subject shall die intestate within either of the presidencies of Fort William, Fort Saint George or Bombay, or the territories subordinate to either of the said Presidencies or to become subordinate thereto, and on return of the citation to be issued from the proper Ecclesiastical Court, no next-of-kin or creditors shall appear and make out their claim to the administration of the effect of the intestate deceased to the satisfaction of the said Court, it shall and may be lawful for the Registrar of such Court, and he is hereby required and directed to grant such letters of administration and colligenda as to such Court shall seem meet, by virtue whereof such Registrar shall collect the assets of the deceased and shall bring them for safe custody into such Court and account for them regularly in like manner as is now by law provided in cases where assets are vested in the hands of any officer of the Court under or by virtue of the equitable jurisdiction of any such Court."

It was not long before it became necessary to further develop the law on the subject. To this end Stat. 55, Geo. III, Cap. 84, was enacted.

The Registrar, under the old Act, had not by any means such a monopoly of administration of estates as was at one time considered to be the case: but private administrators were not by any means subject to similar restrictions in regard to the question of the method of keeping and filing their accounts, etc. The precautions, however, above referred to prove to be quite inadequate.

Gross irregularities and abuses were discovered in respect of estates under the charge of certain persons who held the office of Ecclesiastical Registrar, with the result that an order was passed by the Supreme Court on the 8th March, 1848, appointing a Committee to enquire into the working of that office. The Committee so appointed, duly enquired into the working of the office, and presented their report on the 29th January, 1849. Among other things it proved the Registrars had abused their powers; that they had employed the monies in their hands in trade and that heavy losses had been incurred.

The Government of India, in view of the disclosures above alluded to considered it advisable to take steps to protect the interests of the beneficiaries and next-of-kin of persons dying intestate as well as those who left wills, and after some consideration it was resolved that a public official should be appointed, who would protect the property of persons dying in cases where no steps were taken by the next-of-kin (if any) or where the next-of-kin were resident out of British India. It was also considered advisable to give such official power to deal with the estates of persons who had left wills where either the beneficiaries under the will were resident out of British India, or where they, or the executors named, took no steps to protect the estate. After carefully considering the position of matters the Government of India passed Act VII of 1849, which may be termed the first Administrator-General's Act in British India.

The next was Act II of 1850 (passed on 11th January, 1850) by which the Act of 1849 was extended to Madras and Bombay. It was provided that the rate of commission charged was not to be the same; that the Administrator-General of these two provinces were not to cease to hold the office of Ecclesiastical Registrar; and by section 4 of the Act, the Administrator-General was strictly prohibited from trading, etc. This Act remained in force until the year 1855, when a further Act was passed (Act VIII of 1855), which repealed both the lost-mentioned Acts.

This Act (VIII of 1855) remained in force until the year 1867, when Act XXVI of 1867 was passed as a repealing and re-enacting Code relating to the subject.

Act II of 1874, which was the Act in force, until it was repealed and re-enacted by the present Act was presented to the Legislative Council on the 27th January, 1874. It recited that having regard to the fact of certain amendments, and also to the fact that the Act of 1867 had already been amended by Act XIX of 1867 and Act V of 1870, it was thought advisable to repeal the then existing Acts and re-enact them, so as to have the law conveniently within the compass of one Act. The Act again came up for discussion on 10th February, 1874, when it was discussed and finally received the assent of the Governor-General.

In 1913 it was thought expedient to consolidate Act II of 1874 and its several amending enactments, and also to make certain amendments in the law relating to the powers and duties of the Administrator-General, and this was effected by the Act which is now in force, Act III of 1913. such <sup>1</sup>[Division] for probate of his will, or for letters of administration of his estate, the Administrator-General of the <sup>1</sup>[Division] in which such assets are shall, subject to any rules made by the Government, within a reasonable time after he has had notice of the death of such person, and of his having left such assets, take such proceedings as may be necessary to obtain from the High Court <sup>2</sup>[* * *] letters of administration of the estate of such person.

10. Whenever any person has died leaving assets within the local limits of the ordinary original civil jurisdiction of the High Court at a Presidency-town, the Court, on being satisfied that danger is to be apprehended of misappropriation, deterioration or waste of such assets unless letters of administration of the estate of such person are granted, may upon the application of the Administrator-General or of any person interested in such assets or in the due administration thereof make an order, upon such terms as to indemnifying the Administrator-General against costs and other expenses as the Court thinks fit, directing the Administrator-General to apply for letters of administration of the estate of such person:

Provided that in the case of an application being made under this section for letters of administration of the estate of an exempted person, the Court may refuse to grant letters of administration, if it is satisfied that such grant is unnecessary for the protection of the assets; and in such case the Court shall make such order as to the costs of the application as it thinks fit.

11. (1) Whenever any person has died leaving assets within the local limits of the ordinary original civil jurisdiction of any of the said High Courts, and such Court is satisfied that there is no person immediately available, who is legally entitled to the succession to such assets, or that danger is to be apprehended of misappropriation, deterioration or waste of such assets, before it can be determined who may be legally entitled to the succession thereto, or whether the Administrator-General is entitled to letters of administration of the estate of such deceased person, the Court may, upon the application of the Administrator-General or of any person interested in such assets, or in the due administration thereof, forthwith direct the Administrator-General to collect and take possession of such assets, and to hold, deposit, realize, sell or invest the same according to the directions of the Court, and in default of any such directions according to the provisions of this Act so far as the same are applicable to such assets.

(2) Any order of the Court made under the provisions of this section shall entitle the Administrator-General,

(a) to maintain any suit or proceeding for the recovery of such assets, and

(b) if he thinks fit, to apply for letters of administration of the estate of such deceased person, and

(c) to retain out of the assets of the estate any fees chargeable under rules made under this Act, and to reimburse himself for all payments made by him in respect of such assets which a private administrator might lawfully have made.

Grant of probate or letters of administration to person appearing in the course of proceedings taken by Administrator-General under Ss. 9, 10 and 11.

12. If, in the course of proceeding to obtain letters of administration under the provisions of section 9, section 10 or section 11, any person appears and establishes his claim—

(a) to probate of the will of the deceased; or

(b) to letters of administration as next-of-kin of the deceased, and gives such security as may be required of him by law, the Court shall grant probate of the will or letters of administration accordingly, and shall award to the Administrator-General the cost of any proceedings taken by him, under those sections to be paid out of the estate as part of the testamentary or intestate expenses thereof.

13. If, in the course of proceedings to obtain letters of administration under the provisions of section 9, section 10 or section 11, no person appears and establishes his claim to probate of a will, or to a grant of letters of administration as next-of-kin of the deceased, within such necessary for the Administrator-General to take out letters of administration of the estate of any deceased person which is being administered by him in accordance with the provisions of the Regimental Debts Act, 1893, if the value of such estate does not on the date when such administration is committed to him exceed rupees one thousand, but he shall have the same power in regard to such estate as he would have had if letters of administration had been granted to him.

17. If the Administrator-General applies, in accordance with the provisions of the Regimental Debts Act, 1893, for letters of administration of the estate of any person subject to the Army Act <sup>1</sup>[or the Air Force Act] the Court may grant to him letters of administration limited to the purpose of dealing with such estate in accordance with the provisions of the Regimental Debts Act, 1893.

(c) Revocation of Grants.

18. If an executor or next-of-kin of the deceased, who has not been personally served with a citation or who has not had notice thereof in time to appear pursuant thereto establishes to the satisfaction of the Court a claim to probate of will or to letters of administration in preference to the Administrator-General, any letters of administration granted in accordance with the provisions of this Act to the Administrator-General may be revoked, and probate or letters of administration may be granted to such executor or next-of-kin as the case may be:

Provided that no letters of administration granted to the Administrator-General shall be revoked for the cause aforesaid, except in cases in which a will of the deceased is proved in the <sup>2</sup>[Division] unless the application for that purpose is made within six months after the grant to the Administrator-General and the Court is satisfied that there has been no unreasonable delay in making the application, or in transmitting the authority under which the application is made.

19. If any letters of administration granted to the Administrator-General in accordance with the provisions of this Act are revoked, the Court may order the costs of obtaining such letters of administration, and the whole or any part of any fees which would otherwise have been payable under this Act, together with the costs of the Administrator-General in any proceedings taken to obtain such revocation, to be paid to or retained by the Administrator-General out of the estate:

Provided that nothing in this section shall affect the provisions of clause (c) of sub-section (2) of section 11.

20. If any letters of administration granted to the Administrator-General in accordance with the provisions of this Act are revoked, the same shall, so far as regards the Administrator-General and all persons acting under his authority in pursuance thereof, be deemed to have been only voidable, except as to any act done by any such Administrator-General or other person as aforesaid, after notice of a will or of any other fact which would render such letters void:

Provided that no notice of a will or of any other fact which would render any such letters void shall affect the Administrator-General or any person acting under his authority in pursuance of such letters unless, within the period of one month from the time of giving such notice, proceedings are commenced to prove the will, or to cause the letters to be revoked, and such proceedings are prosecuted without unreasonable delay.

25. (1) Any private executor or administrator may, with the previous consent of the Administrator-General of the <sup>1</sup>[Division] in which any of the assets of the estate, in respect of which such executor or administrator has obtained probate or letters of administration, are situate, by an instrument in writing under his hand notified in the official Gazette, transfer the assets of the estate vested in him by virtue of such probate or letters to the Administrator-General by that name or any other sufficient description.

(2) As from the date of such transfer the transferor shall be exempt from all liability as such executor or administrator, as the case may be, except in respect of acts done before the date of such transfer, and the Administrator-General shall have the rights which he would have had, and be subject to the liabilities to which he would have been subject, if the probate or letters of administration, as the case may be, had been granted to him by that name at the date of such transfer.

26. (1) When the Administrator-General has given the prescribed notice for creditors and others to send in to him their claims against the estate of the deceased, he shall, at the expiration of the time therein named for sending in claims, be at liberty to distribute the assets or any part thereof in discharge of such lawful claims as he has notice of.

(2) He shall not be liable for the assets so distributed to any person of whose claim he had not notice at the time of such distribution.

(3) No notice of any claim which has been sent in and has been rejected or disallowed in part by the Administrator-General shall affect him unless proceedings to enforce such claim are commenced within one month after notice of the rejection or disallowance of such claim has been given in the prescribed manner and unless such proceedings are prosecuted without unreasonable delay.

(4) Nothing in this section shall prejudice the right of any creditor or other claimant to follow the assets or any part thereof in the hands of the persons who may have received the same respectively.

(5) In computing the period of limitation for any suit, appeal or application under the provisions of any law for the time being in force, the period between the date of submission of the claim of a creditor to the Administrator-General and the date of the final decision of the Administrator-General on such claim shall be excluded.

(a) to file accounts or inventories of the assets of the deceased before any Court or other authority, or

(b) save as provided in section 32 to give any bond for the due administration of the estate.

35. The Administrator-General may revoke a certificate granted under the provisions of section 31 or section 32 on any of the following grounds, namely:—

(i) that the certificate was obtained by fraud or misrepresentation made to him,

(ii) that the certificate was obtained by means of an untrue allegation of a fact essential in law to justify the grant though such allegation was made in ignorance or inadvertently.

36. (1) When a certificate is revoked in accordance with the provisions of section 35, the holder thereof shall, on the requisition of the Administrator-General, deliver it up to such Administrator-General, but shall not be entitled to the refund of any fee paid thereon.

(2) If such person wilfully and without reasonable cause omits to deliver up the certificate, he shall be punishable with imprisonment which may extend to three months, or with fine which may extend to one thousand rupees, or with both.

37. The Administrator-General shall not be bound to take out letters of administration of the estate of any deceased person on account of the assets in respect of which he grants any certificate, under section 31 or section 32, but he may do so if he revokes such certificate under section 35 or ascertains that the value of the estate exceeded <sup>1</sup>[two thousand] rupees.

(a) whether they contain a full and true account of everything which ought to be inserted therein,

(b) whether the books which by any rules made under this Act are directed to be kept by the Administrator-General, have been duly and regularly kept, and

(c) whether the assets and securities have been duly kept and invested and deposited in the manner prescribed by this Act, or by any rules made thereunder, or (as the case may be) that such accounts are deficient, or that the Administrator-General has failed to comply with this Act or the rules made thereunder, in such respects as may be specified in such certificate.

Power of auditors to summon and examine witnesses, and to call for documents.

46. (1) Every auditor shall have the powers of a Civil Court under the Code of Civil Procedure, 1908,

(a) to summon any person whose presence he thinks necessary to attend him from time to time; and

(b) to examine any person on oath to be by him administered; and

(c) to issue a commission for the examination on interrogatories or otherwise of any person; and

(d) to summon any person to produce any document or thing the production of which appears to be necessary for the purpose of such audit or examination.

(2) Any person who when summoned refuses, or without reasonable cause, neglects to attend or to produce any document or thing or attends and refuses to be sworn, or to be examined, shall be deemed to have committed an offence within the meaning of, and punishable under, section 188 of the Indian Penal Code, and the auditor shall report every case of such refusal or neglect to Government.

47. The costs of and incidental to such audit and examination shall be determined in accordance with rules made by the Government, and shall be defrayed in the prescribed manner.

Costs of audit, etc.

PART VI.

MISCELLANEOUS.

48. The Administrator-General may, in addition to, and not in derogation of, any other powers of expenditure lawfully exercisable by him, incur expenditure—

General powers of administration.

(a) on such acts as may be necessary for the proper care and management of any property belonging to any estate in his charge; and

(b) with the sanction of the High Court <sup>1</sup>[* * *] on such religious, charitable and other objects, and on such improvements as may be reasonable and proper in the case of such property.

49. Any person interested in the administration of any estate, which is in the charge of the Administrator-General shall, subject to such conditions and restrictions as may be prescribed, be entitled at all reasonable times to inspect the accounts relating to such estate and the reports and certificates of the auditor, and on payment of the prescribed fee, to copies thereof and extracts therefrom.

Power of person beneficially interested to inspect Administrator-General's account, etc., and take copies.

50. (1) The Government shall make rules<sup>2</sup> for carrying into effect the objects of this Act and for regulating the proceedings of the Administrator-General.

Power to make rules.

(2) In particular and without prejudice to the generality of the foregoing power, such rules may provide for—

(a) the accounts to be kept by the Administrator-General and the audit and inspection thereof.

(b) the safe custody, deposit and investment of assets and securities which come into the hands of the Administrator-General,

(c) the remittance of sums of money in the hands of the Administrator-General in cases in which such remittances are required,

(d) subject to the provisions of this Act, the fees to be paid under this Act, and the collection and accounting for any such fees,

(e) the statements, schedules and other documents to be submitted to the Government or to any other authority by the Administrator-General, and the publication of such statements, schedules, or other documents,

(f) the realisation of the cost of preparing any such statements, schedules or other such documents,

(ff) <sup>3</sup>[* * * * *]

(g) the manner in which and the person by whom the costs of and incidental to any audit under the provisions of this Act are to be determined and defrayed,

SECS. 50 AND 52.—“Assets” includes both movable and immovable property. 51 M.L. J. 334. The Administrator-General does not earn a commission by merely taking out letters of administration. (Ibid.)

(h) the manner in which summonses issued under the provisions of section 46 are to be served and the payment of the expenses of any persons summoned or examined under the provisions of this Act and of any expenditure incidental to such examination, and

(i) any matter in this Act directed to be prescribed.

(3) All rules made under this Act shall be published in the official Gazette and, on such publication, shall have effect as if enacted in this Act.

51. Whoever, during any examination authorised by this Act, makes upon oath a statement which is false and which he either knows or believes to be false or does not believe to be true, shall be deemed to have intentionally given false evidence in a stage of a judicial proceeding.

52. All assets in the charge of the Administrator-General which have been in his custody for a period of twelve years or upwards whether before or after the commencement of this Act without any application for payment thereof having been made and granted by him shall be transferred, in the prescribed manner, to the account and credit of the Government <sup>1</sup>[* * ]:

Provided that this section shall not authorise the transfer of any such assets as aforesaid, if any suit or proceeding is pending in respect thereof in any Court.

53. (1) If any claim is hereafter made to any part of the assets transferred to the account and credit of the Government <sup>1</sup>[* * ] under the provisions of this Act, or any Act hereby repealed, and if such claim is established to the satisfaction of the prescribed authority, the Government <sup>1</sup>[* * ] shall pay to the claimant the amount of the principal so transferred to its account and credit or so much thereof as appears to be due to the claimant.

(2) If the claim is not established to the satisfaction of the prescribed authority, the claimant may, without prejudice to his right to take any other proceedings for the recovery of such assets, apply by petition to the High Court <sup>2</sup>[* * ] against the <sup>3</sup>[Government] and such Court, after taking such evidence as it thinks fit, shall make such order in regard to the payment of the whole or any part of the said principal sum as it thinks fit, and such order shall be binding on all parties to the proceedings:

(3) The Court may further direct by whom the whole or any part of the cost of each party shall be paid.

District Judge in certain cases to take charge of property of deceased persons, and to report to Administrator-General.

54. (1) Whenever any person, other than an exempted person, dies leaving assets within the limits of the jurisdiction of a District Judge, the District Judge shall report the circumstance without delay to the Administrator-General of the <sup>3</sup>[Division] stating the following particulars so far as they may be known to him:—

THE SCHEDULE.

ENACTMENTS REPEALED.

[Repealed by the Repealing Act, 1927 (XII of 1927).]

THE AGRICULTURAL PRODUCE CESS ACT (XXVII OF 1940).

[15th April, 1940.]

An Act to make better financial provision for the Imperial Council of Agricultural Research.

WHEREAS it is expedient to make better financial provision for the carrying out by the Imperial Council of Agricultural Research of the objects for which it is established as set forth in the Memorandum of Association of that body, and for this purpose to impose on certain articles a cess by way of customs duty on export, the proceeds of which shall be paid to the said Council;

It is hereby enacted as follows:—

Short title and extent.

1. (1) This Act may be called THE AGRICULTURAL PRODUCE CESS ACT, 1940.

(2) It extends to the whole of British India.

Definition.

2. In this Act, unless there is anything repugnant in the subject or context,—

LEG. REF.

3. Repeal of Act X of 1879, and sections 4 and 5 of Act XV of 1880. [Repealed by Act I of 1938.]

(a) "Collector" means a Customs-Collector as defined in clause (c) of section 3 of the Sea Customs Act, 1878, or a Collector of land Customs as defined in clause (c) of section 2 of the Land Customs Act, 1924, as the case may be, and

(b) "Council" means the Imperial Council of Agricultural Research.

3. (1) A customs duty at the rate of one-half of one per cent, ad valorem shall be levied on all articles included in the Schedule which are exported from British India:

Imposition of cess.

Provided that the said duty shall not be levied on articles proved to the satisfaction of the Collector not to have been produced in India.

(2) The Central Government may, by notification in the official Gazette, fix for the purposes of levying the said duty tariff values of any articles included in the Schedule, and may alter any tariff values for the time being in force.

4. The Central Government may, after previous consultation with the Council, by notification in the official Gazette, direct that any article specified in the Schedule shall cease to be subject to the duty imposed by section 3, and thereupon, so long as the notification remains in force, that article shall be deemed not to be included in the Schedule.

Power to exclude articles from schedule.

Refund of, and exemption from, cess.

5. The Central Board of Revenue may make rules providing, on such conditions as may be specified in the rules, for—

(a) the refund of duty levied where articles are exported by land and subsequently imported into India, and

(b) the export by land, without payment of the duty, of articles which are subsequently to be imported into India.

Payment of cess to Council and expenditure of cess by Council.

6. (1) The proceeds of the duty levied under this Act reduced by the cost of collection as determined by the Central Government shall be paid to the Council.

(2) The amount so due shall be paid by the Central Government to the Council at intervals of not more than six months.

(3) The expenditure of the money so paid to the Council shall be subject to such limitations as may be imposed by rules made in this behalf by the Central Government.

7. (1) The Council shall constitute a Standing Finance Committee, of which one member shall be chosen from among the representatives of the Central Legislature on the governing body of the Council, and one member shall be an officer appointed by the Central Government.

(2) Subject to the provisions of sub-section (1), the constitution, functions and procedure of the Standing Finance Committee shall be regulated in such manner as the Council may with the previous approval of the Central Government determine.

Reserve fund.

8. The Council shall in accordance with the rules made in this behalf by the Central Government create and maintain a reserve fund.

Power of Central Government to make rules.

9. (1) The Central Government may, after consultation with the Council, by notification in the Official Gazette, make rules to carry out the purposes of this Act.

(2) In particular and without prejudice to the generality of the foregoing power, the Central Government may make rules regulating the expenditure of the money paid to the Council under section 6 and providing for the creation, maintenance and management of the reserve fund referred to in section 8.

(3) All rules made under this Act shall be laid before both Chambers of the Central Legislature as soon as may be after they are made.

THE AGRICULTURAL PRODUCE (GRADING AND MARKING) ACT (I OF 1937).

[24th February, 1937.]

An Act to provide for the grading and marking of agricultural produce.

WHEREAS it is expedient to provide for the grading and marking of agricultural produce; It is hereby enacted as follows:—

Short title and extent.	1. (1) This Act may be called THE AGRICULTURAL PRODUCE (GRADING AND MARKING) ACT, 1937.
-------------------------	---

---	--

Explanations.	2. In this Act, unless the contrary appears from the subject or context,—
---------------	---

(a) "agricultural produce" includes all produce of agriculture or horticulture and all articles of food or drink wholly or partly manufactured from any such produce, and fleeces and the skins of animals;

(b) "counterfeit" has the meaning assigned to that word by section 28 of the Indian Penal Code;

(c) "covering" includes any vessel, box, crate, wrapper, tray or other container;

(d) "grade designation" means a designation prescribed as indicative of the quality of any scheduled article;

(e) "grade designation mark" means a mark prescribed as representing a particular grade designation;

(f) "quality", in relation to any article, includes the state and condition of the article;

- (g) "prescribed" means prescribed by rules made under this Act;
 (h) "scheduled article" means an article included in the Schedule; and
 (i) an article is said to be marked with a grade designation mark, if the article itself is marked with a grade designation mark or any covering containing or label attached to such article is so marked.

Prescription of grade designations.

3. The Central Government may, after previous publication by notification in the Official Gazette make rules—

(a) fixing grade designations to indicate the quality of any scheduled article;

(b) defining the quality indicated by every grade designation;

(c) specifying grade designation marks to represent particular grade designations;

(d) authorising a person or a body of persons, subject to any prescribed conditions, to mark with a grade designation mark any article in respect of which such mark has been prescribed or any covering containing or label attached to any such article;

(e) specifying the conditions referred to in clause (d) including in respect of any article conditions as to the manner of marking, the manner in which the article shall be packed, the type of covering to be used, and the quantity by weight, number or otherwise to be included in each covering;

(f) providing for the payment of any expenses incurred in connection with the manufacture or use of any implement necessary for the reproduction of a grade designation mark or with the manufacture or use of any covering or label marked with a grade designation mark; and

(g) providing for the confiscation and disposal of produce marked otherwise than in accordance with the prescribed conditions with a grade designation mark.

Penalty for unauthorised marking with grade designation mark.

4. Whoever marks any scheduled article with a grade designation mark, not being authorised to do so by rule made under section 3, shall be punishable with fine which may extend to Rs. 500.

5. Whoever counterfeits any grade designation mark or has in his possession any die, plate or other instrument for the purpose of counterfeiting a grade designation mark shall be punishable with imprisonment which may extend to two years, or with fine, or with both.

Penalty for counterfeiting grade designation mark.

6. The Central Government after such consultation as it thinks fit of the interests likely to be affected, may by notification in the Official Gazette declare that the provisions of this Act shall apply to an article of agricultural produce not included in the Schedule and on the publication of such notification such article shall be deemed to be included in the Schedule.

Extension of application of Act.

THE AGRICULTURISTS' LOANS ACT (XII OF 1884).

PREFATORY NOTE.—In a country like India, where agriculture is the main source of income for the vast majority of the people, and the income from which source contributes by far the largest portion of the revenues of State, the progress of agriculture is one of the main concerns of Government.

The poverty of the people engaged in agriculture necessitates the advance of loans by the Government to the raiyats engaged in the cultivation of land, for necessary agricultural purposes, as for instance, for purchase of seed and ploughing cattle in proper seasons, and for obtaining other agricultural implements.

The legislature has therefore provided for the granting of such loans on moderate and reasonable rates of interest and for their recovery in small instalments, spread over a number of years. But for such help, these poor raiyats, many of them illiterate, would fall into the hands of greedy and usurious money-lenders. This Act as well as the Northern India Takkavi Act were passed for the purpose of giving relief to agriculturists by grant of loans from Government funds for purposes connected with cultivation.

An Act to amend and provide for the extension of the Northern India Takkavi Act, 1879.

Preamble. WHEREAS it is expedient to amend the Northern India Takkavi Act, 1879, and provide for its extension to any part of British India; It is hereby enacted as follows:—

Short title. 1. (1) This Act may be called THE AGRICULTURISTS' LOANS ACT, 1884; and

Commencement. (2) It shall come into force on the first day of August, 1884.

Local extent. 2. (1) This section and section 3 extend to the whole of British India.

(2) The rest of this Act extends in the first instance only to the territories respectively administered by the Governor of Bombay in Council, the Lieutenant-Governors of the North-Western Provinces and the Punjab, and the Chief Commissioners of Oudh, the Central Provinces, Assam and Ajmere.

(3) But <sup>1</sup>[any Provincial Government] may, from time to time, by notification in the Official Gazette, extend the rest of this Act to the whole or any part of the territories under its administration.<sup>2</sup>

1896, Pt. I, p. 112, and under that section, Ss. 4, 5 and 6 of the Act were extended there, see ibid., p. 121.

It has been declared in force in the Angul District by notification under S. 3 (2) of the Angul District Regulations, 1894 (Beng. Code), see Calcutta Gazette, 1896, Pt. I, p. 1231.

4. (1) The Provincial Government [or in a Province for which there is a Board of Revenue, or Financial Commissioner, such Board or Financial Commissioner subject to the control of the Provincial Government]<sup>1</sup> may, from time to time, [* * *]<sup>2</sup> make rules as to loans to be made to owners and occupiers of arable land for the relief of distress, the purchase of seed or cattle, or any other purpose not specified in the Land Improvement Loans Act, 1883, but connected with agricultural objects.

(2) All such rules shall be published in the Official Gazette.

5. Every loan made in accordance with such rules, all interest (if any) chargeable thereon, and costs (if any) incurred in making or recovering the same, shall when they become due, be recoverable from the person to whom the loan was made, or from any person who has become surety for the repayment thereof, as if they were arrears of land-revenue or costs incurred in recovering the same due by the person to whom the loan was made or by his surety.

6. When a loan is made under this Act to the members of a village community or to any other persons on such terms that all of them are jointly and severally bound to the Government for the payment of the whole amount payable in respect thereof, and a statement showing the portion of that amount which as among themselves each is bound to contribute is entered upon the order granting the loan and is signed, marked, or sealed by each of them or his agent duly authorized in this behalf and by the officer making the order, that statement shall be conclusive evidence of the portion of that amount which as among themselves each of those persons is bound to contribute.

THE INDIAN AIRCRAFT ACT (XXII OF 1934).

PREFATORY NOTE.—The following is the Statement of Objects and Reasons to the original Airships Bill, 1910, entitled a Bill to control the manufacture, use, sale, import and export of Airships:—"The gradual improvement which is taking place in the construction of airships has given rise to certain new military problems. It is now considered necessary, on military grounds, to prevent the acquisition, through the use of such vehicles, of improper information as to the internal arrangements of forts, arsenals magazines, etc., and also to protect places or persons from attack from such vehicles, in times of actual hostilities. It is therefore proposed to take powers to control, for military purposes, the manufacture, sale, import, export, use and possession of all airships by a system of licences to be issued to approved persons. It is also proposed to empower Government to take out all such airships, subject to the payment of reasonable compensation, in times of grave public emergency.—(Fort St. George Gazette, Pt. III, dated 5th September, 1911, p. 572.)

In 1934, aircraft had advanced to a considerable extent, and there was necessity for amendment and consolidation of the old Act. The following is the Statement of Objects and Reasons appended to the Bill:—"Aerial navigation in British India is at present governed by the Indian Aircraft Act, 1911, and the rules made thereunder. national Convention for the regulation of Aerial Navigation was signed by the plenipotentiaries of 27 countries, with the object of establishing regulations of universal application and of encouraging peaceful intercourse with nations by means of aerial communications. To this Convention India was a signatory. The Convention deals with all questions relating to international aerial navigation and also provides for the institution of a permanent International Commission for Air Navigation, with very wide powers as regards the formulation of rules for the making of aircraft, the grant of certificates, rules of the air and so forth.

For some years past, the inadequacy of the Indian Aircraft Act, 1911, has been increasingly felt, and the stage has now been reached where it is no longer possible to control air traffic efficiently, or to implement India's international obligations without fresh legislation. The present Bill, therefore, is designed to enlarge the rule-making powers of the Governor-General in Council in order to meet modern developments, to enable Government to give full effect to the provisions of the International Convention and its annexes and to provide for certain other matters on which legislation has become necessary."—(Fort St. George Gazette, Pts. WHEREAS it is expedient to make better provision for the control of the manufacture, possession, use, operation, sale, import and export of aircraft; It is hereby enacted as follows:—

Short title and extent.

1. (1) This Act may be called THE INDIAN AIRCRAFT ACT, 1934.

(2) It extends to the whole of British India, including British Baluchistan and the Sonthal Parganas, <sup>1</sup>[and applies also—

LEG. REF.

<sup>1</sup>Added by Act XXXVII of 1939.

- (a) to British subjects and servants of the Crown in any part of India ;
 (b) to British subjects who are domiciled in any part of India wherever they may be ;
 (c) to and to persons on, aircraft registered in British India wherever they may be.]

Definitions.

2. In this Act, unless there is anything repugnant in the subject or context,—

(1) "aircraft" means any machine which can derive support in the atmosphere from reactions of the air, and includes balloons whether fixed or free, airships, kites, gliders and flying machines ;

(2) "aerodrome" means any definite or limited ground or water area intended to be used, either wholly or in part, for the landing or departure of aircraft, and includes all buildings, sheds, vessels, piers, and other structures thereon or appertaining thereto ;

(3) "import" means bringing into British India ; and

(4) "export" means taking out of British India.

3. The Central Government may, by notification in the Official Gazette, exempt from [all or any of the provisions of this Act]<sup>1</sup> any aircraft or class of aircraft and any person or class of persons, or may direct that such provisions shall apply to such aircraft or persons subject to such modifications as may be specified in the notification.

4. The Central Government may, by notification in the Official Gazette, make such rules as appear to it to be necessary for carrying out the Convention relating to the regulation of Aerial Navigation signed at Paris, October, 13, 1939, with Additional Protocol, signed at Paris, May 1, 1920, and any amendment which may be made there-to under the provisions of Art. 34 thereof.

Power of Central Government to make rules.

5. (1) The Central Government may, by notification in the Official Gazette, make rules regulating the manufacture, possession, use, operation, sale, import or export of any aircraft or class of aircraft.

(2) Without prejudice to the generality of the foregoing power, such rules may provide for—

(a) the authorities by which any of the powers conferred by or under this Act are to be exercised ;

(b) the licensing, inspection and regulation of aerodromes, the conditions under which aerodromes may be maintained and the fees which may be charged thereat, and the prohibition or regulation of the use of unlicensed aerodromes ;

(c) the inspection and control of the manufacture, repair and maintenance of aircraft and of places where aircraft are being manufactured, required or kept ;

(d) the registration and marking of aircraft ;

(e) the conditions under which aircraft may be flown, or may carry passengers, mails, or goods ; or may be used for industrial purposes and the certificates, licenses or documents to be carried by aircraft ;

(f) the inspection of aircraft for the purpose of enforcing the provisions of this Act and the rules thereunder, and the facilities to be provided for such inspection ;

(g) the licensing of persons employed in the operation, manufacture, repair or maintenance of aircraft ;

(h) the air-routes by which and the conditions under which aircraft may enter or leave British India, or may fly over British India, and the places at which aircraft shall land;

(i) the prohibition of flight by aircraft over any specified area, either absolutely or at specified times or subject to specified conditions and exceptions;

(j) the supply, supervision and control of air-route beacons, aerodrome lights, and lights at or in the neighbourhood of aerodromes or on or in the neighbourhood of air-routes;

<sup>1</sup>[(jj) the installation and maintenance of lights on private property in the neighbourhood of aerodromes or on or in the neighbourhood of air-routes, by the owners or occupiers of such property, the payment by the Central Government for such installation and maintenance, and the supervision and control of such installation and maintenance, including the right of access to the property for such purposes;]

(k) the signals to be used for purposes of communication by or to aircraft and the apparatus to be employed in signalling;

(l) the prohibition and regulation of the carriage in aircraft of any specified article or substance;

(m) the measures to be taken and the equipment to be carried for the purpose of ensuring the safety of life;

(n) the issue and maintenance of log-books;

(o) the manner and conditions of the issue or renewal of any licence or certificate under the Act or the rules, the examinations and tests to be undergone in connection therewith, the form, custody, production, endorsement, cancellation, suspension or surrender of such licence or certificate, or of any log-books;

(p) the fees to be charged in connection with any inspection, examination, test, certificate, or licence made, issued or renewed under this Act;

(q) the recognition for the purposes of this Act of licences and certificates issued elsewhere than in British India relating to aircraft or to the qualifications of persons employed in the operation, manufacture, repair or maintenance of aircraft; and

(r) any matter subsidiary or incidental to the matters referred to in this sub-section.

6. (1) If the Central Government is of opinion that in the interests of the public safety or tranquillity the issue of all or any of the following orders is expedient, it may, by notification in the Official Gazette,—

(a) cancel or suspend, either absolutely or subject to such conditions as it may think fit to specify in the order all or any licences or certificates issued under this Act;

(b) prohibit, either absolutely or subject to such conditions as it may think fit to specify in the order, or regulate in such manner, as may be contained in the order, the flight of all or any aircraft or class of aircraft over the whole or any portion of British India;

(c) prohibit, either absolutely or conditionally, or regulate the erection, maintenance or use of any aerodrome, aircraft factory, flying-school or club or place where aircraft are manufactured, repaired or kept, or any class or description thereof; and

(d) direct that any aircraft or class of aircraft or any aerodrome, aircraft factory, flying-school or club, or place where aircraft are manufactured, repaired or kept, together with any machinery, plant, material or things used for the operation, manufacture, repair or maintenance of aircraft shall be delivered, either forthwith or within a specified time, to such authority and in such manner as it may specify in the order, to be at the disposal of His Majesty for the public service.

(2) Any person who suffers direct injury or loss by reason of any order made under clause (c) or clause (d) of sub-section (1) shall be paid such compensation as may be determined by such authority as the Central Government may appoint in this behalf.

(3) The Central Government may authorize such steps to be taken to secure compliance with any order made under sub-section (1) as appear to it to be necessary.

(4) Whoever knowingly disobeys, or fails to comply with, or does any act in contravention of, an order made under sub-section (1) shall be punishable with imprisonment for a term which may extend to three years, or with fine, or with both, and the Court by which he is convicted may direct that the aircraft or thing (if any) in respect of which the offence has been committed, or any part of such thing, shall be forfeited to His Majesty.

Power of Central Government to make rules for investigation of accidents.

7. (1) The Central Government may, by notification in the Official Gazette, make rules providing for the investigation of any accident arising out of or in the course of <sup>1</sup>[the navigation—

(a) in or over British India of any aircraft, or

(b) anywhere of aircraft registered in British India.]

(2) Without prejudice to the generality of the foregoing power, such rules may—

(a) require notice to be given of any accident in such manner and by such person as may be prescribed;

(b) apply for the purposes of such investigation, either with or without modification, the provisions of any law for the time being in force relating to the investigation of accidents;

(c) prohibit pending investigation access to or interference with aircraft to which an accident has occurred, and authorize any person so far as may be necessary for the purposes of an investigation to have access to, examine, remove, take measures for the preservation of, or otherwise deal with any such aircraft; and

(d) authorize or require the cancellation, suspension, endorsement or surrender of any licence or certificate granted or recognized under this Act when it appears on an investigation that the licence ought to be so dealt with, and provide for the production of any such licence for such purpose.

8. (1) Any authority authorized in this behalf by the Central Government may detain any aircraft if in the opinion of such authority—

(a) having regard to the nature of an intended flight, the flight of such aircraft would involve danger to persons in the aircraft or to any other persons or property; or

(b) such detention is necessary to secure compliance with any of the provisions of this Act or the rules applicable to such aircraft; or such detention is necessary to prevent a contravention of any rule made under clause (h) or clause (i) of sub-section (2) of section 5.

(2) The Central Government may, by notification in the Official Gazette, make rules regulating all matters incidental or subsidiary to the exercise of this power.

<sup>1</sup>[8-A. The Central Government may, by notification in the Official Gazette, make rules for the prevention of danger arising to the public health by the introduction or spread of any infectious or contagious disease from aircraft arriving at or being at any aerodrome and for the prevention of the conveyance of infection or contagion by means of any aircraft leaving an aerodrome and in particular and without prejudice to the generality of this provision may make, with respect to aircraft and aerodromes or any specified aerodrome, rules providing for any of the matters for which rules under sub-clauses (i) to (viii) of clause (p) of sub-section (1) of section 6 of the Indian Ports Act, 1908, may be made with respect to vessels and ports.]

<sup>2</sup>[8-B. (1) If the Central Government is satisfied that India or any part thereof is visited by or threatened with an outbreak of any dangerous epidemic disease, and that the ordinary provisions of the law for the time being in force are insufficient for the prevention of danger arising to the public health through the introduction or spread of the disease by the Agency of aircraft, the Central Government may take such measures as it deems necessary to prevent such danger.

(2) In any such case the Central Government may without prejudice to the powers conferred by section 8-A, by notification in the Official Gazette, make such temporary rules with respect to aircraft and persons travelling or things carried therein and aerodromes as it deems necessary in the circumstances.

(3) Notwithstanding anything contained in section 14, the power to make rules under sub-section (2) shall not be subject to the condition of the rules being made after previous publication, but such rules shall not remain in force for more than three months from the date of notification:

Provided that the Central Government may by special order continue them in force for a further period or periods of not more than three months in all.]

9. (1) The provisions of Part VII of the Indian Merchant Shipping Act, 1923, relating to Wreck and Salvage shall apply to aircraft on or over the sea or tidal waters as they apply to ships, and the owner of an aircraft shall be entitled to a reasonable reward for salvage services rendered by the aircraft in like manner as the owner of a ship.

(2) The Central Government may, by notification in the Official Gazette, make such modifications of the said provisions in their application to aircraft as appear necessary or expedient.

10. In making any rule under section 5, section 7, <sup>3</sup>[*] section 8 <sup>1</sup>[or section 8-A] the Central Government may direct that a breach of it shall be punishable with imprisonment for any term not exceeding three months, or with fine of any amount not exceeding one thousand rupees, or with both.

11. Whoever wilfully flies any aircraft in such a manner as to cause danger to any person or to any property on land or water or in the air shall be punishable with imprisonment for a term which may extend to six months, or with fine which may extend to one thousand rupees, or with both.

Penalty for flying so as to cause danger.

12. Whoever abets the commission of any offence under this Act or the rules, or attempts to commit such offence, and in such attempt does any act towards the commission of the offence, shall be liable to the punishment provided for the offence.

Penalty for abetment of offences and attempted offences.

13. Where any person is convicted of an offence punishable under any rule made under clause (i) or clause (l) of sub-section (2) of section 5, the Court by which he is convicted may direct that the aircraft or article or substance, as the case may be, in respect of which the offence has been committed, shall be forfeited to His Majesty.

Power of Court to order forfeiture.

14. Any power to make rules conferred by this Act is subject to the condition of the rules being made after previous publication for a period of not less than three months.

Rules to be made after publication.

15. The provisions of section 42 of the Indian Patents and Designs Act, 1911, shall apply to the use of an invention on any aircraft not registered in British India in like manner as they apply to the use of an invention in a foreign vessel.

Use of patented invention on aircraft not required in British India.

16. The Central Government may, by notification in the Official Gazette, declare that any or all of the provisions, of the Sea Customs Act, 1878, shall, with such modifications and adaptations as may be specified in the notification, apply to the import and export of goods by air.

Power to apply customs procedure.

17. No suit shall be brought in any Civil Court in respect of trespass or in respect of nuisance by reason only of the flight of aircraft over any property at a height above the ground which having regard to wind, weather and all the circumstances of the case is reasonable, or by reason only of the ordinary incidents of such flight.

Bar of certain suits.

18. No suit, prosecution or other legal proceeding shall lie against any person for anything in good faith done or intended to be done under this Act.

Saving for acts done in good faith under the Act.

19. (1) Nothing in this Act or in any order or rule made thereunder shall apply to or in respect of any aircraft belonging to or exclusively employed in His Majesty's naval, military or air forces, or to any person in such forces employed in connection with such aircraft.

Saving of application of Act.

(2) Nothing in this Act or in any order or rule made thereunder shall apply to or in respect of any lighthouse to which the Indian Lighthouse Act, 1927, applies or prejudice or affect any right or power exercisable by any authority under that Act.

20. [Repealed by Act I of 1938.]

THE ANAND MARRIAGE ACT (VII OF 1909).<sup>1</sup>

PREFATORY NOTE: REASONS FOR THE PASSING OF THE ACT.—The Anand Marriage Act, 1909, was passed in order to remove all doubts as to the validity of the marriage ceremony common among the Sikhs called "Anand". The object of this Act was to set at rest doubts as to the validity of the marriage rite of the Sikhs called "Anand". This form of marriage had long been practised among the Sikhs, but it was apprehended that there were good reasons to believe that, in the absence of a validating enactment, doubts might be thrown upon it, and the Sikhs might have had to face great difficulties in the future, and incur heavy expenses on suits instituted in the Civil Courts. It was also apprehended that, in the absence of such a law, some judicial officers might be uncertain as to the validity of this orthodox Sikh custom. It was therefore thought desirable that all doubts, should be set at rest for the future, by passing this enactment, which merely validates an existing rite and involves no new principle. See Statement of Objects and Reasons.

An Act to remove doubts as to the validity of the marriage ceremony common among the Sikhs called Anand.

WHEREAS it is expedient to remove any doubts as to the validity of the marriage ceremony common among the Sikhs called Anand; It is hereby enacted as follows:

An Act to provide for the preservation of Ancient Monuments and objects of archaeological, historical or artistic interest.

WHEREAS it is expedient to provide for the preservation of ancient monuments, for the exercise of control over traffic in antiquities and over excavation in certain places, and for the protection and acquisition in certain cases of ancient monuments and of objects of archaeological, historical or artistic interest; It is hereby enacted as follows:—

Short title and extent.

1. (1) This Act may be called THE ANCIENT MONUMENTS PRESERVATION ACT, 1904.

(2) It extends to the whole of British India, inclusive of British Baluchistan, the Sonthal Parganas and the Pargana of Spiti.

Definitions.

2. In this Act, unless there is anything repugnant in the subject or context,—

(1) “ancient monument” means any structure, erection or monument, or any tumulus or place of interment, or any cave, rock-sculpture, inscription or monolith, which is of historical, archaeological or artistic interest, or any remains thereof, and includes—

(a) the site of an ancient monument;

(b) such portion of land adjoining the site of an ancient monument as may be required for fencing or covering in or otherwise preserving such monument; and

(c) the means of access to and convenient inspection of an ancient monument:

(2) “antiquities” include any movable objects which the <sup>1</sup>[Central Government], by reason of their historical or archaeological associations, may think it necessary to protect against injury, removal or dispersion:

LEG. REF.

(3) "Commissioner" includes any officer authorized by the <sup>1</sup>[Central Government] to perform the duties of a Commissioner under this Act:

(4) "maintain" and "maintenance" include the fencing, covering in, repairing, restoring and cleansing of a protected monument, and the doing of any act which may be necessary for the purpose of maintaining a protected monument or of securing convenient access thereto:

(5) "land" includes a revenue-free estate, a revenue-paying estate, and a permanent transferable tenure, whether such estate or tenure be subject to incumbrances or not: and

(6) "owner" includes a joint owner invested with powers of management on behalf of himself and other joint owners, and any manager or trustee exercising powers of management over an ancient monument, and the successor in title of any such owner and the successor in office of any such manager or trustee:

Provided that nothing in this Act shall be deemed to extend the powers which may lawfully be exercised by such manager or trustee.

3. (1) The <sup>1</sup>[Central Government] may, by notification<sup>2</sup> in the Official Gazette, declare an ancient monument to be a protected monument within the meaning of this Act.

(2) A copy of every notification published under sub-section (1) shall be fixed up in a conspicuous place on or near the monument, together with an intimation that any objections to the issue of the notification received by the <sup>1</sup>[Central Government] within one month from the date when it is so fixed up will be taken into consideration.

(3) On the expiry of the said period of one month, the <sup>1</sup>[Central Government], after considering the objections, if any, shall confirm or withdraw the notification.

(4) A notification published under this section shall, unless and until it is withdrawn, be conclusive evidence of the fact that the monument to which it relates is an ancient monument within the meaning of this Act.

Ancient Monuments.

Acquisition of rights in or guardianship of an ancient monument.

4. (1) The Collector, with the sanction of the <sup>1</sup>[Central Government], may purchase or take a lease of any protected monument.

(2) The Collector, with the like sanction, may accept a gift or bequest of any protected monument.

(3) The owner of any protected monument may, by written instrument, constitute the Commissioner the guardian of the monument, and the Commissioner may, with the sanction of the <sup>1</sup>[Central Government], accept such guardianship.

(4) When the Commissioner has accepted the guardianship of a monument under sub-section (3), the owner shall, except as expressly provided in this Act, have the same estate, right, title and interest in and to the monument as if the Commissioner had not been constituted guardian thereof.

(5) When the Commissioner has accepted the guardianship of a monument under sub-section (3), the provisions of this Act relating to agreements executed under section 5 shall apply to the written instrument executed under the said sub-section.

(6) Where a protected monument is without an owner, the Commissioner may assume the guardianship of the monument.

LEG. REF.

5. (1) The Collector may, with the previous sanction of the <sup>1</sup>[Central Government], propose to the owner to enter into an agreement with the <sup>2</sup>[Central Government] for the preservation of any protected monument in his district.

(2) An agreement under this section may provide for the following matters, or for such of them as it may be found expedient to include in the agreement:—

(a) the maintenance of the monument;

(b) the custody of the monument, and the duties of any person who may be employed to watch it;

(c) the restriction of the owner's right to destroy, remove, alter or deface the monument or to build on or near the site of the monument;

(d) the facilities of access to be permitted to the public or to any portion of the public and to persons deputed by the owner or the Collector to inspect or maintain the monument;

(e) the notice to be given to the <sup>3</sup>[Central Government] in case the land on which the monument is situated is offered for sale by the owner, and the right to be reserved to the <sup>3</sup>[Central Government] to purchase such land, or any specified portion of such land, as its market-value;

(f) the payment of any expenses incurred by the owner or by the <sup>3</sup>[Central Government] in connection with the preservation of the monument;

(g) the proprietary or other rights which are to vest in His Majesty in respect of the monument when any expenses are incurred by the <sup>3</sup>[Central Government] in connection with the preservation of the monument;

(h) the appointment of an authority to decide any dispute arising out of the agreement; and

(i) any matter connected with the preservation of the monument which is a proper subject of agreement between the owner and the <sup>3</sup>[Central Government].

(3) * * * * *

(4) The terms of an agreement under this section may be altered from time to time with the sanction of the <sup>1</sup>[Central Government] and with the consent of the owner.

(5) With the previous sanction of the <sup>1</sup>[Central Government], the Collector may terminate an agreement under this section on giving six months' notice in writing to the owner.

(6) The owner may terminate an agreement under this section on giving six months' notice to the Collector.

(7) An agreement under this section shall be binding on any person claiming to be owner of the monument to which it relates, through or under a party by whom or on whose behalf the agreement was executed.

(8) Any rights acquired by <sup>3</sup>[the Central Government] in respect of expenses incurred in protecting or preserving a monument shall not be affected by the termination of an agreement under this section.

6. (1) If the owner is unable, by reason of infancy or other disability, to act for himself, the person legally competent to act on his behalf may exercise the powers conferred upon an owner by section 5.

(2) In the case of village-property, the headman or other village-officer exercising powers of management over such property may exercise the powers conferred upon an owner by section 5.

(3) Nothing in this section shall be deemed to empower any person not being of the same religion as the persons on whose behalf he is acting to make or execute an agreement relating to a protected monument which or any part of which is periodically used for the religious worship or observances of that religion.

7. (1) If the Collector apprehends that the owner or occupier of a monument intends to destroy, remove, alter, deface, or imperil the monument or to build on or near the site thereof in contravention of the terms of an agreement for its preservation under section 5, the Collector may make an order prohibiting any such contravention of the agreement.

(2) If an owner or other person who is bound by an agreement for the preservation or maintenance of a monument under section 5 refuses to do any act which is in the opinion of the Collector necessary to such preservation or maintenance, or neglects to do any such Act within such reasonable time as may be fixed by the Collector, the Collector may authorize any person to do any such act, and the expense of doing any such act or such portion of the expense as the owner may be liable to pay under the agreement may be recovered from the owner as if it were an arrear of land-revenue.

(3) A person aggrieved by an order made under this section may appeal to the Commissioner, who may cancel or modify it and whose decision shall be final.

8. Every person who purchases, at a sale for arrears of land-revenue or any other public demand, or at a sale made under the Bengal Patni Taluks Regulation, 1819, an estate or tenure in which is situated a monument in respect of which any instrument has been executed by the owner, for the time being, under section 4 or section 5, and every person claiming any title to a monument from, through or under an owner who executed any such instrument, shall be bound by such instrument.

9. (1) If any owner or other person competent to enter into an agreement under section 5 for the preservation of a protected monument, refuses or fails to enter into such an agreement when proposed to him by the Collector, and if any endowment has been created for the purpose of keeping such monument in repair, or for that purpose among others, the Collector may institute a suit in the Court of the District Judge, or, if the estimated cost of repairing the monument does not exceed one thousand rupees, may make an application to the District Judge for the proper application of such endowment or part thereof.

(2) On the hearing of an application under sub-section (1), the District Judge may summon and examine the owner and any person whose evidence appears to him necessary, and may pass an order for the proper application of the endowment or of any part thereof, and any such order may be executed as if it were the decree of a Civil Court.

10. (1) If the <sup>1</sup>[Central Government] apprehends that a protected monument is in danger of being destroyed, injured or allowed to fall into decay, the <sup>2</sup>[Central Government] may direct the Provincial Government to acquire it under the provisions of the Land Acquisition Act, 1894, as if the preservation of a protected monument were a "public purpose" within the meaning of that Act.

LEG. REF.

(2) The powers of compulsory purchase conferred by sub-section (1) shall not be exercised in the case of—

(a) any monument which or any part of which is periodically used for religious observances; or

(b) any monument which is the subject of a subsisting agreement executed under section 5.

(3) In any case other than the cases referred to in sub-section (2) the said powers of compulsory purchase shall not be exercised unless the owner or other person competent to enter into an agreement under section 5 has failed, within such reasonable period as the Collector may fix in this behalf, to enter into an agreement proposed to him under the said section or has terminated or given notice of his intention to terminate such an agreement.

PREFATORY NOTE.—An Apprentice is a person bound in the form of law to a master, to learn from him his art, trade, or business, and to serve him during the time of his apprenticeship. [1 Black. Com. 426; 2 Kent 211; Attemus v. Ely, 3 Rawle (Pa.) 307.]

Apprenticeship is a contract by which one person who understands some art, trade, or business, and is called the master, undertakes to teach the same to another person, commonly a minor, and called the apprentice, who, on his part, is bound to serve the master, during a definite period of time, in such art, trade, or business. The term "apprenticeship" is also used to denote the term during which an apprentice is to serve. (Pardessus, Droit Comm. n. 34.)

A contract of apprenticeship is not invalid because the master to whom the apprentice is bound is a corporation. [(1891) 1 Q.B. 75.]

At common law, an infant may bind himself apprentice by indenture, because it is for his benefit. [5 M. & S. 257; 5 D. & R. 339.] But this contract, on account of its liability to abuse, has been regulated by statute, and is not binding upon the infant unless entered into by him with the consent of the parent or guardian.

To be binding on the apprentice, the contract must be made as prescribed by statute.

Education is necessary for an infant. What particular kind of education is necessary is a matter that is settled having regard to the infant's inclinations, state of mind and condition in life. Therefore, where an infant executes an apprenticeship deed by which he covenants to pay a certain premium, and it is found that the arrangement is provident and proper and beneficial for him and that the premium is fair and reasonable, and that instruction has been given under the deed, it is held that he is liable to pay the premium, as being a necessary, and the fact that he enters into a covenant for the payment of it does not prevent his being liable. [Walter v. Everard (1881) 2 Q.B. 369.]

A contract of apprenticeship is generally to be regarded as for the benefit of an infant, and, therefore, he may make a legal binding contract of apprenticeship, under conditions laid down by this Act. [R. v. Petrox, 4 T.R. 196.] If he could not do so, he could not be bound at all, for a father has no common law authority to bind his infant son as an apprentice without his consent. [R. v. Arnesby, 3 B. & Ald. 584.]

The contract of apprenticeship need not specify the particular trade to be taught, but it is sufficient if it be a contract to teach such manual occupation or branch of business as shall be found best suited to the genius or capacity of the apprentice. [Fowler v. Hollenbeck, 9 Barb. (N.Y.) 309; People v. Pillow, 1 Sandf. (N.Y.) 672.]

A contract of apprenticeship, of hiring and service, may be beneficial to an infant, and would, generally speaking, be binding upon him, and may be made even with his own father or mother. [R. v. Chillisford, 4 B. & C. 94.] Such a contract would subject him to the statutable regulations applicable to masters and servants, although he might not be liable to any action upon the contract. For if an infant of five years of age or other person who is non-potens in corpore, be retained and serve in the best manner he can, his master must pay him his wages. [See Phillips v. Jones, 1 A. & E. 333.]

Difficult questions sometimes arise whether or not an agreement of hiring and service, of an infant is so beneficial as to be binding upon him. It is impossible to frame a deed between a master and an apprentice in which some stipulations are not in favour of the master. When any stipulation is relied upon by the infant as being unfair to him, it is the duty of the Court to decide on the construction of the whole contract, and then to say whether, as a whole, it is clearly and manifestly for the benefit of the infant. The question is whether the agreement taken as a whole is so much to the detriment of the infant as to render it unfair that he should be bound by his agreement. If there is any stipulation such as to make the whole contract an unfair one, then the whole contract is void. [Corn v. Matthews (1893) 1 Q.B. 310. See also (1894) 2 Q.B. 65; (1894) 2 Q.B. 482.]

The duties of the master are to instruct the apprentice by teaching him the knowledge of the art which he has undertaken to teach him, though he will be excused for not making a good workman if the apprentice is incapable of learning the trade, the burden of proving which is on the master. [Barger v. Caldwell, 2 Dana (Ky) 131; Clancy v. Overman, 18 N.C. 402.] He ought to watch over the conduct of the apprentice, giving him prudent advice and showing him a good example, and fulfilling towards him the duties of a father, as in his character of master he stands in loco parentis. He is also required to fulfil all the covenants he has entered into by the contract. He must not abuse his authority, either by bad treatment or by employing his apprentice in menial employments wholly unconnected with the business he has to learn, or in any service which is immoral or contrary to law. [4 Clark & F. 234; Hall v. Gardner, 1 Mass. 172] but may correct him with moderation for negligence and misbehaviour. [Com. v. Baird, 1 Ashm. (Pa.) 267; 4 Keb. 661, pl. 50; People v. Sniffen, 1 Wheel. Cr. Cas. (N.Y.) 502.]

An apprentice is bound to obey his master in all his lawful commands, take care of his property, and promote his interest, endeavour to learn his trade or business, and perform all the conditions of his contract not contrary to law. He must not leave his master's service during the terms of his apprenticeship. [James v. Le Roy, 6 Johns. (N.Y.) 274; Coffin v. Bassett, 2 Pick. (Mass.) 357.]

Apprenticeship is a relation which cannot be assigned at common law though if under such an assignment the apprentice continue with his new master, with the consent of all the parties and his own, it will be construed as a continuation of the old apprenticeship. [See Bouvier's Law Dictionary, Tit. "Apprentice".]

Contract not valid unless executed as prescribed and deposited.
Copies to be given to parties.

11. The terms of service may be changed at any time during the apprenticeship, or the contract may be determined, with the consent of both parties to the contract or their personal representatives, and with the consent of the apprentice if he is above the age of fourteen years:

Alteration of terms of service and termination of contract.

Provided that the changes agreed to or the termination of the contract shall be expressed in writing on the original contract, with the signature of the proper parties according to section <sup>3</sup>[9] of this Act; and the magistrate <sup>2</sup>[* * *] shall thereupon make under his hand corresponding endorsements on the office copies, which shall be brought to him at the same time for that purpose.

12. The master of any apprentice bound under this Act may, with the consent of the person by whom he was bound, and with the consent of the apprentice if he is above the age of fourteen years, assign such apprentice to any other person, who is willing to take him for the residue of his apprenticeship, and subject to the conditions thereof: Provided that such person shall by endorsement under his own hand on the contract, declare his acceptance of such apprentice, and acknowledge himself bound by the agreements and covenants therein mentioned, to be performed on the part of the master, and that the consent of the other parties aforesaid shall be expressed in writing on the same, and signed by them respectively: And every such assignment shall be certified on the office copies of the contract under the hand of the Magistrate <sup>2</sup>[* * *] according to the form given in Schedule (B) annexed to this Act.

Assignment of apprentice to new master.

13. Upon complaint made to any Magistrate in the said territories, by or on behalf of any apprentice bound under this Act, of refusal or neglect to provide for him, or to teach him according to the contract of apprenticeship, or of cruelty, or other ill-treatment by his master, or by the agent under whom he shall have been placed by his master, the Magistrate may summon the master or his agent, as the case may be, if he shall be within his jurisdiction, to appear before him at a reasonable time, to be stated in the summons, to answer the complaint; and at such time, whether the master or his agent be present or not (service of the summons being proved), may examine into the matter of the complaint; and, upon proof thereof, may cancel the contract of apprenticeship, and assess upon the offender, whether he shall be the master or his agent, a reasonable sum for behoof of the apprentice, not exceeding four times the amount of the premium paid upon the binding, or if no premium, or a less premium than fifty rupees was paid, not exceeding two hundred rupees;

and, if the offender shall not pay the sum so assessed, may levy the same by distress and sale of his goods and chattels, and, if the offender shall not be the master but his agent, by distress and sale of the goods and chattels of the master also.

14. No contract of apprenticeship shall be cancelled, nor shall any master or his agent be liable to any criminal proceeding, on account of such moderate chastisement for misbehaviour given to any apprentice by his master or the agent of his master, as may lawfully be given by a father to his child; and the provision for enabling the contract of apprenticeship to be cancelled shall not bar any criminal proceeding against any master or his agent for an assault or other offence committed against his apprentice, for which he would be liable to be punished had it been against his child, whether or not any proceedings be taken for cancelling the contract of apprenticeship.

15. Upon complaint made to any Magistrate, by or on behalf of the master of any apprentice bound to him under this Act, of any ill-behaviour of such apprentice, or if such apprentice shall have absconded, the Magistrate may issue his warrant for apprehending such apprentice, and may hear and determine the complaint, and punish the offender by an order for keeping the offender, if a boy, in confinement in any debtor's prison or other suitable place, not being a criminal gaol, for any time not exceeding one month, of which one week may be in solitary confinement, during which time such allowance shall be made for his subsistence by the master or his agent as the Magistrate shall order; and, if the offender be a boy of not more than fourteen years of age, may order him to be privately whipped; or, if the offender be a girl, or in the case of any boy, the Magistrate deem any such punishment unfit, he may pass an order empowering the master of the apprentice or his agent to keep the offender in close confinement in his own house, or on board the vessel to which he belongs, upon bread and water, or such other plain food as may be given without injury to the health of the apprentice, for a period not exceeding one month.

16. Upon complaint of wilful and repeated ill-behaviour on the part of the apprentice, and on the demand of the master, the Magistrate may order the contract of apprenticeship to be cancelled, whether or not the charge is proved; but only with the consent of the apprentice and of his father or guardian, if the charge is not proved; and such cancelling shall be with or without refund of the whole or part of any premium that may have been paid to the master on binding such apprentice, as to the Magistrate seems fit on consideration of the case; and all sums so refunded shall be applied under the direction of the Magistrate for behoof of the apprentice.

NOTES.

SEC. 14.—It is conceived, notwithstanding passages which may be found in the books apparently to the contrary that no master would be justified by the law of England even in moderately chastising a hired servant of full age for dereliction of duty; and that where the books speak of a master being justified in moderately chastising his servant or apprentice, they must be taken to apply only to the case of a servant or apprentice under age; and the only civil remedies a master has for idleness, disobedience or other dereliction of duty, or breach of contract on the part of a servant are, to bring an action against him, or, as Puffendorf expressed it, "to expel the lazy drone from his family, and leave him to his own beggarly condition". The circumstances which justify the discharge of a servant will also sometimes justify the non-payment of his wages. (See Smith's Master and Servant, 5th Ed., p. 107.)

17. The Magistrate may order any sum recovered for behoof of the apprentice on cancelling the contract to be either laid out in binding him to another master, or otherwise for his benefit, or to be paid to the person by whom any premium was paid when he was bound apprentice.

Appropriation of sum recovered for apprentice on cancelment of contract.

18. No Magistrate shall entertain a complaint on the part of a master against an apprentice under this Act unless it be brought within one month after the cause of complaint arose, or, if the cause of complaint arose on board ship during a voyage, within one month after the arrival thereof at a port or place in the said territories, and no Magistrate shall entertain a complaint on the part of an apprentice against his master or the agent of his master under this Act unless it be brought within three months after the cause of complaint arose, or, if the cause of complaint arose on board ship during a voyage, within three months after the arrival thereof at a port or place in the said territories.

19. If the master of any apprentice shall die before the end of the apprenticeship, the contract of apprenticeship shall be thereby determined; and a proportionate part, corresponding to the unexpired portion of the term of any premium, which shall have been paid to such master on the binding of the apprentice to him, shall be returned by the executors or administrators out of the estate of the deceased to the person or persons who shall have paid the same; unless the executors or administrators of the deceased master shall continue the business in which such apprentice shall have been employed, and shall, within three months from the death of the late master, make offer in writing to keep the apprentice on the terms of the original contract; in which case the estate of the deceased shall be discharged from all liabilities on account of such premium.

20. If such offer to keep the apprentice shall be made as aforesaid, the same shall be fully expressed and certified by the executors <sup>1</sup>[or] administrators on the original contract of apprenticeship, and also on the office copies thereof, by the Magistrate <sup>2</sup>[* * *] and the apprentice shall be bound to the executors or administrators so keeping him for the remaining term of his apprenticeship.

Offer to be certified on original contracts and copies.

21. Any apprentice bound under this Act, whose master shall die during the apprenticeship, shall be entitled to maintenance for three months from and after the death of his master, out of the assets left by him: Provided that during such three months such apprentice shall continue to live with, and serve as an apprentice, the executors or administrators of such master, or such person as they appoint.

Maintenance of apprentice whose master dies. Apprentice to continue to serve.

22. The apprentice of any person against whom a commission of bankruptcy shall be issued, or who shall be adjudged to have committed an act of insolvency, during the apprenticeship, shall be discharged from all obligation under the contract of apprenticeship, and, if any premium was paid on binding him as an apprentice, he or a person by whom he

THE ARBITRATION ACT (X OF 1940).

An Act to consolidate and amend the law relating to Arbitration.

WHEREAS it is expedient to consolidate and amend the law relating to arbitration in British India; It is hereby enacted as follows:—

CHAPTER I.

INTRODUCTORY.

Short title, extent and commencement.

1. (1) This Act may be called THE ARBITRATION ACT, 1940.

NOTES.

or contract to provide for, so as thereby to injure its health. (See Friends' case, Russ. and Ry. C. C. 20; Smith's Master and Servant, 5th Ed., p. 190).

SEC. 1.—Reasons for the passing of the New Arbitration Act as explained in the Statement of Objects and reasons.—“The law of arbitration in British India is at present substantially contained in two enactments, the Indian Arbitration Act, 1899 (IX of 1899) and the Second Schedule to the Code of Civil Procedure, 1908. The operation of the 1899 Act, is limited to the Presidency towns and to such other areas as it may be extended to by the appropriate Provincial Government; its scope is confined to “arbitration by agreement without the intervention of a Court”. The Second Schedule to the Code of Civil Procedure deals with arbitrations outside the operation and scope of the 1899 Act; it relates for the most part to arbitration in suits, though arbitration without intervention of a Court is also briefly provided for. This Schedule also contains an alternative method whereby the parties to a dispute or any of them may file their arbitration agreement before a Court which, after a certain procedure, refers the matter to an arbitrator. The question of amending and consolidating this law is not new. The Civil Justice Committee in 1925, recommended several changes in the Arbitration Law. The Act of 1899, was based largely on the then English Law, to which several substantial amendments have been effected by an amending Act of Parliament in 1934, (24 and 25 Geo. 5, c. 14). In 1938 the Central Government placed an officer on special duty to examine the question, the present Bill is the outcome of this examination. The existing law, the amended English Law and the recommendations of the Civil Justice Committee have been scrutinised together, and the present Act seeks to consolidate and standardize the law relating to arbitration throughout British India.” (See Gazette of India, 22nd July, 1939.)

SEC. 1: SCOPE OF THE ACT—GENERAL.—The Act is an independent enactment, and has no connection with rules relating to appeals under C. P. Code. 1 Rang. 661. The Arbitration Act of 1899, must govern an application made thereunder even though the new Act of 1940, comes into operation at the time when the application is heard. 1941 Cal. 415. Act is exhaustive and Courts cannot go beyond its provision. See

(2) It extends to the whole of British India.

NOTES.

1938 Pat. 231=19 Pat.L.T. 549. This is an amending Act and must be construed strictly. 43 B. 809. See also 1934 Sind 29. An arbitrator is not bound by the technical rules of procedure which the Court must follow, nor need he record separate findings on the various points on which the parties are at issue, or write a reasoned judicial decision. All that he is required to do is to give an intelligible decision which determines the rights of parties in relation to the subject matter of the reference. Where an arbitrator has been selected by reason of his special knowledge of the affairs of the parties to decide their dispute, he is entitled to take a broad view of the case and give an award, which he conceives to be just and equitable in the circumstances. 190 I.C. 399=A.I.R. 1940 Lah. 186. Even Arbitration Courts must act according to the principles of natural justice and not deliberately refuse a hearing or take evidence from one side behind the back of the other. 64 I.C. 706. See also 1934 Pat. 550. Though arbitrators are not bound by technical rules of evidence they are nevertheless expected to conform to the fundamental rules of evidence and procedure. 64 I.C. 706; 11 Mys.L.J. 300=39 Mys.H.C.R. 51. No procedure is laid down for the arbitrator in Schedule II, C. P. Code, and unless it is proved that the arbitrator refused to examine any evidence tendered by the parties, the mere fact that he did not record any proceedings or did not hold a public enquiry will not be enough to vitiate the award. I.L.R. (1940) Lah. 599=188 I.C. 493=A.I.R. 1940 Lah. 73. It is true that when arbitrators are appointed they are supposed to act together, but it is not absolutely essential that all the arbitrators should be present when all the evidence is recorded provided all the arbitrators are made acquainted with the evidence that has been recorded before they come to their decision. There is nothing illegal or contrary to the principles of natural justice in this. Hence where reference is made to a number of arbitrators and some of them record evidence and then the award is sent to the absentee arbitrator who gets himself acquainted with the evidence the award is not invalidated. 1941 Rang. 22. Where in arbitration proceedings, one of the parties is in jail, and the fact of his being in jail is an obstacle, known to all the parties concerned to the examination of one party in the presence of the other parties, it cannot be said that the examination of one party by the arbitrator in the absence of the others amounts to misconduct which will vitiate his award. 1940 M.W.N. 808=52 L.W. 373=A.I.R. 1940 Mad. 905=(1940) 2 M.L.J. 356. Statement of arbitrators as to what transpires before them is prima facie conclusive of. See 17 L.W. 648=75 I.C. 850=1924 Mad. 274. No questions can be put to an arbitrator as to what passed in his own mind when exercising his discretionary power on the matters submitted to him. 1940 Rang. 203. The Indian law as to arbitration is irrelevant where the parties agreed in referring to an arbitration to be bound by English law and procedure. 45 M. 496=43 M.L.J. 422 (P. C. Questions of fact and law upon which the jurisdiction of the arbitrators depends are for the Courts. 44 All. 472. An application to Court to appoint fresh arbitrators amounts to an abandonment of the previous proceedings. 46 Bom. 854. The ordinary meaning of the word 'umpire' is a person who is to decide upon disagreement. 187 I.C. 262=A.I.R. 1940 Sind 37. In a case where the arbitrators disagreed on the matters referred to them, and the necessity for umpire became established, it may well be that the omission of the arbitrators to appoint an umpire before they entered upon the submission would be fatal to the whole proceedings. But when, no disagreement between the arbitrators occurred, the omission to make the appointment of umpire is not a defect amounting to legal misconduct on the part of the arbitrators and sufficient to vitiate the award made. 187 I.C. 262=A.I.R. 1940 Sind 37. The provisions of the C. P. Code, as to joinder of claim cannot be strictly applied to arbitration proceedings. 9 I.C. 712=4 S.L.R. 196. Judge cannot put himself in the position of arbitrator without the consent of the parties. 1930 Rang. 8. As to distinction between arbitrator and commissioner. See 18 Pat. 193. Difference between a referee and arbitrator. See 1939 All. 92. A Court has very limited jurisdiction to review awards passed by arbitrators. The nature of the jurisdiction of the Court is not that of a Court of appeal reviewing the decision of an inferior Court. 122 I.C. 516. See also 1940 O.W. N. 974. A reference to arbitration deprives a party of his right to resort to the ordinary tribunals, and it must be strictly construed, more so against the party who is responsible for the reference being drawn up in a particular manner. 148 I.C. 977=1934 Sind 29; 43 Bom. 809. A clause in a contract providing for reference to arbitration does not oust jurisdiction of Court or make it obligatory on plaintiff to submit to arbitration before going to Court. The only effect of such a clause is that if a suit is brought, the defendant may apply for a stay of the suit. 142 I.C. 351=33 P.L.R. 1020=1933 Lah. 79. An arbitration clause can be incorporated into a contract by reference. 27 S.L.R. 159=140 I.C. 626=1933 Sind 75. Such a clause in a contract will be binding on an assignee if the subject-matter of reference is capable of assignment. 1933 S. 75. Where part of an award is found to be invalid, being in excess of the arbitrators' powers, and it is separable from the rest, the remainder of the award is good. In the same way because of an omission on the part of the arbitrators to decide one of the matters referred to arbitration the award cannot be considered invalid unless the omission has substantially influenced the decision given. 191 I.C. 107=A.I.R. 1940 Rang. 203. See also 41 P.L.R. 201=1939 Lah. 308. An award on an arbitration, which has been acted upon by the parties for a considerable length of time, may be treated as an agreement between the parties, that they would abide by it, even though the award contains a clause which is in excess of the terms of reference. Where a clause in such an award allotting maintenance to a Hindu widow at a certain rate, provides that the widow cannot ask for any increase at all, and that the party bound to pay it cannot get it reduced, though it may be in excess of the terms of reference, if the parties have acted upon it for a long time, and maintenance has been paid and received at such rate, the widow is bound by it and cannot claim a higher rate afterwards on the ground of altered circumstances. 1937 M.W.N. 1039. It is clear law that it is not necessary that there should be the signatures of both parties to a written submission. A document signed by one party and accepted by the other party is enough, for the purposes of the Arbitration Act, to constitute a submission. 61 Cal. 702=1934 Cal. 796=38 C.W.N. 737. See also 105 I.C. 105=1931 Oudh 127=1931 O.W.N. 642. Where the parties to a reference to an arbitration agree that the decision of the majority of the arbitrators would prevail, the fact that the award was not signed by the arbitrator who differed from the opinion of the majority does not affect its validity. 44 C.W.N. 866. Where all interested parties are not joined in a reference out of Court regarding to partnership accounts there is no valid reference and is invalid. 41 P.L.R. 580. 1939 Lah. 154. The principle that in a pending suit all parties must join in the reference also applies to arbitrations out of Court, ibid. The mere fact that all the heirs did not join in the reference to arbitration of a dispute about inheritance is no ground for upsetting the award so far as those people who made the reference are concerned. A.I.R. 1941 Rang. 22. The arbitrators have jurisdiction to continue the arbitration proceedings although one of the parties dies before they give their decision, where one of the terms of the agreement between the parties is that their heirs and legal representatives would be bound by the decision of the arbitrators. In the absence of such a term in the agreement between the parties, the arbitrators have no authority to go on, although a son of the deceased files an application on behalf of himself and on behalf of his minor brothers to the effect that the arbitration proceedings should continue. 44 C.W.N. 866. A submission of a party to an arbitration clause need not be in writing. It may be proved by other evidence. 42 P.L.R. 48=A.I.R. 1940 Lah. 180. See also 36 Bom.L.R. 47=1934 Bom. 79. See now Sec. 2 (a) and 105 I.C. 105; 1938 Oudh 127=1938 O.W.N. 642. A Court has jurisdiction to entertain an application to file an award or enforce it as a decree only if it has jurisdiction to entertain a suit the subject of which is the subject-matter submitted to arbitration. 148 I.C. 977=1934 Sind 29. See also 1934 Sind 183; 1935 Sind 228; 1934 Lah. 652; 1938 Lah. 838; and sec. 31 infra. An arbitrator cannot abdicate his functions in favour of a third party. If the parties desire the arbitrator to take the opinion of the members of a panchayat, he can do so, but he would act illegally if he undertakes to be bound by the decision of the panchayat and to give his award in accordance with the wishes of the panchayat. 152 I.C. 1023. When a member of the firm of architects is holding an inquiry as to the cost of certain work redone, on the refusal of the contractor to do so, he acts in his capacity as an arbitrator and is subject to the provisions of the Arbitration Act. 173 I.C. 401=A.I.R. 1938 Sind 45.

REGISTRATION:—Provision in award for payment of money by one party to the other as the equivalent of latter's share in immovable property—Clause that until such payment ownership of latter shall not cease does not operate as a document of title and as present creation, declaration or assignment of title. (a) "arbitration agreement" means a written agreement to submit present or future differences to arbitration, whether an arbitrator is named therein or not;

(b) "award" means an arbitration award.

SEC. 2—(a) "SUBMIT PRESENT OR FUTURE DIFFERENCES" TO ARBITRATION.—A submission is a written agreement signed by both parties to submit differences to arbitration; and this agreement may be collected from a series of documents even though connected by parol evidence. 42 A. 525; 53 A. 384, or contained in the bye-laws framed under Bombay Cotton Contract Act. 32 Bom.L.R. 1451. In order that there may be a valid submission to arbitration, it is only necessary that there should be a written agreement embodying either directly or by implication all the terms. It is not necessary that each party should sign the submission to arbitration. All that is required is that both parties accept a written document as containing the agreed terms; it might be in the form of a signed document by both parties containing the terms, or a signed document by one party containing the claims and a plain acceptance either signed or orally accepted by the other party, or in the third case, an unsigned document containing the term of the submission to arbitration, agreed to orally by both parties. (56 C. 118 and 53 All. 384, Foll.) 44 C.W.N. 607. One of the essential ingredients of a submission to arbitration is that the parties should intend to have the dispute referred determined quasi-judicially. If it is not to be so determined, the agreement is not a submission, nor the person deciding it an arbitrator. That is the distinction between an agreement for submission to an arbitrator and an agreement to accept the decision of a valuer or appraiser or of a racing steward or of counsel for the parties. In these latter cases there is no animus arbitrandi. 28 S.L.R. 223=1934 Sind 200. See also 1939 All. 176. Where the Counsel's statement makes it clear that a person is being appointed as a referee and that he is to make a statement in Court, the fact that he was allowed to make the statement after taking the statements of the parties, could not have the legal effect of altering the character of the referee, for it cannot be said that a referee can never be authorized by the parties to examine the parties before making his statement in Court. Such a person is not an arbitrator. I.L.R. (1939) All. 50=180 I.C. 316=1938 A.L.J. 1132=A.I.R. (1939) All. 92. The provisions of Sch. II, para. 5, C. P. Code, have no application to a case where parties agree to abide by the statement of a specified person and he makes such a statement in Court. 180 I.C. 364=1939 A.L.J. 1=A.I.R. 1939 All. 176.

The term submission is construed very broadly. Where a contract between the parties was subject to the rules and bye-laws of an Association, which provided that disputes in relation to the contract should be referred to arbitration by two disinterested persons, prescribed the procedure provided for an appeal to the Board of Directors of the Association, and finally made provision for the award being filed in the High Court, a reference to arbitration under the bye-laws in question would amount to a submission as defined by S. 4 (b) of the Act. 36 Bom. L.R. 1005=1934 Bom. 476. Arbitrators were appointed to consider and determine the respective claims of the parties and their disputes in connexion with "houses, shops, moneys, etc.": Held, that the word 'etcetera' after the word "moneys" could be read as covering the jewellery. A.I.R. 1940 Rang. 203. The requirements of section 4 are duly complied with, if the submission is in writing and is binding on both the parties as their agreement or as the equivalent in law to an agreement between them. Their actual signatures are not essential. 49 I.C. 135; 32 C.W.N. 1101=56 C. 118. (dissenting from 53 C. 65). See also 19 I.C. 925=6 S.L.R. 278; 1929 Sind 83. But see 61 C. 702=38 C.W.N. 737 (Signatures of both parties necessary for validity of a written submission to arbitration). When a party interested in the dispute does not join in making the reference the Court has no jurisdiction to refer the dispute to arbitration. 1929 Lah. 171. The existence of a "dispute" is essential to the validity of a reference to arbitration under the terms of a contract. A dispute involves the assertion of a right by one party and its denial by the other. 64 I.C. 798=33 C.L.J. 545. See also 47 Cal. 799; 46 Cal. 534. Only matters in dispute between the parties to a litigation which affect private rights can be referred to arbitration. 72 I.C. 1016=1923 Nag. 112. Withholding of payment is a 'dispute' between the parties. 46 Cal. 534. But see 1931 B. 164. What amounts to submission to arbitration, see 33 C. 1237; 33 C. 1169. See also 6 S.L.R. 278; 4 S.L.R. 14. The definition of submission in S. 4 covers what is ordinarily termed an arbitration clause as well as what is commonly called a reference. 35 I.C. 536=10 S.L.R. 1. See also 71 I.C. 817=1924 Lah. 405.

ORAL SUBMISSION.—Award based on—Validity of. See 63 M.L.J. 610; 1931 Pat. 92. "Submission" is of course, defined as a submission in writing and all the operative sections of the Act proceed on the assumption that it is in writing. But an oral submission is not in terms prohibited by the Act. An oral agreement to refer to arbitration can therefore be proved and sued on. 36 Bom.L.R. 47=1934 Bom. 79=150 I.C. 478=58 B. 369. See also 105 I.C. 105=1938 Oudh 127.

WHAT ARE SUBMISSIONS.—Where an association, at the instance of and on a claim by the members against another member, lays the matter before arbitrators and the latter

(c) "Court" means a Civil Court having jurisdiction to decide the questions forming the subject-matter of the reference if the same had been the subject-matter of a suit, but does not, except for the purpose of arbitration proceedings under section 21, include a Small Cause Court;

member in his own hand and over his signature sent an answer to the claim, the document constituted a written agreement to submit their difference to arbitrators. 43 All. 348. See also I.L.R. (1937) 1 Cal. 606. The words of the definition of 'submission' in S. 4 of the Arbitration Act (1899) are sufficiently wide to include cases where the agreement is made without, at the time it is made, there being any differences between the parties, either in existence or in direct contemplation. Also it is not necessary to constitute a 'submission' that the terms of the agreement should all be contained in one document. Such an agreement may be found in correspondence consisting of a number of letters. The printed rules of Merchants' Association requiring all members in all cases of dispute or differences inter se arising from certain transactions to submit the said disputes or differences to arbitration together with the written undertakings to abide by the rules, signed by members at the time of their admission as members are sufficient to constitute the written agreement to submit to arbitration. I.L.R. (1939) Kar. 769=1939 Sind 357. A policy of marine insurance provided, "all disputes must be referred to in England for settlement and no legal proceedings shall be taken to enforce any claim except in England where the under-writers are domiciled and carry on business." Held, that the clause amounted to a submission to arbitration. 26 Bom.L.R. 224=80 I.C. 523=1924 Bom. 381. A clause in a Bill of lading that all disputes shall be settled by the British Consul at the port of destination is similar to a submission to arbitration. 15 S.L.R. 88. The petition of compromise in a suit for accounts amounts to a submission to arbitration within the meaning of S. 4. 71 I.C. 817=1924 L. 405.

WHAT ARE NOT 'SUBMISSIONS' TO ARBITRATION.—A document embodying the terms of an agreement to refer to arbitration, which is not signed by or on behalf of both parties is not a submission as defined in S. 4. 19 I.C. 925=6 S.L.R. 278. Writing amounting to a bond does not amount to a submission to arbitration. 16 I.C. 861=6 S.L.R. 89. The words "office dhara" (office terms) do not constitute a written agreement to submit differences to arbitration. They are used merely as symbols to denote that such an agreement had been made and the use of such symbols does not justify the Court in accepting oral evidence of the agreement. 19 I.C. 925=6 S.L.R. 278.

WHO MAY SUBMIT.—(i) As to infant, see 14 C.L.J. 188. An arbitration to which a minor is a party is not in itself void; it is only voidable at the instance of the minor. And when the minor supports it, it is not open to the other party who is a major, to have the award made at his instance set aside on the ground of the other party being a minor. 1940 M.W.N. 808=52 L.W. 373=A.I.R. 1940 Mad. 905=(1940) 2 M.L.J. 356. Where on the death of a Hindu, disputes arose between his collaterals on the one side and his widow, a minor and a married daughter on the other, the mother acting on behalf of her minor daughter has no power to bind the minor by an agreement to refer the disputes to arbitration and the minor's right to the property would be unaffected by any award that might be passed in pursuance of any such reference. 190 I.C. 184=1940 A.L.J. 774=45 C.W.N. 40=52 L.W. 409=A.I.R. 1940 P.C. 181 (P.C.). As an infant is unable to bind himself by contract, he cannot enter into a submission which will render the award absolutely binding on him. In the case of a pending suit, the Court may authorise a submission to arbitration so as to render the award binding on the infant. 14 C.L.J. 188=11 I.C. 481. See also 41 Bom. L.R. 1208; 20 Pat.L.J. 170=1939 Pat. 278; 1939 Pat. 387; 1939 Cal. 500; 1939 Bom. 296. (ii) Guardian. 11 I.C. 481; 12 L. 767; 59 C.L.J. 521; 38 B. 153. See also 1938 Oudh 54.

WHAT MATTERS MAY BE REFERRED to arbitration. See 24 I.C. 264=5 S.L.R. 4. Criminal complaint cannot be referred. 1929 Lah. 394. In a suit for restitution of conjugal rights, the question of validity of marriage can be referred. 1929 Lah. 177=118 I.C. 464. See also 1930 Sind 195=121 I.C. 164. In a suit for a declaration that the plaintiff is the mutawalli of a mosque, reference to arbitration is not illegal and the decree passed in accordance with the award is not invalid. 189 I.C. 812=A.I.R. 1940 Lah. 123.

(e) "reference" means a reference to arbitration.

CHAPTER II.

ARBITRATION WITHOUT INTERVENTION OF A COURT.

3. An arbitration agreement, unless a different intention is expressed therein, shall be deemed to include the provisions set out in the First Schedule in so far as they are applicable to the reference.

Provisions implied in arbitration agreement.

4. The parties to an arbitration agreement may agree that any reference thereunder shall be to an arbitrator or arbitrators to be appointed by a person designated in the agreement either by name or as the holder for the time being of any office or appointment.

Agreement that arbitrators be appointed by third party.

Authority of appointed arbitrator or umpire irrevocable except by leave of Court.

5. The authority of an appointed arbitrator or umpire shall not be revocable except with the leave of the Court, unless a contrary intention is expressed in the arbitration agreement.

cannot be two tribunals each with jurisdiction to insist on deciding the rights of the parties and to compel them to accept its decision. 26 C.W.N. 967=69 I.C. 863=1923 C. 135 (2). In a suit on a mortgage the dispute was referred to arbitration. The award allowed three years to the mortgagors to occupy the mortgaged house free of rent, though it was to be conveyed to the mortgagees from the date of award. In case the mortgagors failed to hand over possession at the expiry of three years they would pay mesne profits at the rate of Rs.100 per month from date of default up to possession. The house could realize only Rs. 10 per mensem as rent. The mortgagors occupied the house rentfree for 3 years failed to hand over possession. The mortgagees obtained decree for mesne profits at the rate of Rs. 100 per mensem. Held, that a Court executing the decree was prima facie bound by the decree. As the mortgagors did not raise any objection to the award at the proper time, it was too late for them to challenge the decree. The mere fact that the house if given on rent might not fetch Rs. 100 was not sufficient ground for affording relief to the mortgagors; there might be several considerations weighing with the arbitrators in fixing the amount. 171 I.C. 515=A.I.R. 1937 Sind 219. Where an agreement between the Military and a contractor for the supply of fodder provided that, any dispute or difference arising out of this contract shall be referred to the arbitration of the officer sanctioning the contract, a reference made by the Assistant Director of Grass Farms is competent. The rules framed by the Government regarding the conduct of Government litigation have no bearing on the question of reference to arbitration. The reference has to be made not to the person who sanctioned the contract but to the officer who may be holding the appointment of the sanctioning authority at the time of the dispute. So reference to the Officer who became the successor of a different officer as the sanctioning authority on a re-organization of the department is valid. 171 I.C. 361. See also 1933 Sind 75. Abortive award if prevents fresh reference—Court's power to decide if there was a valid contract. 44 A. 472.

STAMP.—Stamp duty on agreement to refer to arbitration. 33 C. 669; 13 C.W.N. 63; 19 Bom. 32; 40 C. 219. Want of proper stamp when and how can be called in question. 39 C. 669. On this section, see also 27 Bom.L.R. 1098.

SECS. 3, 4 AND 5.—Reproduce with minor alterations the provisions of section 6, 7 and 5 respectively in the 1899 Act, and deal with the terms of arbitration agreements. (Statement of Objects and Reasons.)

SEC. 3.—The intention of the parties is to be the sole guide for determining the mode of working out the submission and reaching a final decision. The law of arbitration is based upon the principle of withdrawing the dispute from the ordinary Court and enabling the parties to substitute a domestic tribunal. Once that tribunal reaches a final decision as contemplated or agreed upon by the parties, then the Arbitration Act steps in to help the parties to enforce the said decision. 36 Bom.L.R. 1005=1934 Bom. 476.

SEC. 4.—Where a clause in the contract between the parties relating to certain drainage works provided for reference of the disputes to the Chief Engineer of the Karachi Municipality, the mere fact that the Chief Engineer had a duty to look after the interests of the Municipality and as an interested party might have already formed an opinion upon the matters in dispute is not sufficient to prevent him from being a proper person to decide the disputes. 27 S.L.R. 169=1933 Sind 75. See also 171 I.C. 361.

SEC. 5: SCOPE OF SECTION.—Once a valid

submission has been made it is irrevocable without good cause. 12 M.I.A. 112 at 130; 7 A. 273; 8 M.H.C.R. 46; 27 M. 112; 20 A. 145; 29 A. 13; 1914 M.W.N. 52. The Court has jurisdiction, in a proper case, to grant leave to revoke an arbitration on good cause being shown. But that jurisdiction has to be exercised with great care and caution and should never be considered a venue for making applications, from time to time in pending arbitrations with a view to obstruct the progress of the arbitration. Unless, therefore, a strong and irresistible case is made out, the Court should be reluctant to supersede an arbitration. 36 Bom. L.R. 827=1934 B. 388. See also 45 L.W. 405=1937 Mad. 405=171 I.C. 690 (where submission is ultra vires submission will be revoked). If the arbitrator refuses or neglects to act, the procedure under section 8 of the Act should be followed. 44 I.C. 360=20 I.C. 504. If the original appointment of arbitrators is bad the tribunal constituted is without jurisdiction and no subsequent realization of a mistake or an attempt to rectify matters by one party can clothe with jurisdiction a tribunal which is in its inception illegal and without jurisdiction, and the award by such tribunal is invalid, and if filed in Court should be removed from the file. A.I.R. 1941 Sind 111.

POWERS OF ARBITRATOR.—An arbitrator has jurisdiction to inquire and decide whether a party to the submission has signed it or whether the signature is that of a partnership and if so, who the individual partners are. 11 I.C. 274 (S.). Where joint property belonging to certain persons has been partitioned by an award made without the intervention of the Court, the mere fact that no specific directions were given by the arbitrators about the ventilators and drains existing in the properties partitioned does not render the award invalid on the ground of difficulty in execution of the award or indefiniteness in the award. It is open to the parties to find out for themselves what would be the legal inference to be derived from the award with respect to these particular easements in the properties. The ordinary rules of law relating to easements in a joint property divided between two owners will apply unless there is something in the award which takes any particular easement out of the general law and assigns a particular right in any party to that easement. 188 I.C. 477=A.I.R. 1940 Lah. 24.

If a matter in dispute submitted to arbitration is not within the jurisdiction of arbitrators, the proper remedy of a party to the submission is to apply to the Court for leave to revoke the submission. If the Court is satisfied that the submission was ultra vires it has undoubtedly the power to give leave to revoke the submission to arbitration, and that is the appropriate remedy. 171 I.C. 690=1937 M.W.N. 518=45 L.W. 405=A.I.R. 1937 Mad. 405. Once arbitrators have issued an award, they become functus officio, and they have no jurisdiction subsequently to re-write the original award. A.I.R. 1941 Pat. 215. See also 1923 All. 31. Where an entire suit has been referred to arbitration, the arbitrator has power to allow an amendment of the plaint in order to correct a mistake in a date given therein, when the amendment is one which the Court had power to allow if it had tried it, even though the Court had refused such amendment on a previous occasion. 20 Pat.L.T. 700=1939 P.W. N. 703=A.I.R. 1939 Pat. 597. The arbitrators whose only duty is to ascertain the actual value of certain property at a certain time have no power to include interest in their assessment of value. 169 I.C. 562=A.I.R. 1937 P.C. 214 (P.C.).

PROCEDURE.—The ordinary rule is to refer to a single arbitrator. An intention to refer to more than one arbitrator must be plain and clear. 12 I.C. 662=5 S.L.R. 97. An order refusing to set aside an award based purely on evidence recorded by Court itself is not bad in law. 11 I.C. 274 (S.). Where an agreement has provided that if any party shall refuse or neglect to appoint an arbitrator within certain days after one party shall have appointed an arbitrator and served a written notice upon the other party requiring him to appoint an arbitrator, then upon such failure the party making the request may appoint another arbitrator to act on behalf of the party so failing to appoint and the arbitrator so appointed may proceed and act in all respects as if he had been appointed by the person failing to make such appointment, the appointment of such arbitrator cannot be deemed to be inoperative or incomplete until other party received notice of it. 187 I.C. 262=12 R. S. 224=A.I.R. 1940 Sind 37. Leave to revoke a reference to arbitration will not be given unless a substantial miscarriage of justice will take place in the event of leave being refused. 1933 Sind 347.

WHAT ARE PROPER GROUNDS.—Good grounds for revocation (i) Collusion (29 A. 13); (ii) Partiality (29 C. 278); (iii) Indebtedness of arbitrator to one of the parties (29 C. 278; 3 C.W.N. 361; 25 C. 141); (iv) Unreasonable delay (17 C. 200); (v) Neglect of arbitrator (11 S.L.R. 101; 44 I.C. 360). (vi) Submission ultra vires. 45 L.W. 405=1937 Mad. 405. (vii) Where the parties to a proceeding enter into an agreement to be bound by whatever statement is made by a certain third person in relation to their disputes, they are at liberty to resile from that agreement before such statement is made. 42 P.L.R. 495. See also 144 I.C. 42=1933 S. 115.

WHAT ARE NOT PROPER GROUNDS.—(i) Excess of authority by arbitrator not proper ground. 37 B. 183=24 M.L.J. 328 (P.C.). (ii) Mere delay in making award. 4 Pat. L.J. 394. See also 44 A. 432.

DEATH OF PARTY.—Effect on reference, see 15 C.L.J. 360; 4 S.L.R. 14=7 I.C. 590. 14 C.W.N. 759; 44 C.W.N. 866; 10 C.L.J. 449=4 I.C. 370.

"LEAVE OF COURT."—Leave is granted only when there would be failure of justice. 10

6. (1) An arbitration agreement shall not be discharged by the death of any party thereto, either as respects the deceased or any other party, but shall in such event be enforceable by or against the legal representative of the deceased.

(2) The authority of an arbitrator shall not be revoked by the death of any party by whom he was appointed.

(3) Nothing in this section shall affect the operation of any law by virtue of which any right of action is extinguished by the death of a person.

7. (1) Where it is provided by a term in a contract to which an insolvent is a party that any differences arising thereout or in connection therewith shall be referred to arbitration, the said term shall, if the receiver adopts the contract, be enforceable by or against him so far as it relates to any such differences.

(2) Where a person who has been adjudged an insolvent had, before the commencement of the insolvency proceedings, become a party to an arbitration agreement, and any matter to which the agreement applies is required to be determined in connection with, or for the purposes of, the insolvency proceedings, then, if the case is one to which sub-section (1) does not apply, any other party to the agreement or the receiver may apply to the Court having jurisdiction in the insolvency proceedings for an order directing that the matter in question shall be referred to arbitration in accordance with the agreement, and the Court may, if it is of opinion that, having regard to all the circumstances of the case, the matter ought to be determined by arbitration, make an order accordingly.

(3) In this section the expression "receiver" includes an Official Assignee.

Power of Court to appoint arbitrator or umpire.

SECS. 6 and 7 follow closely sections 1 and 2 of the English Arbitration Act, 1934 (24 and 25 Geo. V, c. 14): their purpose is to standardize the law as to the effect on an arbitration agreement and proceedings of the death or insolvency of a party thereto. (Statement of Objects and Reasons.)

SEC. 8 dealing with the Court's power to appoint an arbitrator in certain cases, reproduces with some verbal changes section 8 of the 1899 Act. (Statement of Objects and Reasons.). See also para. 5 of C.P.C., Sch. II.

CHANGES MADE BY THE SELECT COMMITTEE.—"We have removed an obscurity from clause 8 (1) (a) where it was not clear whether failure to concur in any one of the appointments or failure to concur in all the appointments was contemplated. We have omitted the words "or is removed" from section 8 (1) (b) and also from section 9 to remove the inconsistency which would otherwise exist between these sections and section 12, which gives to the Court and not to the parties power to appoint arbitrators in place of arbitrators removed by the Court. In sub-clause (2) we have extended the time for making an appointment to 15 days instead of seven days from the service of notice under sub-clause (1)." (Rep. of Sel. Com.).

SEC. 8: SCOPE OF SECTION.—Act does not limit number of arbitrators. 43 A. 456.

APPLICABILITY OF SECTION.—Section is not applicable where a different course is provided by contract. 44 M. 406 = 40 M.L.J. 166. Nor to the case if independent appointments of two arbitrators. 43 B. 809. Not to independent appointment of second arbitrator. 1924 Sind 29. When according to the agreement an arbitrator has been nominated and the same is communicated to the other party in clear and unequivocal language, it ipso facto confers authority to arbitrate. (a) where an arbitration agreement provides that the reference shall be to one or more arbitrators to be appointed by consent of the parties, and all the parties do not, after differences have arisen, concur in the appointment or appointments; or

(b) if any appointed arbitrator or umpire neglects or refuses to act, or is incapable of acting, or dies, and the arbitration agreement does not show that it was intended that the vacancy should not be supplied, and the parties or the arbitrators, as the case may be, do not supply the vacancy; or any party may serve the other parties or the arbitrators, as the case may be, with a written notice to concur in the appointment or appointments or in supplying the vacancy.

(c) where the parties or the arbitrators are required to appoint an umpire and do not appoint him;

(2) If the appointment is not made within fifteen clear days after the service of the said notice, the Court may, on the application of the party who gave the notice and after giving the other parties an opportunity of being heard, appoint an arbitrator or arbitrators or umpire, as the case may be, who shall have like power to act in the reference and to make an award as if he or they had been appointed by consent of all parties.

Where the parties have jointly appointed two arbitrators and one of the arbitrators dies or a vacancy otherwise occurs, the Court has no power under clause (1) (b) to supply the vacancy and appoint an arbitrator. 1939 Sind 81. If the arbitrators are directed to appoint an umpire in the first instance, they cannot appoint an umpire after they have entered on the reference. 13 C.W.N. 297. Where under the agreement, the parties have twenty days' time after receipt of notice within which to appoint an arbitrator, held, the failure to give the requisite number of days was fatal to the award delivered by the only arbitrator. 42 A. 525. Section 8 of the Arbitration Act deals only with cases of appointment of a single arbitrator or of an umpire or a third arbitrator. Where, therefore, the intention of the parties, as expressed in the agreement of reference, is that the submission should be to more than one arbitrator, the District Judge has no jurisdiction to appoint an arbitrator under section 8 (2). 11 O.W.N. 1347=1935 Oudh 26. Where the arbitrator says that he would act no further till his fees are paid in advance, such action amounts to a refusal to act on his part and a new arbitrator can be appointed in his place. A. I.R. 1937 Cal. 523.

SECS. 8 AND 9: DIFFERENCE BETWEEN.—Under section 8 an application must be made to the Court and the Court appoints an arbitrator, while under section 9 appointment may be made by a party, whether originally or by way of substitution. 1927 Sind 177. See also 1929 Sind 55.

SEC. 9 amends section 9 of the 1899 Act in the following directions: Provision is made to suit mofussil conditions by making it clear that the defaulting party's time for appointing an arbitrator runs only from the receipt of notice, and the proviso is elaborated (a) to make it clear that it is only in the arbitrator's capacity as sole arbitrator (and not as the arbitrator of the party appointing him) that the Court may set aside the appointment, and (b) to permit the Court, on sufficient cause being shown, to allow further time to the defaulting party, or in any event to make such alternative order as it thinks fit. (Statement of Objects and Reasons.)

ALTERATIONS BY THE SELECT COMMITTEE.—"The first change made in sub-clause (a) brings the section into accord with the wording of section 8 (1) (b). The second change has been explained in our remarks on section 8. In section 9 (b) we have extended the time there given from 7 days to 15 days and have provided that it shall date from service of notice and not receipt of notice in order to relate it to a definite ascertainable point of time by the help of the provisions of section 42. We have also added an explanation, applicable to both section 8 and this section, of the expression "neglects or refuses to act". (Rep. of Sel. Com.).

(a) if either of the appointed arbitrators neglects or refuses to act, or is incapable of acting, or dies, the party who appointed him may appoint a new arbitrator in his place;

SEC. 9: APPLICABILITY OF SECTION.—Section applies only where a different intention is not expressed in the submission. 7 S.L.R. 1=20 I.C. 504. See also 1939 Sind 24. Section 9 does not apply where the parties by their contract provide that a different course should be adopted if one of the parties fails to nominate an arbitrator as provided in the contract. 40 M.L.J. 166=44 M. 406. See also 1927 Sind 177; 1939 Sind 24=180 I.C. 143. Section 9 provides for an appointment by way of substitution in a case when each party is entitled to appoint an arbitrator. It does not provide for the case where one party is entitled in certain circumstances to appoint two arbitrators. 142 I.C. 706=1933 Sind 6. See also 1939 Sind 24. Official Receiver is not a "party" within this section. 1926 Sind 209. Where the agreement between the parties contained a term that on the default of either party to appoint an arbitrator in time the chairman of the Trade Association was to appoint one on behalf of the defaulter, held, that section 9 (b) would not apply and an award made by one arbitrator alone, who was appointed by one of the parties was without jurisdiction. 50 C. 1=44 M.L.J. 758 (P.C.). Where the indent provided that in case of dispute there was to be a reference to arbitration and that if the buyers failed to appoint an arbitrator the sellers would have the power to appoint an arbitrator on behalf of the buyers but no such power was conferred on the buyers in the event of the sellers failing to appoint an arbitrator; held, that in such an eventuality, the right of the buyers was to appoint the arbitrator nominated by them as sole arbitrator under section 9 of the Act. 27 S.L.R. 186=1933 Sind 328. (Case-law discussed.) Where in pursuance of an agreement, both parties appoint an arbitrator each, it is not necessary that there should be a reference in writing or that they should accept the appointment formally in writing. The fact that the arbitrators peruse relevant papers in the absence of parties does not amount to misconduct. They are judges of law and fact and an erroneous decision on a point of law will not justify interference. 76 I.C. 36=1924 Sind 91. The appointment of an arbitrator within 15 days from the service of notice is illegal. 1939 Sind 24.

trator is a Judge chosen by the parties themselves and a Court should not thrust an arbitrator on an unwilling party except under circumstances laid down in section 8. 51 A. 501=27 A.L.J. 182=115 I.C. 611=1929 A. 144. Section 9 applies to cases where arbitrator accepts and afterwards refuses to act. 6 M. 414; 18 C. 324. See also 31 P.L.R. 386=1930 L. 125; 1929 B. 51. Where arbitrator refused to act and Court acting suo motu superseded the reference to arbitration, held, that order superseding arbitration was contrary to law and that it should be set aside. 7 O.W.N. 1043. A reference to arbitration stands on the same footing as all other lawful agreements and cannot be revoked by a party except on good cause. 22 I.C. 548=1914 M.W.N. 52. See also 64 I.C. 459=19 A.L.J. 823. Where in fact reference to arbitration has become impossible and by implication Court has superseded it, the jurisdiction of Court to try the issue between the parties is not affected. But where the proceeding is still pending before the arbitrators, Court has no jurisdiction to try the case. 5 Pat.L.J. 672=57 I.C. 473; 16 I.C. 277=10 A.L.J. 23. See also S. 23 (2) of the Act. The fact that one of three arbitrators gave evidence before the others, does not constitute misconduct on the part of the arbitrators so as to vitiate their award. 40 I.C. 646=21 C.W.N. 895. Where one of the parties to an arbitration deliberately absents himself from the hearing, the award concluded in his absence is not bad. (Ibid.) "Refuses to act" in section 9, meaning of. 7 A. 20; 7 A. 523; 10 A. 137; 1 A.L.J. 683. The mere fact that an arbitrator returns the papers to the Court intimating that he was doing so as one of the parties did not wish him to act and also because he had no leisure in future to carry out the task, does not amount to a flat refusal by him to act, especially when subsequently he agrees to carry on the arbitration on a requisition from the Court. The arbitrator in such a case cannot be considered to have divested himself of his character as an arbitrator, and an award subsequently made by him cannot be attacked on that ground. 1937 A.L.J. 651=A.I.R. 1937 All. 582. The mere fact that an arbitrator has declined to sign an award made by a majority of arbitrators does not show that he has refused to act. 1 A.L.J. 683. A refusal to accept by some arbitrators makes the award of the rest illegal. 21 M.L.J. 263=9 I.C. 173 (F.B.). The appointment of a new arbitrator in place of one who refused to act must be made by both the parties. 112 P.R. 1918=48 I.C. 395. The Court may appoint a new arbitrator in the place of one who has refused nomination, for that is a refusal to act within the meaning of the section. (6 M. 414; 18 C.

(b) if one party fails to appoint an arbitrator, either originally or by way of substitution as aforesaid, for fifteen clear days after the service by the other party of a notice in writing to make the appointment, such other party having appointed his arbitrator before giving the notice, the party who has appointed an arbitrator may appoint that arbitrator to act as sole arbitrator in the reference, and his award shall be binding on both parties as if he had been appointed by consent:

Provided that the Court may set aside any appointment as sole arbitrator made under clause (b) and either, on sufficient cause being shown, allow further time to the defaulting party to appoint an arbitrator or pass such other order as it thinks fit.

Explanation.—The fact that an arbitrator or umpire, after a request by either party to enter on and proceed with the reference, does not within one month comply with the request may constitute a neglect or refusal to act within the meaning of section 8 and this section.

324, overruled.) 33 A. 743=38 I.A. 181=21 M.L.J. 1151 (P.C.). The power of Court to appoint an arbitrator in the place of one who refuses to act arises, not on the refusal, but only on the failure of one of the parties to appoint a new arbitrator after formal notice to do so. (17 M. 498, Dist.) 134 I.C. 733=33 Bom.L.R. 1022=1931 B. 529. Court appointing fresh arbitrator, on refusal of first arbitrator, without issuing notice to the other party acts with material irregularity. 50 I.C. 655=17 A.L.J. 643. Whether non-compliance with section 9 is an irregularity or illegality, see 1931 A.L.J. 682=1931 A. 761. An arbitrator failing to submit his award within the time fixed may be held to have "refused or neglected to act" so that if another arbitrator is appointed without formally discharging the former, the appointment cannot be questioned. 23 I.C. 842. Where two arbitrators were appointed to decide a case and one of them withdraws pending the arbitration the remaining arbitrator cannot proceed with the case and file an award. 56 I.C. 644=2 Lah.L.J. 637; 17 I.C. 389=24 M.L.J. 15.

"BECOMES INCAPABLE OF ACTING" IN SECTION 9.—When a person goes away from the country and remains away, and there is no evidence to show an intention to return, that person becomes incapable of acting. 4 Beng. L.R. (O.C.). 89. Arbitrators could not delegate the powers conferred on them. 17 B. 129. The performance of acts of a ministerial character may be delegated. 29 C. 854 (P.C.). Where only one arbitrator is appointed to decide a matter, no umpire can be appointed. 25 W.R. 11.

CL. (b).—CASES UNDER THE OLD ACT.—See 1 C. 200; 11 M.L.J. 128; 23 W.R. 221; 6 C.L.R. 1; 24 A. 312; 16 I.C. 177=10 A.L.J. 23. When the agreement to refer does not give Court any power to appoint an umpire, Court could not appoint one. 8 A. 64. Where parties had agreed that the case should be decided by arbitration and counsel for parties made statements before Court giving the names of the two persons who were to be appointed arbitrators, but the statements were silent as to what was to happen in case both the persons refused to act and there was no express provision that Court would have no power to appoint a third arbitrator and that the suit must be decided on the original side and Court appointed a third arbitrator on refusal of named arbitrators to act, held, (i) that the powers conferred upon Court under section 9 existed and was not contrary to any agreement between the parties; (ii) that by leaving the question open the parties obviously intended that the ordinary statutory powers would be enforced in the case of a deadlock. 151 I.C. 148=1934 A.L.J. 711=1934 A. 368. It cannot be seriously disputed that there is some difference between the procedure to be followed where the arbitration is made in a pending suit and where there is a mere agreement to refer to arbitration which is sought to be filed in Court. In the latter case the Court obviously cannot go beyond the terms of the agreement, and if the agreement specifies the persons who are to be appointed arbitrators and makes no provision for the case where the arbitrators refuse to act, the Court cannot substitute in the place of the named arbitrators other persons, in the face of the clear provision in para. 17 (4) of Sch. II, C.P. Code. Para. 5 of Sch. II, C.P. Code, will not apply to such a case, as it can come into play only after there has been an order of reference by the Court. If one or more of the arbitrators named in the agreement refuse to act and thus make the agreement incapable of performance, the agreement becomes void, and the Court has no jurisdiction under para. 17 (4) to make a reference to the arbitrators who are willing to act. 19 P. 927. The parties to a suit agreed to refer their dispute to two arbitrators. It was also agreed that in case of difference between the arbitrators, the award of an umpire, agreeing with that made by any of the arbitrators should be final. One of the arbitrators refused to act as an arbitrator. The defendant applied to the Court to order the umpire to proceed with the matter, and the Court passed an order to that effect although objected to by the plaintiff. In pursuance of that order the other arbitrator and the umpire proceeded with the inquiry and then the other arbitrator passed an award against the plaintiff and at the foot of that award the umpire made a note that he agreed with the award. This award was accepted by the Court and a decree followed. Held, that it was not open to the Court to refer the dispute to the other arbitrator and the umpire when one of the arbitrators had refused to act. It was open to the Court to substitute another arbitrator in place of the one who refuses to act. The umpire could only be called in to act as an umpire when the two arbitrators made differing awards and not before. 1937 Sind 171. When a party selects an arbitrator he cannot subsequently ask Court to select another on the ground that the arbitrator whom he selected turned out to be a friend of the opposite party. 3 A.L.J. 185. Where a Court appoints a fresh arbitrator without complying with the formalities prescribed in section 9 the appointment is without jurisdiction or at least tainted with material irregularity, and the order appointing the arbitrator can be set aside in revision. 146 I.C. 493=1933 O. 540. Paras. 5, 8 and 15 of C.P.C., Sch. II do not exhaust the cases in which a Court can revoke an arbitration, Para. 3 (2), C.P.C. Sch. II does not deprive Court of all its powers over an arbitration proceeding under its order except in the cases mentioned in paras. 5, 8 and 15, supra. The Court has jurisdiction in a proper case, to grant leave to revoke an arbitration on good cause being shown. 36 Bom. L.R. 827=1934 B. 388. An agreement to refer a matter to certain specified arbitrators becomes void and of no effect if one or more of the arbitrators refuses to act, thus making the agreement incapable of performance; the Court in such a case has no jurisdiction to make a reference to arbitrators who are willing to act. It can only make an order of reference if, on the date of such order, the arbitrators appointed in accordance with the agreement are willing to act as such; though it has power under section 9 to appoint arbitrators in the place of those refusing to act, that can be done only after the order is made. 151 I.C. 1001=11 O.W.N. 1188. An agreement to have a dispute settled by one or more individuals is one thing; an agreement to go to arbitration rather than to litigate in the Courts is quite another. Where it is at all possible, if parties desire arbitration, they should be as free as possible under the guidance of the Court to have their disputes settled by arbitrators they chose themselves.

So it is primarily the original intention of the parties which should be cherished by the Court. Hence where in a dispute regarding certain land, the parties agree that the dispute should be decided by certain named persons, the Court is not entitled to appoint another in the event of one of arbitrators being unable or unwilling to act. 41 C.W.N. 981=I.L.R. (1937) 2 Cal. 434=A.I.R. 1937 Cal. 388.

SEC. 10 makes provision for cases in which more than two arbitrators are appointed. The first two sub-clauses follow closely section 4 of the 1934 Act of Parliament.

CHANGES MADE BY THE SELECT COMMITTEE.—“In sub-clauses (2) and (3) we have made provision for modification of the terms of these sub-clauses by express provision in the arbitration agreement.” (Rep. of Select Committee).

SEC. 10.—CASES UNDER THE OLD ACT.—An award is not invalid in case the order of reference does not provide for a difference of opinion between the arbitrators, when there is no difference of opinion among them. 17 W.R. 30. That there is no provision made for the appointment of an umpire in case of difference of opinion among arbitration, does not make the submission bad on that account. 13 I.C. 161=15 C.L.J. 360. The Court has no jurisdiction to appoint somebody as an umpire if the arbitrators differ, when the deed of reference to arbitration filed by the parties makes no provision for this contingency but expressly states that the Court should then decide the matter. 189 I.C. 466=42 P.L.R. 124=A.I.R. 1940 Lah. 276. Award of umpire without consultation with arbitrators is good. 55 P.R. 1915=30 I.C. 87. There is nothing in law which prevents an umpire when there is a difference of opinion between the arbitrators from deciding the case entirely on his own opinion. 144 I.C. 1020=1933 L. 587. An arbitrator cannot be an arbitrator as well as an umpire. 138 I.C. 651=36 C.W.N. 332=1932 C. 491. “Umpire” meaning of. See 1940 Sind 37. In case where arbitrators are empowered to appoint an umpire from seven persons named in the order of reference, they cannot appoint a person not named. 7 M.H.C.R. 72. A majority award is not bad even in the absence of a specific provision to that effect in the reference. 40 I.C. 646=21 C.W.N. 895. See section 10 of the Act. But see next case. Where a dispute is referred to several arbitrators and the deed of reference does not provide for the prevalence of the views of the majority in the case of the decision not being unanimous a majority award cannot be maintained. 49 I.C. 522. (See now sec-

(2) Where an arbitration agreement provides that a reference shall be to three arbitrators to be appointed otherwise than as mentioned in sub-section (1), the award of the majority shall, unless the arbitration agreement otherwise provides, prevail.

(3) Where an arbitration agreement provides for the appointment of more arbitrators than three, the award of the majority, or if the arbitrators are equally divided in their opinions, the award of the umpire shall, unless the arbitration agreement otherwise provides, prevail.

Power to Court to remove arbitrators or umpire in certain circumstances.

11. (1) The Court may, on the application of any party to a reference, remove an arbitrator or umpire who fails to use all reasonable dispatch in entering on and proceeding with the reference and making an award.

(2) The Court may remove an arbitrator or umpire who has misconducted himself or the proceedings.

(3) Where an arbitrator or umpire is removed under this section, he shall not be entitled to receive any remuneration in respect of his services.

(4) For the purposes of this section the expression "proceeding with the reference" includes, in a case where reference to the umpire becomes necessary, giving notice of that fact to the parties and to the umpire.

12. (1) Where the Court removes an umpire who has not entered on the reference or one or more arbitrators (not being all the arbitrators), the Court may, on the application of any party to the arbitration agreement, appoint persons to fill the vacancies.

Power of Court where arbitrator is removed or his authority revoked.

(2) Where the authority of an arbitrator or arbitrators or an umpire is revoked by leave of the Court, or where the Court removes an umpire who has entered on the reference or a sole arbitrator or all the arbitrators, the Court may, on the application of any party to the arbitration agreement, either—

(a) appoint a person to act as sole arbitrator in the place of the person or persons displaced, or

(b) order that the arbitration agreement shall cease to have effect with respect to the difference referred.

tion 10 of the Act.) Where parties have entered into an agreement to be bound by the opinion of the majority of arbitrators, the omission of the Court to record that fact in the order of reference does not vitiate the arbitration. 23 I.C. 842. In the absence of a clause providing for an award made by less than all being valid, each of them must Act personally as if he were the sole arbitrator. For as the office is joint if one refuse or omit to act, the others can make no valid award. 17 I.C. 320=16 O.C. 94. In case no provision is made that the decision of the majority of arbitrators should be binding, and two out of five arbitrators withdraw a decision by the majority is invalid. 7 M. 174; 4 M. 311; 17 B. 129. (See now section 10 of the Act). The parties to a suit agreed that three gentlemen could be appointed arbitrators and one of them should be appointed 'sarpanch' and they should decide the case. No provision was made for any difference of opinion. The arbitrators could not agree and there was a majority of 2 to 1. Held, that as no umpire was appointed in the case it was necessary that there should be a unanimous decision for a valid award to be made. 1934 A.L.J. 66=147 I.C. 623 (1)=1934 A. 109. See now section 10 of the Act.

SEC. 11 empowers the Court to remove a dilatory arbitrator or umpire or one who misconducts himself or proceedings. Section 16 of the 1899 Act and sections 6 and 15 of the 1934 Act of Parliament have been drawn on.

SEC. 12 which follows section 3 of the 1934 Act of the Parliament makes provisions for the consequences of the removal of arbitrators. (See also section 36.)

CHANGE MADE BY SEL. COM.—"The word 'authority' has been substituted for 'appointment' in view of the wording of section 5." (Rep. of Sel. Com.)

SEC. 13 sets out the powers of arbitrators: it is based to some extent on section 10 of the 1899 Act and on paragraph 11 of the

(3) A person appointed under this section as an arbitrator or umpire shall have the like power to act in the reference and to make an award as if he had been appointed in accordance with the arbitration agreement.

13. The arbitrators or umpire shall, unless a different intention is expressed in the agreement, have power to—

Powers of arbitrator.

NOTES.

Second Schedule to the Code of Civil Procedure 1908.

CHANGES MADE BY THE SELECT COMMITTEE.—“We have omitted the words ‘acting under an arbitration agreement’ as being unnecessary and as being inappropriate in certain cases, such as when arbitration is under a statute. We have also inserted a provision giving power to the arbitrators to make a conditional or alternative award.” (Rep. of Sel. Com.)

SEC. 13: POWER OF COURT.—Civil Courts have no power to issue a summons or commission to a witness to give evidence in a private arbitration. Consent of parties cannot confer this power. 47 B. 250. The arbitrators have no power to summon witnesses and procure their attendance when the arbitrators are acting under the provisions of the Arbitration Act. If parties go to private arbitration under the Act it is for them to produce witness before the arbitrators. 1933 Sind 300. Where questions of fact under the Arbitration Act as to the conduct of arbitrators or the umpire, the procedure adopted and the instructions and so forth are raised, the Court should have evidence properly brought before it. 64 I.C. 706 (All.).

POWERS OF ARBITRATORS.—See 1925 Bom. 22. Powers depend on clause of reference the scope of which is to be decided by the Court. 47 B. 578=44 M.L.J. 706 (P.C.). The arbitrator has the power to act on any evidence which would satisfy a reasonable man without reference to strict rules of evidence. 49 I.C. 135=12 S. R. 55, or to strict judicial procedure, 1928 M. 48, in a reference for partition to determine everything incidental or consequential relating to the mode of partition and the rights of female members, 1924 Oudh 54, to allow interest on amount awarded after date of award, 27 C.W.N. 933, dissenting from 27 C.W.N. 494, when a party to reference is a firm to decide whether a person is a partner, 19 I.C. 363; but see 1932 B. 375, if so empowered to appoint a receiver, 1929 Sind 200. Re his power to use personal knowledge, see 1926 B. 527; Re his power to make successive awards. But they have no power to delegate their powers, e.g., of appointing an umpire, 17 B. 129, unless the reference is to an association consisting of a large and fluctuating body who can only select individuals as arbitrators. 33 C. 1169, or the delegated work is of a ministerial nature, 4 Pat. 670.

DUTIES OF ARBITRATORS.—An arbitrator is not of course bound by the technical and strict rules of evidence. But he must not disregard the rules of evidence which are founded on fundamental principles of justice and public policy. 39 Bom.L.R. 476=A.I.R. 1937 Bom. 410. See also 120 I.C. 494=1930 Lah. 280. To hear each side only in the presence of the other, if one of the parties should not appear to give notice of his intention to proceed ex parte, 66 I.C. 389=34 C.L.J. 39; to give effect to all legal defences, e.g., plea based on limitation; 56 C. 1048=56 M.L.J. 614 (P.C.).

POWERS OF UMPIRE.—Same as those of arbitrator. He has a discretion to state a special case for the opinion of the Court and his refusal to do so is not misconduct. 27 C.W.N. 494; 1928 M. 107; 61 M.L.J. 623 (P.C.). He cannot take evidence from the notes of arbitrators in the face of objection by parties unless so authorised by the submission. 64 I.C. 706.

FORM OF OATH.—See 2 L.W. 320=29 I. C. 49.

PROCEDURE.—Where an umpire is appointed owing to disagreement he must re-hear the evidence if applied to, and failure to do so would be misconduct; but if no application is made to that effect, he can proceed with the case and decide it on the evidence already produced. 63 I.C. 141=15 S.L.R. 68. An award of an umpire without hearing parties is against principles of equity and justice. Award of costs, without mentioning the amount, is bad for uncertainty, and the umpire can award costs only for the reference and award. The costs of obtaining an order from the Court is at the discretion of the Court. 12 I.C. 637. Award may be made in the form of a special case. 52 C. 100=1925 C. 599. A charge of misconduct against the umpire cannot be (based on or) strengthened by the mere fact that in the exercise of his discretion, he refused to state a special case. 134 I.C. 1080=35 C.W.N. 1287=1931 P.C. 289=61 M.L.J. 623 (P.C.). Arbitrators cannot apply to the Court for confirmation of an order passed by them making payment of their fees a condition precedent to the hearing of the reference. 6 C. 809.

IRREGULARITY—WAIVER OF.—The party who makes an objection must prove that he objected at the time to the umpire's proceedings in making a final award without hearing his witnesses. He cannot, in law, be allowed to question the regularity, subsequently if there was any decision upon merits. 64 I.C. 706 (All.); 61 M. L. J. 761; 1931 M. 619. See also 14 C.L.J. 188.

- (a) administer oath to the parties and witnesses appearing;
- (b) state a special case for the opinion of the Court on any question of law involved, or state the award, wholly or in part, in the form of a special case of such question for the opinion of the Court;
- (c) make the award conditional or in the alternative;
- (d) correct in an award any clerical mistake or error arising from any accidental slip or omission;
- (e) administer to any party to the arbitration such interrogatories as may, in the opinion of the arbitrators or umpire, be necessary.

14. (1) When the arbitrators or umpire have made their award, they shall sign it and shall give notice in writing to the parties of the making and signing thereof and of the amount of fees and charges payable in respect of the arbitration and award.

NOTES.

But if the party in fact objected, his proceeding with the case and defending himself as best as he can does not amount to waiver of his objection. 1931 B. 81; 55 B. 503=33 Bom.L.R. 759.

EFFECT AND NATURE OF ORDER UNDER CL. (b).—Where arbitrators state a case for the opinion of the Court, the order thereon is not necessarily binding on them, as they still remain the final Judges of the fact and law. Nor can such order amount to a judgment or operate as res judicata. Distinction between the English and Indian Acts pointed out. 79 I.C. 986=1925 S. 83.

AMBIGUITY IN AWARD.—In the case of a reference to arbitration the umpire is functus officio after he has published his umpirage or award and the document must speak for itself. Where an ambiguity in the award is patent it would not be competent to the Court to launch into an inquiry to ascertain which of the two possible interpretations of the document the Court should accept. 1927 Bom. 428=29 Bom.L.R. 660.

INTERFERENCE WITH AWARDS.—It is necessary that Courts should be very cautious in interfering with award and the grounds on which the Court will remit the matter for reconsideration are:—(1) that the award is bad on the face of it, (2) that there has been misconduct on the part of the arbitrator, (3) that there has been an admitted mistake and the arbitrator asks that the matter may be remitted to him, (4) where additional evidence has been discovered after the making of the award. 49 C. 646. Mere errors in law unless distinctly appearing on the face of the award or from any document accompanying or forming part of the award are not sufficient ground for remitting an award. 49 C. 646. The decision of the arbitrators is final. If there is on the face of the award, a patent inconsistency such as a flat contradiction in measurement, or a mistake of arithmetical calculation the Court to which application is made can send the award back to the arbitrators to correct it before a decree is passed in accordance with it. But anything of this kind cannot be done in execution proceedings. 45 A. 628. See also 50 L. W. 195. Award beyond reference but with consent of parties is valid—Arithmetical error does not vitiate award. 42 A. 277. Award as to divisions of testator's property is not invalid by reason of the pendency of probate proceedings. 25 Bom.L.R. 437=1923 B. 365.

SEC. 14 relating to the procedure in filing an award, reproduces section 11 of the 1899 Act with two small changes in sub-clause (2): the provision of paragraph 10 of the Second Schedule to the Code, requiring that depositions and documents shall accompany the award, is included, and the notice of filing is to be issued by Court and not by the arbitrator as in the 1899 Act.

ILLUSTRATIVE CASES UNDER THE OLD ACT (C. P. C., SCH. II).—When parties accept an award and apply to the Court for filing it, the Court should not refuse to file it basing its view on some correspondence between the Registrar of the High Court and the District Judge, which it is not entitled to look at. 38 P.L.R. 318. The provisions of the rule are mandatory. 17 I.C. 430=15 O.C. 294. See also 43 C.W.N. 924. The duty imposed upon the arbitrator by this rule can be enforced by an order of Court made upon the arbitrator. 17 C. 832 (839). Whether omission to file depositions and documents invalidates the award, see 93 I.C. 446 (2)=1926 O. 307=1 Luck. 139; 119 I.C. 694=26 N.L.R. 168=1929 N. 264. Arbitrators may deliver their award to a third person to be filed in Court. 5 B.L.R. 357. Court is bound to give notice to parties of the filing of the award. 20 A. 474. Omission to give notice is a serious irregularity and is a good ground for revision. 94 I. C. 115=1926 C. 1018; 119 I.C. 331. Notice is not necessary where parties are present in Court when award is filed or where they have come to know of the award otherwise. 21 I.C. 298=310 P.L.R. 1913. The arbitrators need not sign award at the same time and in the presence of each other. 18 M. 22; 29 B. 36. When two out of three arbitrators alone sign the award and file it in Court, and third signs it after it is filed, the award is invalid. 33 C. 498. See also 1 P.L.J. 306=35 I.C. 358; 56 M. L.J. 35; 7 O. W. N. 541=1930 O. 389. Case referred to three arbitrators—Only two arbitrators acting—To hold that only two arbitrators had full authority to act is to commit either error of law or fact. 1929 C. 831. Where parties agree to be bound by the decision of the majority of arbitrators, the refusal of the minority to sign the award will not invalidate the proceedings provided there was a decision of the majority after full discussion by the whole body of arbitrators. 1 P.L.J. 90=34 I.C. 105. The parties to a partition suit referred the matter to the arbitration of certain Amins. When the Amins had decided what they were going to do, the parties joined together with the Amins and certain local gentlemen and executed a document by which they agreed that the parties shall be bound to compromise the suit upon certain terms which were annexed to the document which was signed by the parties. Held, that the document was not an award but an agreement to compromise. 45 C. W. N. 381.

ESTOPPEL.—The mere signature by a party to an award does not necessarily in all cases estop him from afterwards disputing its correctness. Nor does the mere signature necessarily remove all objection to the irregularity in the award. Where the suit is based on the award itself and not on any agreement by the parties whereby they mutually accepted the award and the question of the acceptance of the award is not in issue it cannot be said that a party is estopped because of his signature. If both parties to the award signed it after it was delivered it may be that a suit could be filed to enforce the terms of the award on the ground that there was a definite contract by the parties by virtue of their signatures. 7 R. 136=117 I.C. 574=1929 R. 166.

AWARD SENT BY POST.—A Court is not competent to act on an award unless it is not only signed by all the arbitrators but is also properly placed before it by the arbitrators and by no other persons. Where award was sent to Court by post and none of the arbitrators took responsibility for saying as to who caused the award to be sent to Court, the award was not properly placed before the Court, and, as such, could not be acted upon by it. (1928 P. 231, Rel. on; 1 P.L.J. 90; 6 B. 663, Expl.; 6 W. R. 95, Ref.) 118 I.C. 606=1929 P. 178.

ORAL AWARD.—The question whether an oral award can extinguish a decretal debt depends on the terms of the reference and the terms of the award. Quære.—Whether an oral award is good. 1933 L. 777.

Per C. C. Ghose, J.—“There is nothing to prevent the parties from agreeing to a submission containing in it a further submission to arbitration. No doubt in section 11 of the Arbitration Act there is not to be found any reference to arbitration by a committee; but it does not matter in the slightest whether the committee is described as a committee of appeal or whether they are described as a fresh set of arbitrators. The contract contains as it were two submissions or a submission within a submission.” 1927 Cal. 647. But see 1927 Cal. 391.

ESSENTIALS.—An award under section 11 must be in writing and signed. 82 I.C. 802=1924 Rang. 319. See also 5 I.C. 374. If not signed, it cannot be made a rule of Court. 56 M.L.J. 35. Where an award was declared by the arbitrators in the presence of both parties on a certain date but signed by them on a later date, the effectiveness of the award is not postponed to the date on which it was signed. The award becomes effective on the date on which the parties are made aware of it. 45 C.W.N. 223. Where a third arbitrator resigned because there was a majority against his view and did not sign the award, held, that did not affect the validity of the award. 76 I.C. 1007=1923 Lah. 411. Under section 11 of the Act, the award must be signed by all the arbitrators who join in making the award. But the omission on the part of some of them to so sign it is mere irregularity capable of being rectified. 36 Bom. L.R. 1005=1934 Bom. 476. See also 1938 O.W.N. 480=1938 Oudh 125. Where the arbitration and award and of the costs and charges of filing the award cause the award or a signed copy of it, together with any depositions and documents which may have been taken and proved before them, to be filed in Court, and the Court, shall thereupon give notice to the parties of the filing of the award.

(3) Where the arbitrators or umpire state a special case under clause (b) of section 13, the Court, after giving notice to the parties and hearing them, shall arbitrators take a reasonable fee for their services before entering upon their duties with a view to avoid the necessity of suing the parties in Court, their conduct in so doing, does not amount to misconduct and does not vitiate the award. 17 L.W. 648 = 1924 Mad. 274. An application to file in Court, a compromise, settling the differences independently of arbitrators appointed, and signed by the parties and arbitrators, cannot be granted inasmuch as such a deed does not amount to an award. 48 P.L.R. 1915 = 28 I.C. 298. An award which purports to be the considered award of the arbitrators cannot be said to be no award simply because the arbitrators accepted the compromise arrived at by the parties and cast the terms of the compromise in the form of an award. Such an award cannot be invalidated. I.L.R. (1937) Nag. 449. The doctrine of estoppel applies, even if an award were not an award but merely a compromise acted under. I.L.R. (1937) Nag. 449.

JURISDICTION.—An application to file an award made to a wrong Court is not to be dismissed but returned for presentation to the proper Court. I.L.R. (1940) Cal. 358 = 1940 Cal. 220 = 44 C.W.N. 285.

NOTICE.—Where an arbitrator proceeds ex parte he should give notice to the parties before he so proceeds; otherwise his award is liable to be set aside. 47 C. 951. See also 47 C. 29. Failure to give notice of filing an award does not by itself vitiate award. 1926 Sind 242. Award—Legality of—Ministerial Act—Notice to parties—No necessity for. 17 L.W. 648 = 1924 Mad. 274.

AWARD WHEN ENFORCEABLE.—An award becomes enforceable as soon as it is filed in Court and no notice of filing need be given to the parties by the arbitrator. 47 C. 951 = 60 I.C. 987. See also 5 R. 171 = 102 I. C. 800. The filing of an award is an act to be done at the instance of an arbitrator, and when it is filed the result is not that there is a suit in which a decree has been passed, but that there is an award enforceable as if it were a decree. 40 C. 219.

PROCEDURE.—The provisions of the Act and the requirements of the rules and orders of the High Court must be complied with before the Registrar can file the award and that it is only when the award is legally and properly filed that it will be executable as a decree. 5 R. 171. See also 1940 Lah. 164 = 42 P.L.R. 114 (appointment of proper guardian necessary where award against a minor is sought to be filed in Court). Under section 141, C. P. Code, the procedure provided in regard to suits is to be followed, so far as it can be made applicable, in all proceedings in any Court of civil jurisdiction. The presentation of an application by an arbitrator for filing an award under the Arbitration Act comes within the category of "civil proceedings". Where, therefore, the award is against a minor, it is incumbent to make a prayer in the application for the appointment of a proper guardian for such minor under O. 32, R. 3, C. P. Code. If a proper guardian is not appointed, a decree passed against the minor on the basis of the award is a nullity. 42 P.L.R. 114 = A.I.R. 1940 Lah. 164. The procedure laid down by the Act seems to be that the various stages to be found in sections 11 to 15 (1899 Act) are to be followed in the same chronological order as the numerical order of the sections and that an application to set aside is not as a rule within the jurisdiction of the Court, until some application or attempt has been made to file the award or some other similar step is taken to enforce it. 1923 All. 31. See also 160 I.C. 693 = 1936 Pesh. 2. There are express provisions to be found in section 11 of the 1899 Act as to what is to be done by an arbitrator, if he has made his award. When the question, when an arbitrator in India becomes functus officio comes to be decided, the line will have to be drawn somewhere in the procedure which is laid down for getting the award into Court. It is difficult to hold that an arbitrator is functus officio, while there are still express statutory duties laid upon him by the Act. 1923 All. 31. A rule framed by the Court under, but not in accordance with, the Arbitration Act will not be given effect to. 40 C. 219.

FILING OF THE AWARD.—Any one of the arbitrators can legally file the award, the filing being a purely ministerial act. 29 I.C. 602 = 8 S.L.R. 302. If an application to file an award is made in a Court which has no jurisdiction to entertain it, the proper order on it would be, not an order of dismissal, but an order for return of the application for presentation to the proper Court. I.L.R. (1940) 1 Cal. 358 = 71 C.L.J. 62 = 44 C.W.N. 285 = A.I.R. 1940 Cal. 220. Irregularities in filing can be rectified by Court in exercise of its inherent jurisdiction. 5 R. 171. But part of an award cannot be filed. 56 M.L.J. 35. Though under the proviso to section 2 the Act is made applicable to Karachi, the Act is rendered inapplicable by section 2 to an award made on a reference to arbitration in Karachi entitling a party to realise a certain sum of money by the sale of the properties at pronounce its opinion thereon and such opinion shall be added to, and shall form part of, the award.

Power of Court to modify award.

15. The Court may by order modify or correct an award.—

NOTES.

Lahore which were mortgaged in his favour, as a suit relating to the subject-matter submitted to arbitration could be instituted only at Lahore and not at Karachi according to section 16, C. P. Code. Such an award could not therefore be legally filed under the Act. 35 P.L.R. 482=1934 Lah. 652. See also 44 C. W. N. 285. There is no provision in the Act by which the Court can compel the arbitrators to file an award in the Court when the fees and charges due to them in respect of the arbitration have not been paid. 189 I.C. 806=A.I.R. 1940 Sind 144.

APPOINTMENT WHEN COMPLETE.—The appointment of a certain person as arbitrator is not complete, until such person has accepted the reference and consented to act. 29 I.C. 602=8 S.L.R. 302. Arbitrators can decide questions of law as well as points involving construction of agreement. 53 B. 271=31 Bom.L.R. 21=1929 Bom. 19. (See also 32 Bom.L.R. 43 construction of clause in bill of lading excluding jurisdiction of Courts in that respect.) Arbitrator can also appoint receiver for estate in dispute. 119 I.C. 529=1929 Sind 200 [29 C. 590 (P.C.), Rel. on.] See also 1928 Sind 144. As to power of arbitrator to make successive awards, see 1930 Lah. 425 and cases referred to therein.

APPEAL.—An order refusing to set aside an award is a judgment within Letters Patent and is appealable. There is no right of appeal against such an order under section 104, C. P. Code, which has no application to the filing of an award under section 11, Cl. (2) of the Arbitration Act. 46 I.C. 687=45 C. 502. There is no provision in the Act for appeal against an order refusing to file an award. But an appeal filed through mistake can be heard as a revision. 173 I.C. 11=40 P.L.R. 79=A.I.R. 1938 Pesh. 3. No appeal lies unless it is given by law. There can be no appeal from an order setting aside an award. 5 Bur.L.T. 155=6 L.B.R. 88; 1934 Lah. 1019 (1)=36 P.L.R. 283. Where application is by arbitrator to District Judge for filing award and the District Judge transfers file to Sub-Judge the procedure is not legal. 160 I.C. 693=1936 Pesh. 2. See also 1938 Lah. 838.

FILING AWARD OF OTHERS THAN ARBITRATOR OR UMPIRE.—Where by an association contract the arbitrator's award was made subject to the decision of the committee in appeal and in the particular case the committee reversed the arbitrator's award and their decision was sought to be filed in Court; held, that the award of the committee is not within the terms of the Arbitration Act and cannot be filed under it. 1927

C. 391. But see 1927 C. 647.

Per Pearson, J.—Ss. 10 to 15 of the 1899 Act are general sections applying to all awards under the Act whether the provisions of the first schedule are applicable to the particular arbitration, whether they are excluded by the expressed intention of the parties or not. (Ibid.) Unless therefore the meaning of the word 'umpire' itself in the Act can be enlarged beyond its ordinary meaning, there is no recognition to be found in the Act for an award by a tribunal superior to the umpire. It would be impossible to hold that 'umpire' meant 'umpire or any higher domestic tribunal upon which, the parties may agree'. (Ibid.)

AGAINST WHOM AWARD CAN BE EXECUTED.—An award obtained against a firm cannot be executed against a party who is alleged to have been a partner in the firm but who was not served either with the notice of arbitration or the filing of the award. 1927 Bom. 428.

SEC. 15 dealing with the Court's powers to correct an award, reproduces without change paragraph 12 of the Second Schedule to the C. P. Code. [N. B.—For notes see C. P. Code, Sch. II, para. 12.]

SEC. 15.—The jurisdiction of arbitrators to make an award on a reference must be limited to the subject-matter in dispute between the parties, and the subject-matter in dispute, so far as property in suit is concerned, must be property mentioned in the plaint in respect of which relief is claimed. 30 S.L.R. 478. The fact that the defendant in his written statement raises issues as to other properties and the fact that the Court apparently raises issues covering not only the property mentioned in the plaint but also property referred to in the written statement will not give the arbitrators jurisdiction to decide as to that property which is not the subject-matter of the suit at all. The decision of the arbitrators must relate only to the property specifically mentioned in the plaint. (Ibid.) Where one portion of the award related to matters referred, and another portion went beyond the strict terms of the reference, but the two portions are clearly separable, the whole award is not invalid. 29 C. 854 (P.C.). If some portion of the award refers to extraneous matters it can be separated from other portions, provided it does not attack the decision relating to matters of reference. 2 P. 777=76 I.C. 2=5 Pat. L. T. 239. An award should be construed not by oral evidence given by the arbitrators, but by looking at the language of the award itself. 3 N.-W.P. 117; 20 A. 245. Sections 15 and 16 do not apply to an award made without the intervention of Court. In such a case Court has no power to amend or remit the

(a) where it appears that a part of the award is upon a matter not referred to arbitration and such part can be separated from the other part and does not affect the decision on the matter referred; or

(b) where the award is imperfect in form, or contains by obvious error which can be amended without affecting such decision; or

award. (27 A. 526, approved.) 14 I.C. 978=5 Bur.L.T. 55. See also 141 I.C. 72=34 P.L.R. 34=1933 L. 139. Modifications and corrections of the award by Court must be confined to section 15 and if a Court goes beyond that and makes substantial modifications because it takes a different view from that held by the arbitrator as to what was just and fair, it acts without jurisdiction. 78 P. R. 1916=35 I.C. 887. See also 34 P.L.R. 34=1933 L. 139=141 I.C. 72. When Court modifies or corrects an award, it is that award and not the original one with which the decree must accord. No appeal or second appeal therefrom is competent. 34 P.L.R. 34=141 I.C. 72=1933 L. 139. Courts have long ceased from sitting in appeal on award either with regard to errors of law or error on questions of fact. 1933 S. 292. The award in accordance with which Court has to pronounce judgment is the one that embodies the real intention of the parties. 19 I.C. 496=24 M.L.J. 483. Court is bound to correct any obvious mistakes or slips in an award as in the case of decrees. 19 I.C. 496=24 M.L.J. 483. Section 15 applies only if the "imperfection in form" exists in the award at the time when it is filed in Court by the arbitrator, and not if it comes into existence at a subsequent stage on the happening of an unanticipated event. 1930 L. 26. Award—Reference to Commissioner for taking accounts—Report—Procedure. 22 Bom.L.R. 1416=45 B. 512. Dissolution of partnership—Power to award interest. 56 I.C. 941, see section 29. An arbitrator has no power to review his own award. 99 P.R. 1917=43 I.C. 350. Material irregularity on the part of Court in dealing with objections to an award of arbitrators is a ground for revision. 78 P.R. 1916=35 I.C. 887.

REFERENCE TO ARBITRATION—SUBSEQUENT OFFER BY DEFENDANT TO BE BOUND BY OATH OF PLAINTIFF—OATH MADE—EFFECT.—Plaintiff sued defendant for a sum of money and parties subsequently agreed to refer the matter to the arbitration of an advocate of the Court. The arbitrator was empowered to decide the dispute between the parties after hearing evidence. Subsequently defendant made a statement, in the course of which he said that if plaintiff were to make certain statements on oath a decree might be passed in accordance with the plaint, and plaintiff stated on oath the facts which defendant had required of him. In making his award, however, the arbitrator made certain deductions from the claim of plaintiff. Plaintiff made an objection to the award that the arbitrator ignored the compromise or adjustment which had been made between the parties. Held, that the statement of defendant and the conduct of plaintiff did not amount to a compromise as defined in O. 23, R. 3 which would deprive the arbitrator of the powers with which he was vested by the reference to arbitration and that Court could not modify the award. 1933 A. 956.

ARBITRATOR'S POWER TO-DIRECT PAYMENT BY INSTALMENTS.—In adjudging the amount payable by one party to another, an arbitrator has full power to direct payment by instalments. The directions as to the number, amount, mode and time of payment of these instalments are, therefore, matters within the discretion of the arbitrator and the essential parts of an award which a Court has no more power to modify than it has to enhance or reduce the total sum found payable by the arbitration. Even if the order fixing the instalments is erroneous, harsh or oppressive, the error is one of substance in the adjudication of the dispute, and not of form which could be amended without affecting the decision. 1930 L. 26=11 L. 342. The jurisdiction of arbitrators to make an award on a reference must be limited to the subject-matter in dispute between the parties, and the subject-matter in dispute, so far as property in suit is concerned, must be properly mentioned in the plaint in respect of which relief is claimed. The fact that the defendant in his written statement raises issues as to other properties and the fact the Court apparently raises issues covering not only the property mentioned in the plaint but also property referred to in the written statement will not give the arbitrators jurisdiction to decide as to that property which is not the subject-matter of the suit at all. The decision of the arbitrators must relate only to the property specifically mentioned in the plaint. 30 S.L.R. 478=170 I.C. 102=A.I.R. 1937 Sind 174.

SECS. 15 AND 16: LIMITATION.—Art. 158 of the Limitation Act applies only to objections under section 30, i.e., where the application is to set aside the award completely. Where the application, on the other hand, is only for the modification or remission of the award, it comes within sections 15 and 16 and Art. 158, which provides 10 days limitation is not applicable thereto. 146 I.C. 596=1933 A.L.J. 519=1933 A. 648.

16. (1) The Court may from time to time remit the award or any matter referred to arbitration to the arbitrators or umpire for reconsideration upon such terms as it thinks fit—Power to remit award.

NOTES.

SEC. 16.—Section 16 deals with the Court's powers to remit an award for reconsideration. Sub-clause (1) repeats without change para. 14 of the Second Schedule to the C.P.Code, and the remaining sub-clauses reproduce the substance of the first sentence of para. 15 (1) ibid. (For Notes see C.P.Code, Sch. II, paras. 14 and 15.).

CHANGES MADE BY THE SELECT COMMITTEE.—“The alteration made in sub-clause (1) is merely a drafting improvement. In sub-clause (2) we have provided for possible extension of the time within which the arbitrator or umpire shall submit his decision.” (Rep. of Sel. Com.).

SEC. 16: CASES UNDER OLD ACT—AWARD WHEN CAN BE REMITTED.—When the award is set aside for legal and not moral misconduct, it can be remitted to the same arbitrator for further consideration. 41 C. 313. See also 66 I.C. 389=34 C.L.J. 39. A Court in remitting an award under S. 13 of the Arbitration Act (1899) must remit it as a whole and has no jurisdiction to remit only a part of the award for re-consideration. 171 I.C. 470=39 Bom.L.R. 476=A.I.R. 1937 Bom. 410. The Court is not bound to remit the award only on the grounds mentioned in para. 14, Sch. II, C.P.Code. An award may generally be remitted on the following grounds: (1) defect patent on the face of the record; (2) mistake on the part of the arbitrator, such that he himself desires a remission of the award to him; (3) discovery of some material evidence subsequent to the making of the award which might have affected the arbitrator's decision; and (4) misconduct. These are not, however, exhaustive. The grounds for remitting an award are much wider than those for setting an award aside under para. 14; but the jurisdiction is statutory and cannot be increased or decreased. 171 I.C. 470=39 Bom.L.R. 476=A.I.R. 1937 Bom. 410. Ordinarily an Appellate Court will not interfere with discretion of the first Court in declining to remit an award, but the Appellate Court will interfere where no grounds have been shown. 70 I.C. 353=16 L.W. 657=1923 Mad. 222. Where an arbitration is made without the intervention of a Court and an application is made to file the award, then if the award is good in part, the Court cannot remit the arbitrator for amendment or declare valid the part to which no exception is taken even if it is separable from the bad part. 74 I.C. 649=1923 Pat. 470. When an award is remitted for reconsideration by arbitrator with specific direction on certain points, the arbitrator has power to indicate the method by which his decision can be carried out. This incidental and consequential power is always implied in a remittal of the award. 1936 Lah. 865.

AWARD WHEN CANNOT BE REMITTED.—When the misconduct is one justifying the removal of the arbitrator, the Court will not remit the award but will set it aside. 66 I.C. 349=34 C.L.J. 39. Order by a Court to arbitrators to make an award anew, is equal to refusal to file an award and is not appealable either under the C.P.Code or the Arbitration Act. 1 Rang. 661. This section does not apply to award on private references. 14 I.C. 978; 24 I.C. 132; 34 I.C. 355 see also 29 Cal. 793. An award should not be remitted for reconsideration in the light of legal opinion obtained by one of the parties. 2 A. 181. See also 16 C. 806. A portion only of the award cannot be remitted. 24 A.L.J. 705=96 I.C. 531=1926 A. 567. An award is not invalid if it refers the parties to a regular suit concerning certain matters. 15 M. 348. The legality of an order remitting an award for reconsideration of the arbitrators may be challenged on appeal against the decree ultimately passed. 22 M. 202. See also 3 A. 636. A document although headed as an award and signed by the arbitrators, which merely recommended a solution of the matters referred, will not be treated as an award. 11 C. 356. In case the arbitrators refuse to re-consider an award remitted to them, Court may set aside the award. If it does so, it should decide the case itself. 16 C. 806. Main question left over by arbitrators to be decided by Court—Award not final—Procedure. 146 I.C. 22=1933 L. 530. On this section see also 119 I.C. 726=1930 L. 22; 1929 S. 164. Where the arbitrator clearly holds that the plaintiff's suit should be dismissed and that he should be directed to apply to the Revenue Authorities for partition, the Court acts wholly without jurisdiction in remitting the award to the arbitrator for reconsideration in the absence of any of the grounds mentioned in this section. 152 I.C. 1923=37 P.L.R. 18=1935 L. 113.

ILLUSTRATIVE CASES.—Evidence taken by some only of the arbitrators—Award is invalid. 45 I.C. 34=16 A.L.J. 307. Court could set aside an award if there was an error of law patent on the face of it as misconstruction of documents. 44 B. 780=21 Bom.L.R. 1037. Where an arbitrator neglects to consider some of the matters referred to arbitration he is guilty of an irregularity and the award is vitiated. 149 I.C. 396=3 A.W.R. 415=1934 A. 493. Acting on evidence adduced by one party behind the back of the other vitiates the award. 64 I.C. 363=22 P.L.R. 1922. Where

(a) where the award has left undetermined any of the matters referred to arbitration, or where it determines any matter not referred to arbitration and such matter cannot be separated without affecting the determination of the matters referred; or

(b) where the award is so indefinite as to be incapable of execution; or parties agree to refer their disputes to an arbitrator they ought not to be allowed to resile from the position which they took at the time of the reference. 15 I.C. 321. Merely technical objections should not be allowed to disturb an award, which is fairly made. (Ibid.) Parties representing whole property to be theirs—Third persons interested in the property—Party to reference cannot challenge the award on that ground. 4 P. 670=1925 P. 810. Obvious slip on the part of the arbitrator, effect of. See 52 I.C. 100=1925 C. 599. L.J. 265=72 I.C. 193=1923 R. 130.

TRANSFER OF CASE.—As a rule in the absence of any provision to the contrary when a case is transferred from the file of one Court to that of another, the Court to which the case is so transferred is vested with all the powers possessed by the Court which was originally seized of the case and such Court can deal with the case in the same manner as the original Court and there is no provision of law which excludes a Court to which a case is transferred to deal with an award based on a reference made by the other Court before transfer of the case from its file. 146 I.C. 582=10 O.W.N. 1196=1933 O. 547.

SEC. 16 (a).—Where the parties to arbitration withdraw certain questions they cannot be allowed to say that they are not decided. 38 A. 380=14 A.L.J. 481. Arbitrators have jurisdiction to decide whether they should award interest and an award of interest does not invalidate the award. 46 C. 534=23 C.W.N. 704. An award must conform both in form and substance to the submission. 31 I.C. 33=32 C.L.J. 237. An award is bad if it goes beyond the scope of the reference. 26 I.C. 73. Mistake of law on a legal point referred to an arbitrator does not vitiate his award. 26 I.C. 697=19 C.W.N. 476. A Court may remit an award on ground of some matters being left out. 23 I.C. 862. See also 116 I.C. 590=1929 S. 164; 131 I.C. 303 (1)=1931 L. 215. An arbitrator is not bound by the strict rules of practice adopted in Courts, but he cannot go beyond the questions submitted to him. 15 C.L.J. 110=16 C.W.N. 256. When an award deals with a matter extraneous to the reference which matter can be separated therefrom the Court may modify the award or may remit it to the arbitrators for correction. 76 I.C. 1007=1923 L. 411. See also 14 I.C. 978=5 Bur.L.T. 55; 66 P.R. 1915=31 I.C. 80. But see 1936 A.M.L.J. 55. An arbitrator appointed to decide whether a sale should be set aside is competent to say that it may be set aside if the vendor repays the purchase-money. 15 I.C. 573=1912 M.W.N. 901. When the valid part of an award is separable from the invalid part, the award should be declared valid to that extent but where misconduct is proved, the whole award is invalid. 14 I.C. 978=5 Bur.L.T. 55. A refusal of a Court to remit an award is unappealable. 15 I.C. 573=1912 M.W.N. 901. When arbitrators have to decide disputes between firms they must inquire who the partners are, to discover whether they have jurisdiction, whom they must serve with notices and the scope of their inquiries. 9 I.C. 712=4 S.L.R. 196. The fact that the arbitrators have taken evidence on matters outside their jurisdiction will not necessarily invalidate the award or make the proceedings improper, if the award is within jurisdiction. 9 I.C. 712=4 S.L.R. 196. Where a cause or matters in difference are referred to an arbitrator, whether a lawyer or layman, he is constituted the sole and final judge of all questions of both law and fact. The only exceptions to that rule are the cases where the award is the result or corruption or fraud and one other where the question of law necessarily arises on the face of the award, or upon some paper accompanying and forming part of the award. 146 I.C. 582=10 O.W.N. 1196=1933 O. 547.

SEC. 16 (b).—An award is not incapable of execution simply because the executing Court will have to make an enquiry into the various circumstances before determining what each party is entitled to get. 119 I.C. 726. An award against a firm is not bad and is governed by the provisions relating to the execution of a decree against a firm. 56 I.C. 325=47 C. 29. Where the arbitrators give rules for calculation without giving the actual result, it can be considered as sufficiently certain if the actual result may be worked out. 13 I.C. 161=15 C.L.J. 360. An award made in favour of an unregistered company can be filed on the application of that company, and such an application is not barred under section 69 (1) of the Partnership Act. An award of an arbitrator cannot be set aside merely because he has taken an erroneous view of the law. What he must not do is to lay down an erroneous proposition of law as being the true proposition of law and proceed to decide the rights of the parties on the foundation of this erroneous proposition of law. Where the parties in a case entrust the decision of the dispute between them to an arbitrator giving the fullest rights to the arbitrator, the arbitrator is entitled to decide the dispute between the parties on his own views of right and wrong and he need not follow the ordinary accepted views of law on the subject. 1940 O.W.N. 670=A.I.R. 1940 Oudh 405. Where the arbitrator gave his decision after examination of the parties only and the parties did not at the time protest against this procedure and demand that witnesses should be examined. Held, that they could not be heard to complain of this defect in the procedure adopted and urge it as a ground for setting aside the award. The failure of the arbitrator to ask the parties whether they desired to produce any witnesses for examination was just such a slip in his procedure which did not go to the substance of his decision. 158 I.C. 832=1935 R. 308.

SEC. 17.—Follow with minor alterations paragraph 16 of the Second Schedule to the Code. Herein lies one of the substantial points of difference in the existing law; under the Code, judgment is entered in accordance with the reward and a decree follows. Under the 1899 Act (following the then English Law) an award is executable as a decree but is not a decree for all purposes. The 1934 Act of Parliament has changed the English Law in this respect, and by this clause it is proposed to standardize the law in the direction of providing that judgment shall be pronounced in the terms of the award and that a decree shall follow. (Statement of Objects and Reasons.)

CASES UNDER THE OLD ACT, SCH. II, C.P.C.—RIGHT OF SUIT.—The intention of section 17 is to give finality to a decree passed in accordance with the decision of the arbitrator. 9 O.W.N. 191. No suit to set aside an award is maintainable, the proper way being an application to the Court to set aside the award. 56 I.C. 677=13 Bur.L.T. 34. Nor a suit on the original claim which has become merged in the award. 33 I.C. 554=8 L.B.R. 157. See also 32 Bom.L.R. 389; 1935 L. 134. The provisions of the section are applicable also to appellate Courts. 10 A. 8. Arbitrator—Position of—If same as that of commissioner—Distinction. The contention that the position of an arbitrator is like that of a commissioner appointed by Court is obviously untenable. The essential difference between a commissioner and an arbitrator is that the former is an officer selected and appointed by the Court, in whose selection the parties have not, as of right, any choice, whereas the latter is a person selected by the parties in whose selection the Court has no choice. In the former case the parties have expressed no consent to be bound by the decision of the commissioner who is appointed by the Court and whose decision the parties may challenge before the Court passing a final decree. In the latter case they have expressed such consent, and cannot challenge the arbitrator's decision on questions of law and fact except on the limited grounds mentioned in the Act. 18 Pat. 193=1939 P.W.N. 591=A.I.R. 1939 Pat. 526.

POWERS OF COURT.—In delivering the judgment Court must confine itself to plaintiff's claim and give a decision thereon. 14 W.R. 369; and cannot grant interest when the award does not grant it. 23 W.R. 105. See also section 29. When an award grants maintenance in perpetuity Court will not pass a decree to that effect. 7 B. 151. Court can separate the valid part from the invalid part of an award. 16 P.W.R. 1913=17 I.C. 684. The word 'award' in the last sentence must be understood to mean an award as given by the arbitrators and not as amended by the Court. 8 A. 449 (452). Where having been made, after refusing it, proceed to pronounce judgment according to the award, and upon the judgment so pronounced a decree shall follow, and no an award has been given on a reference and objections are filed but no orders are passed either accepting or rejecting them, it is not competent for the Court to dismiss the suit on the merits. 1941 R.D. 284. See also 42 C.W.N. 367.

FORM OF AWARD.—An award stated "I am of opinion that the plaintiff's case is not proved. I accordingly recommend the Court to dismiss the suit of the plaintiff with costs". It was contended that the award was invalid in form and that it should say "I dismiss the suit". Held, overruling the contention, that the function of an arbitrator is to come to a decision on the issues which have been referred to him and when his award is received the Court decides the suit and it is not for the arbitrator to dismiss or decree the suit. 1935 A.L.J. 396=159 I.C. 35=1935 A. 372.

"AFTER THE TIME FOR MAKING SUCH APPLICATION HAS EXPIRED".—Court should give time to enable a party to apply to set aside an award. 1906 A.W.N. 221. See Art. 158, Lim. Act. Court should not pronounce judgment within ten days of the receipt of the award, which is the period under Art. 158, Limitation Act, for putting in objections to the award. 152 I.C. 157=1934 M. 619=67 M.L.J. 377. A decree passed before the expiration of such time is liable to be set aside. 9 I.C. 197 (2)=21 M.L.J. 444. See also 25 A.L.J. 787=102 I.C. 608=1927 A. 614. Such decree can be set aside by High Court only under section 115 and no appeal lies. 45 B. 832=22 Bom.L.R. 1454=59 I.C. 811. An appeal against such a decree can be treated as a revision. 1912 M.W.N. 1232=17 I.C. 431; 9 I.C. 197=21 M.L.J. 444. An order refusing to hear such objections as time-barred is liable to be set aside in revision. 96 P.L.R. 1915=28 I.C. 427. It is not necessary to allow 10 days where an award has been accepted by the parties. 27 P.W.R. 1914=23 I.C. 591. Also 27 N.L.R. 240=134 I.C. 282; but see 34 I.C. 845 (Sind). Where such objections were dismissed for default, and decree was passed on the award, Court cannot refuse to entertain a subsequent application for restoration of the petition of objections. 18 A.L.J. 756=57 I.C. 200.

APPEAL AND REVISION.—No appeal lies from a decree based upon judgment pronounced in accordance with an award. No appeal lies on the ground that the award was invalid and therefore no valid decree could be based upon it. 12 R. 675=156 I.C. 414=1935 R. 94. See also 152 I.C. 838=1935 P. 16; 1936 R. 240=163 I.C. 590. A revision is however competent. 39 P.L.R. 51. No appeal lies from a decree made in accordance with an award; it is immaterial whether the validity of the award is challenged on the ground of the illegality of the procedure of the arbitrator or on account of the invalidity of the reference which constitutes the foundation of his authority. 13 L.

528=136 I.C. 11=1932 L. 239. But an appeal will lie from a decree passed in accordance with an award if such decree has been passed without allowing to the parties the time prescribed for filing objections. 29 A. 584. Appeal will also lie where the Court did not pronounce judgment in accordance with award, but in accordance with its modification of the award. 153 I.C. 764=1935 P. 109. Although the intention of section 17 is to give finality to decrees passed in accordance with the decision of the arbitrator yet it cannot be said that in no possible case can a revision be entertained against such decrees. If for instance it can be shown that the lower Court acted altogether without jurisdiction in passing a decree in terms of the award, it would be permissible to entertain a revision under section 115. 146 I.C. 582=10 O.W.N. 1196=1933 O. 547. The words of para. 16 of Sch. II, to C. P. Code, are perfectly clear and it would be doing violence to the plain language and the obvious intention of the Code if it were held that an appeal lies from a decree passed upon a judgment pronounced according to an award except in so far as the decree may be in excess of or not in accordance with the award. Paras. 14 and 15 of Sch. II, C. P. Code, enable the Court to which an award is submitted to refuse to give effect to the award if in its opinion it is either void, or invalid or illegal. If however, the award is accepted, it means that in the opinion of the Court it is neither void nor invalid, and the opinion of the Court cannot be challenged in appeal. Para. 16 merely gives effect to the principle of finality of awards, and the intention of the Legislature evidently is that an award should be subjected to the scrutiny of one Court only, namely, the Court through whom reference is made to arbitration, and not that Court and an appellate Court. No appeal can therefore be maintained from the decree based on an award on the ground that the award upon which the decree is based is invalid. 18 Pat. 193=1939 P.W.N. 591=A.I.R. 1939 Pat. 526. Where a decree has been passed in accordance with the award, it cannot be interfered with in revision unless the decree discloses some excess or defect of jurisdiction or irregularity in the exercise of jurisdiction. If the award is incomplete, it is the duty of the objector to apply to have the award remitted. But where the objector failed to object to award in trial Court, the High Court cannot in revision interfere with the decree passed in accordance with the award. 38 L.W. 330=1933 M. 697=65 M.L.J. 376. Where the Judge refuses to consider the objections to an award on the ground that they were time-barred, and a decree is passed in accordance with the award, no appeal lies and an application for revision is competent. 142 I.C. 835=1933 R. 38. Where an award is made according to law no appeal lies. 29 B. 285. See also 14 I.C. 455=9 A.L.J. 258. No appeal lies from a decree purporting to follow an award except on the appeal shall lie from such decree except on the ground that it is in excess of, or not otherwise in accordance with, the award.

This section contemplates an award made in a case where there has been a valid submission to arbitration. Where the reference itself is impugned for want of consent of the parties interested an appeal will lie against the decree passed on the basis of the invalid award. (25 C.W.N. 832. Relied on.) 34 C.W.N. 813. See also 58 C. 628=35 C.W.N. 238=1931 C. 211. There must be strict conformity with the provisions of this section. 49 A. 178=24 A.L.J. 1036. Matters outside the arbitration proceedings are open to appeal. 39 M. 853=32 I.C. 881=30 M.L.J. 465; 52 C.L.J. 298. Where Court did not pronounce judgment according to the award but in accordance with its modifications of the award, an appeal will lie from such a decree. 153 I.C. 764=1935 P. 109. Decree on an award overruling the objections of a party without giving him an opportunity to substantiate them by evidence is revisable but not appealable. 3 L.L.J. 487=20 P.L.R. 1922; 37 I.C. 400=3 O.L.J. 583. A second appeal is maintainable when the Court of first instance sets aside the award and passes a decree on the merits and the lower appellate Court sets aside that decree and passes a decree in accordance with the award. 4 O.W.N. 1085 (F.B.). See also 153 I.C. 764=1935 P. 109. An appeal lies from an order directing a private award to be filed even though Court has passed a decree on its basis. 38 A. 380=35 I.C. 833=14 A.L.J. 481. But where Court had granted frequent adjournments on the ground that the dispute had been referred to an arbitrator, such orders amount in substance to a reference by Court and no appeal will lie. 39 A. 401=15 A.L.J. 452. An order refusing to file an award is a decree and is appealable. 27 M. 255. Where the validity of the award is in question an appeal lies. 11 C. 37 (41); 49 I.C. 262. Also when award is shown to be illegal and void ab initio. 24 C. 469 (472); 1903 A.W.N. 159. But no appeal lies after passing a decree, even though award could have been set aside by objections being raised under section 30. 39 C. 822=18 I.C. 69. See also 18 C.L.J. 35=18 C.W.N. 626; 19 I.C. 405; 29 C. 167; 18 M.L.T. 34=31 I.C. 206. Cases where no appeal or revision will lie. See 25 I.C. 583=1914 M.W.N. 865; 38 M. 256=25 M.L.J. 507; 34 I.C. 845=9 S.L.R. 183; 104 I.C. 202=1927 L. 362. When objections are overruled, no appeal lies. 1 P.L.J. 306=35 I.C. 358. An order determining that there has been no valid reference to arbitration is a decree. 25 C. 757 (F.B.); 18 A. 442 (F.B.); 18 M. 423 (F.B.); 8 C.W.N. 916; 29 C. 167; 33 C. 899. Where after the matter in dispute in suit was referred to arbitration and an award passed, the objections of the petitioner were rejected and Court proceeded under to pronounce judgment according to the award, held, that the order was of an interlocutory nature and incapable of being revised. 143 I.C. 309=34 P.L.R. 651=1933 L. 692. Where there is no valid submission, there could be no award on which a decree could be made by the Court and if it is so made it is passed on something which is not an award and is therefore appealable. 174 I.C. 766=1938 O.W.N. 475=A.L.R. 1938 Oudh 154. An appeal against a decree on an award is incompetent under the clear provisions of Sch. II, Cl. 16 of the Code, if the decree is not in excess of or contrary to the award. A revision is, however, competent. 35 P.L.R. 51.

REVISION.—As to cases where no revision lies, see 29 C. 167; 26 O.C. 107=74 I.C. 401; 134 I.C. 30=1931 A.L.J. 906. But see 9 M. 475. Revision lies on the ground of material irregularity. 11 P.W.R. 1916=31 I.C. 700. See also 31 I.C. 458 (M.). As to when such decree is liable to be set aside on revision, see 2 L.L.J. 487 and 37 I.C. 400.

AGREEMENT TO REFER.—SEVERAL DEFENDANTS REPRESENTED BY SAME COUNSEL.—AGREEMENT SIGNED BY PLEADER.—VALIDITY.—APPEAL.—Under Sch. II, para. 16 (2), what is open to challenge is not the award but the decree, and an appeal lies only if the decree is in excess of or not in accordance with the award. Where three defendants are represented by one and the same pleader, whose vakalatnama authorises him to compromise the suit, and he signs the agreement of reference to arbitration as pleader, it has to be assumed that he signs it on behalf of all the defendants who have engaged him, unless he states that he so signs it only on behalf of some only or any of the defendants take any objection to the arbitration proceedings. All the defendants are, therefore, parties to the reference, which is valid and binding on all. The award cannot be challenged and no appeal, therefore, lies from the decree passed therein. 152 I.C. 838=1935 P. 16.

PRACTICE.—When objections are filed to an award, Court ought to give a chance to the party of proving his objection by evidence, and to deal with the objections judicially. Court ought to accept the award of the arbitrator as final as regards any statement made by him in the award as to the conduct of proceedings, without taking evidence in the matter or finding that the evidence adduced in support of the objections is insufficient. 152 I.C. 157=40 L.W. 364=1934 M. 619=67 M.L.J. 377.

18. (1) Notwithstanding anything contained in section 17, at any time after the filing of the award, whether notice of the filing has been served or not, upon being satisfied by affidavit or otherwise that a party has taken or is about to take steps to defeat, delay or obstruct the execution of any decree that may be passed

NOTES.

CASES UNDER OLD ARBITRATION ACT (1899).—When the legislature provided that an award on being filed was enforceable as if it were a decree of Court, its intention was that all the provisions of the C. P. Code applicable to the execution of decree should apply to an award so filed. 27 C.W.N. 666=1924 C. 117; section 47, C. P. Code is applicable for purpose of appeal. 1929 L. 228. (See also 31 C.W.N. 1097=104 I.C. 808=1927 C. 853; 56 M.L.J. 35; 1939 Cal. 482; 1938 Lah. 177; 1937 A.L.J. 1141; 1938 All. 232; 41 C.W.N. 1198; 1938 Pesh. 3; 1937 A.L.J. 1141 and Statement of Objects and Reasons.) Where Court is itself appointed to act as arbitrator, no separate award need be passed inviting objections. The award is itself a decree. 26 I.C. 355 (M.). Even after an award is enforced under the Arbitration Act, it is open to a party affected by it to sue for its being set aside on the ground that the arbitrator had acted wholly without jurisdiction. It follows, therefore, that the mere pendency of proceedings to set aside the award under the Arbitration Act is no bar to a suit for a declaration that the award is null and void and for a perpetual injunction to restrain the defendants from executing it. 1935 Lah. 76. See also 1935 Sind 184.

Per Niyogi, A.J.C.—Where an award filed by a party under section 15, Arbitration Act, is registered as such in the High Court of Bombay and the Court on basis of the award, passes an order purporting to mortgage certain property owned by the other party situate beyond its jurisdiction, the order is valid in so far as it records under O. 21, r. 2, C. P. Code, an agreement between the parties although the High Court has no jurisdiction to entertain a suit to enforce the mortgage. The order is operative as mortgage of the property specified in it, but although binding on the parties as an agreement it cannot be enforced by the Bombay High Court as a decree as it has no jurisdiction to entertain a suit on the mortgage. 159 I.C. 739=1935 N. 250 (F.B.).

LIMITATION.—For purposes of execution of an award filed in Court it is governed by the period of limitation prescribed for execution of decree by that Court. 1927 C. 853. So, award filed in a High Court is governed by Art. 183, Limitation Act. 1927 C. 853. An award made on a reference under the Arbitration Act becomes enforceable as a decree only when it has been filed, and it is only then that the execution can arise. Consequently an application to execute an award more than three years from the making of the award is not barred by limitation, if it is within three years from the date of the filing thereof. There is no provision of law which bars an application to file an award presented more than three years after the making thereof. 61 C.L.J. 515.

NATURE OF PROCEEDING.—A proceeding under the Act is not a suit and does not end in a decree. The Act does not provide for the Court making an order filing or refusing to file an award. The award is filed by the arbitrators and unless it is remitted to them or set aside, it becomes enforceable as if it were a decree of Court. 10 I.C. 211=5 S.L.R. 61. Provisions of C. P. Code, if apply. 77 I.C. 868=1924 C. 117.

STAY OF EXECUTION.—Stay of execution of award cannot be ordered. 12 Bom.L.R. 860=8 I.C. 179. (See also notes under section 19, infra.)

FILING OF AWARD.—(i) Procedure for filing award. 15 C.L.J. 110; 13 C.W.N. 63. (ii) Effect of filing award. 40 C. 219. (iii) Effect of not filing award. 5 I.C. 425. Cost of the filing award is in discretion of Court. 27 I.C. 526=8 S.L.R. 136. Conditions under which award can be made rule of Court. See 56 M.L.J. 35.

ESTOPPEL.—If a part of an award is found to be invalid as being in excess of the arbitrators' powers and is separable from the rest, the remainder of the award being good can be maintained and acted upon, while the excessive part of the award can be declared to be unenforceable. But if a party has taken advantage of the invalid part of the award he is estopped from setting up that this clause of the award is invalid. 1935 Rang. 34.

APPEAL.—No appeal lies against an order under the Arbitration Act as the orders are neither decrees nor appealable orders under sections 104 and 146 of the C. P. Code. There can be only a revision under section 115 of the C. P. Code. 10 I.C. 211; 19 I.C. 405 (Cal.). The proceedings for enforcement of an award under section 15, Arbitration Act, are governed by section 47, C. P. Code, and an appeal is competent from an order rejecting such application. The fact that an objection was raised that the award was given without jurisdiction does not preclude the applicability of section 47. 151 I.C. 881=1934 Lah. 49=35 P.L.R. 635.

SEC. 18.—"In following the C. P. Code, section 17 seeks to amend the existing law in places where the 1899 Act is in force in another manner. At present under that Act, an award is immediately enforceable as a decree, and one High Court has held that it may be executed under section 15 (1) of that Act, even though the notice of filing under section 11 (2) has not been given. This position is at variance both with the Code, and with the English Law and it is now proposed to make the decree only after upon the award, or that speedy execution of the award is just and necessary, the Court may pass such interim orders as it deems necessary.

(2) Any person against whom such interim orders have been passed may show cause against such orders, and the Court, after hearing the parties, may pass such further orders as it deems necessary and just.

19. Where an award has become void under sub-section (3) of section 16

Power to supersede arbitration when award becomes void or is set aside.

or has been set aside, the Court may by order supersede the reference and shall thereupon order that the arbitration agreement shall cease to have effect with respect to the difference referred.

CHAPTER III.

ARBITRATION WITH INTERVENTION OF A COURT WHERE THERE IS NO SUIT PENDING.

20. (1) Where any persons have entered into an arbitration agreement

Application to file in Court arbitration agreement.

before the institution of any suit with respect to the subject-matter of the agreement or any part of it, and where a difference has arisen to which the agreement applies, they or any of them, instead of proceeding under Chapter II, may apply to a Court having jurisdiction in the matter to which the agreement relates, that the agreement be filed in Court.

NOTES.

the time for challenging the award has expired or when such a challenge if made has been rejected. This section taken from the English rules of Court, is a corollary to section 17 in the sense that it enables the Court to counter in the interval any action designed to defeat the subsequent execution of the decree." (Statement of Objects and Reasons.)

SEC. 19.—Provides that where an award becomes void or is set aside, the Court may supersede the reference and order that the agreement shall cease to have effect with respect to the particular difference referred. The clause generalize the provisions of paragraph 15 (2) of the Second Schedule to the C. P. Code. (See notes under sections 16 and 17, supra.)

SEC. 20.—Is based upon paragraph 17 of the Second Schedule to the C. P. Code. It allows the parties to an arbitration agreement or any of them to initiate the reference proceedings with the assistance of the Court. (Statement of Objects and Reasons.)

CHANGES BY THE SELECT COMMITTEE.—The change made in sub-clause (5) applies such of the other provisions of the Act, as may be applicable to the arbitration proceedings under this chapter and not merely the provisions of Chapter II. (Rep. of Sel. Com.).

CASES UNDER OLD ACT, C. P. CODE, SCH. II: SCOPE OF SECTION.—See 137 I.C. 198 = 1932 A.L.J. 331. The use of the word "may" in the rule shows that the provisions of the section are permissive and not mandatory. 8 O.W.N. 71. An application under section 20 asking the Court to file an agreement to refer a dispute to arbitration does not amount to a suit within the meaning of section 80 of the Code. 13 L. 672. Section 20 does not apply where there is a pending suit which affects the subject-matter of the reference to arbitration. 30 C. 218 (226); 115 P. R. 1912=15 I.C. 140. See also 17 P.R. 1911=9 I.C. 195; 40 I.C. 38=4 O.L.J. 131; 54 B. 197=31 Bom.L.R. 1403=1930 B. 98. Where there is no matter of difference between parties there can be no reference. 30 C. 831; 21 B. 335 (342); 2 A.L.J. 493; 11 C.W.N. 1152. No reference in anticipation of future differences. 12 I.C. 639=5 S.L.R. 92. Where an agreement relates to the division by metes and bounds of revenue-paying land wherein there is also a dispute between parties as to title, the lands concerned can be validly made the subject-matter of an award and a decree. 122 I.C. 724.

APPLICABILITY OF SECTION.—Where a contract of insurance between the parties is finally accepted in a presidency-town and a clause in the contract provides for a reference to arbitration in case of a dispute arising as to any right or liability of either party, the provisions of the Indian Arbitration Act would be applicable. 1937 A.L.J. 98=1937 A. 208. Where an award is made by arbitrators under the Arbitration Act, under an agreement contained in a contract between the parties, an application to file such an award cannot be made. An agreement of that kind falls under section 20, and the proper procedure is to apply to the Court for enforcing that agreement, and the Court is then to make an order of reference. 38 Bom.L.R. 607=1936 B. 401.

ESSENTIALS OF A VALID AGREEMENT TO REFER.—Agreement should be in writing. It is not necessary that it should be in form of written contract signed by parties so as to be an instrument or document. But it is necessary that there should be some writing which should embody the whole of the agreement. 1935 A.L.J. 998=1935 A. 886. The agreement to refer must clearly define the powers of the arbitrators. 16 C. 482; 11 C. 232. Section 20 does not require that arbitrators should necessarily be named, in the agreement. 35 P.R. 1911=9 I.C. 655. Arbitrators who are left for future election cannot be said to be "named" in the agreement. 20 B. 232 (236). The application need not be made by the parties in person or by their respective pleaders specially authorized in writing in this behalf. See 24 C. 459. The application is not a suit though it has to be registered as a suit. 61 I.C. 390=6 P.L.J. 287.

(2) The application shall be in writing and shall be numbered and registered as a suit between one or more of the parties interested or claiming to be interested as plaintiff or plaintiffs and the remainder as defendant or defendants, if the application has been presented by all the parties, or, if otherwise, between the applicant as plaintiff and the other parties as defendants.

NOTES.

ALL THE PARTIES INTERESTED.—The parties who are materially interested in the suit should join in the application. 10 W.R. 171; 17 C. 37; 4 C.L.R. 65; 24 A. 229. An award on a reference not agreed to by all the parties interested is invalid in law. 9 C.W.N. 873. See also 17 M.L.J. 394. But see 33 C. 899 and 11 C.W.N. 1152. The agreement for reference must be executed by all the interested parties. 38 I.C. 577=9 Bur.L.T. 253. In a suit for winding up a partnership, a petition to refer the suit to arbitration must meet with the consent of all the parties. 26 M. 47; 22 A. 135. The father of a joint Hindu family in his capacity of managing member can refer to arbitration the partition of joint family property. 16 A. 231. Mother though de facto guardian of Muhammadan minors is not competent to agree to reference to arbitration affecting minor's property. 47 C. 713=26 C.W.N. 246. The guardian mother of minor has authority to agree to refer the disputes that have arisen inside the family to the decision of arbitrators under para. 17 (1), if she finds that it is for the benefit of the minor. A.I.R. 1939 Cal. 557. Where one of two appointed guardians consents to the agreement to refer to arbitration subsequently but not at the time of agreement, the agreement is not valid. 47 C. 713=57 I.C. 945.

REFERENCE TO ARBITRATION AFTER SUIT—PROCEDURE. See 45 B. 245=59 I.C. 53=22 Bom.L.R. 1048. If parties to a pending suit agree to refer the matter to arbitration and to withdraw the suit then pending, and the suit is subsequently withdrawn in pursuance of such agreement, the agreement can be filed under this section. 152 I.C. 614=1935 L. 59. See also 18 Lah. 433=1937 Lah. 843.

The words "sufficient cause" occurring in para. 17 (4) of Sch. II, C. P. Code, cover all the grounds of justice, equity and good conscience on which a Court thinks an agreement should not be ordered to be filed. If the circumstances show that even if the arbitrators be not partial to the plaintiff, they cannot command the confidence of the defendant, it would be wholly inequitable to compel the defendant to submit himself to their arbitration, and there is, therefore, sufficient cause for the Court to refuse to order the agreement to refer to arbitration to be filed. 170 I.C. 490=1937 O.W.N. 792=A.I.R. 1937 O. 437. Where the arbitrator is fully aware of the terms of the order of reference, accepts the office of the arbitrator and actually decides the controversy between the parties by giving an award, the mere fact that the order of reference was not formally communicated to him is a mere trifling irregularity, and would not vitiate the arbitration. 167 I.C. 171=1937 A.L.J. 29=1937 A. 141 (F.B.). So also where the order of reference itself does not fix the time within which the award should be filed, but the Court subsequently fixes a time-limit and calls upon the arbitrator to file an award within that time and the award is filed. (Ibid.) Unless there has been such a delay as to lead to the inference that the parties had abandoned the reference to arbitration, anything short of that inference cannot cut down the statutory period of limitation and the right to have the agreement of reference filed in Court. 1933 L. 18. See also 1933 R. 331. Where the conduct of the parties, coupled with the long and unexplained delay of six years amounted to a cancellation of the agreement to refer their disputes to arbitration the agreement could not be filed. 54 I.C. 126. The Court has no discretion to refuse to make the reference to the arbitrators nominated by the parties. 61 I.C. 390=6 P.L.J. 287. Court has no jurisdiction to make the order of reference except to all the specified arbitrators. An agreement to refer becomes void if any one of the arbitrators die or refuse to act. 42 I.C. 911 (1)=11 Bur.L.T. 160; 44 I.C. 866=71 P.R. 1918. See also 1933 L. 18; 1933 R. 331. But see 40 I.C. 38=4 O.L.J. 131. (Court can substitute another in his place see section 9, supra). Court will refuse to file an agreement in case the arbitrators named in it decline to act. 12 Beng.L.R. App. 13. See also 19 Pat. 927. But where there is a distinct provision by which a party is authorised to appoint another in the place of the one refusing to act, the agreement to refer would still hold good. 155 P.R. 1919=51 I.C. 636. The effect of the refusal to act of the sole arbitrator named by the parties on the agreement to refer to arbitration is a question of intention in each case, depending on whether the dominant intention of the parties was that the matter should be referred to arbitration, the personnel of the arbitrator being merely a subsidiary question or whether the essence of the agreement was to refer the matter to the arbitration of a particular person and him alone. The fact that the arbitrator is named in the same or a subsequent agreement is by no means conclusive. 1933 L. 18. Court cannot give a direction that in case of difference of opinion, the opinion of the majority must prevail. 1926 M. 1183=51 M.L.J. 440. Where the order of reference itself does not fix the time within which the award should be filed, but the Court subsequently fixes a time limit and calls upon the arbitrator to file an award within that time and the award is filed, the irregularity, if any, would not affect the validity of the award. 167 I.C. 171=1937 A.L.J. 29=A.I.R. 1937 All. 141 (F.B.). Where the arbitrator is fully aware of the terms of the arbitrator and actually decides the controversy between the parties by giving an award, the mere fact that the order of reference was not formally communicated to him is a mere trifling irregularity and would not vitiate the arbitration. 1937 A.L.J. 27=1937 All. 141. Court acts with material irregularity if it does not strictly comply with the terms of the agreement to refer to arbitration. 35 P.R. 1911=9 I.C. 655. On this sub-clause (4), see also 122 I.C. 237=3 P. 443.

REVOCATION OF AGREEMENT.—A party to a reference can only revoke his submission on good grounds. 17 C. 200. See also 20 A. 145; 27 M. at 115. The cause for revoking submission should be urged when a notice is issued under section 20 and need not be deferred till the award is completed. 1933 Sind 68. Consent to reference being obtained by misrepresentation is ground for revocation. 50 I.C. 637. So also relationship of arbitrator to one of the parties. 1933 Sind 68. A reference once made cannot be arbitrarily revoked. 29 A. 49; 20 A. 145; 27 M. at 115. See also 39 I.C. 349=12 P.R. 1917. * As to what is good cause for revocation, see 10 B. 381; 17 C. 200; 29 C. 278. If one party to a submission has been guilty of such laches as to entitle the other party to repudiate the submission, the latter will not be deprived of his right to repudiate merely owing to the absence of formal legal notice of revocation. 134 I.C. 733=33 Bom.L.R. 1022=1931 B. 529. Parties prosecuting case before arbitrators cannot afterwards challenge the award on ground of jurisdiction. 42 A. 661=18 A.L.J. 644. After reference is made the suit cannot be withdrawn. 9 A. 168. A Judge can act as arbitrator by consent of the parties. 26 M. 76; 23 B. 752. When he so acts, no appeal will lie from his decree. 10 C.W.N. 835; 4 A.L.J. 89.

UMPIRE.—As to the power of Court to appoint an umpire, see 8 A. 64. As to validity of appointment of umpire as sole arbitrator by Court, see 134 I.C. 733=33 Bom.L.R. 1022=1931 B. 529 (2). See also section 8, supra.

C. C. M.—14

APPEAL.—A decision passed under this section is a decree and an appeal lies therefrom. 22 M. 229. An order refusing to file an agreement is not appealable. 5 A. 333 (F.B.). But see 9 M.L.J. 10. Where an agreement to refer to arbitration was filed but, on the arbitrators failing to act, Court revoked the order of reference and dismissed the suit, held, the order of revocation was not appealable. 48 A. 27=23 A.L.J. 891. No appeal lies from a decree passed on an award arrived at under para. 17 except in so far as it is at variance with the award. 160 I.C. 1075=1936 L. 617.

PLEADER'S FEE IN OUDH.—Proceedings before an arbitrator and proceedings subsequent to the award are all proceedings in the matter of an application made by a party and according to R. 289 (6) of the Oudh Civil Rules only one-fourth of the fee payable to pleaders in the case of suits decided on merits on contest can be taxed. 7 O.W. N. 97=1930 O. 89.

CASES UNDER OLD ACT, C. P. CODE, SCH. II, PARA. 20.—The arbitrators need not be made parties to an application under this para. 14 P. 855. This section was devised for the purpose of enabling any Court having jurisdiction, where the subject-matter of the award lies within more than one jurisdiction, to direct the award to be filed. 37 B. 442=15 Bom.L.R. 362. In order that a Court may order an award relating to immovable property to be filed, it is necessary that Court must have jurisdiction over the whole of the subject-matter of the award. And it is not open to it to pass a decree in terms of a portion only of the award. (55 M. 689, Rel.). 55 A. 542=143 I.C. 571=1933 A.L.J. 741=1933 A. 380. There is no law preventing an applicant to file an award made without the intervention of the Court, from objecting to a portion of the award. At the same time there is no provision entitling an applicant to ask the Court to file a part of the award. 38 P.L.R. 86=164 I.C. 543=1936 L. 682. Whether it is open to a Court to separate a portion of the award from the rest of it and proceed to pass a decree only in respect of a part? 16 P. 34=17 P.L.T. 835=1937 P. 214. But see 39 Bom.L.R. 159; 9 R. 480 (485)=1931 R. 252 (F.B.) (noted infra, under heading 'jurisdiction'). A private award partitioning the joint property by metes and bounds including agricultural land cannot be filed in Court as part of the award relates to the partition of agricultural land, over which the Civil Courts have no jurisdiction under section 158 (2) (xvii) of the Punjab Land Revenue Act. (22 I.C. 381, Foll.) 143 I.C. 143 (1)=34 P.L.R. 454=1933 L. 732 (2). See also 17 R.D. 36=14 L.R. (Rev.) 35. Para. 20, C. P. All that is necessary is that the Court must be satisfied that the matter had been referred to arbitration, that an award had been made thereon and that there was no ground or proof which would vitiate the award. 133 I.C. 531=1931 A. 751. See also 33 P.L.R. 934. An award after dealing with certain ornaments which were ordered to be distributed among the parties stated: "or if any one desires to purchase them the market price of all these ornaments should be assessed and deducting the amount of his own share distribute the balance equally among the other sharers." So also in respect of a house it was provided that it should be sold to one of the sharers, and that he should pay the other sharers their shares in the sale price. Held, that the provisions in the award could not be held to be bad for indefiniteness and that the award was not invalid on that account. The most that could be said was that the award was only declaratory in that respect but that was no reason for refusing to file it. 39 Bom.L.R. 159=I.L.R. 1937 Bom. 338. Where in an application to file an award, a prayer is added that a portion of the award is invalid and therefore in the final decree that may be passed on the award that portion should not be included, the application is competent as the main prayer to file the award is in accordance with law, and the Court could either ignore the subsequent illegal prayer or allow the applicant to amend his application by deleting such prayer. 38 P.L.R. 86=1936 L. 682. The powers of Court in a proceeding under this rule are exhausted as soon as it decides either to file the award or refuses to file it. 47 I.C. 960=5 O.L.J. 471. The provisions of this section are not superseded by section 47 of the Dekhan Agriculturists' Relief Acts. 8 B. 20. There is no provision in the Land Revenue Act, or in the C. P. Code, which would give a Court hearing cases under the Land Revenue Act, jurisdiction to entertain an application under this section. 14 L.R. 35 (Rev.)=17 R.D. 36. The word "matter" is not wider than the expression "matter in difference" in section 21. 12 I.C. 639=5 S.L.R. 92. Where a dispute in regard to money obtained by bribes taken dishonestly from the public is referred to an arbitrator and an award is made, the award cannot be filed in Court nor can a decree be passed thereon. 149 I.C. 396=1934 A.L.J. 1256=1934 A. 493.

SETTING ASIDE EX PARTE PROCEEDINGS.—Where in an application to file an award objections to the award were filed but the application was adjourned twice, the Court being busy with other work, and on the second adjourned date the objector was absent and ex parte proceedings were taken against him and the case was postponed to another date, and no replication was filed by the applicant up to that date, and the objector appeared on that date and asked for the setting aside of the ex parte proceedings, held, that the objector having appeared before any final order was passed against him, except an order to proceed ex parte against him, he was entitled to the proceedings being set aside on an application to that effect being made. 40 P.L.R. 233=1938 Lah. 486.

AWARD.—An award made out of Court becomes effective from the date when it is made and not from the date when Court orders it to be filed in Court. 166 I.C. 947=1937 Sind 7. A document although headed an award and signed by the arbitrators, which merely recommends a solution of the questions referred, will not be treated as an award, 11 C. 356. A settlement recorded by a person asked to act as mediator and agreed on by the parties, is not an award and if at all it is operative it is so only as a contract as between those who have signed it. 53 I.C. 283 (M.); 48 P. L.R. 1915=28 I.C. 298. Where in a partition through arbitrators appointed without the intervention of Court the procedure of the arbitrators was in accordance with the express wishes of the parties and this was strongly corroborated by the fact that the parties attested the award, even though some of the property was not partitioned, it cannot be said that the award was incomplete. 150 I.C. 288 (2)=1934 L. 305 (1). When an award has been lost, a Court can take secondary evidence of its provisions and pass a decree. 15 M. 99. See also 1 L. 45=55 I.C. 845. An award which is partly within and partly exceeds the terms of the submission to arbitration cannot be enforced. 3 M. 68. An award may be delivered bit by bit where the agreement to refer provides for it. 4 C.L.R. 92. See 22 A. 224. A suit for a declaration that an award was fraudulently passed does not lie. 20 M. 89. The rejection of an application to have an award filed in Court is no bar to a regular suit to enforce the rights created by the award. 55 M. 689=139 I.C. 877=62 M.L.J. 550. If a party to an arbitration proceeding fails to take an objection to the absence of one out of several arbitrators, he will be deemed to have waived his right to take objection to the whole of the irregularity caused thereby and the award must be filed. 67 I.C. 866=1922 C. 181 (1). not be questioned in execution proceedings when the objection is not taken in the award proceedings or in any appeal arising therefrom. 1936 L. 63. Where a dispute between a Company and two others was referred to arbitration and a decree was based on the basis of the award but an objection was taken in execution on the ground that the parties had not agreed to be bound by the procedure under the Arbitration Act, held, (1) that the decree was not on the face of it a nullity; (2) that in any case the objection was not one which could be entertained by the executing Court. 140 I.C. 180=1933 L. 46. A plaintiff who has not carried out what he was directed to perform under the award cannot sue to enforce that part of the award which is favourable to him. 22 C.W.N. 66=27 C.L.J. 486. On a private reference to arbitration an award which is passed by the arbitrators and which does not partition agricultural land but only settles the shares of the parties can be validly filed in the Civil Court. 81 P.W.R. 1918=45 I.C. 166. See also 1933 Lah. 732=34 P.L.R. 454; 17 R. An application to file an award under this para. is a suit within the meaning of section 16 of the Provincial Small Cause Courts Act. 158 I.C. 1102=1935 S. 208. It is not within the jurisdiction of a Small Cause Court to file an award which, though it directs payment of money within the limits of its pecuniary jurisdiction, goes on to declare the dissolution of marriage between the parties. See section 40, infra. A Civil Court can accept the award passed on reference to arbitration by parties in a dispute as to the demarcation of boundaries under section 41, U. P. Land Revenue Act, 1901. 50 I.C. 193=6 O.L.J. 84. The expression "subject-matter of the award" means the whole matter dealt with and decreed by the award and not any particular portion. 51 I.C. 53=10 L.W. 57; 12 I.C. 639. A suit lies on an award even though it has not been filed in Court under section 20 within six months as required by Art. 178 of the Limitation Act. 2 L.W. 230=29 I.C. 49; 42 I.C. 116=4 O.L.J. 487; 27 I.C. 31=7 Bur.L.T. 279. Where an award has been made, it is not compulsory under para. 20 of Sch. II, C. P. Code, to refer it to a Court for making it a rule of the Court: it is optional to do so. It can be used as an instrument of title. 1940 R.D. 20=1940 A. W.R. (B.R.) 16. Where an award is not acted upon by parties, it does not bar a suit regarding the original rights of the parties. 29 Bom.L.R. 301=101 I.C. 398=1927 B.

237. Arbitrators need not even give reasons for their decision and are not even bound to record anything of the proceedings. They may even ignore any position advanced by the parties, as an award is not a judicial decision. 17 I.C. 33=1912 M.W.N. 1076 (23 M.L.J. 290; 38 C. 143, Ref.). Nor are they bound to decide a point if the parties show by their conduct that they did not want a formal decision thereon. 17 I.C. 33=1912 M.W.N. 1076. But they are bound to decide all matters in dispute in their award and their failure to do so cannot be condoned because the Court does not sustain a contention not dealt with by them. 17 I.C. 33=1912 M.W.N. 1076. Where arbitrators were appointed to partition certain property but they did not divide the debts outstanding but directed one party to pay the other a lump sum as the cash equivalent of his share, held, that the arbitrators had travelled outside the provisions of the submission and that the award could not be filed. (27 A. 526, Ref.) 137 I.C. 198=1932 A.L.J. 331=1932 A. 348. An award partitioning joint family property, made on reference by only some members of the joint family is a valid award which can be filed under this para. and is binding on those members who actually join the reference and can be enforced against them. The mere fact that some members of the joint family do not join, does not make the award invalid. The award may or may not be set aside at the instance of third person but that it is not a matter which enters into consideration in proceedings under section 20. 1936 Pesh. 96. A person who is a stranger to the submission to reference and under no obligation to abide by the award could not avail himself of it and could not be said to be a person interested in the award. 69 I.C. 714=26 O.C. 1. A Court is competent to pass a decree on an award as modified by a lawful compromise filed by the parties and that from a decree so passed no appeal lies except in so far as the decree is in excess of or not in accordance with the award so modified. 25 O.C. 213=68 I.C. 209 (31 C. 516; 45 B. 245; 37 B. 693; 2 L. 114; 27 A. 526; 29 M. 303; 4 Pat.L.J. 394; 30 P.R. 1914; 21 C.L.J. 248, Ref.). An award made in arbitration cannot be remitted to the arbitrators without the intervention of the Court. 7 Bur.L.T. 287=24 I.C. 132. Where a party agreed to be bound by the decision of a Committee and although the Committee had no power to delegate its power of disposal to a new tribunal, it left the matter to some of its members; held, that the award of the members to whom the matter was delegated was not binding on the party. 133 I.C. 531=1931 A. 751.

(3) On such application being made, the Court shall direct notice thereof to be given to all parties to the agreement other than the applicants, requiring them to show cause within the time specified in the notice why the agreement should not be filed.

FILING AWARD—REPRESENTATIVE ACTION—FORM OF NOTICE.—Where an application has been made for filing an award notice must be given to the parties to the arbitration other than the applicant. In the case of a representative action it is not necessary to give separate notices under C. P. Code. Order 1, rule 8 and under section 20 of this Act. 149 I.C. 324=35 Bom.L.R. 1101=1934 B. 6.

JURISDICTION.—The words 'Court having jurisdiction over the subject-matter of the award' occurring in para. 20 of the second schedule to the C. P. Code, do not mean that the Court must have jurisdiction over the whole of the subject-matter of the award. The question of the existence or absence of jurisdiction should be decided in accordance with the general provisions in the body of the C. P. Code. The result would be, that if a suit to enforce the award would lie then an application for the award to be filed will also lie. A liberal construction could be given to the provisions in the second schedule of the Code for filing an award. Where the award referred to properties both within and without British India, it was held that the Court, to the extent to which it would in virtue of section 17, C. P. Code, have jurisdiction, had power to file the award and to give judgment accordingly. I.L.R. 1940 Nag. 225=1940 N.L.J. 71=A.I.R. 1940 Nag. 191. Per Page, C.J., and Mya Bu, J., in the order of reference.—Where a part of an award made in an arbitration without the intervention of Court deals with property outside the jurisdiction of the Court which is requested to file it, if that part is separable without disturbing the basis and equilibrium of the award as a whole, the Court may delete that part of it and order the rest to be filed. Merely because the award deals with some matters which are not within the jurisdiction, it does not follow that the award cannot be filed. 39 Bom.L.R. 159; 9 R. 480=1931 R. 252 (F.B.). See also 158 I.C. 60=1935 Sind 184; 1936 L. 794; 55 M. 689=62 M.L.J. 550. See also 1938 Sind 59. Award allotting business to one partner and directing others to pay dues and execute release deeds to the former in fixed time—Provision for payment of fixed amount of damages on default—Legality—Enforceability of award—Power of Court to modify. See 1940 M.W.N. 879. If parties to an agreement to refer a dispute to arbitration leave a contingency unprovided for, the Court will not be proceeding consistently with the agreement if it makes a provision for such contingency. The lacuna, if any, is to be filled by parties themselves, and not by the Court.

Where therefore parties agree to refer their dispute to arbitrators nominated by each party but the agreement does not make any provision for the nomination of an arbitrator in case any arbitrator already nominated refuses to act, and one of the nominated arbitrators refuses to act, the Court has no power to make the necessary appointment so as to make the agreement operative and effectual. A.I.R. 1938 Lah. 859. The question whether the charge over immovable property was or was not the subject-matter of the reference is not material in considering whether the Court has jurisdiction to entertain an application under this section. If the subject-matter of the award refers to a charge on immovable property outside the jurisdiction of a Court to which an application is made under this para., it prima facie ousts the jurisdiction of that Court in view of the provisions of C. P. Code, section 16. (51 C. 361 (P.C.), Rel. on; 30 M. 478, Expl. and Dist.) 25 S.L.R. 204. On the question of jurisdiction, see 51 I.C. 53=10 L.W. 57; also 136 I.C. 445=13 Pat.L.T. 169. (Agreement to refer under section 152, Companies Act). The refusal to refer to arbitration on the part of the other party is a fundamental part of the cause of action in an application under section 20 to have the agreement filed in Court. So where such refusal took place in Lahore, Courts in Lahore have jurisdiction to entertain the application, though the proposed arbitrator might have resided elsewhere and the cause of action relating to other reliefs arose elsewhere. 1933 L. 18. Jurisdiction—Agreement for reference—Application for filing—Refusal by some arbitrators to act—Power of Court to order agreement to be filed. See 11 O.W.N. 1188; 11 O.W.N. 12=1934 Oudh 67. An agreement for reference to arbitration cannot be filed in a Civil Court under para. 17, Sch. II, C. P. Code, if some of the matters included therein are within the jurisdiction of the Revenue Court only and there are actually suits pending in such Court with respect to some of them. 40 P.L.R. 966.

RES-JUDICATA.—The contention that a decree passed not in a suit but in proceedings under Sch. II, C. P. Code, does not operate as res judicata, has no force. The decree gives effect to the award and must be held to be as binding on the parties as any other decree passed in a suit whether with or without consent. 42 P.L.R. 77=A.I.R. 1940 Lah. 107.

"PERSON INTERESTED IN AWARD".—The arbitrator is not "a person interested in the award" within the meaning of this section. Therefore an application presented by him for filing the award cannot be treated as one under section 20. 1935 L. 134.

NOTES.

STAMP.—In proceedings under section 20 an unstamped award may be admitted in evidence and filed in Court after paying the penalty under the Stamp Act. 66 P. R. 1913=20 I.C. 491. (12 M. 331, Dist..)

COURT-FEE.—This is the same as that for an application. 10 C. 11. An order directing an award passed in an arbitration out of Court to be filed is neither a decree nor an order having the force of a decree. An appeal therefore need only be stamped with a Court-fee of Rs. 2 under Art. 11, Sch. II of the Court-Fees Act. It need not be stamped ad valorem on the value of the appeal. 25 A.L.J. 741; 9 L. 380, Foll.; 33 C. 11, Dist.) 6 Luck. 703=139 I.C. 622=9 O.W.N. 800. See also 5 All. 333.

REGISTRATION.—An award affecting immovable property which by law requires registration cannot be filed unless registered. See I.L.R. 1939 Nag. 607=1939 N.L.J. 375=1939 Nag. 233 (F.B.); 1940 Lah. 107; 1935 O.W.N. 1141; 1932 All. 154; 1938 All. 88; 1937 Cal. 201.

LIMITATION.—Six months from date of award which is the time when it is given to the parties. 9 C. 575. Applicant cannot claim the benefit of section 6 of the Limitation Act. 1 R. 256=76 I.C. 493=1923 R. 226. Under special circumstances section 5 and section 14 of the Limitation Act may be applied. 38 A. 85=31 I.C. 899=13 A.L.J. 1115. Application under this section is not the only remedy open to a person in whose favour award is made. He can file regular suit, and Art. 178, Limitation Act, will not apply. 1936 L. 134. Where in an application for filing an award one of the party respondents in whose favour also the award had been made applied to the Court to be transposed as applicant but it appeared that the period of limitation for his filing an application had already expired, held, that the Court could transpose the party and that the mere transfer did not amount to a fresh application so as to create a bar of limitation against him. 133 I.C. 410=1931 A.L.J. 863=1931 A. 725.

APPEAL.—The order refusing to file an award is a decree from which an appeal lies. 29 C. 167 (P.C.); 27 M. 255 (F.B.); 29 M. 303. But see 31 C. 757 (F.B.). See also 11 C.W.N. 220. Reference to arbitration out of Court pending suit—Application to make award rule of Court—Objection to procedure on appeal—Sustainability. 142 I.C. 195=34 P.L.R. 340=1933 L. 746.

REVISION.—An order of refusal is subject to revision. 8 Bom.L.R. 570.

WITHDRAWAL.—An application under this section can be withdrawn. 31 C. 516; 4 C. L.J. 162. See also 18 C. 414; 28 A. 621; 29 B. 621 (F.B.); 16 M.L.J. 474; 29 M. 303. The law prohibits proceedings either under para. 17 or para. 20 only in cases where a suit is pending with regard to the same subject-matter at the time of the presentation of application and not otherwise. Where therefore in a pending suit, the parties referred the matter in dispute to arbitration out of Court, an award was passed and after the suit was allowed to be withdrawn with the consent of the parties, one of them applied under para. 20 to have the award made a rule of Court, there being no suit pending at the time the application is made, Court has jurisdiction to admit the application and pass a decree in accordance therewith. (51 B. 908, Foll.; 54 B. 197, Diss. from.) 141 I.C. 83=1933 Pesh. 18. As to relative applicability of paras. 17 and 20, see supra, 38 Bom.L.R. 607=1936 B. 401 (noted under para. 17 under heading 'applicability of para.'). Section does not apply where the matters referred to arbitration are already the subject-matter of a suit between the parties to the reference. 45 B. 245=22 Bom.L.R. 1048. There is no distinction between an award which deals solely with disputes which are the subject-matter of a suit and that which inter alia deals with disputes which are not the subject-matter of a suit except in the case of an award in which the decision in respect of such disputes which are not the subject-matter of the suit is separable from that which deals with the matters which are in the suit. If the award could be separated, that part of the award which deals with extraneous matters may be enforced as a decree. 158 I.C. 60=1935 S. 184. The fact that the agreement of reference was written after the arbitrator had looked into the bahis of the plaintiff is no ground for the Court to refuse to file the award and pass a decree thereon. 37 P.L.R. 491. Where the arbitrators deliver a unanimous oral award, but on its being reduced to writing subsequently, one of the arbitrators resiles and refuses to sign the award, it is nevertheless competent to the Court to give effect to the award. The oral award is complete without the writing and the refusal on the part of one of the arbitrators to sign it when reduced to writing does not make it invalid. 44 L.W. 32=1936 M. 713=71 M.L.J. 342. Award accepted and signed by parties—Enforcement as compromise. See 31 P.L.R. 225. An award made without the intervention of the Court, which is partly invalid, can be made a rule of the Court if the invalid portion is separable from the valid portion. If it is so separable, then there is no objection to making the award a rule of the Court. If it is not so separable, then as the Court has no power to remit the award to arbitrators appointed without its intervention or to correct the award itself, the award cannot be made a rule of the Court. Where by the terms of the reference the arbitrators are empowered to decide what is the property belonging to the parties jointly, the mere fact that they have wrongly decided that certain property is not joint and in addition have gone further and held it to belong to a third party does not make the award invalid, for the portion which assigns title in the property to a third party can easily be separated from the rest of the award, which divides the property after finding what is the joint property of the parties. 188 I.C. 477=A.I.R. 1940 Lah. 24. Where disputes between the parties are referred by agreement to arbitration and the arbitrator files the award in Court and no order is made for remitting the award to the consideration of the arbitrator nor is the award set aside, the award remains filed in Court and it is enforceable as if it were a decree of the Court. The Arbitration Act does not contain any provision for making a decree on an award such as is contained in section 20, and if such a decree is made, it is one without jurisdiction and therefore a nullity. But a party to the arbitration is however entitled under the Act to enforce the arbitrator's award through the Court in exactly the same way as if it was a decree. 60 I.A. 71=60 C. 670=64 M.L.J. 341 (P.C.). Section does not lay down any particular form of order. All it states is that the Court shall order the award to be filed and shall proceed to pronounce judgment according to the award. All that is necessary is that the mandatory direction which constitutes the order must be present somewhere. Where the Judge, instead of passing a separate order with respect to the filing of the award, and then a judgment in terms of the award followed by a decree, combined the order for filing the award and judgment into one; held, that the procedure was not irregular. At any rate, even if it was an irregularity, it did not mislead either of the parties and hence would be curable under section 99. 1936 N. 246. The arbitrators are Judges of law as well as Judges of fact, and an error in law or error in fact or in arithmetic cannot vitiate an award, unless the error or mistake is so palpable and gross as would afford strong evidence of misconduct. I.L.R. (1936) N. 44=1936 N. 197. A Court to which an application is made to file an award made by arbitrators should not arrogate to itself the functions of a Court of appeal from the arbitrators. Before it can interfere with the award, a great deal more than mere error on the part of the arbitrators has to be shown. (Ibid.) See also 7 O.W.N. 1095=1931 O. 6 (5 O.W.N. 1001, Foll.; 23 A. 383, Dist.) Court can determine the genuineness or validity of the award filed. 20 M. 89. A Court must, before enforcing award, satisfy itself that it is enforceable in the same way as a decree would be enforceable if it were a decree. 42 A. 525=18 A.L.J. 652. See also 12 I.C. 639=5 S.L.R. 92. An award of three arbitrators made without final discussion with the fourth arbitrator and in his absence and to which he does not agree is not an award by a majority of four arbitrators. The three arbitrators must be regarded as having been guilty of misconduct in drawing up the final award without consulting the fourth one at all and the award is consequently vitiated. 7 R. 715=121 I.C. 801=

A direction in the award to the parties to modify the decree duly passed by Courts of law does not amount to an ousting of the jurisdiction of the Court. The award is an adjustment of decrees under order 21, rule 2. 48 A. 475=24 A.L.J. 480=95 I.C. 416=1926 A. 501. In the absence of a contrary provision, parties, agreeing to settle their differences by the judgment of a body made up of an uneven number of persons, are presumed to imply that they would accept the decision of the majority. 42 B. 669=19 Bom.L.R. 618. Generally a person who is not a party to or properly represented in any proceedings should not be bound by those proceedings. 26 C.W.N. 804=1922 C. 226. But proceedings before arbitrators are not intended to be carried on according to the rules of procedure contained in the C. P. Code. It will suffice if there is a substantial representation of the different interests before the arbitrators. (Ibid.) If there has been a substantial representation of the interests of the legal representatives by the other parties on the record and if the enquiry is full and fair, the award will be binding and a decree could be passed thereon. 26 C.W.N. 804=1922 C. 226. authority and his award is void. (Ibid.) Submission to an arbitration does not operate as a waiver of an extrinsic objection that the award is illegal because based on an illegal act or subject-matter. 19 C.W.N. 948=21 C.L.J. 273. Under section 20, a Court can direct a private award to be filed if the ground mentioned in sections 16 and 30 are not established. If such grounds are established the Court must refuse to file the award. 21 C.L.J. 248=19 I.C. 941. A Court has no power to direct the filing of an award which is open to attack in part. 15 C.L.J. 110; 13 I.C. 118=16 C.W.N. 256. It is permissible to separate such portion of the award as goes beyond the powers of the arbitrator, and to maintain the remainder if good. 53 I.C. 992. Where award related both to movable and immovable properties and the portion relating to the latter was invalid for want of registration, it is open to the Court to reject that portion in the application and grant with reference to the movables. 158 I.C. 812=1935 O.W.N. 1141. But see 135 I.C. 230=1931 A.L.J. 1087=1932 A. 154. See also 1939 N.L.J. 375=1939 Nag. 233 (F.B.); 1938 All. 88; 42 P.L.R. 77; 1937 Cal. 201; 1940 Lah. 107. Although an award is not admissible in evidence for want of proper stamp and registration, a decree based on the award is admissible in evidence. If the decree does not reproduce the terms of the award but only makes a reference to the award, a copy of the award is admissible in evidence to understand the terms of the decree. 42 P.L.R. 77=A.I.R. 1940 Lah. 107. Award made after long delay and under suspicious circumstances—Right of parties to call upon arbitrator to decide within time. 52 I.C. 847=71 P.R. 1919. A private award which decides matters not referred to arbitration cannot be filed and no decree can be passed thereon though such matters are separable from the rest of the award. 30 P.R. 1914=23 I.C. 422. Compromise during suit—Court's duty to inquire if parties are bound by compromise set up by one of them. 63 P.L.R. 1912=15 I.C. 478. The parties to an arbitration filed the award in Court for a decree to be passed on it. One of the parties filed a solenamah in the Court and prayed that a compromise decree should be passed. By the solenamah one party had given up his rights under the award and had made amicable arrangement of all disputes. The Court refused to pass a compromise decree. Held, that the Court rightly refused to pass such a compromise decree in proceedings under Sch. II. 1937 C. 201=171 I.C. 507. On an application for the filing of an award the only form which such a decree should take was an order that an award should be filed, and as the parties did not unite in praying that the application should be dismissed it was the duty of the Judge to proceed to consider whether the award which had been submitted should be filed. The Court therefore in its order refusing to pass a decree in terms of the compromise and in the subsequent order for filing the award did not act without jurisdiction, nor did it act irregularly in the exercise of its jurisdiction. (Ibid.) An award by arbitrators may be either oral or in writing, and both are equally binding on the parties. 45 I.C. 813=34 M.L.J. 184. See also 12 P.L.T. 733. (26 B. 132, Foll.) An award is sufficient to pass title to property. The Transfer of Property Act is not exhaustive of the modes of transfer. 45 I.C. 813=34 M.L.J. 184. An award is not in the nature of a foreign judgment and a Court is therefore not entitled to go into the merits of the same. 29 I.C. 49=2 L.W. 320. Where a person was a party to arbitration but was not a party to the decree which followed upon the award he could not enforce the decree. 52 I.C. 849=6 O.L.J. 322. When an application is made for filing an award passed on a reference out of Court, Court should in the first instance pass an order that the award be filed and then proceed to pronounce judgment according to the award. It is necessary and important that two orders should be passed, because whereas an appeal directing an award to be filed is appealable under section 104 (1) (f), an appeal from the decree based on the award can be challenged only so far as it is not in accordance with the award. 1933 A.L.J. 40=1933 A. 166.

JURISDICTION.—Where it is not alleged that the decree of the Court was in excess of or not in accordance with the award, an appeal attacking the validity of the award itself on the ground that one of the parties to the reference was acting not for himself but merely on behalf of a minor and that the award had gone beyond the terms of REVISION.—A decree based on a private award filed in Court is not open to revision. 23 I.C. 950=114 P.L.R. 1914; 49 I.C. 979=31 P.W.R. 1919; 7 P.W.R. 1911=9 I.C. 38.

APPEAL TO PRIVY COUNCIL.—The provisions of para. 21 (2) do not affect the right of applicant to go in appeal to the Privy Council. 15 I.C. 2=15 O.C. 55. If a suit is filed before the award is made and the award is attacked as invalid, if the objections fail, the suit must be dismissed, and the plaintiff cannot claim a decree on the basis of the award. 13 S.L.R. 75=53 I.C. 337. SECS. 21 TO 23 reproduce substantially paragraphs 1 to 3 of the Second Schedule of the C.P. Code. They set out the initial steps to be taken for arbitration in a suit. (Statement of Objects and Reasons. See Notes to C.P.C. Sch. 11, paras. 1 to 3.).

CHANGES MADE BY SELECT COMMITTEE.—"The section as drafted contemplated an agreement in writing to be followed by a subsequent application which must also be in writing. We have provided that there need not necessarily be a preliminary agreement in writing so long as the intention of the parties is exhibited in writing to the Court." (Rep. of Sel. Com.).

"In section 22 we have omitted the words 'to the arbitration agreement' as being unnecessary in view of the wording of section 21." (Rep. of Sel. Com.).

CASES UNDER THE OLD ACT—C.P.C. SCH. II: APPLICATION TO ENFORCE AWARD—APPLICATION TO RECORD COMPROMISE—DISTINCTION.—When Court is asked to enforce the decision of another voluntary tribunal, the conduct of the tribunal should be under its guidance and subject to its control, and also subject to the special provisions laid down in the Act. If parties come to the Court with a cut and dried statement that the matters in dispute between them have been adjusted, O. 23, R. 3, will apply; but if they state that though they have referred their disputes to arbitration they do not agree mutually to accept the decision of the arbitrator, then the matter is not governed by O. 23, R. 3. In that case, there being no agreement, the matter must be governed by the Arbitration Act. An agreement to go to arbitration and accept the award is not of such a nature that a decree can be passed in accordance therewith, and the award ultimately made by the arbitrator is in no sense a part of the agreement, as contemplated by O. 23, R. 4. 14 P. 799=16 Pat.L.T. 280=1935 P. 243. See also 1939 Rang.L.R. 280=1939 Rang. 300.

PROCEDURE GOVERNING ARBITRATION IN PENDING SUITS.—This Act contemplates two classes of arbitration, (1) those in pending suits, and (2) those regarding matters which are not the subject of pending suits. So far as pending suits are concerned, the parties must apply to the Court in which the suit is pending for a reference to an arbitrator; the Court is then required to proceed to appoint an arbitrator and direct a reference to him. 14 P. 799=16 Pat.L.T. 280=1935 P. 243. An award made on a reference in a pending suit without the intervention of the Court cannot be treated as a compromise under C. P.C. O. 23, r. 3. 1939 Rang.L.R. 280=1939 Rang. 300 (F.B.). See also 1937 Rang.L.R. 225=1937 Rang. 459. Act does not apply to the award of an arbitrator under R. 22 of the Bengal Government Rules framed under section 43 of the Co-operative Societies Act. 60 C. 906=37 C.W.N. 649=1933 C. 595 (2). See now section 46 infra. Provisions of the Act should be strictly complied with. 49 I.C. 262=1923 A. 65. But see also 49 M.L.J. 812 (P.C.); 1931 O. 127; 27 A.L.J. 31. They are permissive and not mandatory. 131 I.C. 443=8 O.W.N. 71=1931 O. 127. A party to an agreement after the arbitrator proceeds to evidence cannot withdraw from the arbitration. Court cannot compel a private arbitrator to arbitrate against his will. 43 A. 101=

NOTES.

18 A.L.J. 952. There is no provision in old C.P.C., Sch. II, meeting an agreement to refer to arbitration which sets forth that any matters which might in future arise between the parties might also be referred to the decision of the arbitrators on application of the parties. 1930 A. 319 (2). In order to ascertain whether an award can be set aside or not, it is necessary to refer not to R. 1 of Ch. XXIII of High Court Original Side Rules, but to the substantive provisions of the Code. 38 C.W.N. 784. Charges of misconduct levelled against the arbitrator in making award can be enquired into only when the award has been filed in Court. 58 C. L.J. 234. The rule of English Common law that a submission to arbitration stands revoked by the death of a party is not applicable to India. In every case it is a question of the intention of the parties as to whether it is intended that they alone or their representatives also are to be bound by the decision. Though if a party dies before the completion of the hearing, it would be necessary to make the representatives, parties to the submission, where the death occurs after the termination of the hearing and just before the delivery of the award, the delivery of the award without the addition of the representatives is none the less binding on the representatives and is quite valid. 174 I. C. 369=1938 O.W.N. 480=1938 O. 125.

FORM OF REFERENCE.—All parties interested must join in the application. See 47 C. 555; 27 C.L.J. 339; 42 M. 632=36 M.L.J. 538; 44 M.L.J. 359; 1929 L. 477=119 I. C. 235; 1930 M. 646=126 I.C. 735; 56 M.L.J. 35=1929 M. 31; 1941 Rang. 22. Any agreement to refer to arbitration should clearly set forth in the form of issues the matters in difference between the parties on which the arbitrators are required to arbitrate. 1930 A. 319 (2). A reference is bad even if one interested party does not join. 17 M.L.J. 394; 29 A. 423; 64 I.C. 221; 79 I.C. 48. See section 24 infra. It is open to parties to refer to arbitration only some of the disputes in a presiding suit and the expression of all parties interested can only refer to the parties interested in the subject-matter of the arbitration and not on the subject-matter of the whole suit where the two are not identical. 104 I.C. 342=1927 Sind 239. Where one of the defendants who remained ex parte did not sign the reference to arbitration, the very foundation of a reference to arbitration is absent and hence there is no valid submission. An award on such a reference is equally invalid. 1938 O.W.N. 475=A.I.R. 1938 Oudh. 154. Where the agreement to refer the matter to arbitration, which is embodied in the statement made by the parties' counsel, was not supported by the consent of several parties who were interested, the reference is invalid and could not give the Court jurisdiction to refer the matter to arbitration. See also 131 I.C. 443=1931 O. 127; 155 I.C. 290=1935 O.W.N. 642; section 2 (a) and section 21 infra. The record of an agreement to refer to arbitration in the Court's proceedings, which are signed by both the parties and their respective pleaders, constitutes sufficient compliance with the requirements of law even though there is no written application to the Court by the parties. 1935 O. W.N. 1069=1935 O. 499. A verbal submission to arbitration is valid even though there is a likelihood of a question of title to immovable property being affected. 11 I.C. 481=14 C.L.J. 188; 34 I.C. 741=3 L.W. 375; 46 A. 208; 78 I.C. 378. When a reference to arbitration in a suit is a general one of the whole case the power of dealing with costs rests with the arbitrator. 46 I.C. 182. The parties could ratify a reference to arbitration though the procedure laid down has not been strictly followed by appearing before the arbitrator and giving evidence. 9 I.C. 412. A person having an option to avoid an award is deemed to have consented to it if he voluntarily submits to proceedings before arbitrators. 19 I.C. 374=6 S.L.R. 146; 9 I.C. 522. A Court executing a decree cannot refer a matter in the execution proceedings. 52 C. 559=87 I.C. 633.

ORAL APPLICATION.—A written application to refer to arbitration is not necessary. See now section 21 infra which requires application in writing; also section 2 (a). If both parties consent to a reference to arbitration and the Court passes an order of reference to arbitration in their presence, though not upon a written application the order cannot be superseded and an award made thereon is valid and binding. 1933 R. 407=12 R. 1.

AGREEMENT TO REFER—PRESENTATION TO COURT.—A commissioner was appointed for the examination of witnesses; and on the day fixed for appearance before the commissioner, the parties presented to the commissioner an application addressed to the Court stating that they had agreed to refer their disputes to arbitration. Thereupon the Court made a reference. Held, that the application to the commissioner was proper presentation to the Court and that the order passed thereon was correct. 10 O.W.N. 1102=1933 O. 521=147 I.C. 855. As to the presiding officer of Court being appointed arbitrator, see 1937 Oudh 224=1937 O.W.N. 223.

EXECUTION PROCEEDINGS.—Sec. 21 lays down that all the parties interested in a suit may agree to a reference to arbitration. An execution proceeding is not a suit and therefore it does not entitle the parties to an execution proceeding to file an application for a reference to arbitration. Therefore, such arbitration proceedings are invalid and the Court is not entitled to enforce them. 1935

The decision by the Court although in the alleged capacity of an umpire, cannot be said to be non-appealable but it must be held to be a decision of the executing Court appealable under section 47, C.P. Code. I.L.R. 1937 B. 144=38 Bom.L.R. 1303=1937 B. 111. As to applicability of this section to objections under O. 21, r. 58, see 58 A. 797=1936 A. 378=1936 A. L. J. 142.

INSOLVENCY PROCEEDINGS.—A Court cannot refer to arbitrators a proceeding in insolvency. (88 P.R. 1887, Ref. to.) 50 P.R. 1916=34 I.C. 549.

OMISSION TO SIGN THE PETITION.—An order of reference to arbitration should necessarily be signed by the parties to the suit agreeing to the reference. 43 C. 290=43 I.A. 1=20 C.W.N. 137=30 M.L.J. 67 (P.C.); 11 I.C. 481; 34 I.C. 741; 46 A. 208; 78 I.C. 378; 48 A. 237=24 A.L.J. 235=1926 A. 238; 1929 A. 763=52 A. 84; 56 M.L.J. 35; 38 I.C. 226; 133 I.C. 606=1931 A.L.J. 904. See also 1933 R. 407=12 R. 1. Where nobody signs on behalf of a party and nobody professes to verify the petition before the Court on his behalf, he is not a party to the reference to arbitration. 130 I.C. 291=1931 A.L.J. 100=1931 A. 242 (1).

MINOR PARTIES.—Where one of the parties to a suit was an infant, the agreement to refer was signed by the adult parties and by the guardian ad litem of the infant, and all the parties, including the guardian, appeared before the Judge and he thereupon made an order of reference, the order was proper and the award thereon was not vitiated. 43 C. 290=43 I.A. 1=30 M.L.J. 67 (P.C.). See also 18 Pat. 271=1939 Pat. 278. Para. 1 is subject to the provisions of O. 32, rule 7. Where one of the parties to the suit is a minor, the leave of the Court for the agreement to refer the suit to arbitration should be obtained before an application for an order of reference is made. Such leave cannot be granted by the Court after the award has been delivered. 1936 A.L.J. 1333=1937 A. 65 (F.B.). See also 18 Pat. 281=1939 Pat. 278; 1939 Cal. 500; 1939 Pat. 387; 1939 Lah. 308=41 P.L.R. 201; 1940 Pat. 343; 41 Bom.L.R. 485=1939 Bom. 296. The omission of the next friend or the guardian ad litem of the minor to obtain leave of the Court does not render the order of reference and the award void, but only voidable at the option of the minor as against all the parties. Such an order of reference and the award can be assailed by the minor either in the suit itself or by a separate suit. (Ibid.) But see contra. 36 A. 69 (F.B.); 1936 A.L.J. 53=1936 A. 740. See also 41 Bom. L. R. 1208; 1939 Bom. 296; 1939 Pat. 278; 1939 Pat. 387; 1939 Cal. 500. When a guardian ad litem has been appointed for a minor it is the guardian alone who can represent the minor in all proceedings in that suit and where the Court refers the matter to arbitration, it must ascertain if the guardian agrees to such a course. 1930 A.L.J. 923=1930 A. 646. A natural guardian can, on behalf of a minor, enter into an arbitration so as to be binding on the minor if it is proper, reasonable and for the benefit of minor. 44 B. 202=22 Bom.L.R. 266, 11 I.C. 481=14 C.L.J. 188; 56 I.C. 593; 29 I.C. 800=8 Bur.L.T. 122. A minor is bound by an agreement of arbitration entered into by his predecessor-in-title. 50 I.C. 879=23 C.W.N. 293; 11 I.C. 481=14 C.L.J. 188. Where a minor, party to a reference, is not properly represented and his guardian fails in his duty to protect his interests, the award is not binding on the minors. 56 I.C. 593. Where some of the parties to a reference to arbitration are minors, it is the duty of the Court to ascertain if the reference is for the benefit of the minors. 15 S.L.R. 165=64 I.C. 50. As to arbitration in scheme suit, see 30 S.L.R. 478. The question whether a person should be given a decree for restitution of conjugal rights against his wife is a matter in difference between the husband and wife in suits for restitution of conjugal rights and there is nothing in Sch. 2, C. P. Code, to prevent a reference of the whole suit for restitution of conjugal rights to arbitration and to a decree being passed in accordance with the award. A.I.R. 1941 Pesh. 43.

AUTHORITY OF PLEADERS.—Pleader must be expressly authorised to refer a matter. 36 C.W.N. 8=1932 C. 343; 29 A. 492. Unless he is authorised, his signature will not bind his client. 29 A. 423. See 104 I.C. 202=1927 L. 362. One pleader appearing for another pleader cannot make a valid reference. 96 I.C. 277=1926 L. 563. The authority need not be in writing of the parties consenting to the reference. 23 B. 629. If a party knows about it and acquiesces in it, he cannot afterwards raise objection. 29 A. 429.

PARTIES—EFFECT OF NON-JOINDER OF SOME PARTIES.—When some of the defendants to a suit do not join in a reference to arbitration, Court should examine the facts of each case before coming to the conclusion that the arbitration is invalid. 39 A. 489=15 A.L.J. 427; 11 C. 37. See also 122 I.C. 100=1930 L. 523; 118 I.C. 906; 117 I.C. 783. See now section 24 of this Act. Where an award is declared invalid because one of the parties to the proceeding did not joint in the reference the award cannot be upheld in part if the decree is a joint one. 130 I.C. 291=1931 A.L.J. 100=1931 A. 242 (1). (2 P. 777, Dist.) But see 133 I.C. 31=1931 A.L.J. 442=1931 A. 453. In making a reference to arbitration, if the parties against whom proceedings have been taken ex parte or who did not appear at the trial have not joined, the reference to arbitration is invalid and the award is wholly void. 119 I.C. 235=1929

Objections to award on the ground of invalidity from any cause whatever should be decided by the Court which has made the order of reference to arbitration and by no other Court. 39 A. 489.

UNNECESSARY PARTIES.—A Hindu widow in possession of property in lieu of maintenance is not a necessary party to a suit for partition, and her not joining in a reference to arbitration in such a suit does not vitiate the award. 35 A. 107=11 A.L.J. 66.

NON-CONTESTING PARTIES.—A reference to arbitration between the plaintiff and the contesting defendants is not rendered invalid by reason of the non-concurrence therein of a non-contesting defendant. Further, where the non-contesting defendant has by his subsequent conduct consented to the reference by being present throughout the whole of the arbitration proceedings, it is not open to him or to the plaintiffs to maintain that he was not a party to the arbitration. 148 I.C. 1168=1934 A.L.J. 694=1934 A. 658.

DEATH OF A PARTY.—The death of one of the parties to an arbitration does not necessarily revoke the authority of the arbitrator. 33 A. 645=8 A.L.J. 678; 14 C.L.J. 188=11 I.C. 481; 15 C.L.J. 360=13 I.C. 161. Whether death of the parties who had signed a reference to arbitration is itself enough to bring their agreement to an end. See 143 I.C. 635=1933 Sind 68.

WHO IS AN INTERESTED PARTY.—See 24 A. 229; 32 A. 657; 39 A. 489; 27 C.L.J. 939; 25 C.L.J. 339; 1929 A. 763=52 A. 84. A reference to arbitration by parties who are interested in the subject-matter in difference between them is a good reference, and the award made thereon is a legal one. In order to find out whether the parties have interest in the subject-matter in difference it is necessary to see the nature of the suit in which that question is raised and not the possibility of their having any interest in a future litigation which may arise as the result of the decree in the suit. 148 I.C. 512=1934 P. 19.

Where a person is merely a pro forma party to the suit and has no dispute either with the plaintiff or defendant he is not a party interested in the suit within the meaning of Sch. II, Para. 1 and hence his agreement to reference is not necessary. 190 I.C. 399=A. I. R. 1940 Lah. 186. If all the parties interested at the time of the reference have not joined in the reference the reference is invalid. 8 A. L. J. 645=10 I.C. 559; 71 I.C. 326=1924 C. 353; 21 C.W.N. 387; 102 I.C. 26. Subsequent consent cannot always make the reference valid. 48 A. 239=24 A.L.J. 235=1926 A. 238. A matter was referred to arbitration by some of the defendants and plaintiff. The other defendants who did not join in the reference were ex parte but were highly interested parties. Held, that the Court had no jurisdiction to make the reference and that the award and decree passed thereon were invalid. 10 O.W.N. 790=147 I.C. 189=1933 O. 384; 1929 Lah. 477. The fact that a defendant to a suit has not appeared and that the suit has been ordered to proceed ex parte is a question of fact to be considered when the question of his interestedness, in the case of a reference of the subject-matter of the suit to arbitration, is to be considered; but it is not necessarily in itself a final and conclusive answer. Where the Court treats such circumstances as final and conclusive on question of interestedness, there is a failure to exercise jurisdiction which is open to revision. 159 I.C. 188=1935 Sind 212. A suit was filed against two persons described as owners of a firm. The summons issued to them was taken by a son of one of them who was managing the firm, and written statement was filed by him on their behalf. The case was referred to arbitration at the instance of plaintiffs and this person and award was made. Held, that though the son had no power to refer to arbitration and as such the reference was not proper, still as he was managing the business, substantial justice was done and that the award could not be interfered with. (1926 A. 238, Ref.) 1933 A. 924=147 I.C. 746. The plaintiff brought a suit for recovery of Rs. 210 on foot of a promissory note alleged to have been executed by the first defendant in favour of the second defendant from whom the plaintiff took an assignment of his rights under the promissory note. The relief claimed against defendant No. 2 was that in case defendant No. 1 be found to have made any payment to the second defendant in respect of the promissory note, a decree may be passed for that amount against defendant No. 2. When the suit was pending, a reference to arbitration was made by the plaintiff and the first defendant only and an award was passed. Held, that the second defendant was not a pro forma defendant; he was as much interested in meeting the defence of the first defendant as the plaintiff himself, because if the first defendant's plea prevailed, the second defendant would be exposed to a claim for damages by the plaintiff. So the reference to arbitration in which the second defendant who continued to be a party to the suit did not join and the award passed in pursuance thereof were invalid. 1933 A.L.J. 402=1933 A. 739. A reference, however, made by father of a joint Hindu family is binding on sons unless fraud is proved. 104 I.C. 202=1927 L. 362. See also 12 Pat.L.T. 733. Where a claimant objects to the attachment of property in execution of a decree and the matter is referred to arbitration judgment-debtor is a necessary party to the reference. 64 I.C. 469. A person who is not a necessary party is not a person interested under this section. 42 M. 632=36 M.L.J. 538. A Court has no jurisdiction to make an order of reference without consent of all the parties, and an award made on such refer-

It is not part of the authority of one partner of a firm to refer a suit to which the firm is a party to arbitration. 36 C.W.N. 8. (48 A. 239). A partner of a firm cannot enter into an agreement to refer on behalf of a firm unless all the parties join. 133 I.C. 558. See also 148 I.C. 1080=34 P.L.R. 417=1934 L. 483; 34 Bom.L.R. 1112. If some of the partners do not join in submitting a dispute to arbitration the award does not become invalid or ineffectual as between the persons making the reference. It is binding on them especially when it has been acted upon. 134 I.C. 99. See now section 24, infra. Whether an order of reference to arbitration made by the Court on application of the plaintiff and one of the defendants is legal, see 44 I.C. 480. A defendant who is ex parte may be a party "interested". 42 M. 632=36 M.L.J. 538; 22 L.W. 395=1925 M. 1209=50 M.L.J. 100; 96 I.C. 273 (1)=23 L.W. 769. An award is not invalid because certain defendants having no interest in the suit or only nominally on the record do not join in the reference to arbitration by the other parties. 36 M. 353=21 M.L.J. 990; 76 I.C. 2=5 Pat.L. T. 239=2 P. 777; 48 A. 239=1926 A. 238=24 A.L.J. 235. But see 48 M.L.J. 142=1925 M. 621. A person having a limited interest in the land cannot by a reference to arbitration confer on the arbitrator an authority to alienate a more extensive interest than he himself has. 25 I.C. 949.

PRIVATE TRUST.—Where two parties were litigating in their own right, claiming that each of them was of right entitled to the muth, and there was nothing to suggest that the muth was of the nature of public charity and that income was to be spent on public purposes and was neither a religious order nor confined to the benefit of a group of persons belonging to that order and the parties did not ask the Court to appoint a trustee on the supposition that the office was vacant, held, the dispute must be deemed to be of a private nature and reference to arbitration of such a dispute was neither illegal nor forbidden by law or contrary to any well-known rule of public policy. 151 I.C. 148=1934 A.L.J. 711=1934 A. 368. Suit under section 92, C.P. Code. Matters of public right cannot be decided by arbitration, though they arise in a suit which primarily relate to private property. Matters in difference between parties to litigation which affect private rights only may be referred to arbitration. A suit under S. 92, C.P.C. is not one for determination of private rights. 30. S.L.R. 478=1937 S. 174. But a declaration that a certain property is trust property in the award of arbitrations does not offend against law. 1937 Sind 174.

RESTITUTION OF CONJUGAL RIGHTS.—There is no provision of law which excludes a suit for restitution of conjugal rights from the purview of the Act. Though it is entirely within the discretion of the Court to grant or refuse to grant a decree for restitution of conjugal rights, there is no warrant for holding that such a suit does not come within the ambit of the Act and that such a suit cannot be referred to arbitration even when all the parties interested agree to have the dispute settled by arbitration. 152 I.C. 90=11 O. W.N. 1203=1934 O. 494.

PRIVATE REFERENCE.—Parties can refer disputes to private arbitration though a suit between them is pending. They need not apply to Court for the purpose. 33 I.C. 67=19 M.L.T. 328; 23 M.L.J. 290=16 I.C. 478. See also 27 A. 53. But see 30 C. 218 37 C. 63; 29 C. 167. But the same arbitration cannot relate to matters within and without jurisdiction between parties and non-parties and partly under agreement and partly under order of reference. 53 C. 258=53 I.A. 1=92 I.C. 633=1925 P.C. 293 (P.C.). Though some of the parties have not joined in the reference of the dispute to arbitration, the award does not become invalid or ineffectual as between the persons making the reference. The award is binding on them especially when it has been acted upon. 71 I.C. 860; see section 24, infra.

REFERENCE TO COURT.—When a suit is not maintainable under the law an agreement by a party to abide by the decision of the Court cannot be binding. 21 I.C. 958=19 C.W. N. 1141. The parties may appoint Court as arbitrator and if the Judge accepts, his award is final and is not open to appeal. 26 M. 76; 23 B. 752; 37 M.L.J. 100; though the Government orders prohibit such acceptance. 44 M.L.J. 258; 43 A. 266. See also 42 M. 625; 38 C. 421. In case of reference to Chamber of Commerce, Rules of the Chamber are binding on the parties. See 30 I.C. 681=42 C. 1140=19 C.W.N. 820.

SUBJECT OF REFERENCE.—"Matters in difference"—Meaning of. See 33 Bom.L.R. 51=130 I.C. 588. A portion of the claim under reference to an arbitration cannot be withdrawn without the consent of the other party. 46 I.C. 477=28 C.L.J. 275. The jurisdiction of Courts to refer to arbitration is confined to matters in difference in the suit itself. 14 L.W. 666=65 I.C. 92. An award under an invalid reference being itself invalid gives no rights either as an award or as a compromise. 14 L.W. 666. Where parties apply to Court to refer to the arbitration of a particular person the words used in the application should not be interpreted in a narrow sense but should be taken to mean that the parties are desirous of having the whole dispute settled by the arbitrator and therefore he could also award damages. 15 I.C. 321.

JURISDICTION.—Where jurisdiction to decide a particular matter is given by law to a specific tribunal only, determination of that matter by other tribunals is excluded. 1937 Sind 174. Where an appellate Judge properly seised of the appeal and competent to make the reference to arbitration, has made reference to arbitration the mere fact that the award directed that the sum payable by one party to the other was more than the pecuniary jurisdiction of appellate Court would not retrospectively, render all previous proceedings invalid. 190 I.C. 399 = A.I.R. 1940 Lah. 186. See also 1940 Nag. 191.

VALIDITY OF REFERENCE.—Validity of reference—Pending reference to High Court—Jurisdiction—No separate suit lies. 19 A. L.J. 876=44 A. 91. Award—Reference to three persons one of whom was authorized to report decision to Court—Statement filed by one, is an award. 1933 A.L.J. 149. The provisions of the section must be strictly complied with in order that there might be a valid reference. 25 C.W.N. 832. See also 60 I.C. 195=24 C.W.N. 775. Where a pleader signed a reference on behalf of a party but his vakalatnama did not contain a power to refer to arbitration, held, the reference was not valid so far as that party is concerned. 25 C.W.N. 832. Successive disputes as they arise may be referred, and successive awards passed. 60 I.C. 195=24 C.W.N. 775. To constitute a valid reference to arbitration it is enough if all the parties to suit interested in the subject-matter agree to the reference. 44 M.L.J. 359=17 L.W. 424=1923 M. 502. Not only the writing out an application to refer a pending suit to arbitration but the presentation of it must have the concurrence of all parties concerned. In other words, the parties interested must not only agree to refer the matter in difference between them to arbitration but they all must also apply to Court for making an order of reference. 142 I.C. 678=34 P.L.R. 247. High Court will not interfere in revision with an award on the ground that certain exonerated defendants were not parties to the reference when no such objection had been taken to the award in the Court below. 44 M.L.J. 359, supra. Absence of one of the arbitrators at one of the meetings at which, it is shown that nothing material was done, does not make the award invalid. 12 L.W. 505=60 I.C. 181.

REVOCATION OF REFERENCE.—It is within Court's jurisdiction on equitable grounds to restrain defendant from proceeding to arbitration when an action brought impeaches the instrument containing the agreement for reference. 70 I.C. 864=15 S.L.R. 5. Where parties have once agreed to a submission to arbitration the agreement is binding and enforceable and cannot be annulled except for some such reason as that the agreement had been obtained by fraud, coercion or undue influence. He cannot revoke it at his sweet will and pleasure. The fact that one of the arbitrators figured as a witness for the prosecution in a security proceeding against the party is no ground for its revocation. 137 I.C. 198=1932 A.L.J. 331=1932 A. 348. See also 1932 All. 348; 1934 All. 95. It is not open to a party to an agreement of reference to revoke the submission to arbitration except for good cause. "Sufficient cause" is not confined to cases of fraud, coercion and undue influence. The fact that the arbitrator is related to one of the parties as the brother of his son-in-law does afford a real likelihood of an operative prejudice on his part, and the existence of such relationship with one of the parties unknown to the other disqualifies him from acting as an arbitrator. (1925 Sind 150, Rel. on.) 143 I.C. 635=1933 Sind 68. After agreeing to refer, either party has a locus penitentie to withdraw before the order of reference is made and he may take advantage of it. 142 I.C. 678=34 P.L.R. 247. See also 27 I.C. 424; 29 C. 278; 27 M. 112; 4 P.L.J. 394; 1933 Sind 68; 25 Cal. 141; 1937 A. W.R. 1083=1937 A.L.J. 1163. In order that a reference may be made all parties must join in the application to Court. It is not enough if the petition is signed by all. 17 P.R. 1911=9 I.C. 195. In selecting arbitrator good faith is essential. 1933 S. 68. In cases of arbitration where a person is appointed by two parties to exercise judicial duties there should be uberrima fides on the part of all parties concerned in relation to his selection and appointment and every disclosure which might in the least affect the minds of those who are proposing to submit their dispute to the arbitrament of any particular individual, as regards his selection and fitness for the post ought to be made, so that each party may have every opportunity of considering whether the reference to arbitration to that particular individual should or should not be made. (25 C. 141, Foll.) 143 I.C. 635=1933 S. 68. The Commissioner merely submits his report for the approval of the Court and he has no greater power than what the parties and the Court choose to give him. 25 I.C. 227. Where the same matter comes before two tribunals, a public tribunal appointed by the Sovereign and a domestic forum chosen by the parties, and no order is made staying the proceedings either under section 19, Arbitration Act, or under Para. 2 of Sch. II, C.P. Code, before the one or the other, the public tribunal alone must decide that matter and cannot be hampered by any adjudication thereupon made by the private tribunal. Neither can that adjudication be pleaded as a bar to the action nor can it be allowed to affect the merits of the decision given by the public tribunal. Thus the effect of the institution of the suit is that all proceedings before the arbitrators subsequent to the institution of the suit are invalid. But if after the institution of the suit a party still wishes to proceed with the arbitration, his remedy is to apply for stay, which the Court will grant, unless there are weighty reasons to the contrary, leaving the parties to proceed with the arbitration from the stage at which the proceedings were on the date of the institution of the suit. A. I.R. 1937 Lah. 851. Where the parties to a suit presented an application saying that they were desirous of leaving the matter entirely in the hands of the presiding officer, and that they would be bound by whatever decision he should arrive at after making a local inspection. Held, (1) that although the word 'arbitrator' was used by the parties in their application, the agreement was no more than to abide by the decision of the Court, arrived at as the result of a local inspection, without recording any evidence, and there was nothing against the validity of such an agreement and that the parties did not mean to appoint the presiding officer as an arbitrator in the case, (2) that the provisions of Sch. II, C. P. Code, did not apply to cases in which the parties to a suit wanted to appoint the presiding officer of the Court, in which the suit was pending, as an arbitrator, (3) that it was not incumbent upon the presiding officer under the law to record notes of his local inspection. 166 I.C. 853=1937 O.W.N. 223=A.I.R. 1937 Oudh 224.

PARA. 3: MATTER IN DIFFERENCE.—When the order states that "all matters in difference in the suit are referred," the arbitrators should ascertain upon what points the parties are at issue. 2 N.W.P. 150; 33 Bom. L.R. 51. If Court wants to appoint an arbitrator in a pending suit it is bound to pass an order to that effect and fix a date for return of award and also for objections being filed. 1929 M. 789. After Court has, on the application of parties, referred a pending suit to arbitration, its power to further deal with the case is of a very limited nature, as for example, if there is no occasion to remit the award under section 16 and if a party's application to set aside the award is dismissed, Court can act, if at all, under section 15 to correct or modify the award. 1930 L. 26. Where reference to arbitration was made by the parties after the suit was disposed of by trial Court and before appeal was filed, held, that the award was immune from the objection that unless proceedings before arbitrators are stayed there might be a clash between the decision of the Court and of the arbitrators. The award is enforceable if appeal is subsequently withdrawn. 7 O.W.N. 815=1930 O. 432. Where a dispute is referred to arbitrators through Court, the scope of their enquiry is the scope of the suit itself as disclosed by the pleadings and they have no jurisdiction to extend it either as regards the subject-matter or the persons affected by it. Both the arbitrators who so exceed their duties and the Court itself which nevertheless passes a decree in terms of the award are acting in excess of their jurisdiction. 38 L.W. 927=1933 M. 862=65 M.L.J. 755. The decision of arbitrators upon a matter not in difference between the parties and not referred to them, is null and void. 15 W.R. 172. Arbitrators have no implied power to deal with question of costs. 9 B. 82. See also 54 A. 122=136 I.C. 789=1932 A. 183 and section 38 infra. Court will not confirm an order made by arbitrators making payment of their fees a condition precedent to hearing their reference. 6 C. 809. On this rule, see also section 38 infra. 1929 B. 51=114 I.C. 262=30 Bom.L.R. 1588. Suit cannot be dismissed for default for plaintiff's absence on the day fixed for submission of umpire's report. 1937 Pesh. 49.

MAKING OF THE AWARD.—The word "making" has been instituted for the word "delivery" to give effect to the decisions in 22 M. 22; 26 A. 105. See also 13 B. 119. The parties to a partition suit made a statement in Court to the effect that three persons named by them should decide the case and that the case might be referred to them. They further said that any one of the three gentlemen might come to Court and state what was the decision arrived at by the three gentlemen to whom the case was referred. This was done and accordingly one of the three gentlemen appeared before the Court and made a statement on oath and he stated that he had consulted his other colleagues and had taken their signatures also on the written judgment. Held, that this was a reference to arbitration and that the statement of the person was an award and not merely a statement made under Oaths Act. 145 I.C. 403=1933 A.L.J. 149=1933 A. 313.

PARA. 3 (2).—Clause (2) has the effect of rigidly restricting Courts to the exact procedure laid down in this schedule. 10 B. 381. After a matter is referred to arbitration, the Court has no jurisdiction left to try the suit without superseding the arbitration or without setting aside the award on any of the grounds set forth in para. 15 (1) of Sch. II, C.P. Code. An order of Court setting aside an award and taking cognizance of the suit without coming to a finding whether or not any of the grounds specified in para. 15 (1) existed but merely on the ground that one of the parties applied to have the award set aside and the other did not object to it, offends both against that para. and para. 3 (2) of Sch. II and is consequently illegal. 1937 O.W.N. 1002=A.I.R. 1937 Oudh 507.

PRACTICE AND PROCEDURE.—Court has power to refer a question of jurisdiction, namely, whether the cause of action arose in one place or another, to the arbitrator. 54 A. 297=1932 A. 665. It is the duty of Court to appoint a date within which to make the award. 46 I.C. 324=5 O.L.J. 205. See also 13 A. 300; 18 M. 22. Where Court had fixed no time for making award but had fixed one for filing it, held, that the award filed before the latter date is not invalid. 20 I.C. 773=16 O.C. 233. See also 46 I.C. 324=5 O.L.J. 205; 37 I.C. 844. Where a matter is referred to arbitration, the Court has only to proceed according to the provisions of Sch. 2, or, in the alternative, to supersede the arbitration and then call on the parties and act under the sections and rules embodied in the C. P. Code. The matter in suit was referred to arbitrators, and upon difference of opinion between the arbitrators, the parties agreed to abide by the opinion of an umpire. A day was fixed for the umpire's report but on that day the plaintiff was absent and so the suit was dismissed for default. Held, the Court could not dismiss the suit for default under O. 9, rule 8 on a day when the umpire was expected to file his report. 168 I.C. 866=A.I.R. 1937 Pesh. 49. Where costs incurred prior to reference to arbitration were also referred but arbitrators in delivering award did not deal with the question of costs, held, that Court could not subsequently deal with the question of costs because once the reference was made, Court became functus officio regarding that matter. 54 A. 122=1931 A.L.J. 1155=1932 A. 183. See new section 38, infra. Time for submission of award—Extension by arbitrators themselves—Propriety of. 27 C.W.N. 420=1923 C. 410. See now section 28, infra. Where the whole case is referred to the arbitrator and he is called on to decide all questions that were in dispute between the parties, the fact that the Court failed to frame issues noting the points in dispute between the parties and refer them specifically does not matter. 54 A. 297=1932 A. 665. The law gives parties the right to have the matter submitted to arbitration at any time before the judgment is pronounced. 24 I.C. 610. A party cannot resile from a reference to arbitration at his sweet will and pleasure. 17 O.C. 386=27 I.C. 424. See also 137 I.C. 198=1932 A.L.J. 331=1932 A. 348. If parties agree that a reference be withdrawn and if the arbitrator also agrees, Court should supersede the arbitration. The fact that subsequently plaintiff and arbitrator reconsidered their previous resolve in concurrence with the defendants cannot revive the reference which has come to an end. Nothing short of a fresh agreement to refer can invest the arbitrator with power to decide the controversy between the parties. The authority of arbitrator, having been revoked by both the parties with his consent, cannot be reconferred upon him by only one of the parties and the Court. Any award made in such circumstances cannot be upheld as a valid award. 150 I.C. 222=1934 A.L.J. 473=1934 A. 95. By adding a new para. 2 to section 23, the legislature did not deprive the Court of all its powers over an arbitration proceeding under its order. On the other hand, the Court has jurisdiction, in a proper case, to grant leave to revoke an arbitration on good cause being shown, although such jurisdiction has to be exercised with great care and caution. 36 Bom.L.R. 827=1934 B. 388. The appropriate time for entertaining charges of misconduct against an arbitrator is when the award has been filed. 27 C.W.N. 420=1923 C. 410.

SECTION 24 is a new provision. It is possible that some parties only to a suit may be agreeable to having the differences between them settled by arbitration. This section will permit this to be done provided that those differences can be separated from the rest of the subject-matter of the suit. (Statement of Objects and Reasons).

SEC. 25 applies with necessary modification certain other provisions of the Act to arbitrations in suits.

sections 8, 10, 11 and 12, instead of filling up the vacancies or making the appointments, make an order superseding the arbitration and proceed with the suit, and where the Court makes an order superseding the arbitration under section 19, it shall proceed with the suit.

CHAPTER V.

GENERAL.

26. Save as otherwise provided in this Act, the provisions of this Chapter shall apply to all arbitrations.

Application of Chapter.

Power of arbitrators to make an interim award.

27. (1) Unless a different intention appears in the arbitration agreement, the arbitrators or umpire may, if they think fit, make an interim award.

(2) All references in this Act to an award shall include references to an interim award made under sub-section (1).

28. (1) The Court may, if it thinks fit, whether the time for making the award has expired or not and whether the award has been made or not, enlarge from time to time the time for making the award.

Power to Court only to enlarge time for making award.

NOTES.

CHANGES BY SELECT COMMITTEE.—“The alteration made is like that made in sub-clause (5) of section 20 for the purpose of applying to arbitrations under this chapter such provisions of the Act as may be properly applicable.” (Rep. of Sel. Com.)

SEC. 27 is a new provision, based on the 1934 Act of Parliament and conferring on arbitrators the power to make an interim award.

SEC. 28.—Under the 1899 Act the arbitrators or umpire can themselves enlarge their time for making an award, though it seems that they must do so before the time actually expires. Under the Code it is the Court which has this power. The clause proposes that the power should in all cases vest in the Court only, who may extend the time whether the time has expired or not or whether the award has actually been made or not.

CHANGES MADE BY THE SELECT COMMITTEE.—“We have revised sub-clause (2) so as to allow of provision being made in an arbitration agreement for enlargement of the time for making the award where all the parties consent to such enlargement.” (Rep. of Select Committee.)

POWER OF COURT TO EXTEND TIME.—Under the Act, the Court has power to extend the time though the time for making the award is over. The Appellate Court can extend the time under O. 41, R. 33 of C. P. Code. 40 C. 1059. See also 1935 Sind 30; 19 I.C. 374; 1926 Sind 8; 54 M.L.J. 49 (F.B.) (18 I.A. 55, Dist.); 1935 Lah. 191. Extension of time for making the award under section 12 of the Arbitration Act is a matter entirely within the discretion of the Court. There is nothing in the section to suggest that the Court should not exercise this power to extend the time unless it had been expressly asked by a party to do so. 1937 M.W.N. 518=45 L.W. 405=A.I.R. 1937 Mad. 405. Before extending the time the Court is bound to consider whether the case is a fit one for the grant of the indulgence asked for and is not confined merely to the consideration of the question whether or not, the arbitrator had been diligent. 22 I.C. 16=8 S.L.R. 269. See also 78 I.C. 521. Appeal against order refusing extension of time, 46 C. 1059. When time is not extended and the award is not made within time, the award is worthless. 64 I.C. 706 (A.).

CASES UNDER OLD ACT, C. P. CODE, SCH. II, PARA 8.—The time for filing an award may be extended by Court either before or after the expiration of the period fixed for the making of the award. But the extension must be made before the award is delivered. 45 B. 1071=23 Bom.L.R. 614; 9 I.C. 241; 14 A. 343. See also 52 L.W. 537=(1940) 2 M.L.J. 481. The Court has power to extend time for the filing of the award even after the award had actually been made. I.L.R. (1938) 2 Cal. 482=42 C.W.N. 883. Where the arbitrator returned the papers to Court stating his inconvenience to proceed with the matter on the due date but he never declined to arbitrate, held, that Court had jurisdiction to send the papers back to arbitrator and extend the time. 54 A. 297=1932 A. 665. Application for extension of time must be made in writing. 3 M. 59. Power of extending time is permissive and discretionary, and the provision does not negative the right to extend time by agreement and acquiescence of parties. 50 I.C. 52=4 P.L.J. 265. An order of a Court permitting the arbitrator to enlarge time for making an award is not ultra vires and there is no objection to Court's delegation with consent of parties, functions regarding enlargement of time. 31 I.C. 597=19 C.W.N. 165. Such a consent would be inferred from the fact that the parties conducted the case and took a willing part in the proceedings before the arbitrator, though the date fixed for the filing of the award had expired. (50 I.C. 52 Foll.) 163 I.C. 380=1936 L. 466. Where Court leaves it to the discretion of arbitrator to complete the award within a reasonable time and he does so, it cannot be said that there has been substantial miscarriage of justice merely because Court did not fix any time within which award was to be submitted. 163 I.C. 590=1936 R. 240. An award not delivered within the time fixed by Court is a nullity. 55 I.C. 221. But see 27 I.C. 233=18 C.W.N. 325. Award filed after the time fixed—Not a nullity. 34 I.C. 177=56 P.L.R. 1917. See also 52 I.C. 352. On an application for extension of time, Court is entitled and bound to take all the circumstances of the case into consideration, including allegation of misconduct of arbitrators, without deciding whether those allegations are true or not, and also whether any good could be gained by giving further time or whether the arbitration is to be superseded. 146 I.C. 1081=1930 P. 566. If arbitrators do not submit their award within time, Court may supersede the arbitration and proceed with the suit. 57 I.C. 890. When the Court without extending the time for submission of an award proceeded to deal with the suit, there was in effect an order superseding arbitration and no formal order to the effect was necessary. 21 I.C. 558=1913 M.W.N. 863. See also 5 P.L.J. 672=57 I.C. 473. An order of supersession should be made only at the expiry of the time fixed for the filing of the award and not at the stage of the reference itself. An order passed by Court in the middle of the hearing of a suit making a reference, and providing in anticipation that if the award is not filed by a particular date, the trial must go on that day, is not one in accordance with law. 44 L.W. 608=71 M.L.J. 648. Where an order of supersession was passed on the date fixed but the award reached the Court the same day after passing of the order the Court would be justified in setting aside its order of supersession. 17 I.C. 320=16 O.C. 94. Date fixed for filing of award—Non-appearance of parties—Dismissal of suit is bad. 3 Pat.L.T. 346=65 I.C. 144. Where parties submit their difference to arbitration, they cannot be allowed to revoke or withdraw from the submission except for very good cause. 48 I.C. 711=4 P.L.J. 394. Delay in making an award by the arbitrators caused by the voluntary absence of one of the parties who now seeks to impugn the award is not enough to justify the Court in refusing to file the award on the ground of delay. (Ibid.) See now section 28 (2). Where the arbitrators have made the award in time, but not filed it in Court within the time fixed, Court has ample jurisdiction to extend the time for filing it, which is merely a ministerial act. 152 I.C. 1068=36 Bom. L.R. 831=1934 B. 398.

SEC. 29 makes necessary provision as to interest when the award makes no provision therefor. It is based on a similar provision in the 1934 Act of Parliament (section 11). (Statement of Objects and Reasons.)

CHANGES MADE BY SELECT COMMITTEE.—“Instead of fixing by the Act the rate of interest which an award shall bear and enacting that interest shall run from the date of the award, we have provided in accordance with the analogous provisions in the Code of Civil Procedure that the Court may fix the rate of interest, but we have made the date from which the interest shall run the date of the decree.” (Report of Select Committee.)

SEC. 30 follows paragraph 15 of the Second Schedule to the Code in setting out the grounds on which the award may be set aside.

CHANGES MADE BY SELECT COMMITTEE.—We have omitted ground (b) which specified fraudulent concealment of a matter which ought to have been disclosed because we consider that this ground is adequately covered by the ground which now appears as ground (c) in the clause as revised by us. (Rep. of Sel. Com.)

CASES UNDER OLD ACT—C. P. CODE, SCH. II, PARA. 15.—An arbitration award cannot be upset except on the specific grounds given in the section. If this is not done, it could not be avoided by raising a plea that it had become infructuous. 1940 A. W. R. (B. R.) 16. The provisions of this section and section 17 are also applicable to appellate Courts. 10 A. 8. Objection on the very merits of the question adjudicated upon by the arbitrators is beyond the scope of this section. 7 Bom.L.R. at p. 797. No objection can be raised as to the form of the proceedings anterior to the reference or to the form of issue. 43 A. 305=19 A.L.J. 33. (Per Sulaiman, C. J., Harries, J. and Iqbal Ahmad, J. contra):—An objection to the validity of reference to arbitration comes within the purview of para. 15 of Sch. II, C. P. Code. 167 I.C. 99=1936 A.L.J. 1333=I.L.R. (1937) All. 317=A.I.R.

NOTES.

1937 All. 65 (F.B.). An order on the objections to an award of an arbitrator should comply with the provisions of O. 20, R. 5 and the Court should state its finding or decision with the reasons therefor upon each separate issue. 1935 A.L.J. 309=154 I.C. 310=1935 A. 519. Paragraph 15 of Sch. II of C. P. Code does not provide for the Court setting aside an award in part only. The fact that the consequence of setting aside the award is an order superseding the arbitration is a strong indication that the whole award must be set aside. 1939 A.M.L.J. 15.

OBJECTION WHEN TO BE RAISED.—Objection to irregularity may be waived by party. 1 R. 15=74 I.C. 6=1923 R. 187. See also 119 I.C. 529=1929 S. 200; 27 A.L.J. 540=117 I.C. 361=1929 A. 521. A Court does not act without jurisdiction in passing an order superseding a reference to arbitration made by it on the ground that some of the arbitrators have since been discovered to be indebted to one of the parties, and proceeding with the trial of the suit, especially when its order is made without any protest from the parties. 179 I.C. 161=A.I.R. 1939 Pat. 170. Even where an award has been made by arbitrators whose powers have been revoked by cancellation of order of reference, the award is not void ab initio but has to be set aside. If no application is made to set aside the award, it remains in force and may be filed. 1941 M.W.N. 780=(1941) 2 M.L.J. 395. There is nothing wrong in parties agreeing to abide by the award of a majority of arbitrators even where one of the parties is a minor represented by a guardian. 114 I.C. 367=1929 M. 144; 9 P.R. 1913=16 I.C. 996; 51 I.C. 53=10 L.W. 57. Where the parties agree to be bound by the unanimous opinion of the arbitrators or by the opinion of the majority in case of difference, the Court has no power to force upon the parties the award of the umpire alone. 134 I.C. 30=1931 A.L.J. 906. Agreement not to object to award does not preclude parties from objecting on the ground of fraud or bad faith. 107 P.W.R. 1916=34 I.C. 192. The parties cannot raise objection to jurisdiction after having submitted to jurisdiction of the arbitrators. 42 A. 661=18 A. A.L.J. 644. Objection to be taken only in the trial Court, not in appellate Court. 36 A. 69=12 A.L.J. 57 (F.B.). Award when not binding on minor. 34 M.L.J. 71=45 I.C. 763. An objection that an award is vague and illegal, is itself a vague objection and does not deserve any consideration. 1941 R.D. 284.

AWARD WHEN CAN BE SET ASIDE.—An award cannot be set aside under this section on the ground of irregularity of the reference. 11 C.W.N. 1152. See also 1933 A. 294. Award should not be set aside on account of technical error. 91 I.C. 659 (2)=1925 R. 383. The same presumption which attaches to proceedings before a Court of Justice should attach to proceedings before arbitrators. 18 A. 422 (F.B.). In case of an arbitration out of Court, an error in calculation, unless so palpable and gross as to afford strong evidence of misconduct, is no ground of interference by Court. Court has no power either to correct such errors or to eject an award which contains them. 133 I.C. 522=1933 M. 619=34 L.W. 507. Arbitrator having personal interest, unknown to one of the parties cannot act as such. 31 I.C. 597=19 C.W.N. 165. Award after supersession by Court can be set aside. 21 M.L.J. 263=9 I.C. 173 (F.B.). Award otherwise than in accordance with the order of reference is otherwise invalid, within section 15. 53 C. 258=53 I.A. 1=1925 P.C. 293 (P.C.); 50 A. 955; 34 C.W.N. 813. As to the meaning of the words "or otherwise invalid" 58 C. 629=35 C.W.N. 238; 52 C. L. J. 298. See also I.L.R. (1940) Kar. 22. An award cannot be set aside on the mere surmise that the arbitrator had been partial. 7 A. 273. Or on the ground that the arbitrator's decision is against the written statement of defendant. 7 W.R. 28. Award made out of time is not void but voidable. 50 I.C. 52=4 P.L.J. 265. When there is provision for extension of time, it is not sufficient ground for refusing to file the award. 55 P.W.R. 1919=51 I.C. 636. But where time has not been extended, an award given after time fixed in the agreement is not valid and binding on the parties. 1933 L. 173=145 I.C. 129.

MISCONDUCT.—If Court finds that the award of arbitrator has been arrived at by action which amounts to misconduct, the only course open to it is to set aside the award altogether. It is not empowered to sit in appeal on an arbitrator. It cannot disallow or set aside a part of it and pass an order dismissing the suit; it must supersede the arbitration and dispose of the suit on the merits. 1936 A.M.L.J. 54. "Misconduct" means neglect of duties or judicial misconduct; it does not necessarily mean moral turpitude. 9 A. 253; 30 C. 397. See 93 I.C. 446 (2)=1926 O. 307=1 Luck. 139; 1930 S. 103. "Misconduct" means misconduct in carrying out terms of reference. Acting beyond powers is acting without jurisdiction. 49 M.L.J. 529. Court has inherent jurisdiction to deal with allegations of misconduct of arbitrator, even though the award is not made. 146 I.C. 1081=1933 P. 566. Legal "misconduct" ensues where the arbitrator's or umpire's procedure is so irregular as to be opposed to the principles of natural justice. Where an opportunity is afforded to one side to get an advantage with the arbitrator over the other, either by lack of notice, or by the absence of the other side, and where there is even a remote possibility of the advantage so obtained unconsciously influencing the mind of the arbitrator, the proceedings are vitiated by a breach of the principles of natural justice. Where an umpire sends for one of the parties alone and asks him to sort the papers and re-arrange the records and to find out certain exhibits in the case for him, he is not guilty of misconduct, as the act is a mere ministerial act and does not vitiate the award of the umpire. 59 B. 268 = 155 I.C. 669 = 37 Bom.L.R. 69 = 1935 B. 127. There is a duty upon the arbitrator to disclose material facts which might reasonably be held to have prevented any of the parties to the arbitration agreeing to his appointment as arbitrator. An arbitrator failing to disclose such facts is guilty of misconduct. But the failure of an arbitrator to disclose the fact of his indebtedness to the father-in-law of one of the defendants would not amount to misconduct where the debt due by the arbitrator is an ordinary business debt. 4 A.W.R. 852 = 148 I.C. 1168 = 1934 A.L.J. 694 = 1934 A. 658. Perversity is misconduct. 14 I.C. 978 = 5 Bur. L.J. 55. Error of law, if misconduct. 42 A. 277 = 18 A.L.J. 241 = 58 I.C. 585. Not hearing parties is misconduct. 25 Bom.L.R. 392 = 1924 B. 149. Irregularities in procedure may amount to misconduct. 36 A. 336 = 12 A.L.J. 537 = 27 M.L.J. 181 (P.C.); 85 I.C. 424 = 1924 B. 149; 130 I.C. 833 (Taking third party's opinion). 130 I.C. 833 (Omission to examine necessary witness). 1930 M. 645 (Receiving evidence of one party in absence of other party). Where the terms of reference to arbitration do not authorize the making of private enquiries, an arbitrator making private enquiries, is guilty of legal misconduct. 4 A.L.J. 159; 20 A.L.J. 117 = 65 I.C. 779. See also 26 O.C. 107 = 74 I.C. 401; 10 I.C. 450 = 13 C.L.J. 399; 49 I.C. 303 = 9 P.W.R. 1919. But if the parties had expressly bound themselves to abide by his decision in whatsoever manner he might see fit to arrive at, he cannot be said to be guilty of such misconduct. 20 A.L.J. 125 = 64 I.C. 934; 29 O.C. 258 = 94 I.C. 162 = 1926 O. 383; 119 I.C. 529 = 1929 S. 200. Where certain proceedings were referred to three arbitrators and it appeared that the parties knew that arbitrators might be examined as witnesses and two of them were so examined subsequently each on one side, held, that the award and decree were not vitiated. 34 C.W.N. 689. There is no doubt that if the arbitrators use knowledge or information derived from other sources and if they fail to communicate to the parties what they so know and if the party making objection is prejudiced, the award would be invalidated. But where an arbitrator has been selected because of his personal knowledge of the matters in dispute, it would not be misconduct on his part to use his personal knowledge in coming to a certain decision, although in such cases it is desirable that he should tell the parties what his personal knowledge is and give an opportunity to them to adduce evidence sufficient to vary his views. 41 L.W. 104 = 1935 M. 152 = 155 I.C. 1059 = 69 M.L.J. 558. Where an award has not been substantially affected by any knowledge or information possessed or obtained by the arbitrator and parties are not prejudiced by such an error on the part of the arbitrator, the Court will not interfere. 69 M.L.J. 558. An arbitrator should proceed in his investigation in a proper manner and take evidence in the presence of the parties. Whether his conduct amounts to "misconduct" so as to vitiate the award is a question to be decided by the Court. Simply because the arbitrator asks a person certain questions relating to accounts in the absence of parties, it cannot be said that he misconducts himself. 1935 P. 16. Where it appears from the award that the arbitrator in arriving at the decision was influenced by secret inquiry about the case made by him after recording the evidence and by the opinion of third persons about the merits of the case, his conduct amounts to judicial misconduct and vitiates the award. 1931 L. 111. Private enquiries when justifiable. 67 I.C. 866 = 1922 L. 480; 1936 A.M.L.J. 55; 1936 N. 291. The extent to which an arbitrator may seek outside advice upon matters of law is difficult to prescribe in general terms. Where the language of the award indicated no more than that the umpire took advice upon the general rules of law bearing upon the case and did not mean that he left to an outsider the burden of deciding any issue in the case instead of exercising his own judgment thereon, the umpire cannot be said to be guilty of misconduct and the case against him in this respect is not strengthened merely because the umpire in the exercise of his discretion refused to state a special case. 134 I.C. 1080 = 35 C.W.N. 1287 = 1931 P.C. 289 = 61 M.L.J. 623 (P.C.). See also 145 I.C. 329 = 1933 L. 538. Refusal to call witnesses produced by either party. 12 C.W.N. 569. The failure to hear the parties and, if necessary, their witnesses, unless absolved therefrom by the terms of submission amounts to misconduct on the part of the arbitrator within the meaning of Para. 15. 162 I.C. 772 = 1936 R. 191. See also 39 P.L.R. 582. Also hearing one side and declining to hear the other side. 27 M. 255; 9 A. 253. But when an arbitrator communicates the private information to the other arbitrators and parties who can check the information and contradict it, the award will not be vitiated. 41 M.L.J. 276. Leaking out of contents of award before pronouncement, when arbitrator had not taken any of the parties into his confidence would not constitute misconduct. 125 I.C. 552=1935 O.W.N. 582=1935 Oudh 349. Nor the writing of part of the award by a third party at the dictation of the arbitrator. 1935 O. 349. An arbitrator can conduct business in any way he thinks best and is not fettered by rules of practice or procedure obtaining in Courts. 13 I.C. 520=14 O.C. 308. See also 113 I.C. 785=1929 O. 1. Arbitrators can use their personal knowledge of trade usages. 41 B. 518=37 I.C. 271=18 Bom.L.R. 532. See also 28 Bom.L.R. 986=97 I.C. 673=1926 B. 527; 114 I.C. 367=1929 M. 144. But see 57 I.C. 604. In practice it is advisable that the arbitrator should acquaint the parties of his personal knowledge, so that the parties may alter his opinions by adducing evidence, if necessary. 28 Bom. L.R. 986=1926 B. 527. An honest admission of evidence in violation of rules of evidence is no ground for setting aside an award. 38 B. 60=15 Bom.L.R. 392. Admitting in evidence and absence of inquiry regarding legality of vouchers passed by minors, when not objected to by parties in the course of arbitration proceedings, would not vitiate the award. 164 I.C. 296=1936

L. 492. Nor refusal to summon witnesses cited by party. 39 I.C. 767. What is necessary in the case of arbitration is that once an arbitrator is appointed, the parties to the arbitration are entitled to insist that the arbitration should be proceeded with reasonable speed and if there is any unexplained or unreasonable delay, the parties will be justified in revoking the reference, and if the award is given after long delay, they will be entitled to ask the Court not to file the award. Unreasonable delay on the part of the arbitrator amounts to legal misconduct. I.L.R. (1940) Nag. 659=1940 N.L.J. 393=A.I.R. 1940 Nag. 386. When an award is set aside on the ground of misconduct, the Appellate Court cannot pass a decree in terms of the award. 4 A.L.J. 256. Failure of a party to disclose to the opposite party his relationship and monetary dealings with arbitrator amounts to fraudulent concealment, and would be good ground for setting aside award. 155 I.C. 522=1935 O.W.N. 582=1935 Oudh 349. Where the opposite party coming to know of such relationship omits to object to the arbitration in ignorance of his right to revoke, the omission does not operate as waiver, as there can be no waiver without full knowledge of one's legal rights. 1935 O. 349.

AWARD OUT OF TIME—VALIDITY OF.—The time fixed in the agreement for giving the award can be orally extended. But where the time has not been extended, an award given after the time fixed in the agreement is not valid and binding on the parties. 145 I.C. 129=1933 L. 173. In an arbitration under the orders of Court, it is sufficient if the award is made, that is, completed and signed by the arbitrators, within the time fixed by Court, it is not necessary that it should actually reach the hands of Court within such period to make it valid. There is nothing in C. P. Code, Sch. II, para. 15 to indicate that there is any necessity for the award being submitted or delivered or filed in time in order to maintain its validity. "Made" in the rules does not mean delivery, because "making" and "delivery" indicate different stages. 38 C.W.N. 784. The fact that an award has been filed beyond the period allowed by Court may be only a ground for setting it aside, and obviously, if not set aside, it is a valid award. And Court has jurisdiction to refuse to set aside an award, even where it is made after the expiration of the period allowed by it. The jurisdiction will be exercised on the ground of justice, equity and good conscience. 10 O.W.N. 1177=1933 O. 563.

EXCEEDING TERMS OF REFERENCE.—An award of the arbitrators travelling beyond the reference and not warranted by the terms of reference is unenforceable. 151 I. C. 338=1934 A. 117. Its validity can be challenged under this section. 1935 O.W.N. 1036=158 I.C. 11.

EXCESSIVE COSTS AWARDED BY ARBITRATOR.—An arbitrator who was asked to decide a suit was authorized to deal with costs as they would be dealt with by Court. The arbitrator dismissed the plaintiff's suit but under the circumstances of the case allowed him costs to the extent of Rs. 2,000 even though the ordinary costs in the suit were only about Rs. 100 and even though the plaintiff had not claimed any special costs either in the suit or before arbitrator. Held, that the part of the award dealing with costs was not separable from the rest and that the whole award should be set aside. 146 I. C. 439=27 S.L.R. 327=1933 S. 295.

ARBITRATOR FILING AWARD WHICH ONE OF THEM REFUSED TO SIGN.—The failure of one of several arbitrators to sign an award may have a different effect in different cases, but if one of the arbitrators withdraws from the arbitration altogether and refuses to co-operate with his colleagues, and they nevertheless proceed to give an award without his help, that must amount to misconduct. But if the arbitrators had arrived at a decision but merely waited to sign the award, and in the interval between the decision and the signing of the award, one of them changed his mind and refused to sign it, it does not necessarily follow that the arbitrators have been guilty of misconduct in framing the award and filing it in Court. 152 I.C. 929=1935 A. 90.

COMPROMISE BY PARTIES ACCEPTED BY ARBITRATORS WITHOUT SANCTION OF COURT.—Where a partition suit is referred to arbitration and the arbitrators accepted a compromise consented to by all the parties and by the guardians on behalf of the minors but without sanction of the Court under O. 32, R. 7, the absence of the Court's sanction does not render a decree passed on the compromise void, but only voidable at the option of the minor; and no other party can call it in question except the minor on attaining majority or before then through a next friend. But the very guardians, who had consented to it, cannot subsequently plead that their consent will not affect the right of the minors. (58 C. 628 and 29 C. 167, Ref.) 38 L.W. 927=1933 M. 862=65 M.L.J. 755.

ARBITRATORS TAKING FEES FROM ONE SIDE ONLY—OTHER SIDE UNABLE TO PAY.—It has to be emphasised that though the arbitrators in proceedings referred to them are entitled to payment of their fees in respect of the award they make, yet they should avoid altogether a method of collecting their fees which lays them to imputations of corruption, or at any rate, prejudice—however unfounded such imputations might prove to be on close examination. It is generally undesirable, not to say improper, for arbitrators to take money from one side only before the award is actually made. Such taking of money from one of the parties singly before the making of the award would be sufficient cause to set aside the award. Where the whole sum of money was in the first instance paid by one of the parties, but half of it was provided by way of accommodating the other as the latter was unable to pay his half-share, and the latter did not object to this, and it also appeared from the minutes of the proceedings that the whole matter of payment of fees was one of mutual arrangement between the contending parties, it cannot be said that the arbitrators were guilty of misconduct or were influenced in their decision by the manner in which their fees came into their hands. Though it would have been wiser for the arbitrators, when one of the parties was not in a position to pay his share, to have proceeded and completed their award and then retained their award until such time as their fees were paid by the party in whose favour it was in fact made, the arbitrators are not guilty of such misconduct as would require the setting aside of their award. 38 C.W. N. 784.

REFERENCE OF CROSS-SUITS.—Agreement of parties that proceedings in one may be used to determine questions in the other—Arbitrators proceeding on that basis—Omission to set out issues—Award not invalid. 38 C.W.N. 784. It is only one Court, namely the Court which refers the case to arbitration, that should finally decide the question whether the award is invalid, not only for the reason specifically mentioned in cl. (b), but on other grounds also. 163 I. C. 380=38 P.L.R. 725=1936 L. 466.

CL. (c): "OR BEING OTHERWISE INVALID"—INTERPRETATION OF.—The grounds of invalidity of an award contemplated in Para. 15 (c) refer to those matters which apparently go to the root of the award and matters which merely pertain to procedure and have not been agitated before the arbitrator are not covered by it. 40 P.L.R. 972=1938 Lah. 604. The words "or being otherwise invalid" in section 16 (c) cannot be construed as being ejusdem generis with the two preceding grounds of invalidity. The legislature by inserting those words intended and provided that every ground upon which the validity of the award in law could be challenged should fall within the ambit of the section and could be relied on as a ground for setting aside the award. 12 R. 675=156 I.C. 414=1935 R. 94. There is nothing in the words "or being otherwise invalid" themselves or in their context to limit their operation to cases where an award is invalid only on the ground of something done after the reference and not before or in the reference itself. The words "or being otherwise invalid" include within their meaning questions relating to the validity of a reference. Hence it is open to the trial Court in considering objections to an award under para. 15 of Sch. II to consider and decide objections raised to the validity of the reference. It makes no difference if thereby a Judge may find that his own order of reference is invalid or find that he must thereby reconsider any previous order he has passed on this question. It also makes no difference if thereby the Judge must decide questions which affect his own jurisdiction. 183 I.C. 724=1939 Sind 241 (F.B.). The words "or otherwise invalid" occurring in para. 15 are comprehensive enough to include all kinds of objections. Where the objection that the arbitrator exceeded his powers in drawing an award, is not taken before the Court passing the decree upon the award under para. 15 of Sch. II, a separate suit will not lie to set aside the decree on that ground. 183 I.C. 79=41 P.L.R. 380=1939 L. 69. The last ground in cl. (c) is not to be taken ejusdem generis with the grounds mentioned before. It need not be some ground akin to corruption or misconduct of the arbitrator. 150 I.C. 222=1934 A.L.J. 473=1934 A. 95. A reference was made to arbitration in certain disputes between parties, but criminal proceedings were pending at the time of reference between some of the parties for non-compoundable offences and on application by a party, the District Magistrate withdrew the prosecution before an award was made. On an objection by a party that the award was illegal, one of the considerations being stifling of prosecution. Held, that as an independent and responsible authority, such as a District Magistrate, had intervened and discharged the duty imposed upon him by law, it could not be said that the fact that he acted on the request of one of the parties to a reference made that reference or the award upon it unlawful on the ground that the consideration was immoral or against public policy. 31 S.L.R. 8=169 I.C. 479=A.I.R. 1937 Sind 156. Where an arbitrator supplied the litigant appearing as a party before him with details of the claim against him and proceeded to give his award on the same day. Held, he should have given the party further opportunity to meet the case set up against him. But his failure to do so does not amount to judicial conduct, where the party has not been ignorant of the nature of the claim when he appeared before the arbitrator. Ordinarily a litigant appearing as a party before an arbitrator is entitled to know the details of the claim which has been preferred against him. 171 I.C. 361. An objection to the validity of reference to arbitration comes within the purview of cl. (c). 1936 A.L.J. 1333=1937 A. 65=167 I.C. 99 (F.B.) (1935) A.W.R. 1182=159 I.C. 441=1935 A. 1014 overruled.)

APPLICATIONS TO SET ASIDE AWARD.—An application to set aside an award falls within section 30 and does not include proceedings under sections 15 and 16. 1913 M.W.N. 338=24 M.L.J. 483. See also 10 P.L.T. 53=115 I.C. 680; 7 P.L.T. 644. No form is prescribed for an application to set aside award. 45 B. 1071=23 Bom. L. R. 614. Para. 15 (1) of Sch. II, C. P. Code, is imperative and takes away the jurisdiction of the Court to set aside an award on any ground other than those specified therein. Therefore an order of Court setting aside an award merely on the ground that one of the parties applied to have the award set aside and the other did not object to it, offends against para. 15 (1), C. P. Code and is consequently illegal. 171 I.C. 172=1937 O.W.N. 1002=A.I.R. 1937 Oudh 50. When an objection was taken to referring Court's jurisdiction to entertain suit but no objections to award were filed by either of parties, the Court has no option but to give a decree in accordance with the award, and it is not open to either party to object to the validity of the award on any ground by appeal or by revision. A.I.R. 1937 Lah. 268.

APPEAL FROM DECREE ON AN AWARD.—An appeal lies on the ground that the so-called award was never delivered by the arbitrator and was in fact and in law no award at all. 29 A. 439. No appeal lies from a decree on the sole ground that the arbitrator was guilty of misconduct. 29 A. 457 (F.B.). See also 36 Bom. L.R. 1222; 45 A. 441=21 A.L.J. 326; 65 I.C. 50=15 S.L.R. 165=1922 Sind 1. No appeal lies against an order setting aside an award. 28 A. 408; 11 C. 172. But see 37 A. 456=13 A.L.J. 653; 34 I.C. 192; 15 I.C. 928=236 P.L.R. 1912. (Award can be restored by Court of appeal.) Appeal from order superseding award. See 55 I.C. 1. Judgment partly based on award and partly on findings of fact is appealable. 24 A.L.J. 705=96 I.C. 531=1926 A. 567. Where a decree is passed on an award and it is found that part of the decree was in excess of the award, that portion of the decree which has exceeded the award, cannot be supported in appeal and is liable to be set aside. 1941 R. D. 284.

REVISION.—An order setting aside an award on the ground of misconduct is not liable to revision. 26 B. 551; 6 O.W.N. 816=1929 O. 493; 34 Bom. L. R. 376=1932 B. 232. But see contra 27 A.L.J. 918=1929 A. 743; 51 A. 1010. See also 5 A. 293; 47 A. 916=1925 A. 566. As to finality of award, see also 17 O.C. 33=18 C.W.N. 426=27 M.L.J. 128 (P.C.); 27 A.L.J. 918=1929 A. 743. Where only some of the arbitrators take part in the hearing, but no objection is then taken and the merits of the award are not affected thereby, an order confirming such award is not open to revision on this ground. 38 L.W. 927=1933 M. 862=65 M.L.J. 755. Where the validity of an award is impugned on the ground that the arbitrator held his enquiry in the absence of the objector and the latter applies to Court to summon the arbitrator as a witness to substantiate his allegation, the refusal of Court so to do is not only a material irregularity but is an illegality and the order passed by the Court filing the award and passing a decree on its basis is improper. 145 I.C. 329=34 P.L.R. 397=1933 L. 538. See also 1933 O. 327. The object of this section is to give finality to a decree passed in accordance with the decision of the arbitrator. If the party concerned fails to impeach the award before the Court making the reference or if his objection to the validity of the award is disallowed and a decree is passed in accordance therewith, the award becomes final and the decree passed upon it is not open to appeal or revision. 152 I.C. 90=11 O.W.N. 1203. See also 1933 A. 924. If objection to an award is disallowed and a decree is passed on the award the award becomes final and the decree cannot be challenged either in appeal or revision. The interference in revision by the High Court is discretionary and such power should not be exercised in such cases. (1932 O. 156, Rel. on.) 10 O.W.N. 669=1933 O. 327. But the order made by the Court, where it has acted illegally or with material irregularity in the exercise of its jurisdiction, can be challenged by way of revision though not by way of appeal, whether the illegality or irregularity was committed before the reference to arbitration or after the receipt of the award. 167 I.C. 99=1936 A.L.J. 1333=1937 A. 65 (F. B.). Clause (c) shows that all objections against the validity of an award can be brought in the Court making the reference, the words "or being otherwise invalid" being wide enough to cover all kinds of objections to an award. When once a decree is passed in terms of an award, an appeal is not competent against the decree on the ground that the reference to arbitration was invalid as all the interested parties did not join in making the reference, and revision will be more objectionable than an appeal. 159 I.C. 1041=1936 O.W.N. 16; 163 I.C. 380=38 P.L.R. 725=1936 L. 466.

RIGHT OF SEPARATE SUIT.—Where the proceeding has assumed the character of a reference to arbitration it is governed by this Act and the party cannot institute a separate suit. It cannot be said that there cannot be arbitration proceedings until a valid reference has been made. Court has jurisdiction to entertain objections to the validity of the award and a separate suit for that purpose will not lie. The remedy lies under section 30. 32 Bom.L.R. 389. Where a power of attorney did not authorise the agent to refer to arbitration but nevertheless the agent referred a pending suit to arbitration and an award was passed, the principal who was not aware of the reference and came to know of it only after the proceedings were over, is entitled to institute a suit challenging the validity of the award. He need not file a petition to excuse the delay and urge his objections under section 30. 1933 M.W.N. 1475. When the question raised relates to the validity of the reference itself, the validity of an award following upon the reference can be challenged by a suit. The party so objecting is not bound to take proceedings under section 30. 1935 A.M.L.J. 89.

LIMITATION.—See section 37, infra. The Limitation Act is certainly applicable to arbitration proceedings but it does not necessarily follow that awards which have not been decided in accordance with the Limitation Act are on that account invalid. In any case, where the defendant raised no such plea before the arbitrators or in the subsequent negotiations and the violation of the law of limitation does not appear "upon the face of the award" there is no ground for setting it aside. 133 I.C. 522 (2)=1931 M. 619. See also 9 C. 36; 29 C. 106.

CASES UNDER OLD ARBITRATION ACT (1899).—See 38 Bom.L.R. 380=60 Bom. 645=1936 Bom. 259. The Courts will make every reasonable intendment in favour of an award being a final, certain and sufficient termination of the matters in dispute, and unless and until the contrary is shown, the Court will presume that the arbitrator has determined only such matters as were in dispute and were referred to him, and that the burden of proving that the arbitrator has awarded on matters not within the submission or has failed or omitted to award on matters which were within the submission lies upon the party who seeks to impeach the award. 174 I.C. 334=A.I.R. 1938 Sind 59. Section 14 of the Act applies not only in cases where there has been misconduct on the part of the arbitrators but it also applies to cases where the arbitration itself has been improperly or illegally procured. 1932 Lah. 378. See also 60 Bom. 645=1936 Bom. 259; 157 I.C. 607=41 L.W. 261=1935 M. 349=68 M.L.J. 537. The words of section 14 are sufficiently wide to cover an enquiry into and a decision on the question of the validity of the submission. As the basis of an arbitration is the submission, the improper procuring of an arbitration, which is covered by section 14 must include the question of the validity of the submission. 31 S.L.R. 55=169 I. C. 623=A.I.R. 1937 Sind 110. An objection alleging that consent to a submission has been obtained by misrepresentation would come within the purview of the section. 1930 S. 195. An objection that an award out of Court is invalid for want of jurisdiction may be taken by way of a notice of motion under section 14 of the Act and a separate suit is not necessary. 121 I.C. 760. The fact that an arbitrator fixed the damages for breach of contract at a particular figure though, in his opinion, there were no sufficient materials to assess the damages, is no ground for holding that there is an objection to the legality of the award apparent on the face of it. 122 I.C. 516. The arbitrators must in general have a wide discretion in selecting their method of valuation for purpose of compensation but where they have considered two methods and two methods only and have chosen one of these methods and have rejected the other, it becomes a question of law whether, having regard to their terms of reference their decision can be justified. 169 I. C. 562=A. I. R. 1937 P. C. 214. Where several persons joined to give one reference in very wide terms in favour of a set of arbitrators referring all the disputes to them arising out of different contracts which formed a chain of contracts between them and the arbitrators gave their award, held: that an objection to the award on the ground of multifariousness could not be taken under section 14 of the Act. 1930 S. 170.

WHAT AMOUNTS TO 'MISCONDUCT'.—"Legal misconduct" on the part of an arbitrator does not necessarily involve moral turpitude or dishonesty on the part of the arbitrator. It is misconduct in the judicial sense of the word and has been described generally to mean an erroneous breach of duty on the part of the arbitrator, however honest, which causes miscarriage of the justice. It has also been described as such a mishandling of the arbitration as is likely to amount to some substantial miscarriage of justice. Misconduct is a question of fact in each case and has to be ascertained from the facts of the entire proceedings before the arbitrator. It really lies in the conduct of the arbitration proceedings and the onus of proof lies on the party who alleges it. If a material piece of evidence is tendered and rejected, it may amount to misconduct entitling a party to have the award set aside. 171 I.C. 470=39 Bom.L.R. 476=A.I.R. 1937 Bom. 410. The failure on the part of an arbitrator to give a reasonable opportunity to one of the parties to appear before him amount to misconduct. Misconduct does not necessarily involve any moral turpitude, dishonesty, partiality or bias on the part of the arbitrator. 1924 S. 132. An arbitrator who does not give a party an opportunity to put his case before him and does not decide all points of dispute, is guilty of legal misconduct. 41 C. 313. Where the arbitrators held their sittings for about 14 or 15 months and every opportunity was given to the parties to place their case before the arbitrators and to adduce their evidence, held: that the arbitrators are not guilty of misconduct in giving time to a party to produce their witnesses or in deciding the matter on such evidence as was placed before them. 1933 Sind 300. See also 12 Mys. L. J. 81=39 Mys. H. C. Rep. 263. It is imperative that arbitrators should always scrupulously avoid any course of action which even remotely bears the completion of their having put themselves into a position where it might be said against them that they had received a pecuniary inducement which might have had some effect on their determination of the matters submitted to their adjudication. They ought altogether to avoid a mode of collecting their fees which might lay them to imputations of corruption or prejudice—however unfounded such imputations might prove on close examination. 38 C.W.N. 784. The failure of an arbitrator to sign the award is legal flaw, but when his refusal to sign was at the instance of one of the parties though he had agreed to the award, that party cannot take advantage of the flaw. 20 A.L.J. 392. Arbitrators not acting together—Award not legal. 74 I.C. 299. See also 2 Bur.L.J. 229=1924 Rang. 153; 1930 Cal. 255; 65 I.C. 339=1922 Oudh 108; 30 I.C. 384. Award is vitiated by the legal misconduct of the umpire, if he proceeds with the reference without giving any notice to the parties of the enquiry by him. 70 I.C. 353=16 L.W. 657=1923 Mad. 232. An award given in the absence of one of the parties and without any notice as to the time or the place where the arbitrators would sit to decide the dispute is illegal. 65 I.C. 577. See also 13 C.W.N. 63. Failure of umpire to take fresh evidence. 27 C.W.N. 601. Irregularities in procedure which amount to no proper hearing of the matters in dispute may amount to misconduct enough to vitiate the award. 66 I.C. 349=34 C.L.J. 39. An award passed on reference by a guardian and based on information received in the absence of the parties or on the arbitrator's own knowledge of the facts in regard to the matters in issue between the parties would be invalid. 44 M. L.J. 263. But parties who are sui juris may agree to a reference that the arbitrator shall decide the dispute on his own knowledge or that there is no need for him to take any evidence: and they will be bound by such a reference and no legal misconduct can be imputed to the arbitrator, if he based his award on such materials. (Ibid.) See also 42 All. 185. Where arbitrators have allotted through error of judgment an asset of uncertain and fluctuating value upon the basis of a gross over-valuation, to one branch of the family instead of to all the branches according to their respective shares, this does not amount to misconduct within the meaning of the law of arbitration. 184 I.C. 553=1939 Cal. 500. Award—Criminal complaint of misappropriation—Disputes between parties referred to arbitration—Criminal Court not compounding case—Award acquitting accused holding that there was no misappropriation not valid. 176 I. C. 490=1938 S. 130. Where it is alleged that there was a submission of a specific question of law, it must be such that it can be fairly construed to show that the parties intended to give up their rights to resort to the King's Court, and in lieu thereof to submit that question to the final decision of a tribunal of their own. Where circumstances are not such, then the Court is entitled to interfere with the decision of the arbitrator. I.L.R. (1938) 2 Cal. 349=A.I.R. 1938 Cal. 705.

OBJECTIONS TO AWARD.—Any objection to an award on the ground of misconduct or irregularity on the part of the arbitrator ought no doubt to be taken by motion to set aside the award: but where it is alleged that an arbitrator has acted wholly without jurisdiction, his award can be questioned in a suit brought, for that purpose. 50 C. 1=44 M.L.J. 758=49 I.A. 366 (P.C.). An award which goes beyond the terms of the reference would be set aside. 1937 Cal. 341. Order that arbitrator should make a

(b) that an award has been made after the issue of an order by the Court superseding the arbitration or after arbitration proceedings have become invalid under section 35;

(c) that an award has been improperly procured or is otherwise invalid.

31. (1) Subject to the provisions of this Act, an award may be filed in any Court having jurisdiction in the matter to which the reference relates.

(2) Notwithstanding anything contained in any other law for the time being in force and save as otherwise provided in this Act, all questions regarding the validity, effect or existence of an award or an arbitration agreement between the parties to the agreement or persons claiming under them shall be decided by the Court in which the award under the agreement has been, or may be, filed, and by no other Court.

(3) All applications regarding the conduct of arbitration proceedings or otherwise arising out of such proceedings shall be made to the Court where the award has been, or may be, filed, and to no other Court.

physical partition—Award directing sale of property and diversion of sale proceeds not good and would be set aside. 1938 Sind 59. Where an award by arbitrators is based on grounds, some of which did not justify the exercise of their jurisdiction, and the Court cannot hold with certainty that the arbitrators were exclusively within their jurisdiction the award is null and void. 66 I.C. 342=34 C.L.J. 253. As to objecting to award on the ground of incompleteness or indefiniteness of the award, see 1930 Lah. 425 and cases referred to therein; see also 1930 I.C. 110=59 M.L.J. 336 (P.C.). An award by umpire—Appeal to Board of Directors under bye-law—Composition of Board changing from time to time during hearing—Validity of award. See 36 Bom. L. R. 1005=1934 Bom. 476.

AWARD WHEN CAN BE SET ASIDE.—The Court never sits in appeal from the award of an arbitrator. Its function is to see whether the grounds of misconduct alleged have been strictly proved. In order that the Court may set aside the award on the ground of irregularities in the proceedings, the irregularities must be of such a nature as to amount to no hearing at all. Parties cannot get out of an award upon objections which do not affect the substantial justice of the case. 171 I.C. 470=39 Bom.L.R. 476=A.I.R. 1937 Bom. 410. A party to an arbitration can get an ex parte award passed against him set aside by a Court if he shows sufficient cause for non-appearance. 27 I.C. 135 (2). See also 29 Bom.L.R. 1087. The Arbitration Court has exclusive jurisdiction to adjudicate on matters arising under section 14. 76 I.C. 953. Where an agreement to refer to arbitration is impeached, an injunction may be issued to restrain arbitration proceedings. But when the agreement is not impeached, and a suit covering the matter referred to arbitration is pending, injunction ought not to be issued. 9 I.C. 707. The principles under which the validity of an arbitration should be judged are more rigid than those which apply to a case of family agreement. Where the parties to it were under a misapprehension as to their legal position and right, the award is bad. 2 Pat. 554. Where charges of misconduct and corruption are levelled against an arbitrator, he should be given an opportunity to explain, the charges being put fairly and squarely before him. (113 I.C. 360) and the onus is upon the party to prove the charges. 64 I.C. 706 (All.) In case of an agreement to allow the disputes to be tried by another tribunal, the Court will take into consideration all those grounds as in a case of submission to arbitration. 15 S.L.R. 88. Setting aside award for patent error of law, see 1924 S. 75; for collusion, 46 M.L.J. 334 (P.C.). Error of law or fact by itself no ground. 3 Pat. 443. Nor is the fact that the award is not in accordance with the law of limitation a sufficient ground for setting the award aside, when party took no objection at the time. 1931 M. 619. An agreement that neither party shall take objection to the award or file an appeal cannot control the unrestricted discretion vested in a Court by a statute to set aside the award when it is sought to be filed. The question is not whether a party shall be compelled to carry out the terms of the contract but whether the Court would be exercising a proper discretion in conferring on the award the efficacy of its own decree. 42 I.C. 706.

SEC. 31.—Sec. 31 deals with jurisdiction. It provides that all the matters relating to a single reference shall be before the same Court, and that where there is a choice of forum, it shall be determined by the first application made to a Court in relation to a reference. (Statement of Objects and Reasons.)

(4) Notwithstanding anything contained elsewhere in this Act or in any other law for the time being in force, where in any reference any application under this Act has been made in a Court competent to entertain it, that Court alone shall have jurisdiction over the arbitration proceedings and all subsequent applications arising out of that reference and the arbitration proceedings shall be made in that Court and in no other Court.

32. Notwithstanding any law for the time being in force, no suit shall lie on Bar to suits contesting any ground whatsoever for a decision upon the existence of an arbitration agreement or award, nor shall any arbitration agreement or award be set aside, amended, modified or in any way affected otherwise than as provided in this Act.

33. Any party to an arbitration agreement or any person claiming under him desiring to challenge the existence or validity of an arbitration agreement or an award or to have the effect of either determined shall apply to the Court and the Court shall decide the question on affidavits: Arbitration agreement or award to be contested by application.

Provided that where the Court deems it just and expedient, it may set down the application for hearing on other evidence also, and it may pass such orders for discovery and particulars as it may do in a suit.

refer to the provision of the law contained in section 16, C. P. Code, the implication is obvious when it states where the suit could be instituted. Where mortgaged property which was involved in the award is situated at Sialkot, the Court of the District Judge at Amritsar has no jurisdiction to make an order filing the award, inasmuch as if the subject-matter submitted to arbitration were the subject of a suit, the suit could not be instituted at Amritsar. 178 I.C. 240=40 P. L.R. 598=A.I.R. 1938 Lah. 226.

SECS. 32 and 33.—Secs. 32 and 33 provide that an arbitration agreement or award shall be contested only by application and not by suit. This proposal was made by the Civil Justice Committee and is in consonance with the general principle that the law of arbitration should provide a simple, speedy and cheap settlement of differences. (Statement of Objects and Reasons.)

Having regard to section 32 of the Arbitration Act, 1940, a suit for a declaration that a certain contract containing an arbitration clause is by way of gaming and wagering and as such void and for an injunction to restrain the Tribunal of Arbitration from proceeding with the arbitration is not maintainable. The proper procedure is to make an application to the Court under section 33 of the Act to be decided on affidavits, or on other evidence if deemed expedient by the Court. 45 C.W.N. 881=A.I.R. 1941 Cal. 527.

SEPARATE SUIT WHEN CAN LIE CASES UNDER OLD ACT.—A person dissatisfied with an award, made without the intervention of a Court of justice, is entitled to bring an action to set it aside on the ground that no contract providing for a reference to arbitration was made or that the contract if made was cancelled before the reference in favour of the arbitrator had been executed. 81 I.C.

782=1924 S. 25. Where a party to an award has not merely signed it as an award but understood it, agreed with it, accepted it and acted on it, and took possession of the property dealt with in it, he is estopped from challenging it. It is not open to the Court to go into evidence which has for its object the impugning of that award. (24 A. 164, foll.). I.L.R. (1937) Nag. 449. It is not open to a party to move a Court to set aside an award only on some of his objections and to reserve other objections falling within the scope of section 14 for a separate suit. The principle of constructive res judicata in section 11, Expl. IV, C. P. Code, will apply. 76 I.C. 953. There is no appeal against an order refusing to set aside an award. 17 I.C. 902; 1922 C. 73. Where an award is challenged on the ground that there was no submission to arbitration by the parties, the remedy lies in regular suit and not in an application under section 14. 47 C. 806. See also 32 Bom.L.R. 389. Where a party objects to a reference and award on grounds which go to the very root of the reference, it is open to him to file a suit to set aside the reference and award. 1930 S. 170; 31 C.L.J. 283=56 I.C. 541=24 C.W.N. 454. Award is no bar to a suit is not stayed under para. 18, C. P. Code, Sch. II or section 19 of this Act. See 1926 Sind 86. When an award under the Act has been made and filed, a party affected thereby can maintain a suit to impeach it on grounds not included within section 14. Law does not permit the same question to be decided by a Court of law as well as by an arbitrator and it is only when the dispute before two tribunals is identical that the decision given by the arbitrator must be treated as ultra vires. But where the dispute before arbitration and Civil Court is not the same the jurisdiction of the arbitrator is not ousted. 117 I.C. 74=1929 Lah. 564. A suit to set aside an award made by an arbitrator on a reference by the Registrar of Co-operative Societies on the ground of a patent error of law on a question of limitation, is maintainable. 1940 Rang.L.R. 739. The dispute between A and B regarding boundary line between two territories was referred to arbitration. The agreement referring the dispute to arbitration was contained in a document written in English. A who was ignorant of English affixed his mark to the document which was not explained to him so as to make him understand its true import. Held, that the award was not binding on A and was no bar to the subsequent suit by A against B regarding the same cause of action. 170 I.C. 423=A.I.R. 1937 P.C. 274 (P.C.).

SEC. 34.—Sec. 34 deals with the staying of a suit where a reference concerning the subject matter of the suit and between the same parties is pending. It continues the existing law contained in section 19 of the 1899 Act and paragraph 18 of the Second Schedule to the C. P. Code. (See also Notes under C. P. C. Sch. II para. 18).

One A was appointed the medical referee of an insurance company under a written agreement which provided that A should diligently and faithfully examine medical reports submitted to him by the company. It was also provided that the company would be entitled to terminate the agreement in case of gross negligence of work on the part of A. Lastly, there was an arbitration clause which provided that any dispute arising between parties concerning their rights, liabilities or duties under the agreement would be referred to arbitration. Subsequently the company charged A with gross negligence in respect of a medical report and terminated his services. A thereupon brought a suit for remuneration and damages for the wrongful conduct of the company. Held, that as A was suing for his rights under the agreement and for the damage he had suffered owing to the wrongful termination of it before its expiry, the company had the right to have the suit stayed under section 34. 1941 Cal. 503.

SEC. 34. CASES UNDER OLD ACT—C.P.C. SCH. II, PARA. 18—SUIT IN CONTRAVENTION OF AGREEMENT.—Court can stay such suit. 61 I.C. 322; 66 I.C. 43=2 L. 335=1922 L. 353; 2 L. 19=60 I.C. 776; 39 I.C. 508=92 P.R. 1913; 68 I.C. 235=25 O.C. 63=1922 O. 158. There is a complete machinery under the C.P. Code for enforcing the agreement of parties to refer a matter in dispute between them to arbitration, and once the machinery is provided the choice to have the dispute so settled by arbitrators is left to the parties. If any party who has contracted to settle a dispute by arbitration backs out of it and institutes a suit in disregard of that contract, the Court is given the discretion to stay the suit at the instance of the other party. But if neither party wishes to resort to arbitration, the ordinary Courts of law have jurisdiction to decide the matters in dispute between them. It cannot therefore be said that a suit is not maintainable at all. If one party institutes a suit it is open to the other party if he wants to bind the plaintiff to his contract for having the matter settled by arbitration, to apply to the Court for stay before the settlement of issues. When he does not do that, he cannot in appeal object to the decree passed against him on the ground that the suit is not maintainable as being in violation of the arbitration clause in the contract. 17 Pat. 293=1938 P.W.N. 138. See also I.L.R. (1940) Bom. 249=4 Bom. L.R. 1293=1940 Bom. 93. The power vested in a Court to stay a suit is purely discretionary and can be exercised only on an application made for that purpose by one of the parties to the suit at or before the settlement of issues. 22 I.C. 811=92 P.R. 1913; 68 I.C. 235=25 O.C. 63. See also 1930 M.W.N. 1028. Discretion should not be exercised unjudicially or capriciously. 1937 L. 20.. The existence of the award is a complete bar to the suit until the award is set aside by a Court of competent jurisdiction. 57 I.C. 894. An award extinguishes all claims embraced in the submission and afterwards furnishes the only basis on which the rights of the parties can be determined, and constitutes a bar to any action on the original demand. 25 I.C. 220=7 Bur.L. T. 308. In case of an agreement to allow disputes to be tried by another tribunal, Court will take into consideration all those grounds as in a case of submission to arbitration. 15 S.L.R. 88. Where after a reference to arbitration one of the parties brings a suit against the other and the latter deliberately refrains from applying for stay of the suit he must be deemed to have waived his right to arbitration. 44 A. 292=20 A.L.J. 128. A party to an agreement to refer a dispute to arbitration is not debarred from bringing an independent suit on that the applicant was, at the time when the proceedings were commenced, and still remains, ready and willing to do all things necessary to the proper conduct of the arbitration, such authority may make an order staying the proceedings.

title. 24 I.C. 490=12 A.L.J. 757. This section does not apply if an order for stay of a suit is vacated owing to the refusal of one of the arbitrators to act and the suit is proceeded with. 50 I.C. 879=23 C.W.N. 293. Where in spite of an agreement to refer to arbitration the plaintiff filed the suit and one of the arbitrators refused to act, held, that the plaintiff was entitled to a removal of the stay. The suit was not barred by the agreement to refer to arbitration. 64 I.C. 289=23 Bom.L.R. 511; see also 60 M.L.J. 676. Where a suit has been stayed the Court must first remove the stay order before reviving the suit. 171 I.C. 625=1937 Sind 247. Suit in contravention of agreement to refer dispute to arbitration—Suit not stayed—Award during its pendency—Validity. 157 I.C. 867=1935 L. 916. Proper course of the party relying on award. (Ibid.) Agreement to refer to arbitration after institution of suit. If adjustment within the meaning of O. 23, r. 3—Stay of suit. 38 B. 687=16 Bom.L.R. 653. When parties have deliberately made contracts with an arbitration clause and chosen to select their own forum, there is prima facie duty upon Court to respect the agreement. If difficult questions of law are likely to arise such as would inevitably entail a special case being prepared and reference to Court made by an arbitrator the Court may in the exercise of its discretion refuse to stay. So also, if a question of law would arise which is clearly outside the purview of the arbitration clause and other questions though within it, are so intimately connected with the prime question that a more convenient course would be to try the whole action in Court, a stay may be refused. Stay refused in the particular case. 58 C. 1107=35 C.W.N. 514=53 C.L.J. 321=1931 C. 772; see also 70 C.L.J. 148=43 C.W.N. 879. Where a contract between plaintiffs and defendants, providing for reference to arbitration in case of disputes arising out of the contract, is impeached by a suit by the plaintiffs on equitable grounds, arbitration proceedings which had commenced should be stayed pending the disposal of the suit. 46 I.C. 173=22 C.W.N. 535; see also I.L.R. (1939) 2 Cal. 181=43 C.W.N. 879. The fact that a small portion of the relief claimed is not within the scope of the arbitration clause is not in itself a sufficient reason for refusing to stay proceedings where the main subject of the action is within the clause. 58 C. 1107=134 I.C. 529=35 C.W.N. 514.

The stay of a suit under para. 18 of Sch. II, C.P.Code, as also under section 19 of the Arbitration Act is made by the Court only with a view that the parties may go to arbitration in accordance with their agreement. The stay of a suit will have, therefore, to be refused if there could not be an arbitration at all. An arbitration pre-supposes a dispute or difference between the parties and if no dispute or difference arises before the institution of the suit, there is no occasion for an arbitration, and a pending suit between the parties ought not to be stayed in such cases. I.L.R. (1939) 2 Cal. 181=70 C.L.J. 148=43 C.W.N. 879; see also 42 P.L.R. 48=1940 Lah. 180. The fact that a defence was raised in the written statement that under the agreement between the parties, the parties are bound to appoint arbitrators is not tantamount to an application for stay under para. 18, but is only a defence to the suit. 1938 Mad. 205=(1938) 1 M.L.J. 38. Although a Court has a discretion to stay or to refuse to stay a suit under para. 18, Sch. II, C.P.Code, it is its duty to act upon the agreement to refer to arbitration unless it sees sufficient reason why the dispute should not be referred. Where the lower Court held that there was no valid submission and that there was no contract regarding arbitration between the parties and in its discretionary power did not stay the suit. Held, that it could not be said, that the lower Court exercised its discretion in an unjudicial manner or capriciously. 39 P. L. R. 423=A.I.R. 1937 Lah. 206. Where the Court refers the suit to arbitration in accordance with the agreement between parties to refer to arbitration under para. 18 of Sch. II, C.P.Code, an order adjourning the suit sine die is not proper and the proper order is to adjourn the suit for a definite period. 177 I.C. 440=1936 M.W.N. 1124 (2)=A.I.R. 1938 Mad. 205=(1938) 1 M.L.J. 38. The provisions of para. 8, Sch. II of C.P.Code, the mandatory and an application under that section for stay should be made at the earliest possible opportunity. Where a suit was filed in August, 1933, and the issues were framed in December of that year, but an application to stay the suit was put in only in 1936 and that at the instance of the Court. Held, that it could not be said that the provisions of para. 18 of Sch. II of the C.P.Code have been complied with. 1938 M. 205=(1938) 1 M.L.J. 38.

APPLICABILITY: CASES UNDER SEC. 19 OLD ARBITRATION ACT (1899).—The section does not apply when there is no dispute between the parties, and the mere failure to pay what is admittedly due does not amount to dispute. 1931 B. 164. Where a party to a contract containing arbitration clause brings a suit to impeach the validity of that clause it is not a suit in respect of "any matter agreed to be referred to arbitration" and so the section does not apply. 58 I.C. 790 (S.); 61 I.C. 141 (S.). Before the jurisdiction of a Court to make an order for stay under section 19, can be invoked, it must be established beyond doubt that there is a valid submission. It cannot be said that an arbitration clause is an ordinary incident of a contract for the sale or purchase of goods, and such a clause cannot be incorporated into a contract by reference to another contract between one of the parties and a third party. 38 C.W.N. 737=61 Cal. 702=1934 Cal. 796; see also 41 C.W.N. 563; I.L.R. (1940) Bom. 249=41 Bom. L.R. 1293=1940 Bom. 93. Where a party seeks to avoid the contract for reasons dehors it the arbitration clause cannot be resorted to by him. In other words a party cannot rely on a term of the contract to repudiate it and still say the arbitration clause should not apply. 53 Bom. 573. If in consequence of misrepresentation or other circumstances the clause for reference is invalid, if there is a binding contract at all between the parties, such questions do not constitute disputes arising out of a contract so that when such questions are raised in a suit, section 19 has no application and the Court has no power to stay. 82 I.C. 81 (S.); 44 All. 472 at 480; but see 24 C.W.N. 567; 41 C.W.N. 563.

MEANING OF TERMS.—Where an arbitration clause in a contract provide for a reference to arbitration of any dispute whatsoever arising in or out of the contract the question whether there has been an interpolation in the terms of the contract falls within the arbitration clause and must be decided by arbitrators. Consequently a suit is not maintainable on that ground. A.I.R. 1941 Cal. 415. Where a contract contains an arbitration clause and one party to it alleges breach by the other of its provisions and claims to have rescinded the contract on that ground, the dispute is one arising out of the agreement. If, therefore, the other party brings a suit against him in respect of the contract, he is entitled to an order under section 19 of the Arbitration Act staying that suit. 45 C.W.N. 984. The expression "after appearance" in S. 19 is merely directory and the section is intended to prevent a party from filing an application after he had attorned to the jurisdiction of the Court. 48 I.C. 434 (S.). An appearance for the purpose of making a stay application may be treated as an appearance in the suit. (Ibid.) An oral application for the time to file a written statement by defendant's counsel in answer to a Court's question is taking a "step in the proceedings" within the meaning of section 19. 28 C.W.N. 771=1924 Cal. 789. Any application to the Court, even one for time is a "step in the proceedings" within section 19. 40 I.C. 81 (S.). But merely applying for a copy of plaint is not. 52 Cal. 453. Having regard to the provisions of O. 5, r. 2, C.P. Code, a proceeding must be taken to have commenced within the meaning of section 19, Arbitration Act. only when the defendant is supplied with a copy of the plaint and the fixing of time by the Court for filing a written statement when the defendant has been supplied with a copy of the plaint cannot, in any sense, be regarded as a step taken by the defendant in the proceedings inasmuch as time for filing the written statement is necessarily given by the Court. A. I.R. 1941 Lah. 64.

BURDEN OF PROOF.—When a suit is filed in connection with a dispute, the onus is on the plaintiff to show why he should not be bound by the agreement to refer. 75 I.C. 1041=1924 S. 49; see also 47 Cal. 849; 44 C.W.N. 607; 1940 Lah. 186. The burden of proving that a particular dispute cannot be referred to arbitration lies on the party alleging it. 53 Bom. 271. Where a defendant does not plead at the early stages of a trial a subsisting agreement to refer to arbitration but submits to the jurisdiction of the Court and allows the trial to proceed, he cannot afterwards raise the plea. 20 A. L.J. 975=71 I.C. 144=1923 A. 139.

COURT EMPOWERED TO STAY.—The "Court" means the Court trying the suit and not the District Court. 1928 Bom. 275; 1931 Lah. 66; 1931 Lah. 644; 1931 Sind 106. "The Court in section 19 means the Court seized of the case, where such Court, be a High Court or a District Court, or any other Court, of inferior jurisdiction, such as the Court of Small Causes or a subordinate Court. It is that Court which is in a better position to know and to decide expeditiously whether the application for stay has been filed after appearance in Court and before taking any step in the proceedings. (Case-law reviewed.) 1933 Sind 376 (F.B.); 150 I.C. 839. Court in section 19 of the Act is the one in which the proceedings or other attempts to bring a suit are in fact. 43 All. 553.

STAY.—The Court is vested with a discretion either to stay or not to stay the suit; but the discretion must be guided by judicial principles. 75 I.C. 1041=1924 S. 49; 43 C.L.J. 297; 54 Bom. 197; 56 C. 848; 55 I.C. 817 (C.); I.L.R. There can be no stay of proceedings under section 19 when there is no "submission" in the true sense of the word. A submission to arbitration, which deprives a party of his right under the law to have his disputes decided by a Court of law, must be construed strictly; and unless it clearly appears from the terms of the submission that a party has

Where legal proceedings were for a long time threatened against a person in respect of a contract which provided for all settlement of disputes by arbitration, and when instituted that person applied for a stay of suit pending arbitration he can claim it as a matter of right. "STEPS IN THE PROCEEDINGS"—MEANING OF.—If a party formally appears before the Registrar of the Court through his advocate's clerk, before he has had a reasonable time to enable him to decide on the course of action to be taken, that cannot ordinarily debar him from applying for stay of suit; that cannot amount to a step in the proceeding within the meaning of section 19. 28 S.L.R. 223=1934 Sind 200. Application for adjournment is not a step in the proceedings. 61 Cal. 702=38 C.W.N. 737=1934 Cal. 796. See also I.L.R. (1937) 2 Cal. 63=41 C.W.N. 1261; 1941 Lah. 64. An application made to the Court for postponement of the hearing of the suit is a step in the proceedings within the meaning of section 19 irrespective of the intention with which the application is made. Whether the applicant wishes to have further time to file a written statement or to raise as a bar to the suit the agreement to refer to arbitration, in either event, his application is an application, to invite the Court to do something which would enable him to establish his defence. It is for the Court to determine whether any particular act or application is a step in the proceeding. 155 I.C. 895=28 S.L.R. 366=1935 S. 62. Where the defendant asked for an adjournment of the hearing of the summons taken out by the plaintiff to compel him to file the written statement, and the adjournment was obtained by consent and without prejudice to the defendant's pending application for stay of the suit. Held, that the defendant did not take any step in the proceedings within the meaning of the section. I.L.R. (1937) 2 Cal. 63=41 C.W.N. 1261.

EVIDENCE.—Before an order staying proceedings, can be made, it must be proved that there is a valid submission, that there is no sufficient reason why the matter should not be referred according to the submission and that the applicant was and is ready to do all things necessary to the proper conduct of the arbitration. 47 Cal. 1020. It is largely in the discretion of the Court to make an order staying proceedings in such a matter and when the discretion has been exercised, the Appellate Court will interfere only when a strong case is made out. 47 Cal. 1020. A suit is not barred by a reference to arbitration made before, but the award in which is delivered after the suit. 56 I.C. 150=13 S.L.R. 193. It is for the party who is invoking the Arbitration Act to prove his right so to do. 44 C.W.N. 607. Where an application is filed by a defendant for stay of the suit under section 19 of the Arbitration Act, the onus is always on the plaintiff to show why he should not be bound by an agreement to refer disputes to arbitration. A.I.R. 1940 Lah. 180=42 P.L.R. 48. Arbitrators can decide questions of law and the occurrence of a difficult or complicated question of law is not a sufficient ground to take the matter out of the arbitrator's hands. 58 C. 1107. But see 1941 Sind 99. Held that as the main dispute in this case involved an important and intricate question of law the Court was entitled to exercise its discretion and was justified in refusing stay of suit. A.I.R. 1941 Sind 99. So long as the authority delegated to an arbitrator is not revoked he has the power to make an award and there would be no impropriety of conduct on his part in proceeding with the reference after a suit is filed unless he has notice that there has been an application for leave to revoke the authority conferred on him to some competent Court. 35 I.C. 536=10 S.L.R. 1. Though it appears desirable to have the matter tried in Court the proper course is not to ignore the arbitration but to direct the defendant to take necessary steps to revoke the submission. 35 I.C. 536=10 S.

NOTES.

L.R. 1. See also 11 I.C. 274 (S.). An arbitration clause in a contract does not oust the jurisdiction of the Court in case of its breach. 20 I.C. 504=7 S.L.R. 1. Where an action has been commenced upon a contract which contains a provision for reference to arbitration then even if a reference to arbitration has taken place before the suit is instituted and if no application is made to stay the suit pending the arbitration, the award is of no effect. 38 C.L.J. 67. Section 19 of the Arbitration Act is in the nature of a summary procedure and does not normally include any lengthy or protracted inquiry or investigation. The Arbitration Act requires a submission in writing, and the fact that a contract or submission in writing exists has to be established by the person who comes to Court and applies for a stay. On the assumption that a contract which contains a submission in writing exists, an application may be made, because on that assumption the arbitrators have jurisdiction. If the fact of the contract itself is disputed, the arbitrators cannot decide the point, and the Court in the normal course would refuse a stay. Merely sending contract notes by a party to another without any confirmation notes signed by the other party does not amount to a submission in writing as required by the Arbitration Act. I.L.R. 1940 Bom. 249=187 I.C. 494=41 Bom.L.R. 1293=A.I.R. 1940 Bom. 93. See also 1940 Lah. 265.

ESTOPPEL.—Where after the trial Court dismissed the defendants' application for stay under section 19 and pending an appeal therefrom, the defendants applied for an adjournment to file a written statement and consented to the issues being referred to the Commissioner, held, that those facts did not constitute evidence of consent on the part of the defendants precluding them from urging their application for stay in the appellate Court. (4 I.C. 359, Rel.) 27 S.L.R. 169=140 I.C. 626=1933 Sind 75.

STAY—GROUNDS FOR—CONSIDERATIONS FOR COURT.—Under section 19, a suit can only be stayed when it is in respect of any matter agreed to be referred but not otherwise. If it is not in respect of the same matter which is agreed to be referred there can be no stay of suit and there can be no question that the arbitrators are functus officio until such suit is stayed. Where one of the parties who have agreed to refer the dispute to arbitration files a suit praying for a declaration that the other party has no right to refer any matter to arbitration and that the arbitrators have no jurisdiction in any matter relating to the agreements between the parties, their claim strikes at the very root of the submission clause, but does not come within the submission clause as to render the arbitrators functus officio. The mere fact that the other party has applied for stay of suit under section 19 and that the application is pending does not affect the question nor does the institution of suit by the party objecting to the award when it is instituted subsequent to the filing of award. 1935 Sind 228. There is nothing in section 19 of the Arbitration Act to justify the conclusion that an order of stay can be passed under the section even after the award had been given. The object of passing an order staying the suit under section 19, is to allow the parties to proceed with the arbitration. But if before the application for stay is made or has been disposed of the arbitrators have already made the award, there will be no point in making the stay order. In that event, the proper course for the opposite party would be to plead the award in bar of the suit and not to obtain an order staying the suit pending arbitration which had already terminated. A.I.R. 1937 Lah. 851. See also 155 I.C. 932=1935 Bom. 155; 1941 Cal. 415. What is a sufficient cause for refusing to stay on an application for stay under section 19 depends on the particular facts of each case. The fact that a submission clause does not include all the matters which are the subject of legal proceedings may be a sufficient cause for refusing to stay. When there is a charge of fraud or forgery against one of the parties to a submission clause, a Court has discretion to refuse a stay. Generally speaking where the party charged desires a public inquiry, the Court will generally refuse to send the case to arbitration, but where the party making the charge desires that the matter should be dealt with in Court, the Court will be less inclined to stay the suit. 155 I.C. 895=1935 Sind 62. Stay will not be ordered where an important and intricate question of law is involved. 1941 Sind 99. See also 45 C.W.N. 984. Where an agreement in writing was entered into between the plaintiffs and the defendants, which contained a clause, whereby it was provided that in case of disputes between the parties arising out of the agreement, the matter should be submitted to arbitration, and the plaintiff's case is that the contract was rescinded by him as the defendants were guilty of a breach of some of the written as well as the oral terms of the contract relating to payment, the dispute between the parties arises out of the agreement, the question being whether the defendants committed a breach of the terms, and the defendants are, therefore, entitled to an order staying the suit of the plaintiffs for a declaration that the contract has been validly rescinded. But when the case of the plaintiffs is that the person who signed the contract as representing them had no authority to do so, that there was, therefore, no contract between the parties and, accordingly, no agreement to refer to arbitration, a suit by them for a declaration

35. (1) No reference nor award shall be rendered invalid by reason only of the commencement of legal proceedings upon the subject-matter of the reference, but when legal proceedings upon the whole of the subject-matter of the reference have been commenced between all the parties to the reference and a notice thereof has been given to the arbitrators or umpire, all further proceed-that they did not enter into the alleged contract is not, so far as it deals with that contract, in respect of a matter referred within the meaning of section 19 of the Arbitration Act, and the defendants are not, therefore, entitled to a stay of the suit. 41 C.W.N. 563. If allegations of fraud and coercion go to the very root of the agreement to refer to arbitration, or if they relate to matters outside the scope of the submission, the only forum to decide that matter is the Civil Court. In either of these cases section 19 will ex necessitate rei be inapplicable. If on the other hand, misrepresentation, fraud or coercion is alleged to have been committed in reference to matters which are sought to be proved in proof or disproof of the contentions of the parties relating to a dispute which has been, or can be validly referred to arbitration in accordance with the original agreement, this will not necessarily be a ground for declining to stay the suit. A.I.R. 1937 Lah. 851. See also 48 L.W. 399=1938 Mad. 918=(1938) 2 M.L.J. 531.

PRACTICE.—In respect of a suit pending on the file of the Judicial Commissioner at Sind, the practice is to file a separate application for stay under section 19 of the Act and not an application in the suit. 27 S.L.R. 169=140 I.C. 626=1933 Sind 75.

MISCELLANEOUS.—A decision of a Judge as an arbitrator with the consent of the parties is binding on the parties as if it were an award of an arbitrator, even though the Judge, as such, had no jurisdiction over the matter in controversy. But this doctrine cannot apply where the Judge was chosen as arbitrator not voluntarily but under great judicial pressure. 15 C.L.J. 142=13 I.C. 898=16 C.W.N. 444. An agreement to refer to arbitrator is not bad merely for the reason that it included disputes other than that before the Court, if there was a distinct clause to the effect that the arbitrators would only report to the Court their decision on the subject-matter of the suit. 76 I.C. 1007=1923 Lah. 411. Where a private information got by an arbitrator was, in the presence of the parties, communicated to the other arbitrators, an award by them is not invalid. Courts proceed very warily in allowing revision in awards. 41 M.L.J. 676. The umpire is not justified in the face of an objection by either party in taking any part of the evidence from the notes of the arbitrators unless there are specific provisions in the submission permitting him to do so. 64

I.C. 706. When a Court is asked to file an award, it is not sitting as a Court of appeal from the arbitrators; but the Court can certainly decide if the award sought to be filed is the production of a tribunal duly constituted under the terms of a contract binding on both parties. 44 A. 481. Where the Court below had cancelled the reference to arbitration on account of the delay in making the award, it is not competent to the appellate Court to look into the award or treat it as if it were the report of a commissioner. 4 Lah.L.J. 48=1922 L. 194 (2). On this section, see also 39 C. 669 (Rules of Bengal Chamber of Commerce); 1923 Lah. 453; 28 C.W.N. 140=27 Bom. L.R. 1098=1925 Bom. 449=09 B 854=38 C.L.J. 67. (Specific performance of agreement to refer to arbitration); 56 M.L.J. 291; 27 Bom.L.R. 568 (Sole arbitrator appointed by one party).

RES JUDICATA.—Where an application for stay is rejected and the order is not set aside, a second application for stay is barred as res judicata even if the first order is erroneous. 1935 Sind 62=155 I.C. 895=28 S.L.R. 366. An order staying the suit, if made on a fraudulent misrepresentation can be reversed by the Court making the order, if it is satisfied of the fraud and misrepresentation of the other side and the suit can in the circumstances be revived. Similarly, the Court is empowered under section 151, C.P.Code, to make any order as may be necessary for ends of justice or to prevent abuse of the process of the Court. Nothing in the Arbitration Act bars this action. 190 I.C. 576=A.I.R. 1940 Lah. 265.

APPEAL.—From an order refusing stay under section 19 no appeal lies; only revision is competent. 1937 Lah. 206; 1936 Sind 205.

REVISION.—An application made under section 19 is not an interlocutory proceeding or a mere branch of a suit within the meaning of section 115 of the C.P.Code. It is a case in itself and decides finally between the parties whether the matter shall or shall not be decided by arbitration; therefore an application in revision will lie and is not excluded by section 115. 1936 Sind 205. See also 1937 Lah. 206.

SEC. 35.—Section 35 relates to the effect of subsequent legal proceedings on a pending reference. Such proceedings will not affect the reference unless (a) they relate to the whole of the referred matter, and (b) all the parties to the reference are impleaded in the proceedings. Where these condiings in a pending reference shall, unless a stay of proceedings is granted under section 34, be invalid.

(2) In this section the expression "parties to the reference" includes any persons claiming under any of the parties and litigating under the same title.

36. Where it is provided (whether in the arbitration agreement or otherwise) that an award under an arbitration agreement shall be a condition precedent to the bringing of an action with respect to any matter to which the agreement applies, the Court, if it orders (whether under this Act or any other law) that the agreement shall cease to have effect as regards any particular difference may further order that the said provision shall also cease to have effect as regards that difference.

Power of Court where arbitration agreement is ordered not to apply to a particular difference, to order that a provision making an award a condition precedent to an action shall not apply to such difference.

Limitations.

37. (1) All the provisions of the Indian Limitation Act, 1908, shall apply to arbitrations as they apply to proceedings in Court.

(2) Notwithstanding any term in an arbitration agreement to the effect that no cause of action shall accrue in respect of any matter required by the agreement to be referred until an award is made under the agreement, a cause of action shall, for the purpose of limitation, be deemed to have accrued in respect of any such matter at the time when it would have accrued but for that term in the agreement.

(3) For the purposes of this section and of the Indian Limitation Act, 1908, an arbitration shall be deemed to be commenced when one party to the arbitration agreement serves on the other parties thereto a notice requiring the appointment of an arbitrator, or where the arbitration agreement provides that the reference shall be to a person named or designated in the agreement requiring that the difference be submitted to the person so named or designated.

(4) Where the terms of an agreement to refer to future differences to arbitration provide that any claims to which the agreement applies shall be barred unless notice to appoint an arbitrator is given or an arbitrator is appointed or some other step to commence arbitration proceedings is taken within a time fixed by the agreement, and a difference arises to which the agreement applies, the Court, if it is of opinion that in the circumstances of the case undue hardship would otherwise be caused, and notwithstanding that the time so fixed has expired, may on such terms, if any, as the justice of the case may require, extend the time for such period as it thinks proper.

(5) Where the Court orders that an award be set aside or orders, after the commencement of an arbitration, that the arbitration agreement shall cease to have effect with respect to the difference referred, the period between the commencement of the arbitration and the date of the order of the Court shall be tions are fulfilled the legal proceedings will nullify the arbitration proceedings on the expiry of the time within which an application to stay the legal proceedings may be made or on the refusal of such an application. (Statement of Objects and Reasons)

CHANGES MADE BY THE SELECT COMMITTEE.
—“We have substituted the words “unless a stay of proceedings is granted under section 34” for the words “on the expiry of the time for making an application under section 34 or on the rejection of such an application”, because the giving of notice to the arbitrators should be the time after which arbitration proceedings become invalid and invalidity should only result if the Court does not grant a stay proceedings.” (Rep. of Sel. Com.)

SEC. 36.—Section 36 is based on section 5 (4) of the 1934 Act of Parliament and supplies an omission in the present Indian Law. An agreement may contain a clause that no legal proceedings shall be taken on a certain matter unless the matter has first been made the subject-matter of an award. It is necessary to empower the Court to overrule this provision when the award is set aside or otherwise becomes void.

SEC. 37.—Section 37 makes provision as to limitation in arbitration matters and follows closely section 16 of the 1934 Act of Parliament.

excluded in computing the time prescribed by the Indian Limitation Act, 1908, for the commencement of the proceedings (including arbitration) with respect to the difference referred.

38. (1) If in any case an arbitrator or umpire refuses to deliver his award except on payment of the fees demanded by him, the Court may, on an application in this behalf, order that the arbitrator or umpire shall deliver the award to the applicant on payment into Court by the applicant of the fees demanded, and shall, after such inquiry, if any, as it thinks fit, further order that out of the money so paid into Court there shall be paid to the arbitrator or umpire by way of fees such sum as the Court may consider reasonable and that the balance of the money, if any, shall be refunded to the applicant.

(2) An application under sub-section (1) may be made by any party to the reference unless the fees demanded have been fixed by written agreement between him and the arbitrator or umpire, and the arbitrator or umpire shall be entitled to appear and be heard on any such application.

(3) The Court may make such orders as it thinks fit respecting the costs of an arbitration where any question arises respecting such costs and the award contains no sufficient provision concerning them.

CHAPTER VI.

APPEALS.

39. (1) An appeal shall lie from the following orders passed under this Act (and from no others) to the Court authorised by law to hear appeals from original decrees of the Court

Appealable orders.

NOTES.

CHANGES MADE BY THE SELECT COMMITTEE.—We have omitted the words "the Court may further order that" because we feel that a mere order of the Court might not avail to affect the law of limitation. Without these words the clause will operate with statutory force to affect that law. (Report of Select Committee.)

SEC. 38.—Section 38 deals with disputes as to the arbitrator's fees and costs and follows generally section 13 of the 1934 Act of Parliament and para. 13 of the Second Schedule to the Code. The Court may require the arbitrator to deliver up the award on the deposit into Court of the amount he claims, and may then investigate the claim and grant to the arbitrator such sum as fees as it thinks reasonable—(Statement of Objects and Reasons).

CASES UNDER THE OLD ACT.—Costs incurred before umpire or arbitrator are not to be regarded as costs incurred in Court. Costs refers to costs incurred in Court where there is no valid reference or valid award Court has no jurisdiction to award costs. 1928 Mad. 370=54 M.L.J. 580. If the submission does not leave the question of costs to the arbitrators they cannot decide it. 9 B. 82. When under the reference all matters in dispute between the parties are referred, the arbitrators can deal with the question of costs. 1 Beng.L.R. (O.C.). 144. Court can award arbitration fees as costs in a suit where no award is made or where it is silent though an award has been made. 19 I.C. 611=6 S.L.R. 226. Costs incurred in processes of obtaining an order from Court are within the discretion of the Court, and outside the province of arbitrators but an award is not bad merely because of their inclusion. 27 I.C. 526=8 S.L.R. 136; 7 O.W.N. 97=1930 O. 89. In the absence of any express provision in the Act for the remuneration of arbitrators, the English Law should be applied unless there is an express provision to the contrary; and no such prohibition exists in the Code. The term "costs of the arbitration" is wide and general, and there is no justification for limiting it to such costs as might be represented by travelling expenses and the summoning of witnesses. Court has, therefore, jurisdiction to award remuneration to the arbitrators for their services. 152 I.C. 373=17 N.L.J. 153=1934 N. 199. The words of para. 13 of Sch. II, C.P. Code, are very wide, and allow the Court to make such order as it thinks fit respecting the costs of arbitration if any question arises respecting such costs. A provision relating to arbitrator's fees is most often made in the award itself and the fees so provided would be deemed part of the costs of arbitration. But even if the award contains no sufficient provision respecting such fees, and though the award may be set aside, the Court has power to award the arbitrator's fees as part of the costs of the arbitration and as costs of the proceedings incidental to the suit under section 35, C.P. Code. From an order awarding a sum of money as fees to an arbitrator in arbitration proceedings revision would lie to the High Court, though the latter would not interfere unless it involves any question of any irregularity in jurisdiction, e.g., when the amount awarded is very excessive. I.L.R. (1940) Kar. 34=190 I.C. 880=A.I.R. 1940 Sind 190.

SEC. 39.—Section 39 deals with appeals and passing the order:—

An order—

- (i) superseding an arbitration;
- (ii) on an award stated in the form of a special case;
- (iii) modifying or correcting an award;
- (iv) filing or refusing to file an arbitration agreement;
- (v) staying or refusing to stay legal proceedings where there is an arbitration agreement;
- (vi) setting aside or refusing to set aside an award:

Provided that the provisions of this section shall not apply to any order passed by a Small Cause Court.

(2) No second appeal shall lie from an order passed in appeal under this section, but nothing in this section shall affect or take away any right to appeal to His Majesty in Council.

CHAPTER VII.

MISCELLANEOUS.

Small Cause Court not to have jurisdiction over arbitrations save arbitrations in suits before it.

40. A Small Cause Court shall have no jurisdiction over any arbitration proceedings or over any application arising thereout save on application made under section 21.

Procedure and power of Court.

41. Subject to the provisions of this Act and of rules made thereunder—

(a) the provisions of the Code of Civil Procedure, 1908, shall apply to all proceedings before the Court, and to all appeals, under this Act, and

(b) the Court shall have, for the purpose of, and in relation to, arbitration proceedings; the same power of making orders in respect of any of the matters set out in the Second Schedule as it has for the purpose of, and in relation to, any proceedings before the Court:

Provided that nothing in clause (b) shall be taken to prejudice any power which may be vested in an arbitrator or umpire for making orders with respect to any of such matters.

42. Any notice required by this Act to be served otherwise than through the Court by a party to an arbitration agreement or by an arbitrator or umpire shall be served in the manner provided in the arbitration agreement, or if there is no such provision, either—

- (a) by delivering it to the person on whom it is to be served, or
- (b) by sending it by post in a letter addressed to that person at his usual or last known place of abode or business in British India and registered under Chapter VI of the Indian Post Office Act, 1898.

NOTES.

replaces that part of section 104 (1) of the Code of Civil Procedure, 1908, which this Act repeals.

SEC. 40.—Section 40 has the effect of providing that Small Cause Courts shall not deal with arbitrations other than arbitrations in suits before it. Section 41 and the Second Schedule deal with procedure. The clause confers generally the same powers as the Court enjoys under the Code of Civil Procedure and with the Schedule adds certain special powers in relation to arbitrations on the lines of section 8 (1) of the 1934 Act of Parliament.

CHANGES MADE BY THE SELECT COMMITTEE.—“We have substituted the expression arbitration proceedings’ for the words ‘a reference’ in order to cover the various kinds of proceedings which the Act contemplates.”—(Report of Select Committee.)

SEC. 42.—Section 42 makes provision for the service of notices under the Act between parties or between arbitrator and parties.

CHANGES MADE BY THE SELECT COMMITTEE.—“We have omitted the provision that substituted service may be effected by leaving a notice at the usual or last known place of abode of a person”.

SEC. 43.—Section 43 follows para. 7 of the Second Schedule to the Code in requiring the Court to assist the arbitrator to enforce the production of evidence and Power of Court to issue processes for appearance before arbitrator.

43. (1) The Court shall issue the same processes to the parties and witnesses whom the arbitrator or umpire desire to examine as the Court may issue in suits tried before it.

(2) Persons failing to attend in accordance with such process, or making any other default, or refusing to give their evidence, or guilty of any contempt to the arbitrator or umpire during the investigation of the reference, shall be subject to the like disadvantages, penalties and punishments by order of the Court on the representation of the arbitrator or umpire as they would incur for the like offences in suits tried before the Court.

(3) In this section the expression "process" includes summonses and commissions for the examination of witnesses and summonses to produce documents.

Power to High Court to make rules.

44. The High Court may make rules consistent with this Act as to—

(a) the filing of awards and all proceedings consequent thereon or incidental thereto;

(b) the filing and hearing of special cases and all proceedings consequent thereon or incidental thereto;

(c) the staying of any suit or proceeding in contravention of an arbitration agreement;

(d) the forms to be used for the purposes of this Act;

(e) generally, all proceedings in Court under this Act.

Crown to be bound.

45. The provisions of this Act shall be binding on the Crown.

46. The provisions of this Act, except sub-section (1) of section 6 and sections 7, 12 and 37, shall apply to every arbitration under any other enactment for the time being in force, as if the arbitration were pursuant to an arbitration agreement and as if that other enactment were an arbitration agreement, except in so far as this Act is inconsistent with that other enactment or with any rules made thereunder.

47. Subject to the provisions of section 46, and save in so far as is otherwise provided by any law for the time being in force, the provisions of this Act shall apply to all arbitrations and to all proceedings thereunder:

Act to apply to all arbitrations.

Provided that an arbitration award otherwise obtained may with the consent of all the parties interested be taken into consideration as a compromise or adjustment of a suit by any Court before which the suit is pending.

NOTES.

empowering the Court to punish default or contempt before the arbitrators as if it were committed before the Court—(Statement of Objects and Reasons). There is nothing illegal in parties to an arbitration agreeing before Panchayatdars to have evidence taken after the administration of any reasonable form of oath to witnesses. 29 I.C. 49=2 L.W. 320. The words "refusing to give their evidence in section 43 (2) are intended to refer to the case of a person who refuses to give evidence when placed on oath and required to answer questions put to him. 11 I.C. 259=8 A.L.J. 929.

SEC. 44.—Section 44 reproduces with small changes section 20 of the 1899 Act and empowers High Courts to make rules.

SEC. 45.—Section 45 repeats section 22 of the 1899 Act and binds the Crown.

SEC. 46.—Section 46 applies with certain exceptions the provisions of the Act to statutory arbitrations, and is based on section 20 of the 1934 Act of Parliament.

SEC. 47.—Section 47 applies, subject to section 46, the Act to all arbitrations. The section replaces section 89 of the Code of Civil Procedure, 1908, which this Act repeals. —(See Statement of Objects and Reasons).

CHANGES MADE BY THE SELECT COMMITTEE.—"The section has been re-drafted in order to remove the dangers of the provision that an arbitration award obtained otherwise than in accordance with all the provisions of the Act should be unenforceable for any purpose. The effect which the section as re-drafted is designed to produce is that arbitrations shall not be conducted in any

48. The provisions of this Act shall not apply to any reference pending at the commencement of this Act, to which the law in force immediately before the commencement of this Act shall, notwithstanding any repeal effected by this Act, continue to apply.

Saving for pending references.

Repeals and amendments.

(2) The enactments specified in the Fourth Schedule are hereby amended to the extent and in the manner mentioned in the fourth column thereof.

THE FIRST SCHEDULE

IMPLIED CONDITIONS OF ARBITRATION AGREEMENTS.

1. Unless otherwise expressly provided, the reference shall be to a sole arbitrator.
2. If the reference is to an even number of arbitrators, the arbitrators shall appoint an umpire not later than one month from the latest date of their respective appointments.
3. The arbitrators shall make their award within four months after entering on the reference or after having been called upon to act by notice in writing from any party to the arbitration agreement or within such extended time as the Court may allow.
4. If the arbitrators have allowed their time to expire without making an award or have delivered to any party to the arbitration agreement or to the umpire a notice in writing stating that they cannot agree, the umpire shall forthwith enter on the reference in lieu of the arbitrators.
5. The umpire shall make his award within two months of entering on the reference or within such extended time as the Court may allow.
6. The parties to the reference and all persons claiming under them shall, subject to the provisions of any law for the time being in force, submit to be examined by the arbitrators or umpire on oath or affirmation in relation to the matters in difference and shall, subject as aforesaid, produce before the arbitrators or umpire all books, deeds; papers, accounts, writings and documents within their possession or power respectively which may be required or called for, and do all other things which, during the proceedings on the reference, the arbitrators or umpire may require.
7. The award shall be final and binding on the parties and persons claiming under them respectively.
8. The costs of the reference and award shall be in the discretion of the arbitrators or umpire who may direct to, and by whom, and in what manner; such costs or any part thereof shall be paid and may tax or settle the amount of costs to be so paid or any part thereof and may award costs to be paid as between legal practitioner and client.

THE SECOND SCHEDULE.

POWERS OF COURT.

1. The preservation, interim custody or sale of any goods which are the subject-matter of the reference.
2. Securing the amount in difference in the reference.
3. The detention, preservation or inspection of any property or thing which is the way repugnant to the Act and that any arbitration award may with the consent of the parties be used for the purposes of rule 3 of O. XXIII of the Code of Civil Procedure".—(Report of Select Committee.)

SEC. 48.—Section 48 saves reference pending at the commencement of this enactment: such references will continue to be governed by the existing law. The Arbitration Act of 1899 must govern an application made thereunder even though the new Act of 1940 comes into operation at the time when the application is heard. A.I.R. 1941 Cal. 415.

SCH. I.—The first Schedule follows the First Schedule to the 1899 Act. The main differences are (a) arbitrators are required to appoint an umpire within a month of their own appointment, (b) the power to enlarge the time for making the award is transferred to the Court (Cf. section 29), and (c) Item VII is omitted as redundant in view of Clause 13 (a).

CHANGES MADE BY THE SELECT COMMITTEE.—"The change made in rule 2 removes a difficulty which might otherwise arise in connection with sub-cl. (2), section 10 of the Act. If where there are three arbitrators the award of the majority shall prevail, the appointment of an umpire is superfluous. The changes made in rules 3 and 5 are merely for the purpose of slightly increasing the limits of time fixed by those rules" (Report of Select Committee.)

4. Interim injunctions or the appointment of a receiver.

5. The appointment of a guardian for a minor or person of unsound mind for the purposes of arbitration proceedings.

THE ARBITRATION (PROTOCOL AND CONVENTION) ACT (VI OF 1937).<sup>1</sup>

An Act to make certain further provisions respecting the law of arbitration in British India. [4th March, 1937.]

WHEREAS India was a State signatory to the Protocol on Arbitration Clauses set forth in the First Schedule, and to the Convention on the Execution of Foreign Arbitral Awards set forth in the Second Schedule, subject in each case to a reservation of the right to limit its obligations in respect thereof to contracts which are considered as commercial under the law in force in British India;

AND WHEREAS it is expedient, for the purpose of giving effect to the said Protocol and of enabling the said Convention to become operative in British India, to make certain further provisions respecting the law of arbitration;

It is hereby enacted as follows:—

Short title, extent and operation.

1. (1) This Act may be called THE ARBITRATION (PROTOCOL AND CONVENTION) ACT, 1937.

(2) It extends to the whole of British India, including British Baluchistan and the Sonthal Parganas.

(3) The provisions of this Act, except this section shall have effect only from such date as the Central Government may, by notification in the Official Gazette, appoint in this behalf, and the Central Government may appoint different dates for the coming into effect of different provisions of the Act.

2. In this Act "foreign award" means an award on differences relating to matters considered as commercial under the law in force in British India, made after the 28th day of

for Report of Select Committee, see ibid., 1937; Pt. V, p. 73.

(a) in pursuance of an agreement for arbitration to which the Protocol set forth in the First Schedule applies, and

(b) between persons of whom one is subject to the jurisdiction of some one of such powers as the Central Government, being satisfied, that reciprocal provisions have been made, may, by notification in the Official Gazette, declare to be parties to the Convention set forth in the Second Schedule, and of whom the other is subject to the jurisdiction of some other of the powers aforesaid, and

(c) in one of such territories as the Central Government, being satisfied that reciprocal provisions have been made, may, by like notification, declare to be territories to which the said Convention applies, and for the purposes of this Act an award shall not be deemed to be final if any proceedings for the purpose of contesting the validity of the award are pending in the country in which it was made.

3. Notwithstanding anything contained in the <sup>1</sup>[Indian Arbitration Act, 1940,] or in the Code of Civil Procedure, 1908, if any party to a submission made in pursuance of an agreement to which the Protocol set forth in the First Schedule as modified by the reservation subject to which it was signed by India applies, or any person claiming through or under him, commences any legal proceedings in any Court against any other party to the submission or any person claiming through or under him in respect of any matter agreed to be referred, any party to such legal proceedings may, at any time after appearance and before filing a written statement or taking any other steps in the proceedings, apply to the Court to stay the proceedings; and the Court, unless satisfied that the agreement or arbitration has become inoperative or cannot proceed, or that there is not in fact any dispute between the parties with regard to the matter agreed to be referred, shall make an order staying the proceedings.

4. (1) A foreign award shall, subject to the provisions of this Act, be enforceable in British India as if it were an award made on a matter referred to arbitration in British India.

(2) Any foreign award which would be enforceable under this Act shall be treated as binding for all purposes on the persons as between whom it was made, and may accordingly be relied on by any of those persons by way of defence, set off or otherwise in any legal proceedings in British India, and any references in this Act to enforcing a foreign award shall be construed as including references to relying on an award.

5. (1) Any person interested in a foreign award may apply to any Court having jurisdiction over the subject-matter of the award that the award be filed in Court.

(2) The application shall be in writing and shall be numbered and registered as a suit between the applicant as plaintiff and the other parties as defendants.

(3) The Court shall direct notice to be given to the parties to the arbitration, other than the applicant, requiring them to show cause, within a time specified, why the award should not be filed.

6. (1) Where the Court is satisfied that the foreign award is enforceable under this Act, the Court shall order the award to be filed and shall proceed to pronounce judgment according to the award.

(2) Upon the judgment so pronounced a decree shall follow, and no appeal shall lie from such decree except in so far as the decree is in excess of or not in accordance with the award.

Conditions for enforcement of foreign awards.

7. (1) In order that a foreign award may be enforceable under this Act it must have—

(a) been made in pursuance of an agreement for arbitration which was valid under the law by which it was governed,

(b) been made by the tribunal provided for in the agreement or constituted in manner agreed upon by the parties,

(c) been made in conformity with the law governing the arbitration procedure,

(d) become final in the country in which it was made,

(e) been in respect of a matter which may lawfully be referred to arbitration under the law of British India, and the enforcement thereof must not be contrary to the public policy or the law of British India.

(2) A foreign award shall not be enforceable under this Act if the Court dealing with the case is satisfied that—

(a) the award has been annulled in the country in which it was made, or

(b) the party against whom it is sought to enforce the award was not given notice of the arbitration proceedings in sufficient time to enable him to present his case, or was under some legal incapacity and was not properly represented, or

(c) the award does not deal with all the questions referred or contains decisions on matters beyond the scope of the agreement for arbitration:

Provided that if the award does not deal with all questions referred the Court may, if it thinks fit, either postpone the enforcement of the award or order its enforcement subject to the giving of such security by the person seeking to enforce it as the Court may think fit.

(3) If a party seeking to resist the enforcement of a foreign award proves that there is any ground other than the non-existence of the conditions specified in clauses (a), (b) and (c) of sub-section (1), or existence of the conditions specified in clauses (b) and (c) of sub-section (2), entitling him to contest the validity of the award, the Court may, if it thinks fit, either refuse to enforce the award or adjourn the hearing until after the expiration of such period as appears to the Court to be reasonably sufficient to enable that party to take the necessary steps to have the award annulled by the competent tribunal.

Evidence.

8. (1) The party seeking to enforce a foreign award must produce—

(a) the original award or a copy thereof duly authenticated in manner required by the law of the country in which it was made;

(b) evidence proving that the award has become final; and

(c) such evidence as may be necessary to prove that the award is a foreign award and that the conditions mentioned in clauses (a), (b) and (c) of sub-section (1) of section 7 are satisfied.

(2) Where any document requiring to be produced under sub-section (1) is in a foreign language, the party seeking to enforce the award shall produce a translation into English certified as correct by a diplomatic or consular agent of the country to which that party belongs or certified as correct in such other manner as may be sufficient according to the law in force in British India.

Saving.

9. Nothing in this Act shall—

(a) prejudice any rights which any person would have had of enforcing in British India any award or of availing himself in British India of any award if this Act had not been passed, or

(b) apply to any award made on an arbitration agreement governed by the law of British India.

Rule-making powers of the High Court.

10. The High Court may make rules consistent with this Act as to—

(a) the filing of foreign awards and all proceedings consequent thereon or incidental thereto;

(b) the evidence which must be furnished by a party seeking to enforce a foreign award under this Act; and

(c) generally, all proceedings in Court under this Act.

THE FIRST SCHEDULE.

PROTOCOL ON ARBITRATION CLAUSES.

The undersigned, being duly authorised, declare that they accept, on behalf of the countries which they represent, the following provisions:

1. Each of the Contracting States recognises the validity of an agreement whether relating to existing or future differences between parties subject respectively to the jurisdiction of different Contracting States by which the parties to a contract agree to submit to arbitration all or any differences that may arise in connection with such contract relating to commercial matters or to any other matter capable of settlement by arbitration, whether or not the arbitration is to take place in a country to whose jurisdiction none of the parties is subject.

Each Contracting State reserves the right to limit the obligation mentioned above to contracts which are considered as commercial under its national law. Any Contracting State which avails itself of this right will notify the Secretary-General of the League of Nations in order that the other Contracting States may be so informed.

2. The arbitral procedure, including the constitution of the Arbitral Tribunal, shall be governed by the will of the parties and by the law of the country in whose territory the arbitration takes place.

The Contracting States agree to facilitate all steps in the procedure which require to be taken in their own territories, in accordance with the provisions of their law governing arbitral procedure applicable to existing differences.

3. Each Contracting State undertakes to ensure the execution by its authorities and in accordance with the provisions of its national laws of arbitral awards made in its own territory under the preceding articles.

4. The Tribunals of the Contracting Parties, on being seized of a dispute regarding a contract made between persons to whom Article 1 applies and including an Arbitration Agreement whether referring to present or future differences which is valid in virtue of the said article and capable of being carried into effect, shall refer the parties on the application of either of them to the decision of the Arbitrators.

Such reference shall not prejudice the competence of the judicial tribunals in case the agreement or the arbitration cannot proceed or becomes inoperative.

5. The present Protocol, which shall remain open for signature by all States, shall be ratified. The ratification shall be deposited as soon as possible with the Secretary-General of the League of Nations, who shall notify such deposit to all the Signatory States.

6. The present Protocol will come into force as soon as two ratifications have been deposited. Thereafter it will take effect, in the case of each Contracting State, one month after the notification by the Secretary-General of the deposit of its ratification.

7. The present Protocol may be denounced by any Contracting State on giving one year's notice. Denunciation shall be effected by a notification addressed to the Secretary-General of the League, who will immediately transmit copies of such notification to all the other Signatory States and inform them of the date on which it was received. The denunciation shall take effect one year after the date on which it was notified to the Secretary-General, and shall operate only in respect of the notifying State.

8. The Contracting States may declare that their acceptance of the present Protocol does not include any or all of the undermentioned territories: that is to say, their colonies, overseas possessions or territories, protectorates or the territories over which they exercise a mandate.

The said States may subsequently adhere separately on behalf of any territory thus excluded. The Secretary-General of the League of Nations shall be informed as soon as possible of such adhesions. He shall notify such adhesions to all Signatory States. They will take effect one month after the notification by the Secretary-General to all Signatory States.

The Contracting States may also denounce the Protocol separately on behalf of any of the territories referred to above. Article 7 applies to such denunciation.

THE SECOND SCHEDULE.

CONVENTION ON THE EXECUTION OF FOREIGN ARBITRAL AWARDS.

Article 1.—In the territories of any High Contracting Party to which the present Convention applies, an arbitral award made in pursuance of an agreement, whether relating to existing or future differences (hereinafter called "a submission to arbitration") covered by the Protocol on Arbitration Clauses opened at Geneva on September 24, 1923, shall be recognised as binding and shall be enforced in accordance with the rules of the procedure of the territory where the award is relied upon, provided that the said award has been made in a territory of one of the High Contracting Parties to which the present Convention applies and between persons who are subject to the jurisdiction of one of the High Contracting Parties.

To obtain such recognition or enforcement, it shall, further, be necessary:

(a) That the award has been made in pursuance of a submission to arbitration which is valid under the law applicable thereto;

(b) That the subject-matter of the award is capable of settlement by arbitration under the law of the country in which the award is sought to be relied upon;

(c) That the award has been made by the Arbitral Tribunal provided for in the submission to arbitration or constituted in the manner agreed upon by the parties and in conformity with the law governing the arbitration procedure;

(d) That the award has become final in the country in which it has been made, in the sense that it will not be considered as such if it is open to opposition, appel or pourvoi en cassation (in the countries where such forms of procedure exist) or if it is proved that any proceedings for the purpose of contesting the validity of the award are pending;

(e) That the recognition or enforcement of the award is not contrary to the public policy or to the principles of the law of the country in which it is sought to be relied upon.

Article 2.—Even if the conditions laid down in Article 1 hereof are fulfilled, recognition and enforcement of the award shall be refused if the Court is satisfied:

(a) That the award has been annulled in the country in which it was made;

(b) That the party against whom it is sought to use the award was not given notice of the arbitration proceedings in sufficient time to enable him to present his case; or that, being under a legal incapacity, he was not properly represented;

(c) That the award does not deal with the differences contemplated by or falling within the terms of the submission to arbitration or that it contains decisions on matters beyond the scope of the submission to arbitration.

If the award has not covered all the questions submitted to the arbitral tribunal, the competent authority of the country where recognition or enforcement of the award is sought can, if it thinks fit, postpone such recognition or enforcement or grant it subject to such guarantee as that authority may decide.

Article 3.—If the party against whom the award has been made proves that, under the law governing the arbitration procedure, there is a ground, other than the grounds referred to in Article 1 (a) and (c), and Article 2 (b) and (c); entitling him to contest the validity of the award in a Court of law, the Court may, if it thinks fit, either refuse recognition or enforcement of the award or adjourn the consideration thereof giving such party a reasonable time within which to have the award annulled by the competent tribunal.

Article 4.—The party relying upon an award or claiming its enforcement must supply, in particular:

(1) The original award or a copy thereof duly authenticated, according to the requirements of the law of the country in which it was made;

(2) Documentary or other evidence to prove that the award has become final, in the sense defined in Article 1 (d), in the country in which it was made;

(3) When necessary, documentary or other evidence to prove that the conditions laid down in Article 1, paragraph 1 and paragraph 2 (a) and (c) have been fulfilled.

A translation of the award and of the other documents mentioned in this Article into the official language of the country where the award is sought to be relied upon may be demanded. Such translations must be certified correct by a diplomatic or consular agent of the country to which the party who seeks to rely upon the award belongs or by a sworn translator of the country where the award is sought to be relied upon.

Article 5.—The provisions of the above Articles shall not deprive any interested party of the right of availing himself of an arbitral award in the manner and to the extent allowed by the law or the treaties of the country where such award is sought to be relied upon.

Article 6.—The present Convention applies only to arbitral awards made after the coming into force of the Protocol on Arbitration Clauses, opened at Geneva on September 24, 1923.

Article 7.—The present Convention, which will remain open to the signature of all the signatories of the Protocol of 1923 on Arbitration Clauses, shall be ratified.

It may be ratified only on behalf of those Members of the League of Nations and non-Member States on whose behalf the Protocol of 1923 shall have been ratified.

Ratifications shall be deposited as soon as possible with the Secretary-General of the League of Nations, who will notify such deposit to all the signatories.

Article 8.—The present Convention shall come into force three months after it shall have been ratified on behalf of two High Contracting Parties. Thereafter, it shall take effect; in the case of each High Contracting Party, three months after the deposit of the ratification on its behalf with the Secretary-General of the League of Nations.

Article 9.—The present Convention may be denounced on behalf of any Member of the League or non-Member State. Denunciation shall be notified in writing to the Secretary-General of the League of Nations, who will immediately send a copy thereof, certified to be in conformity with the notifications, to all the other Contracting Parties, at the same time informing them of the date on which he received it.

The denunciation shall come into force only in respect of the High Contracting Party which shall have notified it and one year after such notification shall have reached the Secretary-General of the League of Nations.

The denunciation of the Protocol on Arbitration Clauses shall entail, ipso facto, the denunciation of the present Convention.

Article 10.—The present Convention does not apply to the Colonies, Protectorates or territories under suzerainty or mandate of any High Contracting Party unless they are specially mentioned.

The application of this Convention to one or more of such Colonies, Protectorates or territories to which the Protocol on Arbitration Clauses opened at Geneva on September 24, 1923; applies, can be effected at any time by means of a declaration addressed to the Secretary-General of the League of Nations by one of the High Contracting Parties.

Such declaration shall take effect three months after the deposit thereof.

The High Contracting Parties can at any time denounce the Convention for all or any of the Colonies, Protectorates or territories referred to above. Article 9 hereof applies to such denunciation.

Article 11.—A certified copy of the present Convention shall be transmitted by the Secretary-General of the League of Nations to every Member of the League of Nations and to every non-Member State which signs the same.

THE ARYA MARRIAGE VALIDATION ACT (XIX OF 1937).<sup>1</sup>

[Amended by Act XXXII of 1940.]

An Act to recognise and remove doubts as to the validity of inter-marriages current among Arya Samajists. [14th April, 1937.]

WHEREAS it is expedient to recognise and place beyond doubt the validity of inter-marriages of a class of Hindus known as Arya Samajists;

It is hereby enacted as follows:—

Short title and extent.

1. (1) This Act may be called THE ARYA MARRIAGE VALIDATION ACT, 1937.

(2) It extends to the whole of British India<sup>2</sup> [* * *], and applies also to all subjects of His Majesty, within other parts of India, and to all Indian subjects of His Majesty without and beyond British India.

2. Notwithstanding any provision of Hindu Law, usage or custom to the contrary no marriage contracted whether before or after the commencement of this Act between two persons being at the time of the marriage Arya Samajists shall be invalid or shall be deemed ever to have been invalid by reason only of the fact that the parties at any time belonged to different castes or different sub-castes of Hindus or that either or both of the parties at any time before the marriage belonged to a religion other than Hinduism.

THE BANKERS' BOOKS EVIDENCE ACT (XVIII OF 1891).

EFFECT OF LEGISLATION.

Year.	No.	Short title.	Repealed or otherwise how affected by Legislation.
1891	XVIII	The Bankers' Books Evidence Act, 1891.	Repealed in Part, Act X of 1914 Amended, Acts I of 1893; XII of 1900; Govt. of India (Adaptation of Indian Laws) Order, 1937.

PREFATORY NOTE.—The following is the Statement of Objects and Reasons attached to the Bill:—

"It is some time since the Imperial Parliament recognised the great inconvenience which is caused to bankers from their being required to produce their books in Courts of Justice. In the first place, these books are usually of great size and weight, and, in the second place, they are required for entering the daily transactions of the bank. Facilities were provided for proving the contents of bankers' books by means of certified copies, and in the year 1891, an Act was passed for British India upon the same lines. Unfortunately the definition of a company adopted in the Act was too narrow. It failed to provide for banking companies carrying on business in the country but registered or incorporated in the United Kingdom, and in a criminal case which was recently tried in Calcutta it was discovered that the entries in the books of the Delhi and London Bank could not be proved by copies. The Advocate-General immediately called attention to this defect in the law and suggested the draft of a Bill for removing it. This Act was intended to widen the definition of the company adopted in the Act of 1891.

"The Bengal Chamber of Commerce had asked the Government to consider the question of extending the definition so as to include all foreign banks in India; but, after carefully considering the question, the Government of India came to the conclusion that it would be better to leave these foreign banks to be admitted in particular cases one by one under the power of notification given by section 3 of the Act of 1891." See Proceedings in Council, Fort St. George Gazette, 20th July, 1900.

The Hon'ble Sir Alexander Miller in presenting the Report of the Select Committee on the Bill to amend the Law of Evidence with respect to Bankers' Books said:—

"The Select Committee have made several considerable changes in detail, but none which, I think, affects the principle of the Bill. The alterations are briefly these. Instead of the elaborate machinery proposed in the Bill in which it is to be proved by a system of affidavits that the books were examined and the extracts verified, we proposed to introduce a system of certified copies, exactly analogous to that in the present law in respect to certified copies of public documents and we do not propose to permit any evidence to be given otherwise than by the production of the books themselves, or by the certified copies. We were asked to extend the Act to all kinds of mercantile concerns, but that was not desirable. We have omitted all reference to Government Savings Bank and to the Post Office because we think that the books of these bodies are "public documents" within the meaning of the Evidence Act. We have, however, introduced a clause enabling the Local Government in any case to extend the provisions of the Act to the books of any company which keeps a regular set of books analogous to the recognised bankers' books and to which the Local Government consider it desirable to extend them. We have also introduced provisions enabling the bank, if it thinks fit, to offer to produce certified copies instead of allowing its books to be examined. We thought there might be very good reasons for this course, and that in the interest of the bank or its clients the clause which proposed to enable any party to obtain authority to look through the books of the bank may offer to give copies of the necessary certificate. There is one point in connection with this matter, which is, relevant entries. One of the District Judges has made a note to the effect that it is impossible for a bank to judge what entries are or are not relevant. The answer is that the bank is not bound to take advantage of this provision. If for the purpose of concealing the accounts it chooses to take advantage of it and does not insert all relevant entries, it must act on its own responsibility and at its own risk.

We have inserted no clauses with reference to the payment of any fee to a bank for the supply of certified copies, but we have given a discretionary power to the Court, where the matter comes before it, to award costs to or against the bank as it may think just; and the reason is that we think that in most cases it would be more beneficial to the bank to give these certificates free of costs than to have their books produced, and possibly detained for days, or even weeks, for purposes of legal proceedings, but if in any case the bank does not choose to grant these certified copies without payment the party will have it in his own power either to pay what the bank asks, or to go before the Court and get an order. Probably in many cases an agreement with the bank would be come to in preference to going before the Court, but if the matter does go before the Court, then we give the Court complete power to make any order which it thinks proper as to costs for or against the bank.

The Bill does not contain any express power to the Court to require the production of the books instead of acting on the certified copies.

I think the power is given incidentally, because we say that these certified copies shall be received as prima facie evidence of the existence of the entries and also that no officer of a bank shall in proceedings to which the bank is not a party be compelled to produce the books without special order; but I am not quite sure that it may not be desirable to insert a clause to the effect that notwithstanding anything in the Act the Court may order the production of the books themselves whenever it thinks this necessary." (See Proceedings in Council, Fort St. George Gazette, 6th October, 1891, Supp. pp. 1, 2.)

LOCAL EXTENT OF THE OPERATION OF THE ACT.—The Act has been extended by notification under section 5 of the Scheduled Districts Act (XIV of 1874) to British Baluchistan, see Gazette of India, 1896, Pt. II, p. 1004. It was declared in force in Upper Burma (Except the Shan States) by the Burma Laws Act (XIII of 1898). It has been declared in force in the Sonthal Parganas by section 3 of the Sonthal Parganas Settlement Regulation (III of 1872) as amended by the Sonthal Parganas Justice and Laws Regulation (III of 1899). (See Calcutta Gazette, 1892, Pt. I, p. 448.)

(6) "Judge" means a Judge of a High Court.

(7) "trial" means any hearing before the Court at which evidence is taken: and

(8) "certified copy" means a copy of any entry in the books of a bank together with a certificate written at the foot of such copy that it is a true copy of such entry, that such entry is contained in one of the ordinary books of the bank and was made in the usual and ordinary course of business, and that such book is still in the custody of the bank, such certificate being dated and subscribed by the principal accountant or manager of the bank with his name and official title.

3. The Provincial Government may, from time to time, by notification<sup>1</sup> in the Official Gazette, extend the provisions of the Act to the books of any partnership or individual carrying on the business of bankers within the territories under its administration, and keeping a set of not less than three ordinary account books, namely, a cash-book, a day-book or journal, and a ledger, and may in like manner rescind any such notification.

4. Subject to the provisions of this Act, a certified copy of any entry in a banker's book shall in all legal proceedings be received as prima facie evidence of the existence of such entry, and shall be admitted as evidence of the matters, transactions and accounts therein recorded in every case where, and to the same extent as, the original entry itself is now by law admissible, but not further or otherwise.

5. No officer of a bank shall in any legal proceeding to which the bank is not a party be compellable to produce any banker's book the contents of which can be proved under this Act, or to appear as a witness to prove the matters, transactions and accounts therein recorded, unless by order of the Court or a Judge made for special cause.

SEC. 2 (8).—As to who can inspect and obtain certified copies, see 31 C. 284=8 C. W.N. 125.

SEC. 4.—As to copy of entry in the books of a Bank not falling within the definition of company, see 4 C.W.N. 433 (F.B.); 18 A. 92 at pp. 94-95. As to who could order production of books, see 32 C. 498.

SEC. 5.—S. 94 (3) of the Cr. P. Code does not exempt Bankers' books from production before the police, and an officer in charge of a Police-station conducting an investigation is entitled to inspect them even without an order of Court. Section 5 of this Act does not prevent him from doing so, as proceedings before him are not legal proceedings as defined in the Act. 17 L. 593=38 P.L.R. 1042. There is really no conflict between section 94 of the Cr. P. Code and the Bankers' Books Evidence Act. Section 5 of the latter Act is the only section which can be relied upon as containing anything inconsistent with section 94, Cr. P. Code. But all that section 5 of that Act enacts is that no officer of the Bank shall in any legal proceeding to which the Bank is not a party be compellable to produce any banker's book the contents of which can be proved under the Act or to appear as a witness to prove the matters, transactions and accounts, etc., unless by order of the Court or Judge made for special cause. "Court" includes a Magistrate trying a criminal case, so that a Bank cannot be compelled to produce its books without an order of the Court "for special cause." But there is no reason at all why an order made under section 94, Cr. P. Code, should not be regarded as a sufficient order for the purpose of section 5 of the Bankers' Books Evidence Act. There is nothing in that Act which prevents an order being made under section 94, Cr. P. Code, in the proper case. In a prosecution against the auditors of a Bank for offences in respect of false statements in the balance-sheet of the Bank certified by them as correct, an order for production can lawfully be made under section 94, Cr. P. Code, but it should be made, in the case of bankers' books, very cautiously and carefully drafted. A routine order ex parte is generally undesirable. The prosecutor who applies for an order and for inspection of the books produced should be required to state before the issue of the order not only what books he requires to be

6. (1) On the application of any party to a legal proceeding the Court or a Judge may order that such party be at liberty to inspect and take copies of any entries in a banker's book for any of the purposes of such proceeding, or may order the bank to prepare and produce, within a time to be specified in the order, certified copies of all such entries, accompanied by a further certificate that no other entries are to be found in the books of the bank relevant to the matters in issue in such proceeding, and such further certificate shall be dated and subscribed in manner hereinbefore directed in reference to certified copies.

(2) An order under this or the preceding section may be made either with or without summoning the bank, and shall be served on the bank three clear days (exclusive of bank holidays) before the same is to be obeyed, unless the Court or Judge shall otherwise direct.

(3) The bank may at any time before the time limited for obedience to any such order as aforesaid either offer to produce their books at the trial or give notice of their intention to show cause against such order, and thereupon the same shall not be enforced without further order.

7. (1) The costs of any application to the Court or a Judge under or for the purposes of this Act and the costs of anything done or to be done under an order of the Court or a Judge made under or for the purposes of this Act shall be in the discretion of the Court or Judge, who may further order such costs or any part thereof to be paid to any party by the bank if they have been incurred in consequence of any fault or improper delay on the part of the bank.

(2) Any order made under this section for the payment of costs to or by a bank may be enforced as if the bank were a party to the proceeding.

(3) Any order under this section awarding costs may, on application to any Court of Civil Judicature designated in the order, be executed by such Court as if the order were a decree for money passed by itself:

Provided that nothing in this sub-section shall be construed to derogate from any power which the Court or Judge making the order may possess for the enforcement of its or his directions with respect to the payment of costs.

THE INDIAN BAR COUNCILS ACT (XXXVIII OF 1926).

PREFATORY NOTE.—The necessity for, and the circumstances under which this Act is passed is thus explained in the Statement of Objects and Reasons:—The recommendations of the Indian Bar Committee in regard to the constitution of Bar Councils and their functions were as follows:—

1. An All-India Bar or Council is impracticable. Statutory Bar Councils should, however, be established at Calcutta, Madras, Bombay, Allahabad, Patna and Rangoon, but produced but also why their production is necessary with specific reference to the allegations in his complaint. Anything in the nature of a roving or fishing inspection of the books of a Bank should be prevented. But the prosecution cannot be denied the right of inspection of documents the production of which has been held to be necessary or desirable for the purpose of the trial and which have been held to be relevant after considering the objections of the party producing. I.L.R. (1938) Bom. 31.

SEC. 6.—An order under the section cannot ordinarily, in the absence of special circumstances, be made without notice to the other side. 5 Bom.L.R. 865; 1932 B. 428. See also 20 M. 189 (196). A Bank has under section 6, sub-section (3) of the Act statutory right to object to any order directing inspection to be given of its books. It is not the practice of the Court to allow inspection of bankers' books under the Act, unless a prima facie case is made out for thinking that there is some matter on which the books of the Bank are bound to be relevant. Courts have no doubt very wide powers of ordering production and directing inspection of documents but such an order against a person, not a party to the proceedings involves a serious inroad upon his normal rights as a citizen. Courts are always averse to giving anything in the nature of a roving or fishing commission to inspect documents. I.L.R. (1938) B. 119=39 Bom.L.R. 1187=A.I.R. 1938 B. 33 (S.B.). provision should be made permitting the constitution of Councils at Lahore, Nagpur, Karachi and Lucknow later on. (Paragraphs 48 and 55.)

2. The Council should consist of 15 members, four of whom should be nominated by the High Court, including, where possible, the Advocate-General or the Government Advocate and the Government Pleader. The remaining eleven, of whom six should be Advocates of at least 10 years' standing, should be elected by advocates of the High Court, provided that in Calcutta and Bombay the High Courts should determine how many of the eleven should be advocates entitled to practise on the original side. The nominated members should ordinarily be advocates, but it should be left to the High Courts to nominate Judges past and present. (Paragraphs 57 and 58.)

3. The first Councils should hold office for 3 years, the term of office of subsequent Councils being determined by rules to be framed by the Councils themselves. (Paragraph 57.)

4. A Bar Council should have power to make rules subject to the approval of the High Court in respect of the following matters:—

(a) the qualifications, admission and certificates of proper persons to be advocates of the High Court;

(b) the powers and duties of advocates;

(c) the conduct of any examination which may be prescribed by it and the fees to be paid for appearing at the same;

(d) legal education including the delivery of lectures to students and the fees to be chargeable therefor;

(e) matters relating to the discipline and professional conduct of advocates;

(f) procedure and practice in cases falling within the disciplinary jurisdiction of the Council;

(g) the method of holding elections of members of the Council, and all matters incidental thereto;

(h) the meetings of the Council, the quorum necessary for the transaction of business, the election of a President or other officer and the appointment of committees for special purposes;

(i) the period for which a Council, after the first Council, should hold office and the filling of vacancies occurring between elections;

(j) the terms on which advocates of another High Court may be permitted to appear occasionally in the High Court to which the Council is attached; and

(k) any other matter prescribed by the High Court. (Paragraph 59.)

5. The rules regulating the election of the first Council and the filling of vacancies before rules are made by the Council should be made by the High Court, and it should be provided that no rules shall be made affecting the special provisions suggested for the original sides of the Calcutta and Bombay High Courts so long as those provisions remain in force. (Paragraph 59.)

6. A Bar Council should have power either of its own motion or on complaint or on a reference by the High Court to inquire into all matters of the kind referred to in sections 12 and 13 of the Legal Practitioners Act, 1879, breaches of rules and other improper conduct in which an advocate of the Court, is concerned, and make a report to the High Court with a recommendation as to the action, if any, to be taken by the Court.

A Bar Council should also be entitled to be heard in any matter relating to the admission of an advocate or in support of any report made by it to the Court. (Paragraph 60.)

7. The existing disciplinary jurisdiction of the High Court should be maintained, but the Court should be bound before taking disciplinary action against an advocate, except in regard to contempt of Court and the like, to refer the case to the Bar Council for inquiry and report. On receipt of a report from the Bar Council the Court should be empowered itself to make or require the Council to make further inquiry. At the request of a Bar Council or on its own motion a High Court should be authorised to order an inquiry to be held by a local Court. (Paragraph 61.)

8. Provision should be made for procuring with the sanction of the Court the attendance of witnesses and production of documents required by the Council for an inquiry, and witnesses should receive the same protection as when they give evidence before a Court. (Paragraph 61.)

(The paragraphs referred to are paragraphs in the Report.)

The Government of India consulted Local Governments and High Courts upon these recommendations. In certain respect it appeared necessary to amplify them and in some respects to modify them in the light of the views urged by the authorities consulted. It is intended that these recommendations with the amplifications and modifications should be given effect to by or under the Bill.

2. The Bill is intended also to carry out as far as possible the following miscellaneous recommendations of the committee:—

(a) The ideal to be kept in view should be the disappearance of different grades of legal practitioners so that ultimately there may be a single grade entitled to appear in all Courts. At present the largest degree of unification possible should be effected. (Paragraphs 11 and 17.)

(b) In all High Courts a single grade of practitioners entitled to plead should be enrolled to be called advocates (not barristers), the grade of High Court Vakils or Pleaders being abolished, and when special conditions are maintained for admission to plead on the original side the only distinction should be within that grade which shall consist of advocates entitled to appear on the original side and advocates not so entitled. (Paragraph 19.)

(c) Advocates of one High Court should be entitled to practise in another High Court subject to conditions to be imposed by the Bar Council of the latter Court or by the Court where there is no Bar Council. (Paragraph 20.)

(d) Where there is a compulsory dual agency system at present it should be allowed to continue. (Paragraph 26.)

(e) The High Courts should retain their power to fix the amount payable by a party in respect of the fees of an adversary's legal practitioner. (Paragraph 61.)

(f) Partnerships between legal practitioners should be permitted wherever all classes of legal practitioners are entitled to act as well as to appear and plead. (Paragraph 69.)

(g) The High Courts, where this is not now permitted, should consider the advisability of allowing Indian barristers applying for enrolment as advocates to read with an approved Indian practitioner instead of reading in chambers in England, at least when it is shewn that the individual cannot obtain entry in suitable Chambers in England. (Paragraph 68.)

3. Incidentally it is intended that the provisions of the Bill and the rules which may be made under it shall, in regard to advocates, entitled as of right to practise in the High Courts, replace the relevant provisions of the Legal Practitioners Act, the Bombay Pleaders Act and the Letters Patent of the various High Courts of Judicature as well as the rules made under those provisions. In regard to certain matters for which provision has not been made in the Bill it has, however, been necessary to retain the residuary powers of the High Courts of Judicature under their Letters Patent.

In accordance with the recommendation of the Committee in paragraph 56 of their Report the enrolment and control of legal practitioners other than Advocates is left to the High Courts under the Legal Practitioners Act and the Bombay Pleaders Act as amended by the Bill.

4. The principal modifications of the Committee's recommendations which are contained in the Bill are as follows:—

(a) the constitution of the Bar Councils differs slightly from the recommendations in that the Advocate-General must be a member and the number of members to be elected is ten, instead of eleven;

(b) the rules regarding all elections of the Councils instead of only the election of the first Councils are to be made by the High Courts, the powers of the Councils, in this respect being restricted to the making of bye-laws in regard to matters not provided for by the rules made by the High Courts. For the making of these bye-laws, however, the approval of the High Court will not be required;

(c) power is given to the Councils, with the sanction of the High Court, to prescribe fees to be payable to the Councils in respect of admission and enrolment and of the issue of certificates; and

(d) the powers of the Councils to hold inquiries into complaints of unprofessional conduct are restricted to cases referred to the Council by the High Court, and the inquiries are to be held by a Tribunal consisting of members of the Council appointed for the purposes of the inquiry by the Chief Justice or Chief Judge of the High Court. The High Court is, however, required to refer all complaints of unprofessional conduct which it does not dismiss either to the Bar Council or to a subordinate Court for inquiry. Instead of requiring the sanction of the Court for compelling the attendance of witnesses in each case a Tribunal is given power to enforce such attendance. A Tribunal is also given power to administer oaths to witnesses, and the protection of the witnesses who give evidence, which was recommended by the Committee, is secured by applying the provisions of section 132 of the Indian Evidence Act to proceedings before a Tribunal. On the other hand, rules governing the procedure of a Tribunal are to be prescribed by the High Courts instead of by the Councils with the approval of the High Court. (Statement of Objects and Reasons)—[Gazette of India, dated 2nd January, 1927, Part V, pages 6, 7 and the Report of the Bar Committee.]

When the Bill was referred to a Select Committee, several other alterations and amendments were made, with reference to which they said:—

"We have made a large number of alterations in the Bill, but we have not radically altered its scope in view of the fact, that, although many of the opinions received are in favour of the conferment of much wider powers upon Bar Councils, many others, including some of great weight, reveal considerable opposition to the innovations already proposed. In these circumstances, we think it would be unwise to depart from the present scheme of the Bill as a more or less tentative measure which is intended to be the first step towards the unification and eventual autonomy of the legal profession. With these preliminary remarks we now proceed to refer in detail to the more important amendments which we have made.

Clause 1.—We wish to record a suggestion that the Local Government of the United Provinces and the Chief Judge of the Chief Court of Oudh might well be consulted as to the desirability of applying the provisions of the Act to that Court.

Clause 4.—We think it desirable to indicate clearly that Judges of the High Court may be represented on the Bar Council, and have provided that two out of the four persons nominated by the Court may be Judges.

Sub-clause (3) of this clause was intended to provide for the representation on the Bar Council of advocates entitled to practise on the Original Side of the two High Courts to which it refers and more especially for the representation of the barrister element among them, an element which will no doubt tend to diminish with the course of time. We have accordingly provided definitely that at least one-half of the representation of Original Side advocates on the Bar Councils of these two High Courts shall be Barristers.

We think it is essential, in view of the status of the Advocate-General in the Presidency-towns, that they should be made ex-officio Chairman of the Bar Councils to which they respectively belong.

Clause 6.—The matters to be dealt with by rules made under this clause are, we think, matters which should ordinarily be dealt with by the Bar Councils themselves. We have accordingly provided that the rules should be made only in the first instance by the High Court and thereafter by the Bar Council with the previous sanction of the High Court. This involves the omission of sub-clause (c) of clause 7, which in the Bill as introduced was not altogether consistent with the provisions of clause 6.

Clause 8.—We have, in the first place, omitted the last part of the proviso to sub-clause (1) of this clause, as we are of opinion that it would not be possible to hold that a person appearing, pleading or acting on his own behalf or by his recognized agent could be held to be "practising."

We are also of opinion that the objection to sub-clause (2) which has been raised by several High Courts, namely, that the preparation and maintenance of the roll of advocates should be entrusted to the High Court instead of to the Bar Council, is well founded. We have accordingly provided for the maintenance of the roll by the High Court and for the maintenance of a copy of it by the Bar Council, principally in order that the election roll of persons entitled to elect members to the Bar Council may be kept up to date. In order to enable this to be done we lay upon the High Court the duty of furnishing a copy of the roll to the Bar Council and of communicating to it all alterations and additions as they are made.

Objections have been taken to the provision for the imposition of a fee in respect of enrolment of persons who are advocates, vakils, or pleaders of the High Court at the time when the provisions of the Act came into force in respect thereof. We think that, if only for the purpose of starting the Bar Council, in funds some nominal fee should be payable by such persons and we have fixed this at the sum of Rs. 10. In cases of new entrants the fee payable will be that prescribed by rules made by the Bar Council under the next following clause. We desire to point out that persons who have once been enrolled in a High Court as advocates, vakils or pleaders will not, in view of the provisions of Article 30 in Schedule I to the Indian Stamp Act, 1899, be required to pay stamp duty again in respect of their enrolment under this Act.

We have added to this clause two sub-clauses providing respectively for the seniority of advocates inter se and their respective rights of pre-audience. Sub-clause (4) as drafted by us enables the High Court in individual cases to grant precedence to an advocate out of the order of his seniority. We think a provision of this kind might be used to the advantage not only of a rising and successful, but also of a senior and less successful, advocate.

Finally in view of some of the opinions received, we consider it desirable to point out that clause (1) (3) of the Bill is designed to enable the various provisions of the Bill to be brought into force on different dates and thus to prevent the possibility of any period intervening between the operation of the prohibition contained in sub-clause (1) of clause 8 and the preparation of the new roll.

Clause 9.—Objections were raised to the provisions of sub-clause (4) of this clause in the Bill as introduced which was intended merely to preserve the existing powers of the Chartered High Courts under their Letters Patent to regulate the numbers of admissions and to refuse admission to individuals at their discretion. As however, no High Court has, we believe, attempted to restrict in any way the numbers of new entrants, we think a provision enabling them to do so is unnecessary. But we do consider it essential that the High Court should have power to refuse admission to any person otherwise qualified if it considers that he would be on other grounds an undesirable addition to the Bar, and have made provision accordingly by means of a proviso to sub-clause (1).

We have added a new sub-clause (4) to this clause to meet a criticism advanced by the High Court of Judicature at Bombay that under the Bill as introduced the powers of the High Court in respect of admissions to the Original Side were not sufficiently defined. The new sub-clause is intended to make it clear that the powers of the High Courts at Calcutta and Bombay to regulate absolutely the qualifications for admission to practise on the Original Side will remain unimpaired.

Clause 10.—It has been pointed out that the expression 'unprofessional conduct' does not cover the whole range of cases in which it may be necessary to take disciplinary action against advocates, and we have made some drafting alterations in this clause to meet this point.

Some misunderstanding appears to have arisen as to the object of providing for a reference of cases of misconduct to subordinate Courts. Such a provision is necessary as a Tribunal of the Bar Council will not in all cases be in a position to inquire satisfactorily into matters which have occurred in the mofussil. We think that the allocation of inquiries between subordinate Courts and the Bar Council must be left to the discretion of the High Court, but we have provided that the High Courts shall be bound to consult the Bar Council in any case before referring it to such a Court; and we have further provided that Courts to which such reference may be made shall be the Courts of District Judges.

We have omitted the punishment of fine for which the Bill originally provided.

Clause 12.—The alterations which we have made in this clause provide firstly, that the Advocate-General shall have notice of, and shall be entitled to appear at the hearing of, every case before the High Court, whether the inquiry has been made by a Tribunal of a Bar Council or by a District Court, and secondly, that the High Court shall have the power to review its orders. This power will enable it to accept a belated apology if it thinks fit, and remit or reduce the punishment.

Clause 13.—We have added a proviso to sub-clause (1) to give effect to a suggestion made by the High Court of Judicature at Bombay that the Tribunal should not have unrestricted power to enforce the attendance of judicial officers, a power which might result in dislocation of judicial business and inconvenience to the public. We, therefore, require the Tribunal to obtain the previous sanction of the High Court or of the Local Government, as the case may be, before issuing a summons to the presiding officer of any Court.

We have further thought it advisable to make definite provision as to the manner in which Tribunals may be enabled to utilise the powers conferred by this section.

Clause 14.—We think the provisions of the Bill as introduced were somewhat too stringent in refusing to allow an advocate of one High Court to appear before another unless rules had been made by the latter Court or by the Bar Council, where such exists, regulating the conditions of such appearances. We think it reasonable to give advocates the right of appearing in another High Court unconditionally unless conditions are imposed by such rules, and we have re-drafted the clause accordingly. We have also made an addition to sub-clause (1) to provide for certain cases which have been brought to our notice in which legal practitioners are at present entitled to appear before certain public officers or bodies not legally authorised to take evidence.

Clause 15.—We have given effect to a suggestion that provision should be made for rules to regulate the investment and general management of the funds of the Bar Council. We have also added a clause which will enable rules to be made in respect of other matters which experience may reveal as requiring regulation.

Clause 17.—We have inserted this clause in the usual form to provide indemnity for bona fide action taken by Bar Councils and Committees, Tribunals and members of Bar Councils.—[Gazette of India, dated 21st August, 1926, Part V, pages 119-121.]

 EFFECT OF SUBSEQUENT LEGISLATION.

Year.	No.	Short title.	Repealed or otherwise how affected by Legislation.
1926	XXXVIII	The Indian Bar Councils Act, 1926.	Amended by Act XIII of 1927.

[9th September, 1926.]

An Act to provide for the constitution of Bar Councils in British India and for other purposes.

WHEREAS it is expedient to provide for the constitution and incorporation of Bar Councils for certain Courts in British India, to confer powers and impose duties on such Bar Councils, and to consolidate and amend the law relating to legal practitioners entitled to practise in such Courts; It is hereby enacted as follows:—

Preliminary.

Short title, extent, application and commencement.

1. (1) This Act may be called THE INDIAN BAR COUNCILS ACT, 1926.

(2) It extends to the whole of British India, and shall apply to the High Courts of Judicature at Fort William in Bengal, and at Madras, Bombay, Allahabad <sup>2</sup>[and] Patna <sup>3</sup>[* * *] and to such other High Courts within the meaning of clause (24) of section 3 of the General Clauses Act, 1897, as the <sup>4</sup>[Provincial Government] may, by notification<sup>5</sup> in the Official Gazette, declare to be High Courts to which this Act applies.

NOTES.

SEC. 1.—(Per Sulaiman, Banerjee and Sen, JJ.).—Independently of this Act, the High Court does no longer possess any inherent jurisdiction to punish an advocate for professional misconduct or to adopt a procedure for enquiry other than that laid down in the Act or to pass an order for costs against him or to impose a fine not contemplated by the Act. 1930 A. 225=52 A. 619=1930 A.L.J. 402 (F.B.). The High Court has power to refuse admission to the Bar to any person at its discretion. But weight should be attached to the recommendation of the Bar Council which represents the view of the legal profession. 1930 A. 22=1929 A.L.J. 1105=123 I.C. 683; 124 I.C. 659=5 Luck. 615. Advocates enrolled in the Madras High Court under the provisions of the Act, are entitled to act and plead in the insolvency jurisdiction of the High Court. 52 M. 92=1928 M. 1182=55 M.L.J. 551. All judicial officers should keep a vigilant eye on the conduct of legal practitioners of whatever status and should in proper cases institute inquiries under the Act according to the status of the legal practitioner concerned; but legal practitioners are entitled also to the protection of the Court and inquiries should not be instituted or complaints made without having given very grave consideration to the reasonable probability of the case against the legal practitioner being well founded. As much injustice may be done to a legal practitioner by ill-conceived proceedings against him as may be done to the public interest and to the general body of legal practitioners by failure to keep a vigilant eye upon and take proper and strong action against cases of misconduct. Complaint rejected. 1931 A.L.J. 678=1931 A. 580. In a proceeding against a legal

(3) This section and sections 2, 17, 18 and 19 shall come into force at once; and the <sup>1</sup>[Provincial Government] may, by notification<sup>2</sup> in the Official Gazette, direct that the other provisions of this Act, or any provision thereof specified in the notification, shall come into force in respect of any High Court to which this Act applies on such date as <sup>3</sup>[it] may by the notification appoint.

Interpretation.

<sup>4</sup>[2. (1)] In this Act, unless there is anything repugnant in the subject or context,—

(a) "advocate" means an advocate entered in the roll of advocates of a High Court under the provisions of this Act;

(b) "Advocate-General" includes, where there is no Advocate-General, the Government Advocate and, where there is no Advocate-General or Government Advocate, such officer as the Provincial Government may declare to be the Advocate-General for the purposes of this Act;

(c) "High Court" means a High Court to which this Act applies; and

(d) "prescribed" means prescribed by rules made under this Act.

Constitution of Bar Councils.

Constitution and incorporation of Bar Councils.

3. (1) For every High Court a Bar Council shall be constituted in the manner hereinafter provided.

LEG. REF.

<sup>2</sup> For such notification appointing the 1st March, 1928, as the date on which the rest of the Act will come into force in respect of the Chief Court of Oudh and sections 3 to 7 in respect of Calcutta High Court, see ibid.

Provisions of sections 8 to 16 came into force from the 1st July, 1928, in respect of Calcutta High Court, see Gazette of India, 1928, Pt. I, p. 382.

The rest of the Act came into force from the 16th July, 1928, in respect of Madras High Court, see Gazette of India, 1928, Pt. I, p. 382; in respect of Allahabad High Court from 1st June, 1928, see Gazette of India, 1928, Pt. I, p. 400; in respect of Patna High Court, from 1st January, 1929, see ibid., p. 703; in respect of Bombay and Rangoon High Courts, from 1st January, 1929, see ibid., p. 714.

NOTES.

practitioner under the Act it is open to the High Court to consider the case on the evidence and arrive at a different conclusion to that of the Bar Tribunal. 1930 M.W.N. 216. An advocate convicted for an offence of perjury although struck off the roll of vakils must be dealt with under the Act, he having been enrolled as the Advocate of the High Court under the provisions of the Act. 131 I.C. 67=8 O.W.N. 267=1931 O. 161. Where the High Court went into the report of the Bar Council and inflicted punishment on a legal practitioner, and a counsel appeared on behalf of the Bar Council all the time, held, that the legal practitioner should be directed to pay a fee to the counsel. 1930 M.W.N. 216. Where a complaint against legal practitioner is made before the Act came into force but the enquiry takes place under the Act, the High Court has the power to direct the practitioner to pay the costs of the proceedings before the Tribunal and before the High Court. 54 M. 857=134 I.C. 33=61 M. L.J. 148 (F.B.). Before the Court will set aside a bar council election because of certain irregularities in the conduct of the election, it must be satisfied that the election was not an election in substance conducted under existing law according to the rules framed for the holding of the election. An election ought not to be held void by reason of transgressions of the law committed without any corrupt motive in the conduct of the election, if the Court is satisfied that the result of the election was not and could not have been affected by those transgressions. 1935 A. 295=157 I.C. 220. An advocate who has once been consulted by a party is not thereby debarred from appearing for the opposite party for all times. He is free to accept a brief against him, if he has not received any information of a confidential nature from the party who consulted him. The onus of proving that such information was conveyed lies and lies heavily on the party seeking to restrain the advocate's appearance. I.L.R. (1940) All. 262=1940 A.L.J. 170=A.I.R. 1940 All. 233. See also 11 O.W.N. 23=1934 Oudh 58 (S.B.).

SEC. 2 (c): HIGH COURT.—High Court referred to in the Act is a chartered High Court. Benares State Chief Court is neither a High Court within the meaning of the Act

(2) Every Bar Council so constituted shall be a body corporate having perpetual succession and a common seal with power to acquire and hold property, both movable and immovable, and to contract, and shall by the name of the Bar Council of the High Court for which it has been constituted sue and be sued.

Composition of Bar Councils.

4. (1) Every Bar Council shall consist of fifteen members, of whom—

(a) one shall be the Advocate-General;

(b) four shall be persons nominated by the High Court, of whom not more than two may be Judges of that Court; and

(c) ten shall be elected by the advocates of the High Court from amongst their number.

(2) Of the elected members of every Bar Council not less than five shall be persons who have for not less than ten years been entitled as of right to practice in the High Court for which the Bar Council has been constituted.

(3) Of the elected members of the Bar Councils to be constituted for the High Courts of Judicature at Fort William in Bengal and at Bombay such proportion as the High Court may direct in each case shall be persons who have, for such minimum period as the High Court may determine, been entitled to practice in the High Court in the exercise of its original jurisdiction, and such number as may be fixed by the High Court out of the said proportion shall be barristers of England or Ireland or members of the Faculty of Advocates in Scotland.

(4) There shall be a Chairman and Vice-Chairman of each Bar Council elected by the Council in such manner as may be prescribed:

Provided that the Advocates-General of Bengal, Madras and Bombay shall be Chairman ex officio, respectively, of the Bar Councils constituted for the High Courts of Judicature at Fort William in Bengal, at Madras and at Bombay.

5. (1) Notwithstanding anything contained in clause (c) of sub-section (1) of section 4, the elected members of the first Bar Council constituted under this Act for any High Court shall be elected by and from amongst the advocates, vakils and pleaders who are on the date of the election entitled as of right to practice in the High Court.

(2) The terms of office of the nominated and elected members of any such first Bar Council shall be three years from the date of the first meeting of the Council.

Power to make rules regarding constitution and procedure of Bar Councils.

6. (1) Rules, consistent with this Act, may be made to provide for the following matters, namely:—

(a) the manner in which elections of members of the Bar Council shall be held; the method of determining, in accordance with the provisions of sub-sections (2) and (3) of section 4, the candidates who shall be declared to have been elected; the manner in which the result of elections shall be published; and the manner in which and the authority by which doubts and disputes as to the validity of an election shall be finally decided;

(b) the terms of office of nominated and elected members of the Council;

nor subordinate to the Allahabad High Court. 1930 A. 91 (1)=27 A.L.J. 1195.

SECS. 4 TO 8.—These sections 4 to 8 must be read together. 163 I.C. 510=1936 Sind 75 (S.B.).

SEC. 5 (2).—There is nothing in the section which prevents rules being framed whereby certain members elected to the first Bar Council may continue in office thereafter so that a certain continuity may be maintained between that Council and its successor. 163 I.C. 510=1936 Sind 75 (S.B.).

SEC. 6 (1) (b) AND (4).—The powers conferred by this section to provide for retirement of members from office by rotation, relate to the first Bar Council also, and are not confined to its successors alone. 163 I.C. 510=A.I.R. 1936 Sind 75 (S.B.).

(c) the filling of casual vacancies in the Council;
 (d) the convening of meetings of the Council, and the quorum necessary for the transaction of business thereat;

(e) the manner of election and the respective terms of office of the Chairman, in cases where the Chairman is to be elected, and of the Vice-Chairman; and

(f) any matter incidental or ancillary to any of the foregoing matters.

(2) The first rules under this section shall be made by the High Court, but the Bar Council may thereafter, with the previous sanction of the High Court, add to, amend or rescind any rules so made.

(3) No election of a member or members to the Council shall be called in question on the ground that due notice thereof has not been given to any person entitled to vote thereat, if notice of the date fixed for the election has, not less than thirty days before that date, been published in the Official Gazette of the province, or of each province, as the case may be, in which the High Court exercises jurisdiction.

(4) Rules made under clause (b) of sub-section (1) may provide for the retirement of members from office by rotation and for the manner in which the order of such retirement shall be determined.

Power of Bar Councils to make bye-laws.

7. The Bar Council may make by-laws consistent with this Act and any rules made thereunder to provide for any of the following matters, namely:—

(a) the appointment of such ministerial officers and servants as the Bar Council may deem necessary, and the pay and allowances and other conditions of service of such officers and servants; and

(b) the appointment and constitution of Committees of the Council, the procedure of such Committees, and the determination of the powers or duties of the Council which may be delegated to such Committees.

Admission and enrolment of advocates.

8. (1) No person shall be entitled as of right to practise in any High Court, unless his name is entered in the roll of the advocates of the High Court maintained under this Act:

Enrolment of advocates. Provided that nothing in this sub-section shall apply to any attorney of the High Court.

(2) The High Court shall prepare and maintain a roll of advocates of the High Court in which shall be entered the names of—

(a) all persons who were, as advocates, vakils or pleaders, entitled as of right to practise in the High Court immediately before the date on which this section comes into force in respect thereof; and

NOTES.

SEC. 6 (2).—Where in framing the rules, there is substantial compliance with the provisions of the Act, the omission on the part of the Bar Council strictly to follow the procedure enjoined in section 6 (2) does not amount to an illegality and it is no more than an irregularity. 157 I.C. 220=1935 A. 295.

SEC. 8: PRACTICE—MEANING OF.—Advocates enrolled in the High Court of Madras are entitled not only to appear and plead but also to act in the insolvency jurisdiction of the High Court. 52 M. 92=55 M.L.J.

551=1928 M. 1182. An agent with a power-of-attorney to appear and conduct judicial proceedings has no right of audience in Court. Nor is he entitled to notice if his principal wants to appear and conduct the proceedings himself in person or appoints an advocate to appear for him. Such a power-of-attorney agent cannot carry on business as a solicitor or attorney drafting, engrossing and filing plaint Judge's summons, affidavits and generally issuing legal process and charge fees to the principal. 46 L.W. 734=1937 M.W.N. 1060.

(b) all other persons who have been admitted to be advocates of the High Court under this Act:

Provided that such persons shall have paid in respect of enrolment the stamp duty, if any, chargeable under the Indian Stamp Act, 1899, and a fee, payable to the Bar Council, which shall be ten rupees in the case of the persons referred to in clause (a) and in other cases such amount as may be prescribed.

[(3) Entries in the roll shall be made in the order of seniority, and such seniority shall be determined as follows, namely:—

(a) all such persons as are referred to in clause (a) of sub-section (2) shall be entered first in the order in which they were respectively entitled to seniority inter se immediately before the date on which this section comes into force in respect of the High Court; and

(b) the seniority of any other person admitted to be an advocate of the High Court under this Act after that date shall be determined by the date of his admission, or, if he is a barrister, by the date of his admission or the date on which he was called to the Bar, whichever date is earlier:

Provided that, for the purposes of clause (b) the seniority of a person who before his admission to be an advocate was entitled as of right to practise in another High Court shall be determined by the date on which he became so entitled.

(4) The respective rights of pre-audience of advocates of the High Court shall be determined by seniority:

Provided that the Advocate-General shall have pre-audience over all other advocates and King's Counsel shall have pre-audience over all advocates except the Advocate-General.]<sup>1</sup>

<sup>1</sup>(6) The High Court shall send to the Bar Council a copy of the roll as prepared under this section, and shall thereafter communicate to the Bar Council all alterations in, and additions to, the roll as soon as the same have been made.

<sup>1</sup>(7) The Bar Council shall enter in the copy of the roll all alterations and additions so communicated to it.

LEG. REF.

<sup>1</sup> Sub-sections (3) and (4) inserted and sub-sections (5), (6) and (7) re-numbered by Act XIII of 1927.

NOTES.

SEC. 8 (4): ACTING ADVOCATE-GENERAL—RIGHT OF PRE-AUDIENCE.—The Acting Advocate-General is entitled as much as the Advocate-General, to a right of pre-audience over all other advocates in respect of all business whether for the Crown or of a private nature. 136 I.C. 793=33 Bom.L.R. 1500 (F.B.).

SECS. 8 AND 9.—The applicant passed his law examination in 1919; he was enrolled as a pleader in 1920 and as a pleader of the first grade in 1922. He applied for admission as an advocate of the Chief Court, which application was objected to by the Bar Council. It was found from record that in a suit wherein he had appeared, even though he had received a payment of a sum which was due on a decree passed in favour of the decree-holder he had retained the money from August, 1924, till April, C. C. M.—21

1926, and had then paid to the decree-holder, under circumstances not free from suspicion. Held, that in this instance the Bar Council had not acted otherwise than honestly, fairly and without prejudice and therefore the applicant was refused admission as an advocate of the Chief Court. 1930 Oudh 121=5 Luck. 615. If the Bar Council can establish that as fairminded men, who have treated the application for admission as advocate on its merits and in a reasonable manner, they are convinced that a certain member of the profession does not deserve to be enrolled as an advocate and that his enrolment will be prejudicial to the credit of the body of advocates, their objections should prevail. It may not be that the conduct in question deserves suspension or removal. Such conduct may not be such as to debar the applicant from practising in the Courts subordinate to the Chief Court. It may well be said that a man is not good enough to be an advocate, although he may be allowed to practise in such Courts. 6 O.W.N. 1080=1930 Oudh 121. See also 1930 A. 22=123 I.C. 683.

Qualification and admission of advocates.

9. (1) The Bar Council may, with the previous sanction of the High Court, make rules to regulate the admission of persons to be advocates of the High Court:

Provided that such rules shall not limit or in any way affect the power of the High Court to refuse admission to any person at its discretion.

(2) In particular and without prejudice to the generality of the foregoing power, such rules shall provide for the following matters, namely:—

(a) the qualifications to be possessed by persons applying for admission as advocates;

(b) the form and manner in which applications shall be made to the High Court for admission;

(c) the giving of notice by the High Court to the Bar Council of all such applications;

(d) the hearing by the High Court of any objection preferred on behalf of the Bar Council to the admission of any applicant; and

(e) the charging of fees payable to the Bar Council in respect of enrolment.

(3) Rules made under this section shall provide that no woman shall be disqualified for admission to be an advocate by reason only of her sex.

(4) Nothing in this section or in any other provision of this Act shall be deemed to limit or in any way affect the powers of the High Courts of Judicature at Fort William in Bengal and at Bombay to prescribe the qualifications to be possessed by persons applying to practise in those High Courts respectively in the exercise of their original jurisdiction or the powers of those High Courts to grant or refuse, as they think fit, any such application <sup>1</sup>[or to prescribe the conditions under which such persons shall be entitled to practise or plead.]

Misconduct.

10. (1) The High Court may, in the manner hereinafter provided, reprimand, suspend or remove from practice any advocate of the High Court whom it finds guilty of professional or other misconduct.

LEG. REF.

<sup>1</sup> Inserted by Act XIII of 1927.

NOTES.

SEC. 9.—Under Rules framed by Karachi Bar Council, an application for enrolment will be dismissed in the absence of the receipt for the payment of fees attached to it. 158 I.C. 57=1935 Sind 180 (S.B.) Under rules framed by Sind Court, the application should be accompanied by a certificate or other proof that the applicant has taken the decree; and a mere certificate from the District Court that he has been allowed to practise there is not sufficient. 158 I.C. 707=1935 Sind 196.

SEC. 9 (4).—"High Court" referred to in Bar Councils Act, R. 1 (All.) is a Chartered High Court. 1929 A.L.J. 1195=1930 A. 91 (1).

BENARES STATE CHIEF COURT is neither a High Court within the meaning of Bar Council, R. 1, nor is it subordinate to the Allahabad High Court, and hence, a legal practitioner who enrolls himself as a pleader in Allahabad District Court and practises in Benares State Courts cannot be treated as having practised in any High Court or a Court subordinate to Allahabad High Court and as such he is not entitled to be enrolled as an advocate of the Allahabad High Court. 1929 A.L.J. 1195=1930 A. 91 (1). See also 1930 A.L.J. 839=1930 A. 887.

The Subordinate Courts referred to in the proviso to R. 1 (All.) are Courts within the province. Courts in Ajmere are not Courts subordinate to the Allahabad High Court. 1930 A.L.J. 839=1930 A. 887. Rule 10 of the Appellate Side Rules of the Bombay High Court is not ultra vires. Advocates on the Appellate Side did not come within the definition of "pleader" as defined in section 4 of the Cr. P. Code, for the purposes of the Sessions Court because they are not authorised by law for the time being in force to practise in that Court. So, they have no right of audience in the Sessions side of that Court. 36 Bom.L.R. 1=1934 B. 70=58 B. 456 (F.B.).

SEC. 10.—Unprofessional conduct—Notice issued by High Court after the Act came into force—Ultra vires. See 51 A. 79. See also 1930 A. 225=52 A. 619 (F.B.).

(2) Upon receipt of a complaint made to it by any Court or by the Bar Council, or by any other person that any such advocate has been guilty of misconduct, the High Court shall, if it does not summarily reject the complaint, refer

NOTES.

LOCUS STANDI TO MAKE COMPLAINT.—It is open to any person to complain to the Court as to the undesirability of certain remarks made by a Counsel during the course of a trial. Where a Mahommadan Counsel made some communal remarks during the course of a trial, it is open to the Hindu Association to make a complaint to the High Court to take action in the matter. 162 I.C. 919=37 Cr.L.J. 783=1936 Sind 49.

CONTEMPT OF COURT.—In re Wallace (L.R. 1 P.C. 283) is no authority for holding that an advocate should never be punished professionally for contempt of Court committed by him in his personal capacity, however gross the offence may be. Each case must be dealt with according to the circumstances. Where a pleader in his capacity as a suitor in the Small Cause Court made a grossly improper remark reflecting upon the Judges of the High Court who at that stage had no concern whatever with the suit and a gratuitous hit at the Chief Justice without the slightest justification and was fined Rs. 75 for contempt of Court, held, that the fine was not under the circumstances sufficient and that he should be suspended from practice for six months. 55 A. 148=1933 A. 224. But see also 1932 A. 492 (S.B.). An Advocate deliberately making false allegations involving imputations upon the fairness and impartiality of judicial officers in proceedings connected with an execution case to which he was himself a party cannot be punished under the disciplinary side under this Act. 1932 A.L.J. 773=1932 A. 492 (S.B.).

WHAT IS MISCONDUCT—DISCRETION OF COURT.—The words "professional or other misconduct" in section 10 (1) should be read in their plain and natural meaning. The legislature intended by the aforesaid words to confer on the High Court jurisdiction to take action in all cases of misconduct in professional or other capacity. 63 C. 867=37 Cr.L.J. 534=40 C.W.N. 366=1936 C. 158 (S.B.). The word "may" in sec. 10 (1) makes it plain that while the High Court has unrestricted jurisdiction in all cases of misconduct, a discretion is left to the Court to take action in suitable cases only. It is not possible to lay down any hard and fast rule or any general principles with regard to exercise of such discretion. It must be exercised judicially. 63 C. 867. The test that the Court has to apply in considering whether an advocate should be struck off the roll is whether his proved misconduct is such that he must be regarded as unworthy to remain a member of the profession and unfit to be entrusted with the responsible duties that an advocate is called upon to perform. 63 C. 867. See also 59 B. 57=36 Bom.L.R. 1136; 59 B. 676 (P.C.). Cl. 10 of the Letters Patent which empowers the High Court to remove or suspend from practice advocates, vakils, or attorneys on "reasonable cause," gives a wide discretion to the Court in regard to the exercise of this disciplinary authority. "Reasonable cause" in the clause means the same as professional or other misconduct under Section 10 of the Bar Councils Act. "Misconduct" is a sufficiently wide expression, it is not necessary that it should involve moral turpitude. Any conduct which in any way renders a man unfit for the exercise of his profession or is likely to hamper or embarrass the administration of justice by the High Court or any of the Courts subordinate thereto may be considered to be misconduct calling for disciplinary action. What the Court has to consider is the conduct of the Advocate or Attorney as it affects his position as an Advocate or Attorney and his relations to the Court. 43 Bom.L.R. 250. An advocate was convicted for submitting a false return of his income to the income-tax authorities and for taking up a false defence and maintaining it even up to the High Court, even though he knew such defence to be false. Held, that his conduct involved moral turpitude and that his name should be struck off the roll. 12 R. 110=1934 R. 33=149 I.C. 856. An advocate was guilty of misconduct involving moral turpitude by falsely verifying an application and endeavouring to deceive the Court and to deprive the decree-holder of money due to him. But the complainant did not file his complaint out of any high sense of public duty. A third person, who had been engaged in litigation with the advocate in his personal capacity, was behind the application and had paid the expenses. The application was made out of a desire further to harass the advocate. The advocate was not acting for a client in this matter but was engaged in his own litigation, and that in the end no one had suffered by his action. He was subjected to heavy expenses in defending himself upon all these charges. Held, that an order suspending the advocate from practice for the term of three calendar months would be sufficient in the peculiar circumstances. 1932 A.L.J. 773=1932 A. 492 (S.B.). It is extremely necessary that advocates having to withdraw money or to accept serious responsibility of the kind from and on behalf of a client should even if there be no apparent circumstances to justify a suspicion do everything in their power to verify the form of the Vakalatnama, and further more should not accept a Vakalatnama unless they have satisfied themselves of the bona fides of the person who offers it to them. 16 P. 488=17 P.L.T. 407=A.I.R. 1937 P. 433 (S.B.) Agreement with client to receive payment only in the event of success is professional misconduct. 50 L.W. 234=A.I.R. 1939 Mad. 772=(1939) 2 M.L.J. 320 (F.B.).

the case for inquiry either to the Bar Council, or, after consultation with the Bar Council, to the Court of a District Judge (hereinafter referred to as a District Court) and may of its own motion so refer any case in which it has otherwise reason to believe that any such advocate has been so guilty.

NOTES.

ADVOCATE ENTERING INTO PARTNERSHIP.—An advocate entering into a partnership business or trade as partner is guilty of misconduct. 158 I.C. 278=1935 O.W.N. 1029; 159 I.C. 561=1935 A. 1023. See also I.L.R. (1940) All. 60=A.I.R. 1940 All. 1 (F.B.).

NEGLIGENCE OF ADVOCATE.—Mere negligence on the part of an advocate, however gross, does not amount to misconduct, professional or otherwise, when it is not accompanied by moral delinquency. 62 C. 158=157 I.C. 374=1935 C. 484. But it would constitute misconduct if negligence be accompanied by suppression of truth or by deliberate misrepresentation. 62 C. 158. An advocate was engaged to file a suit. The advocate employed an unregistered clerk and left the plaint with him for presentation. The clerk failed to file the plaint and thus the suit was not filed. The advocate however did not take care to see whether the suit had been filed by looking into the cause list and thus allowed his clerk to cheat his client. Besides this the advocate did not return or account for the money he had taken from his client for stamps and other incidental purposes. Held, that the conduct of the advocate amounted to gross misconduct. 178 I.C. 398=A.I.R. 1938 Rang. 423 (S.B.). It is manifest that it is improper for an advocate to address a letter to a clerk in a Magistrate's office asking that an application filed by him should be dealt with urgently. The proper course for an advocate, if there was any delay, to bring the matter to the notice of the Magistrate himself. 1941 M.W.N. 56=53 L.W. 62=(1941) 1 M.L.J. 128 (F.B.).

BREACH OF TRUST.—An advocate who was convicted for two offences of criminal breach of trust in respect of a large amount and of attempt to cheat and who dishonestly induced a lady to part with a security is guilty of misconduct and his name should be removed from the rolls. 159 I.C. 1036=1935 R. 458.

ATTEMPT TO BRIBE JUDGE.—An advocate attempting to bribe a Judge to obtain judgment in his client's favour is guilty of grossest misconduct. 13 R. 518=36 Cr.L.J. 961=1935 R. 178. When a complaint is made, the Court under the Act can only dismiss it summarily or else refer it to the Bar Tribunal to inquire into. The Court would not generally be justified in dismissing a petition summarily unless it was satisfied that, even if the allegations made in the petition be proved, there would be no case for taking action. 138 I.C. 543=34 Bom. L.R. 443=1932 B. 199. The question whether a particular advocate has violated the recognized canons of professional etiquette is primarily a matter that concerns the Bar Council and consequently the High Court ordinarily will accept findings on questions of fact recorded by the Bar Tribunal provided they are not perverse. 1939 A.L.J. 957 (F.B.). See also I.L.R. (1940) All. 60=1940 All. 1.

PUNISHMENT.—(Per C.J. and Gentle, J.) An advocate who misappropriates his client's moneys is not fit to remain a member of an honourable profession of advocates of the High Court, and the High Court should be failing in its duty if it does not direct the advocate's name to be removed from the rolls. The advocate is guilty of a criminal offence and such conduct cannot be condoned as to do so would encourage crimes of that nature and might have a harmful effect on the profession as a whole. The fact that the misappropriation is only temporary does not lessen the offence of the gravity of the misconduct. Varadachariar, J.—Though the conduct of an advocate who misappropriates the moneys belonging to his client must be strongly disapproved and though the members of the profession should observe the highest standard of professional conduct, the Court when dealing with the question of punishment, cannot shut its eyes to the fact that those standards have not unfortunately yet come to be generally observed and the way that advocates and clients carry on their pecuniary dealings sometimes leads advocates to imagine that they can persuade their clients to condone the faults on their part in dealing with their client's money; the possibility or even the fact of condonation by the client is, however, no justification for such conduct. 1937 M.W.N. 1322 (F.B.).

SECS. 10 AND 11: "PROFESSIONAL OR OTHER MISCONDUCT."—Merely having been member, or assisted the operation or managed the affairs, of an unlawful association does not render an advocate unfit to exercise his profession. Nor does such conduct necessarily involve any moral turpitude, or any attack upon the system of which the Court forms part, or embarrass in any way the administration of justice by the Court. No action is therefore called for in such a case. 59 B. 57=1935 B. 1=36 Bom.L.R. 1136 (F.B.). An advocate took a prominent part in Labour and Trade Union Movements and delivered a number of speeches advocating certain reforms. For some of these speeches he was bound over for one year under section 107, Cr. P. Code. For others, he was prosecuted under section 124-A, I.P. Code, and convicted thrice. There was no indication that he made any organised or persistent attempt to create a breach of the peace or to incite acts tending to subvert law and order. The general tenor of the speeches was inoffensive. Held, no further action was called for in the case. 63 C. 867=37 Cr.L.J. 534=40 C.W.N. 366=1936 C. 158 (S.B.). It is not part of the duty of the High Court to impose penalties for misconduct, unconnected with the exercise of the profession, which is either not punishable or has been, or can be, punished under the law of the land. The State imposes suitable penalties for the infringement of its laws and provides proper sanctions for the enforcement of such penalties; and there is no reason why the Court's disciplinary jurisdiction should be employed merely in aid of the criminal law. 59 B. 57; 63 C. 867. In cases of misconduct involving moral turpitude, the Court has to see whether the advocate has shown himself to be unworthy of the confidence of the Court, or unfit to be entrusted with the business of his client or a person with whom his professional brethren cannot be expected to associate. But these are not the only cases in which the High Court may be called upon to take action. An advocate might engage in revolutionary activities designed to destroy the system of which the Court forms part, or activities likely to hamper or embarrass the administration of justice by the Courts. What has to be considered in such cases is the conduct of the advocate as it affects his position as an advocate and his relations to the Court. It will not tolerate on its rolls an advocate who is trying to undermine or destroy the authority of the Court. Any one electing to engage in activities of that nature must do so without the authority and prestige attached to the position of an advocate. 36 Bom.L.R. 1136=59 B. 57=1935 B. 1 (F.B.). A conviction for the offence of sedition under section 124-A, I. P. Code, cannot be regarded as such misconduct as would, in all circumstances, require action to be taken under the Court's disciplinary jurisdiction and as would demand the removal of the advocate from practice. 63 C. 867.

EVIDENCE OF MISCONDUCT.—The fact that an advocate has been convicted of a criminal offence is evidence of his misconduct within the meaning of this section. 59 B. 676=1935 P.C. 168=69 M.L.J. 431 (P.C.). It is not incumbent on the Advocate-General to adduce evidence of the grounds on which the conviction is based. It is for the Court to decide whether the conviction is evidence of such misconduct as to call for disciplinary action by it. 69 M.L.J. 431 (P.C.). Where the High Court in its discretion proceeded to consider whether in the circumstances the misconduct proved called for any disciplinary action, the Privy Council will not interfere. 69 M.L.J. 43 (P.C.). The judgment and evidence in a civil suit are admissible as evidence in an inquiry under this section, but they are not conclusive proof. (Iqbal Ahmed, J., dissenting). 159 I.C. 561=1935 A. 1023.

SECS. 10 TO 13.—Where a complaint has been made to the Chief Justice and the Judges of the High Court under section 10, and such complaint has been referred to the Bar Council to be enquired into by a tribunal, it is incumbent upon the tribunal to come to some finding or other and it cannot abandon the proceeding merely because the complainant withdrew the complaint. 1930 C. 574=57 C. 724. It is highly unsatisfactory from the point of view of advocates and of the public that any one should make a solemn complaint against one of them to the High Court and have the matter referred to the tribunal and that then, without any finding which could clear the advocate, the enquiry should be dropped. The complainant after the matter has been referred to the tribunal is not in any way a person who is like a plaintiff dominus lues and if such complainant withdraws the complaint, and if from circumstances and evidence the tribunal is of opinion that there is no need to investigate and the charge preferred has no substance it can so report. In other circumstances it is open to the tribunal to exercise its own discretion whether to employ its power to summon the complainant personally or other people. The Act requires that the tribunal should come to a finding. 57 C. 724=1930 C. 574. (Per Rankin, C.J.). See also 1931 A. 580. The Bar Council is in the position of a trustee and guardian of the dignity and privileges of the Bar and the rights and duties of its members and it is to the interest of the profession that when a charge is made against an advocate it should either be cleared or brought home to him. The rules are so designed that on a charge of misconduct, there should be a finding one way or the other. 57 C. 724=1930 C. 574. (Per Buckland, J.).

SECS 10 AND 19.—A notice was issued on the 13th June, 1928, by the High Court against a pleader calling upon him to show cause why he should not be dealt with under the Legal Practitioners Act for professional

12. (1) The High Court shall make rules to prescribe the procedure to be followed by Tribunals and by District Courts, respectively, in the conduct of inquiries referred under section 10.

(2) The finding of a Tribunal on an inquiry referred to the Bar Council under section 10 shall be forwarded to the High Court through the Bar Council, and the finding of a District Court on such an inquiry shall be forwarded direct to the High Court, which shall cause a copy thereof to be sent to the Bar Council.

(3) On receipt of the finding, the High Court shall fix a date for the hearing of the case and shall cause notice of the day so fixed to be given to the Advocate misconduct. Objection was taken by the pleader in view of the Bar Councils Act which had come into force on 1st June, 1928. Held, that the provisions of the Letters Patent in so far as they may conflict with the provisions of the Act, were abrogated by section 19 (2), and therefore it was necessary for the case to be either referred to the Bar Council or at any rate for the Bar Council to be consulted. The Court was not properly seized of the case and that the notices issued to show cause was, as framed, ultra vires and a nullity. 51 A. 76=26 A. L.J. 1039=1928 A. 439 (F.B.).

SEC. 12.—Where the High Court refers to the District Judge an inquiry as to an advocate's alleged misconduct, he cannot delegate the same to one of his assistants. 168 I.C. 992=38 Cr.L.J. 664 (1)=A.I.R. 1937 Sind 98. In order to prevent counsel appearing for the other party, he must have a definite retainer, with a fee paid, or he must have such confidential instructions from one of the parties as would make it improper for him to appear for the other party. In the absence of either, it cannot be said to be unprofessional on the part of the counsel, to appear for the other party. 147 I.C. 1080=11 O.W.N. 23=1934 Oudh 58 (S.B.). See also I.L.R. (1940) All. 262=1940 A.L.J. 170=A.I.R. 1940 All. 233. The High Court in considering what orders ought to be passed in a case that falls within sec. 12, is not in any way fettered by the report of the tribunal or of the District Court, and although no doubt the greatest weight ought to be attached to the findings contained in such a report, it is competent to the Court to go into the facts for itself and to decide whether or not it agrees with those findings. 1935 A.L.J. 759=1935 A. 425; 35 C.W.N. 293=1931 C. 680; 155 I.C. 1054=1935 A. 503. See also 1939 A. L.J. 957=I.L.R. (1940) All. 60=1940 All. 1 (F.B.). The value of the report of the tribunal in a case is lessened where, in respect of the more serious charges, it is not unanimous and to some extent ambiguous. The finding of the Tribunal can be reversed by a Bench of the High Court even though all the Judges constituting the Bench are not unanimous, and an order of the majority of the Judges reversing such finding is not ultra vires. 159 I.C. 653=1935 A. 1037. The value of the report of the tribunal in a case is lessened where, in respect of the more serious charges, it is not unanimous and to some extent ambiguous. Where the report of the tribunal is ambiguous and not explicit on findings it is not necessary to send it back to the tribunal if after investigating the facts itself the Court is in no doubt as to the order that ought to be passed in the case. 1933 R. 10. The Court's decision must rest not upon suspicion, but upon legal grounds established by legal testimony. 147 I.C. 1080=11 O.W.N. 23=1934 Oudh 58 (F.B.); 58 M.L.J. 635=1930 P.C. 144 (P.C.).

SEC. 12 (2).—The members of the Tribunal can record separate findings and make more than one report and the High Court is entitled to consider the report and findings of the minority as well as the majority of the Tribunal. 54 M. 857=61 M.L.J. 148=1932 M. 131 (F.B.). See also 42 C. W.N. 1111; I.L.R. 1940 A. 60. (F.B.). The offence of perjury always involves moral turpitude in varying degree according to the particular facts of each case. Although the High Court in proceedings under section 12 against an Advocate convicted of perjury, cannot question the propriety of the conviction, it can, with a view to fix the quantum of punishment, look into the circumstances of the case and ascertain the degree of moral turpitude and extenuating circumstances if any. Thus, the absence of direct evidence can be taken into account as also testimonials speaking highly of the character of the Advocate. Advocate suspended for six months. 131 I.C. 67=8 O.W.N. 267=1931 Oudh 161.

SEC. 12 (3).—Sub-section (3) provides that on receipt of the finding of the Tribunal, the Court shall fix a date for hearing and cause notice of the day so fixed to the Advocate concerned and to the Advocate-General. It follows that the original petitioner is not entitled to be served with notice or to be heard on the hearing before the Court. The Bar Council is there in order to assist the Court in any way it can and the Advocate concerned is of course entitled to be heard. The correct course is for the Advocate-General to open by submitting the report of the tribunal to the Court. Then the Advocate is entitled to be heard and if necessary, the Advocate-General will have a right of reply. 33 Bom.L.R. 1215=1931 B. 557. Section 12 (3) cannot be intended to exclude the right of the Court to hear any concerned and to the Bar Council and to the Advocate-General and shall afford the advocate concerned and the Bar Council and the Advocate-General an opportunity of being heard before orders are passed in the case.

(4) The High Court may thereafter either pass such final orders in the case as it thinks fit or refer it back for further inquiry to the Tribunal through the Bar Council or to the District Court, as the case may be, and, upon receipt of the finding after such further inquiry, deal with the case in the manner provided in sub-section (3) and pass final orders thereon.

(5) In passing final orders the High Court may pass such order as regards the payment of the costs of the inquiry and of the hearing in the High Court as it thinks fit.

(6) The High Court may, of its own motion or on application made to it in this behalf, review any order passed under sub-section (4) or sub-section (5) and maintain, vary or rescind the same, as it thinks fit.

(7) When any advocate is reprimanded or suspended under this Act, a record of the punishment shall be entered against his name in the roll of advocates of the High Court and when an advocate is removed from practice his name shall forthwith be struck off the roll; and the certificate of any advocate so suspended or removed shall be re-called.

13. (1) For the purposes of any such inquiry as aforesaid, a Tribunal or a District Court shall have the same powers as are vested in a Court under the Code of Civil Procedure, 1908, in respect of the following matters, namely:—

Powers of the Tribunal and Courts in inquiries.

- (a) enforcing the attendance of any person and examining him upon oath;
- (b) compelling the production of documents; and
- (c) issuing commissions for the examination of witnesses:

Provided that the Tribunal shall not have power to require the attendance of the presiding officer of any Court save with the previous sanction of the High Court, or, in the case of an officer of a Criminal or Revenue Court, of the Provincial Government.

(2) Every such inquiry shall be deemed to be a judicial proceeding within the meaning of sections 193 and 228 of the Indian Penal Code; and a Tribunal

SEC. 12 (5).—The rules framed under the Act empower the High Court to assess the costs directed to be paid to the Advocate by the complainant. At the same time it is open to the Court to direct an enquiry by the Registrar as to what sums had been paid by the complainant and the Advocate and pass final orders after the amount spent has been ascertained. 35 C.W.N. 293=134 I.C. 1270=1931 C. 680 (S.B.). M. 857 (F.B.). In a case where the complainant was unsuccessful before the tribunal whose findings were confirmed by the Court, the complainant was ordered to pay the costs of the Advocate both in the enquiry before the tribunal and in the hearing before the Court. He was also ordered to pay the fees of the shorthand writer and the interpreter in the inquiry before the Bar Council. The costs were directed to be taxed by the Registrar of the original side as of a hearing. 42 C.W.N. 1113=A.I.R. 1938 Cal. 766.

SEC. 12 (6).—The power of review conferred upon High Courts under sub-section (6) of section 12 cannot be extended to an order passed under section 41, Legal Practitioners Act. 148 I.C. 299=1934 Oudh 140=11 O.W.N. 368 (S.B.).

SEC. 13.—Inherent powers of the Supreme Court of Calcutta were not conferred on the Allahabad High Court by the Indian High Courts Act of 1861, and no power to exercise inherent disciplinary jurisdiction over legal practitioners independently of the Legal Practitioners Act and the Indian Bar Councils Act now exists in the Allahabad High Court in respect of their professional or other misconduct. 52 A. 619=1930 A.L.J. 402=1930 A. 225 (F.B.).

(3) For the purpose of enforcing the attendance of any person and examining him upon oath or of compelling the production of documents or of issuing commissions—

(a) the local limits of the jurisdiction of a Tribunal shall be those of the jurisdiction of the High Court by which the Tribunal has been constituted; and

(b) a Tribunal may send to any Civil Court having jurisdiction in the place where the Tribunal is sitting any summons or other process for the attendance of a witness or the production of a document required by the Tribunal, or any commission which it desires to issue, and the Civil Court shall serve such process or issue such commission, as the case may be, and may enforce any such process as if it were a process for attendance or production before itself.

(4) Proceedings before a Tribunal or a District Court in any such inquiry shall be deemed to be civil proceedings for the purposes of section 132 of the Indian Evidence Act, 1872, and the provisions of that section shall apply accordingly.

Miscellaneous.

Right of advocates to practise.

14. (1) An Advocate shall be entitled as of right to practise—

(a) subject to the provisions of sub-section (4) of section 9, in the High Court of which he is an advocate; and

(b) save as otherwise provided by sub-section (2) or by or under any other law for the time being in force, in any other Court in British India and before any other Tribunal or person legally authorised to take evidence; and

(c) before any other authority or person before whom such advocate is by or under the law for the time being in force entitled to practise.

(2) Where rules have been made by any High Court within the meaning of clause (24) of section 3 of the General Clauses Act, 1897, or in the case of a High Court for which a Bar Council has been constituted under this Act, by such Bar Council under section 15, regulating the conditions subject to which advocates of other High Courts may be permitted to practise in the High Court, such advocates shall not be entitled to practise therein otherwise than subject to such conditions.

(3) Nothing in this section shall be deemed to limit or in any way affect the power of the High Court of Judicature at Fort William in Bengal or of the High Court of Judicature at Bombay to make rules determining the persons who

SEC. 14: ENTRY IN THE ROLL OF ADVOCATES—EFFECT OF.—An ex-Judge of the Patna High Court, after his retirement as a Judge, applied to have his name entered on the roll of advocates. It was allowed with a condition refusing him the permission to appear in the Courts of the Province. Held, that the applicant's name being entered on the roll of advocates, he was entitled as of right to practise in the Courts of the Province. 58 I.A. 38=1931 P.C. 22 (2)=60 M.L.J. 179 (P.C.). Section 14 (1) (b) cannot be invoked to enable a Government servant in a departmental inquiry, the rules of which provide for his being "heard in person," to claim the right to be represented by Counsel. The question has to be determined not by the counsel's right of audience in inferior Courts, but by the right of the client to be represented by him. 46 L.W. 531=A.I.R. 1937 M. 735=(1937) 2 M.L.

J. 189.

SECS. 14 (2) AND 15 (b).—Where an application is made on behalf of an advocate of one High Court for permission to appear in case in another High Court under the rules framed under this Act, good reasons must be shown for the grant of such permission. The permission cannot be granted on mere application or as a matter of course, nor claimed as a matter of right. No question of reciprocity is involved in the matter. The Chief Justice will apply his mind to the circumstances of the application and see that good reasons have been made out for the grant of permission in any particular case. 167 I.C. 486=38 Cr.L.J. 392=17 P.L.T. 861=A.I.R. 1937 P. 122. shall be entitled respectively to plead and to act in the High Court in the exercise of its original jurisdiction.

15. A Bar Council may, with the previous sanction of the High Court for which it is constituted, make rules consistent with this Act to provide for and regulate any of the following matters, namely:—

General power of Bar Councils to make rules.

(a) the rights and duties of the advocates of the High Court and their discipline and professional conduct;

(b) the conditions subject to which advocates of other High Courts may be permitted to practise in the High Court;

(c) the giving of facilities for legal education and training and the holding and conduct of examinations by the Bar Council;

(d) the charging of fees payable to the Bar Council in respect of the enjoyment of educational facilities provided, or of the right to appear at examinations held, by the Bar Council;

(e) the investment and management of the funds of the Bar Council; and

(f) any other matter in respect of which the High Court may require rules to be made under this section.

16. The High Court shall make rules for fixing and regulating by taxation or otherwise the fees payable as costs by any party in respect of the fees of his adversary's advocate upon all proceedings in the High Court or in any Court subordinate thereto.

Power to fix fees payable as costs.

17. No suit or other legal proceeding shall lie against a Bar Council or any Committee, Tribunal or member of a Bar Council for any act in good faith done or intended to be done in pursuance of the provisions of this Act or of any rule made thereunder.

Indemnity against legal proceedings.

18. All rules made under this Act shall be published in the Official Gazette of the province or of each province, as the case may be, in which the High Court by which or with whose sanction the rules are made exercises jurisdiction.

Publication of rules.

19. (1) When sections 8 to 16 come into force in respect of any High Court, any enactment mentioned in the first column of the Schedule which is in force in any province in which the High Court exercises jurisdiction shall, for the purpose of its application to that province, be amended to the extent and in the manner specified in the second column of the Schedule.

Amendment of enactments, etc.

SEC. 15.—Investment of his savings by an advocate do not necessarily amount to an engagement in money-lending business, the more so when such investments are few and far between and are mostly made to relations and friends. Nevertheless if investments by way of loan are made as a matter of regular business and for gain there can be no escape from the conclusion that such investments constitute engagement in money-lending business. It depends on the facts of each case and is a mixed question of fact and law, as to whether certain transactions

(4) When this Act has come into force in respect of any High Court, any provision of any other enactment or any order, scheme, rule, form or bye-law made thereunder, which was before that date applicable to advocates, vakils or pleaders entitled to practise in such High Court, shall, unless such a construction is repugnant to the context or to any provision made by or under this Act, be construed as applying to advocates of the High Court enrolled under this Act.

THE BERAR LAW ACT (IV OF 1941).

An Act to extend certain Acts to Berar.

WHEREAS by orders made under the Indian (Foreign Jurisdiction) Order in Council, 1902, the provisions of certain Acts in force in British India have from time to time been applied to, and are now, by virtue of such application, in force in, Berar;

AND WHEREAS it is expedient that those and certain other Acts should be extended to, and be, by virtue of such extension, in force in, Berar:

It is hereby enacted as follows:—

Short title and commencement.

1. (1) This Act may be called THE BERAR LAWS ACT, 1941.

(2) It shall come into force on such date as the Central Government may, by notification in the official Gazette, appoint.

2. (1) The Acts specified in the First Schedule and so much of any Act specified in the Second Schedule as relates to matters with respect to which the Central Legislature has power to make laws are hereby extended to, and shall be in force in, Berar; and in any enactment so extended any reference by whatever form of words to subjects of His Majesty shall be deemed to include a reference to Berari subjects of His Exalted Highness the Nizam of Hyderabad, and notwithstanding anything contained in clause (7) of section 3 of the General Clauses Act, 1897, any reference to British India shall be construed as a reference to British India and Berar.

(2) The Acts specified in the Third Schedule shall be amended in the manner set forth in the second column of that Schedule.

3. The application, if any, to Berar, made by order under the Indian (Foreign Jurisdiction) Order in Council, 1902, of the Acts specified in the First Schedule, of so much of any Act specified in the Second Schedule as relates to matters with respect to which the Central Legislature has power to make laws and of the Indian Cotton Cess Act, 1923, shall cease to have effect:

Provided that all appointments, delegations, notifications, orders, bye-laws, rules and regulations, which have been made or issued under, or in pursuance of, any provision of any of the said Acts as applied to Berar by order under the said Order in Council, and which are in force at the commencement of this Act, shall be deemed to have been made or issued under or in pursuance of the corresponding provision of that Act as now extended to, and in force in, Berar.

Removal of doubt.

4. For the removal of doubt it is hereby declared that the Acts specified in the Fourth Schedule have ceased to have effect and are repealed in Berar.

THE INDIAN BILLS OF LADING ACT (IX OF 1856).<sup>1</sup>

Short title given, Act XIV of 1897.

Declared in force throughout B.I., except as regards the Scheduled Districts, Act XV of 1874, S. 3.

[11th April, 1856.]

ACT IX OF 1856 IS BASED ON THE BILLS OF LADING ACT, 1855.
(18 and 19 VICT., c. 111).An Act to amend the law relating to Bills of Lading.

WHEREAS by the custom of merchants a bill of lading of goods being transferable by endorsement, the property in the goods may thereby pass to the endorsee but nevertheless all rights in respect of the contract contained in the bill of lading continue in the original

LEG. REF.

Act IX of 1856 is based on the Bills of Lading Act, 1855 (18 and 19 Vict., c. 111).

This Act has been declared to be in force in the whole of British India, except as regards the Scheduled Districts, by the Laws Local Extent Act, 1874 (XV of 1874), S. 3.

It has been declared, by notification under S. 3 (a) of the Scheduled Districts Act, 1874 (XIV of 1874), to be in force in the following Scheduled Districts, namely:—

shipper or owner and it is expedient that such rights should pass with the property; and whereas it frequently happens that the goods in respect of which bills of lading purport to be signed have not been laden on board, and it is proper that such bills of lading in the hands of a bona fide holder for value should not be questioned by the master or other person signing the same, on the ground of the goods not having been laden as aforesaid; it is enacted as follows:—

1. Every consignee of goods named in a bill of lading, and every endorsee of a bill of lading to whom the property in the goods therein mentioned shall pass, upon or by reason of such consignment or endorsement shall have transferred to and vested in him all rights of suit, and be subject to the same liabilities in respect of such goods as if the contract contained in the bill of lading had been made with himself.

Rights under bills of lading to vest in consignee or endorsee.

2. Nothing herein contained shall prejudice or affect any right of stoppage in transitu,<sup>1</sup> or any right to claim freight against the original shipper or owner, or any liability of the consignee or endorsee by reason or in consequence of his being such consignee or endorsee, or of his receipt of the goods by reason or in consequence of such consignment or endorsement.

Not to affect right of stoppage in transitu or claims for freight.

3. Every bill of lading in the hands of a consignee or endorsee for valuable consideration, representing goods to have been shipped on board a vessel, shall be conclusive evidence of such shipment as against the master or other person signing the same, notwithstanding that such goods or some part thereof may not have been so shipped, unless such holder of the bill of lading shall have had actual notice at the time of receiving the same that the goods had not in fact been laden on board:

Bill of lading in hands of consignee, etc., conclusive evidence of the shipment as against master, etc.

Provided that the master or other person so signing may exonerate himself, in respect of such misrepresentation, by showing that it was caused without any default on his part, and wholly by the fraud of the shipper, or of the holder or some person under whom the holder claims.

NOTES.

SECS. 1-3.—The object of a bill of lading is to provide for the rights and liabilities of the parties in reference to the contract to carry and it is not concerned with liabilities to contribution in general average. The question whether an exemption clause covers the liability to contribution in general average in a case of proper jettison depends on the intention of the parties. If the shipowner wishes to relieve himself, he must do so in clear words. 78 I.C. 972. Where a bill of lading contains the usual exemption clause as regards the liability for acts of God, King's enemies and the perils of the sea, in a suit by the consignee for damages for loss of goods, etc., the defendant shipowner must plead and prove perils of the sea if that is his defence. If he makes out a prima facie case plaintiff can rebut it by proving negligence on the part of the defendant. 47 Mad. 610=47 M.L.J. 150. "At Merchant's Risk," meaning of, 78 I.C. 972. ## THE BIRTHS, DEATHS AND MARRIAGES REGISTRATION ACT (VI OF 1886).

PREFATORY NOTE.—The following is the Statement of Objects and Reasons appended to the Births, Deaths and Marriages Registration Bill:—It is proposed by this Act (1) to establish a system of voluntary registration of births and deaths for the benefit of such classes of the community as would be likely to avail themselves of registration, (2) to establish general registry offices for keeping registers of the births and deaths so registered and of marriages registered under Act III of 1872 or the Indian Christian Marriage Act (XV of 1872), and (3) to provide a machinery for giving evidential value to certain existing registers of births, baptisms, deaths, burials and marriages, which have been kept under no law. The subject of the registration of births and deaths among Europeans in India had been frequently long under the consideration of the Government, whose attention had moreover been frequently directed to it by memorials from various Christian religious bodies, urging very strongly the need for legislation. The Indian Statute book contained at that time no general law for the registration of births and deaths. There were, indeed, enactments which provided for the registration of births and deaths within certain specified areas, principally municipalities and cantonments, but, in the first place, these enactments were strictly local in their nature, leaving the greater portion of the country unprovided for, and in the next place, their provisions being directed primarily to statistical purposes were not of such a nature as to make the registers of births and deaths kept under them of value for purposes of evidence. As to the numerous registers of baptisms and burials which were kept by ministers of religion in all parts of the country, it was doubtful how far they could be relied on for giving accurately the requisite particulars as to births and deaths, and most of them were, moreover, inadmissible in evidence. Such being the state of the law and considering the importance of the subject generally and having regard to the fact that references were frequently made to the Secretary of State for India and to the Government of India for proof of age or of death in connection with questions involving large individual interest, such as rights to property, the Government of India was of opinion that it was expedient to enact a permissible law under which full facilities for registering births and deaths should be given to persons valuing unimpeachable evidence of these events. As to the second object of the Bill, it was obvious that no system of registration of births and deaths could be complete or of practical value unless it provided for the establishment, at certain centres of general offices where the information registered at the various local offices should be collected and so arranged as to be readily available for public reference. In this connection the attention of the Government of India has been directed to the unsatisfactory nature of the system of registration of marriages under the Indian Christian Marriage Act, 1872 and Act III of 1872. Documentary evidence of all marriages under the former Act was, by the provisions of the Act or the orders thereunder, sent to the Secretary to the Local Government, who was also empowered to grant certified copies which were receivable in evidence. It would seem, therefore, at first sight that nothing further was required. But, as a matter of fact, not only were no arrangements made for maintaining an index to the marriages, the records of which were retained in the local Secretariate, but the greater portion of the marriage records which were received in the local Secretariate had, under section 81 of the Act and the orders in force, to be sent on in original to the Government of India in the Home Department for transmission to the Secretary of State; so that the greater number of the marriage records which reached the local Secretariate did not remain there for purposes of reference, and such as did remain were, owing to the absence of an index, practically valueless. As to Act III of 1872, this Act made no provisions for the marriages solemnized under it being reported to any central authority. The marriage certificate books for which it provided were retained by the Registrar, who was not even required to index them. Their value as records of the marriages to which they referred was accordingly much diminished. The Government of India had, therefore, availed themselves of the opportunity of the proposed legislation for the registration of births and deaths, to remove those defects in the marriages registration law by providing for general registry offices for keeping registers not only for the births and deaths which may be registered under the proposed law, but also of marriages which may be registered under Act III of 1872 or the Christian Marriage Act, 1872. 17. (1) When any Registrar of Births and Deaths to whom the Provincial Government may direct this section to apply, not being a Registrar of Births and Deaths for a local area in the town of Calcutta, Madras or Bombay, is absent, or when his office is temporarily vacant, any person whom the Registrar-General of Births, Deaths and Marriages appoints in this behalf, or, in default of such appointment, the Judge of the District Court within the local limits of whose jurisdiction the Registrar's office is situate, or such other officer as the Provincial Government appoints in this behalf, shall be the Registrar of Births and Deaths during such absence or until the Provincial Government fills the vacancy.

(2) When any such Registrar of Births and Deaths for a local area in the town of Calcutta, Madras or Bombay is absent, or when his office is temporarily vacant, any person whom the Registrar-General of Births, Deaths and Marriages appoints in this behalf shall be the Registrar of Births and Deaths during such absence or until the Provincial Government fills the vacancy.

(3) The Registrar-General of Births, Deaths and Marriages shall report to the Provincial Government all appointments made by him under this section.

18. The Provincial Government shall supply every Registrar of Births and Deaths with a sufficient number of register books of births and of register books of deaths, and shall make suitable provision for the preservation of the records connected with the registration of births and deaths.

Register books to be supplied and preservation of records to be provided for.

C.—Mode of Registration.

19. Every Registrar of Births and Deaths on receipt of notice of birth or death within the local area or among the class for which he is appointed, shall, if the notice is given within the prescribed time and in the prescribed mode by a person authorized by this Act to give the notice, forthwith make an entry of the birth or death in the proper register book :

Provided that—

(a) if he has reason to believe the notice to be in any respect false, he may refuse to register the birth or death until he receives an order from the Judge of the District Court directing him to make the entry and prescribing the manner in which the entry is to be made; and

(b) he shall not enter in the register the name of any person as father of an illegitimate child, unless at the request of the mother and of the person acknowledging himself to be the father of the child.

Persons authorized to give notice of birth.

20. Any of the following persons may give notice of a birth, namely:—

(a) the father or mother of the child;

(b) any person present at the birth;

(c) any person occupying, at the time of the birth, any part of the house wherein the child was born and having knowledge of the child having been born in the house;

(d) any medical practitioner in attendance after the birth and having personal knowledge of the birth having occurred;

(e) any person having charge of the child.

NOTES.

SEC. 17 (1).—The section has been declared by the Government of Madras to apply to all Registrars appointed by that Government under the notification issued under section 12, see Madras R. and O.

Persons authorized to give notice of death.

21. Any of the following persons may give notice of a death, namely:—

(a) any relative of the deceased having knowledge of any of the particulars required to be registered concerning the death;

(b) any person present at the death;

(c) any person occupying, at the time of the death, any part of the house wherein the death occurred and having knowledge of the deceased having died in the house;

(d) any person in attendance during the last illness of the deceased;

(e) any person who has seen the body of the deceased after death.

22. (1) When an entry of a birth or death has been made by the Registrar of Births and Deaths under section 19, the person giving notice of the birth or death must sign the entry in the register in the presence of the Registrar:

Entry of birth or death to be signed by person giving notice.

<sup>1</sup>[Provided that it shall not be necessary for the person giving notice to attend before the Registrar or to sign the entry in the register, if he has given such notice in writing and has furnished to the satisfaction of the Registrar such evidence of his identity as may be required by any rules made by the Provincial Government, in this behalf.]

(2) Until the entry has been so signed <sup>1</sup>[or the conditions specified in the proviso to sub-section (1) have been complied with,] the birth or death shall not be deemed to be registered under this Act.

(3) When the birth of an illegitimate child is registered, and the mother and the person acknowledging himself to be the father of the child jointly request that that person may be registered as the father, the mother and that person must both sign the entry in the register in the presence of the Registrar.

23. The Registrar of Births and Deaths shall, on application made at the time of registering any birth or death by the person giving notice of the birth or death, and on payment by him of the prescribed fee,<sup>2</sup> give to the applicant a certificate in the prescribed form, signed by the Registrar, of having registered the birth or death.

Grant of certificate of registration of birth or death.

24. (1) Every Registrar of Births and Deaths in British India shall send to the Registrar-General of Births, Deaths and Marriages for the territories within which the local area or class for which he is appointed is situate or resides, at the prescribed intervals, a true copy certified by him, in the prescribed form, of all the entries of births and deaths in the register book kept by him since the last of those intervals:

Duty of Registrars as to sending certified copies of entries in register books to Registrar-General.

Provided that in the case of Registrars of Births and Deaths who are clergymen of the Churches of England, Rome and Scotland, the Registrar may, if so directed by his ecclesiastical superior, send the certified copies in the first instance to that superior, who shall send them to the proper Registrar-General of Births, Deaths and Marriages.

In this sub-section "Church of England" and "Church of Scotland" mean the Church of England and the Church of Scotland as by law established respectively; and "Church of Rome" means the Church which regards the Pope of Rome as its spiritual head.

25. (1) Every Registrar of Births and Deaths shall, on payment of the prescribed fees, at all reasonable times, allow searches to be made in the register books kept by him, and give a copy of any entry in the same.

Searches and copies of entries in register books.

(2) Every copy of an entry in a register book given under this section shall be certified by the Registrar of Births and Deaths and shall be admissible in evidence for the purpose of proving the birth or death to which the entry relates.

26. Notwithstanding anything in section 19, the Provincial Government may make rules authorising Registrars of Births and Deaths on conditions and in circumstances to be specified in the rules, to register births and deaths occurring outside the local areas or classes for which they are appointed.

Exceptional provision for registration of certain births and deaths.

D.—Penalty for False Information.

27. If any person wilfully makes, or causes to be made for the purpose of being inserted in any register of births or deaths, any false statement in connection with any notice of a birth or death under this Act, he shall be punished with imprisonment for a term which may extend to three years, or with fine, or with both.

Penalty for wilfully giving false information.

E.—Correction of Errors.

28. (1) If it is proved to the satisfaction of a Registrar of Births and Deaths that any entry of a birth or death in any register kept by him under this Act is erroneous in form or substance, he may, subject to such rules<sup>4</sup> as may be made by the Provincial Government with respect to the conditions and circumstances on and in which errors may be corrected, correct the error by entry in the margin, without any alteration of the original entry, and shall sign the marginal entry and add thereto the date of the correction.

Correction of entry in register of births or deaths.

(2) If a certified copy of the entry has already been sent to the Registrar-General of Births, Deaths and Marriages, the Registrar of Births and Deaths shall make and send a separate certified copy of the original erroneous entry and of the marginal correction therein made.

CHAPTER V.

SPECIAL PROVISIONS AS TO CERTAIN EXISTING REGISTERS.

32. If any person in British India, or in <sup>1</sup>[any Indian State] has for the time being the custody of any register or record of birth, baptism, naming, dedication, death or burial of any persons of the classes referred to in section 11, sub-section (1), or of any register or record of marriage of any persons of the classes to which Act III of 1872 or the Indian Christian Marriage Act, 1872, or the Parsi Marriage and Divorce Act, 1865, applies, and if such register or record has been made otherwise than in performance of a duty specially enjoined by the law of the country in which the register or record was kept he may, <sup>2</sup>[at any time before the first day of April, 1891] send the register or record to the office of the Registrar-General of Births, Deaths and Marriages for the territories within which he resides, or, if he resides within <sup>1</sup>[any Indian State] to such one of the Registrars-General as aforesaid as the Central Government by notification<sup>3</sup> in the Official Gazette directs in this behalf:

Permission to persons having custody of certain records to send them within one year to Registrar-General.

33. <sup>6</sup>[(1) Any Provincial Government, in the case of registers or records sent under section 32 to the Registrar-General for the territories under its administration, and the Central Government, in the case of registers or records so sent to any other Registrar-General appointed by <sup>1</sup>[it] under the said section, may appoint so many persons as it <sup>7</sup>[***] thinks fit to be Commissioners for examining such registers or records.]

Appointment of Commissioners to examine registers.

(2) The Commissioners so appointed shall hold office for such period as the <sup>8</sup>[authority appointing them] by the order of appointment, or any subsequent order, directs.

34. (1) The Commissioners appointed under the last foregoing section shall enquire into the state, custody and authenticity of every such register or record as may be sent to the Registrar-General of Births, Deaths and Marriages under section 32; and shall deliver to the Registrar-General a descriptive list or descriptive lists of all such registers or records, or portions of registers or records, as they find to be accurate and faithful.

Duties of Commissioners.

(2) The list or lists shall contain the prescribed particulars and refer to the registers or records, or to the portions of the registers or records, in the prescribed manner.

(3) The Commissioners shall also certify in writing, upon some part of every separate book or volume containing any such register or record, or portion of a register or record, as is referred to in any list or lists made by the

THE CANTONMENTS ACT (II OF 1924).

PREFATORY NOTE: NECESSITY FOR A SPECIAL LAW AS TO CANTONMENTS.—The Hon'ble Mr. Scoble in introducing the old Cantonments Bill, of 1910 said:—

"There are one or two points in connection with this Bill, to which I think it is desirable briefly to call attention.

"Although there is no definition of the word 'cantonment' in the Bill, it has a well understood popular meaning. The term has for more than a century been applied to military stations in India and these stations have almost from their first establishment been subject to special regulations. The troops themselves being under military law, it became necessary—to use the language of Bengal Regulation XX of 1810—from the great number of native retainers and followers attached to military establishments in India and the importance of prompt and orderly discharge of their duties to the welfare of the troops—to bring them also to a certain extent under military discipline, and with this view, in order to ascertain the areas within which stricter rules thus sanctioned might be enforced, it was enacted that the limits of cantonments and garrisons, including the military bazaars attached thereto, at which any division or corps of the army, or any considerable detachment not being less than half a battalion may be quartered, shall be marked out by the commanding officer in concert with the magistrate, and submitted for the final orders of Government. Similar regulations were framed in Madras and Bombay and under one or other of these enactments, all the other cantonments in India have been demarcated. It seemed to the Select Committee, therefore, better to adhere to the old method of determining what places were to be treated as subject to cantonment law than to attempt a new definition, and S. 4 of the Bill accordingly provides that the Local Government with the previous consent of the Governor-General in Council, may by notification in the Official Gazette, declare any place within its territories, in which any of Her Majesty's regular forces are quartered to be a cantonment and the same authorities may also from time to time declare or vary the limits of cantonments and may also declare that places are no longer cantonments; while the Governor-General in Council is specially empowered to exclude the whole or any part of a cantonment from the operation of any portion of the Act. These provisions have been introduced in order to meet the changes which necessarily occur in the distribution of troops throughout the country; and it is considered that by requiring the concurrence of the Local Authority and the supreme Government to the establishment or continuance of cantonment law in any locality, every reasonable safeguard is secured that private rights will be respected and public convenience duly regarded.

"While recognising the necessity of maintaining special laws in places primarily intended for the occupation of troops and followers, it has been the object of the framers of the Bill to assimilate, wherever it was possible, the Cantonment Law to that prevailing in Municipalities. In some parts of India, Cantonments are included within the limits of Municipalities and special provisions have been introduced to prevent any conflict of jurisdiction from this cause. But in all cantonments only such taxes as can be imposed in a Municipality in the same province may be levied; and by S. 25 of the Bill, the Governor-General in Council is authorised to extend to any cantonment any enactment in force in any Municipality in British India, subject to such restrictions and modifications as circumstances may show to be expedient. Under this section I hope many useful sanitary provisions, to be found in local laws—such, for instance, as the Provisions of S. 364 of the Calcutta Municipal Consolidation Act, 1888, with regard to the sale of adulterated articles of food—will be introduced into military stations.

"Section 26 of the Bill contains a very careful enumeration of the objects and purposes for which special rules may be made. To secure uniformity, it is provided that the rules shall be made by the Governor-General in Council, and to secure publicity that they shall not be made until the persons to be affected by them have had an opportunity of examining them and submitting such criticisms or objections as they may wish to offer. Exception has been taken to the power given to make rules for the construction and maintenance to the satisfaction of the cantonment authority, of buildings and of boundary walls, hedges and other fences. I think this is a very necessary power. It is possessed by municipal authorities everywhere; and owners of property will only have themselves to blame if rules of a really more oppressive or arbitrary character than those which prevail in well organised civil communities are passed for the lack of due remonstrance on their part.

"With regard to cantonment funds, it may be observed that although the Bill requires that, as a general rule, they must be expended upon the purposes of the Act within the cantonment itself, power is taken, in S. 21, to apply them to like objects (as, for instance, the formation and conservancy of a cholera camp) beyond the limits of the cantonment.

"One other point remains to be noticed. It will be obvious that the health and discipline of the dwellers in cantonments cannot be secured if breaches of cantonment rules can be committed with impunity, just outside their boundaries. Section 28 of the Bill accordingly provides that the Local Government may extend to the neighbourhood of a cantonment any enactment or rules in force within the cantonment itself. It will rest with the Local Government and not with the military authorities, to determine in what respects and within what area, these rules and enactments ought to be applied beyond cantonment limits; and, in order to prevent hardship or loss to owners of property in such neighbourhoods, it will be in the power of Local Government to award such compensation or to make such other conditions as the circumstances of the case may require."

See Fort St. George Gazette Supplement, 1910, pages 1 and 2.

Necessity for amendment of the old Act.—The following is the Statement of Objects and Reasons attached to the present Cantonments Bill:—

A committee, which was appointed by the Government of India in January, 1921, to consider what changes were necessary in order to introduce into the administration of cantonments the spirit, of the reformed scheme of Government, recommended a complete revision and amalgamation of the Cantonments Act (Act XV of 1910) and the Cantonment Code, 1912, in order to bring them into conformity with ordinary Municipal Law and the system under which military cantonments are administered.

The recommendations of the committee have now been examined by the Government of India and the conclusions arrived at are embodied in the Bill.

The main features of the Bill are as follows:—

(a) It is proposed to take power to municipalise Government of those cantonments which contain a substantial civil population having no essential connexion with or dependence upon the military administration. In other cantonments where these circumstances do not fully exist, the administration of cantonment affairs will be vested in the hands of the commanding officer of the cantonment, who, for the purpose of the Act, will be constituted a corporation sole. The general effect will be that the cantonment authority will cease to be the purely executive agency of Government, which it is at present. In the larger cantonments the existing Cantonment Committee will be replaced by Cantonment Board which will be municipal in character and an essentially local Self-Government body.

(b) The reformed Cantonment Authorities will have a separate legal persona, will be capable of suing and being sued in their name and of making contracts. They will also be empowered to make bye-laws to govern local matters of administration which require different treatment in different cantonments.

(c) The cantonment fund under the reformed system will be a local fund invested in the cantonment authority.

(d) In the reformed cantonments where a Board is constituted a proportion of the Cantonment Board will be elected representatives of the civil inhabitants of the cantonment. An official majority will, however, be maintained.

(e) The Cantonment Magistrate as such, will be eliminated. In his place an "Executive officer" will be appointed. He will be paid by the Government. He will perform amongst other things, the duty of the Secretary of the Board, and he will have no judicial powers or functions.

(f) The Local Government will exercise certain larger powers of superintendence and control over cantonment affairs than they do at present.

(g) The military authorities will retain special powers in matters affecting the health, welfare and discipline of troops. (See Statement of Objects and Reasons—Fort St. George Gazette, 17th April, 1923, Pt. III, p. 228).

Rep. in pt., Act XII of 1927.

An Act to consolidate and amend the law relating to the administration of cantonments.

WHEREAS it is expedient to consolidate and amend the law relating to the administration of cantonments; It is hereby enacted as follows:—

CHAPTER I.

PRELIMINARY.

Short title, extent and commencement.

1. (1) This Act may be called THE CANTONMENTS ACT, 1924.

(2) It extends to the whole of British India, including British Baluchistan.

NOTES.

SEC. 1.—The Secretary of State is absolute owner of all Cantonment lands, unless it can be proved that he parted with it. There can be no adverse possession against him. A person occupying land in Cantonments not specifically transferred to him by the Secretary of State, can only hold it as a licensee from him, who could eject him at will by revoking his licence. 66 I.C. 582=1922 All. 57. The mere fact that certain lands are declared by Government to be within a Cantonment area does not vest their ownership in the Government unless it is shown that the lands were acquired by the Government for that purpose. 31 C.W.N. 1033=1927 Cal. 786. All land within Cantonment area does not necessarily belong to Government. 1927 C. 786. It is not the necessary implication of the second paragraph of cl. (6) of Ben. Cantonment Regulations, though the rules suggest that the greater part of the land was at that time Government property. 57 I.A. 339=58 C. 858=60 M.L.J. 142 (P.C.). Where subsequent to the establishment of a Cantonment the ownership of the land within it becomes vested in the Secretary of State and the prior owners of the land were compensated for the loss of such rights as they may have actually suffered, it is a fair presumption that the amount of compensation would vary according to whether the prior ownership was deprived wholly of ownership and possession or whether he was deprived only of ownership and allowed to remain in possession as licensee without the payment of any rent. 1930 All. 587=128 I.C. 441. The Peshawar Cantonment Board, as representing the Secretary of State who acquired the Peshawar Cantonment by purchase, is the owner of all the lands situate within the Cantonment and is entitled to eject a licensee in possession on payment of compensation in respect of structures or improvements, if any, made by him. 142 I.C. 657=1933 Pesh. 56. Subsequent to the establishment of Cantonment possession of one enclosed plot of land was found to be with original owner described as 'malik' in official records, who subsequently built on portion of land with permission of Cantonment authorities and let out buildings for shops. Permission to build is not licence with regard to site for shops only but original owner continued to be licensee of whole plot of land. 1930 All. 587. Where Army Regulations were in force by which a house could not be sold at all to Civilians and later on it was allowed to be sold with the sanction of the Commanding Officer, held, in the absence of evidence as to the actual terms, it must be presumed that the permission was subject to a reservation about sanction. 46 A. 427=1924 All. 415. Therefore every transfer made with the permission of the military authority must be treated as indicating an admission of a new licence upon the prevailing conditions. 46 A. 427. A transfer without sanction furnishes a cause of action for a declaration that it was not binding on the Secretary of State. 46 A. 427. The rights of the occupier to sell the materials of the house are not affected by the Regulation. 46 A. 427=1924 All. 415.

(3) The Central Government may, by notification in the Official Gazette direct that this Act, or any provisions thereof which <sup>1</sup>[it] may specify, shall come into force on such date<sup>2</sup> as <sup>1</sup>[it] may appoint in this behalf.

2. In this Act, unless there is anything repugnant in the subject or context,—

CHAPTER II.

DEFINITION AND DELIMITATION OF CANTONMENTS.

3. (1) The Central Government 3[* *] may, by notification in the Official Gazette declare any place or places in which any part of His Majesty's regular forces or regular air force is quartered or which, being in the vicinity of any such place or places, is or are required for the service of such forces to be a cantonment for the purposes of this Act and of all other enactments for the time being in force, and 4[* *] may, by a like notification,<sup>5</sup> declare that any cantonment shall cease to be a cantonment.

(2) The Central Government 4[* *] may, by a like notification, define the limits of any cantonment for the aforesaid purposes.

6[(3) When any place is declared a cantonment for the first time, the Central Government may, until a Board is constituted in accordance with the provisions of this Act, by order make any provision which appears necessary to 7[it] either for the administration of the Cantonment or for the constitution of the Board].

4. (1) The Central Government 3[* *] may, by notification in the Official Gazette, declare its intention to include within a cantonment any local area situated in the 8[* *] vicinity thereof or to exclude from a cantonment any local area comprised therein.

(2) Any inhabitant of a cantonment or local area in respect of which a notification has been published under sub-section (1) may, within six weeks from the date of the notification, submit in writing to the Central Government through the Officer Commanding-in-Chief, the Command, an objection to the notification, and the Central Government shall take such objection into consideration.

(3) On the expiry of six weeks from the date of the notification, the Central Government may 3[* *] after considering the objections, if any, which have been submitted under sub-section (2), by notification in the Official Gazette, include the local area in respect of which the notification was published under sub-section (1), or any part thereof, in the cantonment or, as the case may be, exclude such area or any part thereof from the cantonment.

5. When, by a notification under section 4, any local area is included in a cantonment, such area shall thereupon become subject to this Act and to all other enactments for the time being in force throughout the cantonment and to all notifications, rules, regulations, bye-laws, orders and directions issued or made thereunder.

6. (1) When, by a notification under section 3, any cantonment ceases to be a cantonment and the local area comprised therein is immediately placed under the control of a local authority, the balance of the cantonment fund and other property vesting in the Board shall vest in such local authority, and the liabilities of the Board shall be transferred to such local authority.

(2) When, in like manner, any cantonment ceases to be a cantonment and the local area comprised therein is not immediately placed under the control of a local authority, the balance of the cantonment fund and other property vesting in the Board shall vest in His Majesty, and the liabilities of the Board shall be transferred to the <sup>1</sup>[Central Government].

7. (1) When, by a notification under section 4, any local area forming part of a cantonment ceases to be under the control of a particular Board and is immediately placed under the control of some other local authority, such portion of the cantonment fund and other property vesting in the Board and such portion of the liabilities of the Board, as the Central Government may, by general or special order, direct, shall be transferred to that other local authority.

(2) When, in like manner, any local area forming part of a cantonment ceases to be under the control of a particular Board and is not immediately placed under the control of some other local authority, such portion of the cantonment fund and other property vesting in the Board shall vest in His Majesty, and such portion of the liabilities of the Board shall be transferred to the <sup>1</sup>[Central Government], as the Central Government may, by general or special order, direct.

8. Any cantonment fund or portion of a cantonment fund or other property of a Board vesting in His Majesty under the provisions of section 6 or section 7 shall be applied in the first place to satisfy any liabilities of the Board transferred under such provisions to the <sup>1</sup>[Central Government] and in the second place for the benefit of the inhabitants of the local area which has ceased to be a cantonment or, as the case may be, part of a cantonment.

9. The Central Government may, <sup>2</sup>[* *] by notification in the Official Gazette, exclude from the operation of any part of this Act the whole or any part of a cantonment, or direct that any provision of this Act shall, in the case of any cantonment—

CHAPTER III.

Cantonment Board and Executive Officer.

<sup>2</sup>[10. For every cantonment there shall be a Cantonment Board and an Executive Officer.]

<sup>2</sup>[11. Every Board shall, by the name of the place by reference to which the cantonment is known, be a body corporate having perpetual succession and a common seal with power to acquire and hold property both movable and immovable and to contract and shall, by the said name, sue and be sued.]

Incorporation of Cantonment Board.

<sup>2</sup>[12. (1) The Executive Officer of every cantonment shall be appointed by the Central Government, or by such person as the Central Government may authorise in this behalf, from the Service of Executive Officers constituted by rules made under section 280:

Appointment of Executive Officer.

Provided that an Executive Officer appointed before the commencement of the Cantonments (Amendment) Act, 1936, shall, unless the Central Government otherwise directs in any case, be deemed to have been duly appointed in accordance with this sub-section.

(2) Not less than half the cost of the salary of the Executive Officer shall be paid by <sup>3</sup>[the Central] Government and the balance from the cantonment fund:

Provided that the salary of an Executive Officer appointed before the commencement of the Cantonments (Amendment) Act, 1936, shall, until the Central Government otherwise directs, continue to be paid from the source from which it was being paid at the commencement of the said Act.

(3) The Executive Officer shall be the Secretary of the Board and of every committee of the Board, but shall not be a member of the Board or of any such committee.]

Constitution of Cantonment Boards.

(i) Class I Cantonments, in which the civil population exceeds ten thousand;

(ii) Class II Cantonments, in which the civil population exceeds two thousand five hundred, but does not exceed ten thousand; and

(iii) Class III Cantonments, in which the civil population does not exceed two thousand five hundred:

Provided that the Central Government may, by notification in the Official Gazette, place in Class II any cantonment in the North-West Frontier Province or in British Baluchistan which if it were situated elsewhere would be a Class I Cantonment, or place in Class III any such cantonment which if it were situated elsewhere would be a Class II Cantonment.

(2) For the purposes of sub-section (1), the civil population shall be calculated in accordance with the latest official census, or, if the Central Government, by general or special order, so directs, in accordance with a special census taken for the purpose.

(3) In Class I Cantonments, the Board shall consist of the following members, namely:—

(b) a Magistrate of the first class nominated by the District Magistrate;

(c) the Health Officer;

(d) the Executive Engineer;

(e) (i) in cantonments of which the civil population exceeds seven thousand five hundred, three military officers,

(ii) in cantonments of which the civil population exceeds five thousand, but does not exceed seven thousand five hundred, two military officers,

(iii) in cantonments of which the civil population does not exceed five thousand and in cantonments which the Central Government, by notification under the proviso to sub-section (1), has placed in Class II, whatever be the population, one military officer, nominated by name by the Officer Commanding the station by order in writing;

(f) such number of members elected under this Act as is equal to the number of members constituted or nominated by or under clauses (b) to (e).

(5) In Class III Cantonments, the Board shall consist of the following members, namely:—

(a) the Officer Commanding the station, or if the Central Government so directs in respect of any cantonment, such other military officer as may be nominated in his place by the Officer Commanding-in-Chief, the Command;

(b) one military officer nominated by name by the Officer Commanding the station by order in writing;

(c) one member elected under this Act.

(6) The Officer Commanding the station may, if he thinks fit, with the sanction of the Officer Commanding-in-Chief, the Command, nominate in place of any military officer whom he is empowered to nominate under clause (e) of sub-section (3), clause (e) of sub-section (4) or clause (b) of sub-section (5), any person, whether in the service of the <sup>1</sup>[Crown] or not, who is ordinarily resident in the cantonment or in the vicinity thereof.

(7) Every election or nomination of a member of a Board and every vacancy in the membership thereof shall be notified by the Central Government in the Official Gazette.]

Power to vary constitution of Boards in special circumstances.

(a) that, by reason of military operations, it is necessary, or

(3) In every Board in which there is more than one elected member, there shall be a Vice-President elected by the elected members only and from among their number.]

Term of office of Vice-President. 21. (1) <sup>1</sup>[The term of office of a Vice-President shall be three years or the residue of his term of office as a member, whichever is less.]

(2) A Vice-President may resign his office by notice in writing to the President and, on the resignation being accepted by the Board, the office shall become vacant.

Duties of President. 22. (1) It shall be the duty of the President of every Board—

(a) unless prevented by reasonable cause, to convene and preside at all meetings of the Board and to regulate the conduct of business thereat;

(b) to exercise supervision and control over the financial and executive administration of the Board;

(c) to perform all the duties and exercise all the powers specifically imposed or conferred on the President by or under this Act; and

(d) subject to any restrictions, limitations and conditions imposed by this Act, to exercise executive power for the purpose of carrying out the provisions of this Act and to be directly responsible for the fulfilment of the purposes of this Act.

(2) The President may, by order in writing, empower the Vice-President to exercise all or any of the powers and duties referred to in clause (c) of sub-section (1) other than any power, duty or function which he is by resolution of the Board expressly forbidden to delegate.

(3) The exercise or discharge of any powers, duties or functions delegated by the President under this section shall be subject to such restrictions, limitations and conditions, if any, as may be laid down by the President and to the control of, and to revision by, the President.

(4) Every order made under sub-section (2) shall forthwith be communicated to the Board and to the <sup>2</sup>[Officer Commanding-in-Chief, the Command].

Duties of Vice-President. 23. It shall be the duty of the Vice-President of every Board—

(a) in the absence of the President and unless prevented by reasonable cause, to preside at meetings of the Board and when so presiding to exercise the authority of the President under sub-section (1) of section 22.

(b) during the incapacity or temporary absence of the President or pending his appointment or succession, to perform any other duty and exercise any other power of the President; and

(c) to exercise any power and perform any duty of the President which may be delegated to him under sub-section (2) of section 22.

24. The Executive Officer shall perform all the duties imposed upon him by or under this Act, and shall be responsible for the custody of all the records of the Board, and shall arrange for the performance of such duties relative to the proceedings of the Board or of any Committee of the Board or of any Committee of Arbitration constituted under this Act, as those bodies may respectively impose on him, and shall comply with every requisition of the Board on any matter pertaining to the administration of the cantonment.

Duties of the Executive Officer.

25. The Executive Officer may, in cases of emergency, direct the execution of any work or the doing of any act which would ordinarily require the sanction of the Board and the immediate execution or doing of which is, in his opinion, necessary for the service or safety of the public, and may direct that the expense of executing such work or doing such act shall be paid from the cantonment fund:

Provided that—

(a) 1[ * * ] he shall not act under this section without the previous sanction of the President or, in his absence, of the Vice-President;

(b) he shall not act under this section in contravention of any order of the Board prohibiting the execution of any particular work or the doing of any particular act; and

(c) he shall report forthwith the action taken under this section and the reasons therefor to the Board.

Elections.

26. (1) 2[* *] 3[The Board or where a Board is not constituted in any place declared by notification under sub-section (1) of S. 3 to be a Cantonment, the Officer Commanding the station] shall prepare and publish an electoral roll showing the names of persons qualified to vote at elections to the Board. Such roll shall be prepared, revised and finally published in such manner and on such date in each year as the Central Government may by rule prescribe.

(2) Every person whose name appears in the final electoral roll shall, so long as the roll remains in force, be entitled to vote at an election to the Board, and no other person shall be so entitled.

(3) When a cantonment has been divided into wards, or the inhabitants into classes, the electoral roll shall be divided into separate lists for each ward or class, as the case may be.

(4) If a new electoral roll is not published in any year on the date prescribed, the Central Government may direct that the old electoral roll shall continue in operation until the new roll is published.

27. (1) The following persons shall, if not otherwise disqualified, be entitled to be enrolled as electors, namely:—

(a) every person who in any year has, on or before such date as may be fixed by the Central Government in this behalf by notification in the official Gazette (hereinafter in this section referred to as the aforesaid date), been assessed directly and on his own account to taxes under this Act (other than octroi, toll or terminal tax), the aggregate value whereof is not less than such amount as the Central Government may by rule prescribe, and who on the aforesaid date is not in arrears in the payment of any such tax;

(b) every person who has for a period of not less than twelve months immediately preceding the aforesaid date resided in the cantonment and on the aforesaid date—

(i) is the owner or the mortgagee in possession or the lessee of any building or land in the cantonment, of an annual value calculated in such manner, and of not less than such amount, as the Central Government may by rule prescribe; or

(ii) is carrying on any business in the cantonment from which he derives an annual income calculated in such manner, and of not less than such amount, as the Central Government may by rule prescribe; or

Interpretation.

28— 29. For the purposes of sections 26, 27 and

(a) "person" means an individual human being, and

(b) a person shall be deemed to pay a tax directly if he pays the tax either himself or through a legally appointed agent.

30. Notwithstanding anything hereinbefore contained, the Central Government may make rules conferring on the manager or representative of an undivided family or of any company or firm or other association or body or on any trustee of any land a right to be enrolled as an elector or to be nominated as a candidate at elections to a Board.

31. The Central Government may, either generally or specially for any cantonment or group of cantonments, after previous publication, make rules consistent with this Act to regulate all or any of the following matters for the purpose of the holding of elections under this Act, namely:—

(a) the division of a cantonment into wards, or of the inhabitants of a cantonment into classes, or both;

(b) the determination of the number of members to be elected by each ward or class of persons;

(c) the method by which the annual value of buildings and lands shall be calculated for the purposes of section 27;

(d) the preparation, revision and final publication of electoral rolls;

(e) the registration of electors, the nomination of candidates, the time and manner of holding elections and the method by which votes shall be recorded;

(f) the authority by which and the manner in which disputes relating to electoral rolls or arising out of elections shall be decided, and the powers and duties of such authority and the circumstances in which such authority may declare a casual vacancy to have been created or any candidate to have been elected;

(g) any other matter relating to elections or election disputes in respect of which the Central Government is empowered to make rules under this Chapter or in respect of which this Act makes no provision or makes insufficient provision and provision is, in the opinion of the Central Government necessary.

Members.

32. No member of a Board shall vote at meeting of the Board <sup>1</sup>[or of any committee of the Board] on any question relating to his own conduct or on any matter, other than a matter affecting generally the inhabitants of the cantonment, which affects his own pecuniary interest or the valuation of any property in respect of which he is directly or indirectly interested, or of any property of or for which he is a manager or agent.

Member not to vote on matter in which he is interested.

33. Every member of a Board shall be liable for the loss, waste or misapplication of any money or other property belonging to the Board if such loss, waste or misapplication is a direct consequence of his neglect or misconduct while such member; and a suit for compensation for the same may be instituted against him either by the Board or by the <sup>2</sup>[Central Government].

Liability of members.

34. <sup>3</sup>[(1) The Central Government may remove from a Board any member thereof who—
(a) becomes subject to any of the disqualifications specified in sub-section (2) of section 27, [or in section 28]<sup>4</sup>; or
(b) has absented himself for more than three consecutive months from the meetings of the Board and is unable to explain such absence to the satisfaction of the Board; or
(c) has knowingly contravened the provisions of section 32; or
(d) being a legal practitioner, acts or appears on behalf of any other person against the Board in any legal proceedings or against the <sup>5</sup>[Crown] in any such proceeding relating to any matter in which the Board is or has been concerned, or acts or appears on behalf of any person in any criminal proceeding instituted by or on behalf of the Board against such person.]

Removal of members.

(2) The Central Government may remove from a Board any member who, in the opinion of the Central Government, has so flagrantly abused in any manner his position as a member of the Board as to render his continuance as a member detrimental to the public interests.

(3) No member shall be removed from a Board under this section unless he has been given a reasonable opportunity of showing cause against his removal.

35. <sup>7</sup>[(1) A member removed under clause (b) of sub-section (1) [or under sub-section (2-A)]<sup>8</sup> of section 34 shall, if otherwise qualified, be eligible for re-election or re-nomination.

Consequence of removal.

(3) A member removed under sub-section (2) of section 34 shall not be eligible for re-election or nomination until the expiry of three years from the date of his removal.]

Servants.

36. (1) No person who has directly or indirectly by himself or his partner any share or interests in a contract with, by or on behalf of a Board or in any employment under, by or on behalf of a Board, otherwise than as a servant of the Board, shall become or remain a servant of such Board.

(2) A servant of a Board who knowingly acquires or continues to have directly or indirectly by himself or his partner any share or interest in a contract with, by or on behalf of the Board or, in any employment under, by or on behalf of, the Board, otherwise than as a servant of the Board, shall be deemed to have committed an offence under section 168 of the Indian Penal Code.

(3) Nothing in this section shall apply to any share or interest in any contract with, by or on behalf of, or employment under, by or on behalf of a Board if the same is a share in a company contracting with, or employed by, or on behalf of, the Board or is a share or interest acquired or retained with the permission of the <sup>1</sup>[Officer Commanding-in-Chief, the Command,] in any lease or sale to, or purchase by, the Board of land or buildings or in any agreement for the same.

<sup>2</sup>[(4) Every person applying for employment as a servant of a Board shall, if he is related by blood or marriage to any member of the Board or to any person, not being a menial servant, in receipt of remuneration from the Board, notify the fact and the nature of such relationship to the appointing authority before the appointment is made, and if he has failed to do so, his appointment shall be invalid but without prejudice to the validity of anything previously done by him.]

<sup>3</sup>[36-A. Every officer or servant, permanent or temporary, of a Board shall be deemed to be a public servant within the meaning of the Indian Penal Code, and in the definition of "legal remuneration" in section 161 of that Code the word "Government" shall, for the purposes of this section, be deemed to include a Board.]

Procedure.

37. (1) Every Board shall ordinarily hold at least one meeting in every month on such day as may be fixed, and of which notice shall be given in such manner as may be provided, by regulations made by the Board under this Chapter.

(2) The President may, whenever he thinks fit, and shall, upon a requisition in writing by not less than one-fourth of the members of the Board, convene a special meeting.

(3) Any meeting may be adjourned until the next or any subsequent day, and an adjourned meeting may be further adjourned in like manner.

38. Subject to any regulation made by the Board under this Chapter, any business may be transacted at any meeting:

Provided that no business relating to the imposition, abolition or modification of any tax shall be transacted at a meeting unless notice of the same and of the date fixed therefor has been sent to each member not less than seven days before that date.

39. (1) The quorum necessary for the transaction of business at a meeting of a Board <sup>1</sup>[in which there is more than one elected member] shall be five or one-half of the number of members of the Board actually holding office at the time, whichever is the greater number.

Quorum.

<sup>2</sup>[(1-A) The quorum necessary for the transaction of business at a meeting of the Board constituted under sub-section (5) of section 13 or under sub-section (1) of section 14, shall be two.]

(2) If a quorum is not present, the President shall adjourn the meeting and the business which would have been brought before the original meeting if there had been a quorum present thereat shall be brought before, and may be transacted at, an adjourned meeting, whether there is a quorum present or not.

(a) both the President and the Vice-President from any meeting of a Board in which there is more than one elected member,

(b) the President from a meeting of a Board constituted under sub-section (5) of section 13 or sub-section (1) of section 14, the members present shall elect one from among their own number to preside.]

41. (1) Minutes of the proceedings of each meeting shall be recorded in a book and shall be signed by the President before the close of the meeting, and shall, at such times, and in such place as may be fixed by the Board, be open to inspection free of charge by any inhabitant of the cantonment.

Minutes.

(2) Copies of the minutes shall, as soon as possible after each meeting, be forwarded for information to <sup>4</sup>[the Officer Commanding-in-Chief, the Command,] the Officer Commanding the District, the Officer Commanding the brigade area, <sup>5</sup>[* *] the District Magistrate <sup>6</sup>[and the Military Estates Officer].

42. Every meeting of a Board shall be open to the public unless in any case the President, for reasons to be recorded in the minutes, otherwise directs.

Meetings to be public.

matters, namely:—

- (a) the time and place of its meetings;
- (b) the manner in which notice of the meeting shall be given;
- (c) the conduct of proceedings at meetings and the adjournment of meetings;

(d) the custody of the common seal of the Board and the purposes for which it shall be used; and

(e) the appointment of committees for any purpose and the determination of all matters relating to the constitution and procedure of such committees, and the delegation to such committees, subject to any conditions which the Board thinks fit to impose, of any of the powers or duties of the Board under this Act other than a power to make regulations or bye-laws.

(2) No regulation made under clause (e) of sub-section (1) shall take effect until it has been approved by the Central Government.

(3) No regulation made under this section shall take effect until it has been published in such manner as the Central Government may direct.

Joint action with other local authority.

45. (1) A Board may—

(a) join with any other local authority—

(i) in appointing a joint committee for any purpose in which they are jointly interested and in appointing a chairman of such committee;

(ii) in delegating to such committee power to frame terms binding on the Board and such other local authority as to the construction and future maintenance of any joint work or to exercise any power which might be exercised by <sup>1</sup>[the Board or by such other local authority]; and

(iii) in making rules for regulating the proceedings of any such committee relating to the purposes for which it has been appointed; or

(b) with the previous sanction of <sup>2</sup>[the Officer Commanding-in-Chief, the Command, and] the <sup>3</sup>[Provincial Government concerned], enter into an agreement with any other local authority regarding the levy of any tax or toll whereby the said tax or toll respectively leviable by the <sup>4</sup>[Board and by such other local authority] may be levied together instead of separately within the limits of the aggregate area comprising the areas subject to the control of the <sup>4</sup>[Board and such other local authority].

(2) If any difference of opinion arises between any <sup>5</sup>[Board and other local authority] acting together under this section, the decision thereon of the Central Government or of an officer appointed by the Central Government in this behalf shall be final.

(3) When any agreement such as is referred to in clause (b) of sub-section (1) has been entered into, then—

(a) where the agreement relates to an octroi or terminal tax or toll, the other local authority with which the Board has made such agreement shall have

(b) such other local authority shall have the same power of collecting such tax or toll in the cantonment, and the provisions of any enactment in force relating to the levy of such tax or toll by such other local authority shall apply in the same manner, as if the cantonment were comprised within the area ordinarily subject to its control; and

(c) the total of the collection of such tax and toll made in the cantonment and in the area ordinarily subject to the control of such other local authority and the costs thereby incurred shall be divided between the cantonment fund and the fund subject to the control of such other local authority, in such proportion as may have been determined by the agreement.

<sup>1</sup>[45-A. Every Board shall, as soon as may be after the close of the year and not later than the date fixed in this behalf by the Report on administration. Central Government, submit to the Central Government through the Officer Commanding-in-Chief, the Command, a report on the administration of the cantonment during the preceding financial year, in such form and containing such details as the Central Government may direct. The comments, if any, of the Officer Commanding-in-Chief, the Command, on such report shall be communicated by him to the Board which shall be allowed a reasonable time to furnish a reply thereto, and the comments together with the reply, if any, shall be forwarded to the Central Government along with the report.]

Control.

Power of Central Government to require production of documents.

46. The Central Government <sup>2</sup>[* *] may at any time require a Board—

(a) to produce any record, correspondence, plan or other document in its possession or under its control;

(b) to furnish any return, plan, estimate, statement, account or statistics relating to its proceedings, duties or works;

(c) to furnish or obtain and furnish any report.

47. The <sup>3</sup>[Central Government or the Officer Commanding-in-Chief, the Command,] may depute any person in the service of the <sup>4</sup>[Crown] to inspect or examine any department of the office of, or any service or work undertaken by, or thing belonging to a Board, and to report thereon, and the Board and its officers and servants shall be bound to afford the person so deputed access at all reasonable times to the premises and property of the Board and to all records, accounts and other documents the inspection of which he may consider necessary to enable him to discharge his duties.

Power to call for documents.

48. <sup>5</sup>[* *] The Officer Commanding-in-Chief, the Command, may, by order in writing—

(a) call for any book or document in the possession or under the control of the Board;

(b) require the Board to furnish such statements, accounts, reports and copies of documents relating to its proceedings, duties or works as he thinks fit.

55. (1) No act or proceeding of a Board or of any committee of a Board shall be invalid by reason only of the existence of a vacancy in the Board or committee.

(2) No disqualification or defect in the election, nomination or appointment of a person acting as the President or a member of a Board or of any such committee shall vitiate any act or proceeding of the Board or committee if the majority of the persons present at the time of the act being done or the proceeding being taken were duly qualified members thereof.

(3) Any document or minutes which purport to be the record of the proceedings of a Board or of any committee of a Board shall, if made and signed substantially in the manner prescribed for the making and signing of the record of such proceedings, be presumed to be a correct record of the proceedings of a duly convened meeting, held by a duly constituted Board or committee, as the case may be, whereof all the members were duly qualified.

CHAPTER IV.

SPIRITUOUS LIQUORS AND INTOXICATING DRUGS.

56. If within a cantonment, or within such limits adjoining a cantonment as the Central Government may, by notification in the Official Gazette define, any person not subject to military or air-force law or any person subject to military or air-force law otherwise than as a military officer or a soldier knowingly barter, sells or supplies, or offers or attempts to barter, sell or supply, any spirituous liquor or intoxicating drug to or for the use of any soldier or follower or soldier's wife or minor child without the written permission of the <sup>1</sup>[Officer Commanding the station] or of some person authorised by the <sup>1</sup>[Officer Commanding the station] to grant such permission, he shall be punishable with fine which may extend to one hundred rupees, or with imprisonment for a term which may extend to three months, or with both.

57. If within a cantonment, or within any limits defined under section 56,—

(a) any person subject to military or air-force law otherwise than as a military officer or a soldier, or

(b) the wife or servant of any such person or of a soldier, has in his or her possession, except on behalf of the <sup>2</sup>[Central] Government or for the private use of a military officer, more than one quart of any spirituous liquor, other than fermented malt-liquor, without the written permission of the <sup>1</sup>[Officer Commanding the station] or of some person authorised by the <sup>1</sup>[Officer Commanding the station] to grant such permission, he or she shall be punishable, in the case of a first offence, with the fine which may extend to fifty rupees, and, in the case of a subsequent offence, with imprisonment for a term which may extend to three months, or with fine which may extend to one hundred rupees.

TAXATION.

Imposition of Taxation.

<sup>2</sup>[60. (1) The Board may, with the previous sanction of the Central Government, impose in any cantonment any tax which, under any enactment for the time being in force, may be imposed in any municipality in the province wherein such cantonment is situated:

(2) Any tax imposed under this section shall take effect from the date of its notification in the Official Gazette.]

<sup>2</sup>[51. When a resolution has been passed by the Board proposing to impose a tax under section 60, the Board shall in the manner prescribed in section 255 publish a notice specifying—

- Framing of preliminary proposals.
- (a) the tax which it is proposed to impose;
  - (b) the persons or classes of persons to be made liable and the description of the property or other taxable thing or circumstance in respect of which they are to be made liable; and
  - (c) the rate at which the tax is to be levied.

(2) If the Board decides to modify its proposals or any of them, it shall re-publish the modified proposals in the manner provided by section 61 indicating that the proposals are in modification of the proposals previously published; and the provisions of sub-section (1) of this section shall apply to such modified proposals.

(3) When the Board has finally settled the proposals, it shall submit them along with the objections, if any, made in connection therewith to the Central Government through the Officer Commanding-in-Chief, the Command.]

<sup>1</sup>[63. The Central Government may authorise the Board to impose the tax either in the original form or, if any objection has been submitted, in that form or any such modified form as it thinks fit.]

Imposition of tax.
Definition of "annual value."

64. For the purposes of this Chapter "annual value" means—

(a) in the case of railway stations, hotels, colleges, schools, hospitals, factories and any other buildings which a Board decides to assess under this clause, one-twentieth of the sum obtained by adding the estimated present cost of erecting the building to the estimated value of the land appertaining thereto, and

(b) in the case of a building or land not assessed under clause (a), the gross annual rent for which such building (exclusive of furniture or machinery therein) or such land is actually let or, where the building or land is not let or in the opinion of the Board, is let for a sum less than its fair letting value, might reasonably be expected to let from year to year:

Provided that, where the annual value of any building is, by reason of exceptional circumstances, in the opinion of the Board, excessive if calculated in the aforesaid manner, the Board may fix the annual value at any less amount which appears to it to be just.

65. (1) Save as otherwise expressly provided in the notification imposing the tax, every tax <sup>2</sup>[assessed] on the annual value of buildings or lands or of both shall be leviable primarily upon the actual occupier of the property upon which the said tax is assessed, if he is the owner of the buildings or lands or holds them on a building or other lease<sup>3</sup> [granted by or on behalf of the <sup>4</sup>[Crown] or] the Board or on a building lease from any person.

(2) In any other case, the tax shall be primarily leviable as follows, namely:—

- (a) if the property is let, upon the lessor;
- (b) if the property is sub-let, upon the superior lessor;
- (c) if the property is unlet, upon the person in whom the right to let the same vests.

(3) On failure to recover any sum due on account of such tax from the person primarily liable, there may be recovered from the occupier of any part of the buildings or lands in respect of which the tax is due such portion of the sum due as bears to the whole amount due the same ratio which the rent annually payable by such occupier bears to the aggregate amount of rent so payable in respect of the whole of the said buildings or lands, or to the aggregate amount of the letting value thereof, if any, stated in the authenticated assessment list.

(4) An occupier who makes any payment for which he is not primarily liable under this section shall, in the absence of any contract to the contrary, be entitled to be reimbursed by the person primarily liable for the payment, and, if so entitled, may deduct the amount so paid from the amount of any rent from time to time becoming due from him to such person.

Assessment List.

66. When a tax <sup>1</sup>[assessed] on the annual value of buildings or lands or both is imposed, the Board shall cause an assessment list of all buildings or lands in the cantonment, or of both, as the case may be, to be prepared in such form<sup>2</sup> as the Central Government may by rule prescribe.

67. When the assessment list has been prepared, the Board shall give public notice thereof, and of the place where the list or a copy thereof may be inspected, and every person claiming to be the owner, lessee or occupier of any property included in the list, and any authorised agent of such person, shall be at liberty to inspect the list and to make extracts therefrom free of charge.

68. (1) The Board shall, at the same time, give public notice of a date, not less than one month thereafter, when it will proceed to consider the valuations and assessments entered in the assessment list, and, in all cases in which any property is for the first time assessed or the assessment is increased, it shall also give written notice thereof to the owner and to any lessee or occupier of the property.

(2) Any objection to a valuation or assessment shall be made in writing to the Board before the date fixed in the notice, and shall state in what respect the valuation or assessment is disputed, and all objections so made shall be recorded in a register to be kept for the purpose by the Board.

(3) The objections shall be inquired into and investigated, and the persons making them shall be allowed an opportunity of being heard either in person or by authorised agent, by an Assessment Committee appointed by the Board.

(4) The Assessment Committee shall consist of not less than three persons, and <sup>3</sup>[* *] it shall not be necessary to appoint to the Assessment Committee any member <sup>4</sup>[of the Board].

NOTES.

SECS. 66 AND 104.—When a list fails to show that which the law expressly directs, it should show, there is an illegality and not merely an irregularity such as might be condoned under S. 104 of the Act. Hence the omission to enter in the list framed under

S. 66 of the Act, the amount of the assessment is an illegality affecting the merits of the case. 1939 A.M.L.J. 1.

SEC. 68 (3).—Where the Cantonment Board appointed an Assessment Committee under S. 68 (3) to which nominations were permitted to be made by persons not belonging to the Cantonment Board, the Committee is not a validly constituted one. But the defect is not cured by S. 55 (2) of the Act for the words 'Committee of a Board' occurring therein means only a Committee appointed by the Cantonment Board under S. 44 (1)(e) of the Act. Hence the assessment proceedings of the Board are illegal. 1939 A.M.L.J. 1.

69. (1) When all objections made under section 68 have been disposed of, and the revision of the valuation and assessment has been completed, the assessment list shall be authenticated by the signature of the members of the Assessment Committee who shall, at the same time, certify that they have considered all objections duly made and have amended the list so far as is required by their decisions on such objections.

(2) The assessment list so authenticated shall be deposited in the office of the Board, and shall there be open, free of charge, during office hours to all owners, lessees and occupiers of property comprised therein or the authorised agents of such persons, and a public notice that it is so open shall forthwith be published.

70. Subject to such alterations as may thereafter be made in the assessment list under the provisions of this Chapter and to the result of any appeal made thereunder, the entries in the assessment list authenticated and deposited as provided in section 69 shall be accepted as conclusive evidence—

(i) for the purpose of assessing any tax imposed under this Act, of the annual value or other valuation of all buildings and lands to which such entries respectively refer, and

(ii) for the purposes of any tax imposed on buildings or lands, of the amount of each such tax leviable thereon during the year to which such list relates.

Amendment of assessment list.

71. <sup>1</sup>[(1) The Board may amend the assessment list at any time—

(a) by inserting or omitting the name of any person whose name ought to have been or ought to be inserted or omitted, or

(b) by inserting or omitting any property which ought to have been or ought to be inserted or omitted, or

(c) by altering the assessment on any property which has been erroneously valued or assessed through fraud, accident or mistake, whether on the part of the Board or of the Assessment Committee or of the assessee, or

(d) by revaluing or reassessing any property the value of which has been increased, or

(e) in the case of a tax payable by an occupier, by changing the name of the occupier:

Provided that no person shall by reason of any such amendment become liable to pay any tax or increase of tax in respect of any period prior to the commencement of the year in which the assessment is made.

(1-a) Before making any amendment under sub-section (1) the Board shall give to any person affected by the amendment notice of not less than one month that it proposes to make the amendment.]

(2) Any person interested in any such amendment may tender an objection to the Board in writing before the time fixed in the notice, and shall be allowed an opportunity of being heard in support of the same in person or by authorised agent.

72. The Board shall prepare a new assessment list at least once in every three years, and for this purpose the provisions of sections 66 to 71 shall apply in like manner as they apply for the purpose of the preparation of an assessment list for the first time.

Preparation of new assessment list.

LEG. REF.

<sup>1</sup> Present sub-sections (1) and (1-a) have been substituted in place of old sub-sec. (1) of S. 71 by Act XXIV of 1936.

73. (1) Whenever the title of any person primarily liable for the payment of a tax on the annual value of any building or land to or over such building or land is transferred, the person whose title is transferred and the person to whom the same is transferred shall, within three months after the execution of the instrument of transfer or after its registration, if it is registered, or after the transfer is effected, if no instrument is executed, give notice of such transfer to the Executive Officer.

(2) In the event of the death of any person primarily liable as aforesaid, the person on whom the title of the deceased devolves shall give notice of such devolution to the Executive Officer within six months from the death of the deceased.

(3) The notice to be given under this section shall be in such form as the Executive Officer may direct, and the transferee or other person on whom the title devolves shall, if so required, be bound to produce before the Executive Officer any documents evidencing the transfer or devolution.

(4) Every person who makes a transfer as aforesaid without giving such notice to the Executive Officer shall continue liable for the payment of all taxes assessed on the property transferred until he gives notice or until the transfer has been recorded in the registers of the Board, but nothing in this section shall be held to affect the liability of the transferee for the payment of the said tax.

1[(5) The Executive Officer shall record 2[every transfer on devolution] of title notified to him under sub-section (1) on sub-section (2) in the assessment list and other tax registers of the Board.]

74. (1) If any building is erected or re-erected within the meaning of section 179, the owner shall give notice thereof to the Executive Officer within thirty days from the date of its completion or occupation, whichever is earlier.

(2) Any person failing to give the notice required by sub-section (1) shall be punishable with fine which may extend to fifty rupees or ten times the amount of the tax payable on the said building, as erected or re-erected, as the case may be, in respect of a period of three months, whichever is greater.

Remission and Refund.

75. If any building is wholly or partly demolished or destroyed or otherwise deprived of value, the Board may, on the application 3[in writing] of the owner 4[or occupier], remit or refund such portion of 5[any tax assessed on the annual value thereof] as it thinks fit.

76. In a cantonment 6[* *], when any building or land has remained vacant and unproductive of rent for 7[sixty] or more consecutive days 8[* *], the Board shall remit or refund, as the case may be, such portion of 5[any tax assessed on the annual value thereof] 9[* *], as may be proportionate to the number of the days during which the said building or land has remained vacant and unproductive of rent.

land shall be deemed vacant if maintained as a pleasure resort or town or country house, or be deemed unproductive of rent if let to a tenant who has a continuing right of occupation thereof, whether he is in actual occupation or not.

(2) The burden of proving all facts entitling any person to claim relief under section 75, or section 76, or section 77, shall be upon him.

79. (1) The owner of any building, tenement or land in respect of which a remission or refund of tax has been given under section 76 or section 77 shall give notice of the re-occupation of such building, 8[tenement] or land within fifteen days of such re-occupation.

Notice to be given of every occupation of vacant building or house.

(2) Any owner failing to give the notice required by sub-section (1) shall be punishable with fine which shall not be less than twice the amount of the tax payable on such building, tenement or land in respect of the period during which it has been re-occupied and which may extend to fifty rupees, or to ten times the amount of the said tax, whichever sum is greater.

SEC. 81.—Liability to Octroi duty of goods passing through cantonment. 22 Bom, 843.

(a) permit that officer to inspect, examine or weigh such goods, vehicles or animals; and

(b) communicate to that officer any information, and exhibit to him any bill, invoice or document of a like nature, which such person may possess relating to such goods, vehicles or animals.

82. (1) Any person who takes or attempts to take past any octroi station or any other place appointed within a cantonment for the collection of octroi, terminal tax or toll any goods, vehicles or animals, on account of which octroi, terminal tax or toll is leviable and thereby evades, or attempts to evade, the payment of such octroi, terminal tax or toll, and any person who abets any such evasion or attempt at evasion, shall be punishable with fine which may extend either to ten times the value of such octroi, terminal tax or toll, or to fifty rupees, whichever is greater, and which shall not be less than twice the value of such octroi, terminal tax or toll, as the case may be.

(2) In case of non-payment of any octroi or terminal tax or toll on demand, the officer empowered to collect the same may seize any goods, vehicles or animals on which the octroi, terminal tax or toll is chargeable or any part or number thereof which is of sufficient value to satisfy the demand <sup>1</sup>[and shall give a receipt specifying the items seized].

(3) The Board, after the lapse of five days from the seizure, and after the issue of a notice in writing to the person in whose possession the goods, vehicles or animals were at the time of seizure, fixing the time and place of sale, may cause the property so seized, or so much thereof as may be necessary, to be sold by auction to satisfy the demand and any expenses occasioned by the seizure, custody and sale thereof, unless the demand and expenses are in the meantime paid:

Provided that the Executive Officer may, in any case, order that any article of a perishable nature which cannot be kept for five days without serious risk of damage, or which cannot be kept save at a cost which, together with the amount of octroi, terminal tax or toll, is likely to exceed its value, shall be sold after the lapse of such shorter time as he may, having regard to the nature of the article, think proper.

(4) If, at any time before the sale has begun, the person whose property has been seized tenders to the Executive Officer the amount of all expenses incurred and of the octroi, terminal tax or toll, the Executive Officer shall release the property seized.

(5) The surplus, if any, of the sale-proceeds shall be credited to the cantonment fund, and shall, on application made to the Board within one year after the sale, be paid to the person in whose possession the property was at the time of seizure, and, if no such application is made, shall be the property of the Board.

83. It shall be lawful for the Board, with the previous sanction of the <sup>2</sup>[Officer Commanding-in-Chief, the Command,] to lease the collection of any octroi, terminal tax or toll for any period not exceeding one year; and the lessee and all persons employed by him in the management and collection of the octroi, terminal tax or toll shall, in respect thereof,—

(a) be bound by any orders made by the Board for their guidance;

(b) have such powers exerciseable by officers or servants of the Board under this Act as the Board may confer upon them; and

(c) be entitled to the same remedies and be subject to the same responsibilities as if they were employed by the Board for the management and collection of the octroi, terminal tax or toll, as the case may be:

Provided that no article distrained may be sold except under the orders of the Board.

Appeals.

84. (1) An appeal against the assessment or levy of, or against the refusal to refund, any tax under this Act shall lie to the District Magistrate or to such other officer as may be empowered by the Central Government in this behalf:

Appeals against assessment. Provided that, where, <sup>1</sup>[* *] the person to whom the appeal would ordinarily lie is, or was when the tax was imposed, a member of the Board, the appeal shall lie to the Commissioner of the Division, or, in a Province where there are no Commissioners, to the District Judge.

(2) If, on the hearing of an appeal under this section, any question as to the liability to, or the principle of assessment of, a tax arises on which the officer hearing the appeal entertains reasonable doubt, he may, either of his own motion or on the application of the appellant, draw up a statement of the facts of the case and the point on which doubt is entertained, and refer the statement with his own opinion on the point for the decision of the High Court.

(3) On a reference being made under sub-section (2), the subsequent proceedings in the case shall be, as nearly as may be, in conformity with the rules relating to references to the High Court contained in Order XLVI of the First Schedule to the Code of Civil Procedure, 1908.

Costs of appeal.

85. In every appeal the costs shall be in the discretion of the officer hearing the appeal.

86. If the Board fails to pay any costs awarded to an appellant within ten days after the date of the order for payment thereof, the officer awarding the costs may order the person having the custody of the balance of the cantonment fund to pay the amount.

Recovery of costs from Board.

87. No appeal shall be heard or determined under this Chapter unless—

(a) the appeal is, in the case of a tax assessed on the annual value of buildings or lands or both, brought within thirty days next after the date of the authentication of the assessment list under section 69 (exclusive of the time requisite for obtaining a copy of the relevant entries therein), or, as the case may be, within thirty days of the date on which an amendment is finally made under section 71, and, in the case of any other tax, within thirty days next after the date of the receipt of the notice of assessment or of alteration of assessment or, if no notice has been given, within thirty days next after the date of the presentation of the first bill in respect thereof;

Provided that an appeal may be admitted after the expiration of the period prescribed therefor by this section if the appellant satisfies the Court before whom the appeal is preferred that he had sufficient cause for not preferring it within that period;

LEG. REF.

<sup>1</sup> Words 'there is Board and' omitted by Act XXIV of 1936.

NOTES.

SEC. 84.—It is a very narrow construction of the words 'assessment' and 'levy', if S. 84 is construed to mean that an appeal lies only against the quantum of the tax or against the legality of its imposition. 'Levy' means imposition, but not merely general imposition of a tax but the particular imposition on the individual affected. 1938 A.M.L.J. 18. It is difficult to hold that S. 84 applies only to valuations of immovable property or questions of the legality of a tax. S. 84 is a general section on giving a right of appeal in all cases. Nor is there any restriction on the grounds for such an appeal. (Ibid.) A single reference under S. 84 (2) of the Act by the Income-tax Officer in respect of several appeals is irregular. He should either make as many references as there are appeals, or should make a reference in one of them and then decide the rest in accordance with the answer received. 1939 A.M.L.J. 1.

(b) the amount, if any, in dispute in the appeal has been deposited by the appellant in the office of the Board.

88. The order of an appellate authority confirming, setting aside or modifying an order in respect of any valuation or assessment or liability to assessment or taxation shall be final:

Finality of appellate orders.

Provided that it shall be lawful for the appellate authority, upon application or on its own motion, to review any order passed by it in appeal if application in this behalf is made within three months from the date of the original order.

Payment and Recovery of Taxes.

89. Save as otherwise expressly provided under this Act, any tax imposed under the provisions of this Act shall be payable on such dates and in such instalments, if any, as the Board may, by public notice, direct.

Time and manner of payment of taxes.

90. (1) When any tax has become due, the Executive Officer shall cause to be presented to the person liable for the payment thereof a bill for the amount due.

Presentation of bill.

(2) Every such bill shall specify the particulars of the tax and the period for which the charge is made.

91. (1) If the amount of the tax for which any bill has been presented is not paid to the Board within thirty days from the presentation thereof, the Executive Officer may cause to be served upon the person liable for the payment of the same a notice of demand in the form set forth in Schedule I.

Notice of demand.

(2) For every notice of demand which the Executive Officer causes to be served on any person under this section, a fee of such amount, not exceeding one rupee, as shall in each case be fixed by the Executive Officer, shall be payable by the said person and shall be included in the costs of recovery.

92. (1) If the person liable for the payment of any tax does not, within thirty days from the service of the notice of demand, pay the amount due, or show sufficient cause for non-payment of the same to the satisfaction of the Executive Officer, such sum, with all costs of recovery, may be recovered under a warrant, issued in the form set forth in Schedule II, by distress and sale of the movable property of the defaulter:

Recovery of tax.

Provided that the Executive Officer shall not recover any sum the liability for which has been remitted on appeal under this Chapter.

(2) Every warrant issued under this section shall be signed by the Executive Officer.

93. (1) It shall be lawful for any servant of the Board to whom a warrant issued under section 92 is addressed to distress, wherever it may be found <sup>1</sup>[ in the cantonment],

NOTES.

SECS. 84 AND 88.—The jurisdiction of the Civil Court is excluded in all matters relating to any valuation, assessment, liability to assessment or taxation by a Cantonment Board. And if a decree is passed granting an injunction against the Board in respect of any such matter, it is wholly without jurisdiction and ultra vires and cannot be put into execution. 144 I.C. 1016=1933 A.L.J. 162=1933 All. 163; 1937 Sind 305. SEC. 88.—See 144 I.C. 1016=1933 All. 163, cited under S. 84, supra. In cases where the plaintiff is demanding a refund of the amount of assessment or tax levied under the Cantonments Act, if the Court is of opinion that the tax is ultra vires of the Act, then the Civil Court will have jurisdiction. If however the Court is of opinion that the tax is intra vires of the Act, then it would not be open to the Civil Court to go into the question whether the tax is excessive or whether it has been rightly levied. 184 I.C. 469=41 P.L.R. 597=1939 Lah. 147.

any movable property of 1[or standing timber, growing crops or grass belonging to] the person therein named as defaulter, subject to the following conditions, exceptions and exemptions, namely:—

(a) the following property shall not be distrained:—

(i) the necessary wearing apparel and bedding of the defaulter, his wife and children,

(ii) tools of artisans,

(iii) books of accounts, or

(iv) when the defaulter is an agriculturist, his implements of husbandry, seed-grain, and such cattle as may be necessary to enable the defaulter to earn his livelihood;

(b) the distress shall not be excessive, that is to say, the property distrained shall be as nearly as possible equal in value to the amount recoverable under the warrant, and if any property has been distrained which, in the opinion of the Executive Officer, should not have been distrained, it shall forthwith be returned.

(2) The person charged with the execution of a warrant of distress shall forthwith make an inventory of the property which he seizes under such warrant, and shall, at the same time, give a written notice in the form set forth in Schedule III to the person in possession thereof at the time of seizure that the said property will be sold as therein mentioned.

94. (1) When the property seized is subject to speedy and natural decay, or when the expense of keeping it in custody is, when added to the amount to be recovered, likely to exceed its value, the Executive Officer shall give notice to the person in whose possession the property was at the time of seizure that it will be sold at once, and shall sell it accordingly by public auction unless the amount mentioned in the warrant is forthwith paid.

(2) If the warrant is not in the meantime suspended by the Executive Officer, or discharged, the property seized shall, after the expiry of the period named in the notice served under sub-section (2) of section 93, be sold by public auction by order of the Executive Officer.

(3) The surplus of the sale-proceeds, if any, shall forthwith be credited to the cantonment fund, and notice of such credit shall be given at the same time to the person from whose possession the property was taken, and, if the same is claimed by written application to the Board within one year from the date of the notice, a refund thereof shall be made to such person. Any surplus not claimed within one year as aforesaid shall be the property of the Board.

(4) For every distraint made under this Chapter a fee of such amount, not exceeding one rupee, as shall in each case be fixed by the Executive Officer shall be charged, and the said fee shall be included in the costs of recovery.

95. (1) If the Executive Officer has reason to believe that any person from whom any sum is due 2[or is about to become due] on account of any tax is about to remove from the cantonment, he may direct the immediate payment by such person of the sum so due or about to become due, and cause a bill for the same to be served on such person.

(2) If, on the service of such bill, such person does not forthwith pay the sum so due or about to become due, the amount shall be leviable by distress and sale in the manner hereinbefore provided in this Chapter, except that it shall not be necessary to serve upon the defaulter any notice of demand and the warrant for distress and sale may be issued and executed without any delay.

(2) The following buildings and lands shall be exempt from any tax on property, namely:—

(a) places set apart for public worship and either actually so used or used for no other purpose;

(b) buildings used for educational purposes and public libraries, playgrounds and dharmshalas which are open to the public and from which no income is derived;

(c) hospitals and dispensaries maintained wholly by charitable contributions;

(d) burning and burial grounds, not being the property of <sup>1</sup>[the Crown] or a Board, which are controlled under the provisions of this Act;

(e) buildings or lands vested in a Board; and

100. A Board may exempt, for a period not exceeding one year at a time from the payment of any tax or any portion of a tax imposed under this Act, any person who is in its opinion by reason of poverty unable to pay the same.

Exemption of poor persons.

101. (1) A Board may, with the previous sanction of the <sup>1</sup>[Officer Commanding-in-Chief, the Command], allow any person to compound for any tax.

Composition.

(2) Every sum due by reason of the composition of a tax under sub-section (1) shall be recoverable as if it were a tax.

102. A [Cantonment Authority] may write off any sum due on account of any tax <sup>2</sup>[or rate] or of the costs of recovering any tax <sup>2</sup>[or rate] if such sum is, in its opinion, irrecoverable.

Irrecoverable debts.

103. (1) The Executive Officer may, by written notice, call upon any inhabitant of the cantonment to furnish such information as may be necessary for the purpose of ascertaining:—

Obligation to disclose liability.

(a) whether such inhabitant is liable to pay any tax imposed under this Act;

(b) at what amount he should be assessed; or

(c) the annual value of the building or land which he occupies and the name and address of the owner or lessee thereof.

(2) If any person, when called upon under sub-section (1) to furnish information, neglects to furnish it or furnishes information which is not true to the best of his knowledge or belief, he shall be punishable with fine which may extend to one hundred rupees.

104. No assessment and no charge or demand on account of any tax or fee shall be impeached or affected by reason only of any mistake in the name of any person liable to pay such tax or fee, or in the description of any property or thing, or any mistake in the amount of the assessment, charge or demand, if the directions contained in this Act and the rules and bye-laws made thereunder have in substance and effect been complied with; but any person who sustains any special damage by reason of any such mistake shall be entitled to recover compensation for the same by suit in a Court of competent jurisdiction.

Immaterial error not to affect liability.

105. No distress levied under this Chapter shall be deemed unlawful, nor shall any person making the same be deemed a trespasser, on account only of any defect of form in the notice of demand, warrant of distress or other proceeding relating thereto; nor shall any such person be deemed a trespasser ab initio on account of any irregularity afterwards committed by him; but any person who sustains any special damage by reason of any such irregularity shall be entitled to recover compensation for the same by suit in a Court of competent jurisdiction.

Distrainment not to be invalid by reason of immaterial defect.

CHAPTER VI.
CANTONMENT FUND AND PROPERTY.
Cantonment Fund.

106. There shall be formed for every cantonment a cantonment fund, and there shall be placed to the credit thereof the following sums, namely:—

(a) the balance, if any, of the cantonment fund formed for the cantonment under the Cantonments Act, 1910.

(b) all sums received by or on behalf of the Board.

107. (1) Where in or near a cantonment there is a Government treasury or sub-treasury, or a branch of the Imperial Bank of India, the cantonment fund shall be kept in such treasury, sub-treasury or bank, as the case may be.

(2) Where there is no such treasury, sub-treasury or bank, the cantonment fund may be deposited with any bank to which the Government treasury business has been entrusted, and, in the absence of such a bank, with any banker or person acting as a banker who has given such security for the safe custody of the fund and the payment on demand of the funds so deposited as the Central Government may in each case direct.

NOTES.

SEC. 106 (c).—Under the Devolution rules framed under the Government of India Act, 1919, 'cantonments' was a central subject and so were criminal law including procedure and all other matters not included among provincial subjects. On the other hand, 'administration of justice' was a provincial subject and in express terms included constitution, powers, maintenance and organisation of Civil and Criminal Courts, subject to legislation by the Indian Legislature as regards Courts of criminal jurisdiction. The Indian Legislature passed an enactment, the Cantonments Act, S. 106 (c) of which provided for the formation of cantonment funds to which were to be credited all fines recovered from persons convicted of certain offences committed within each cantonment. The United Provinces instituted a suit against the Central Government represented by the Governor-General in Council for a declaration that S. 106 (c) of the Cantonments Act was ultra vires the then Indian Legislature, that all fines imposed and realised by Criminal Courts for offences committed within the cantonment areas should be credited to the provincial revenues and that the plaintiffs were entitled to recover and adjust all such sums wrongly credited to the cantonment funds since 1924. Held, (i) that under the Devolution Rules fines imposed by Criminal Courts could be properly credited to provincial revenues as receipts accruing in respect of the administration of justice only if not otherwise appropriated by competent authority; the central subject criminal law, including criminal procedure, included the power to legislate with respect to the destination of fines imposed for criminal offences, and S. 106 (c) of the Act was not ultra vires; (ii) even assuming that S. 106 (c) related to a provincial subject, under the provisions of S. 84 (2) of the Government of India Act, 1919 the competence of Indian Legislature to enact that section could not be questioned in a Court of law; (iii) that S. 106 (c) was a law in force immediately before the commencement of Part III of the Constitution Act, under the India and Burma (Transitory Provisions) Order, 1937, para. 4 (a), such fines credited to the cantonment funds must be deemed not to form part of the revenues of the United Provinces till 31st of March, 1939; (iv) as S. 106 (c) has been deleted by the Government of India (Adaptation of Indian Laws) Order, 1937, all such fines must be credited to the provincial revenues from 1st April, 1939. 1919 F.C.R. 124=2 Fed.L.J. 123=50 L.W. 209=A.I.R. 1939 F.C. 58= (1939) 2 M.L.J. (4) The income resulting from any fixed deposit or from any such security as is referred to in sub-section (3) or from the proceeds of the sale of any such security shall be credited to the cantonment fund.

108. Subject to any special reservation made by the Central Government <sup>1</sup>[* *], all property of the nature hereinafter in this section specified which has been acquired or provided or is maintained by a Board shall vest in and belong to that Board, and shall be under its direction, management and control, that is to say,—

(a) all markets, slaughter-houses, manure and nightsoil depots, and buildings of every description;

(b) all water-works for the supply, storage or distribution of water for public purposes and all bridges, buildings, engines, materials and things connected therewith or appertaining thereto;

(c) all sewers, drains, culverts and water-courses, and all works, materials and things appertaining thereto;

(d) all dust, dirt, dung, ashes, refuse, animal matter, filth and rubbish of every kind, and dead bodies of animals collected by the Board from the streets, houses, privies, sewers, cess-pools or elsewhere, or deposited in places appointed by the Board for such purpose;

(e) all lamps and lamp-posts and apparatus connected therewith or appertaining thereto;

(f) all land or other property transferred to the Board by <sup>2</sup>[the Central or a Provincial Government], or by gift, purchase or otherwise for local public purposes; and

(g) all streets and the pavements, stones and other materials thereof, and also all trees, erections, materials, implements, and things existing on or appertaining to streets.

109. The cantonment fund and all property vested in a Board shall be applied for the purposes, whether express or implied for which, by or under this Act or any other law for the time being in force, powers are conferred or duties or obligations are imposed upon the Board:

Provided that the Board shall not incur any expenditure for acquiring or renting land beyond the limits of the cantonment or for constructing any work beyond such limits except—

(a) with the sanction of the Central Government, and

(b) on such terms and conditions as the Central Government may impose:

Provided, further, that priority shall be given in the order hereinafter set forth to the following liabilities and obligations of a Board, that is to say,—

(a) to the liabilities and obligations arising from a trust legally imposed upon or accepted by the Board;

(b) to the repayment of, and the payment of interest on, any loan incurred under the provisions of the Local Authorities Loans Act, 1914;

(c) to the payment of establishment charges;

(d) to the payment of such expenses on account of pauper lunatics sent from the cantonment to public lunatic asylums and mental hospitals as the Central Government directs the Board to pay; and

(e) to the payment of any sum the payment of which is expressly required by the provisions of this Act or any rule or bye-law made thereunder.

Acquisition of immovable property.

111. The Central Government may make rules<sup>2</sup> consistent with this Act to provide for all or any of the following matters, namely:—

(a) the conditions on which property may be acquired by Boards or on which property vested in a Board may be transferred by sale, mortgage, lease, exchange or otherwise; and

(b) any other matter relating to the cantonment fund or cantonment property in respect of which no provision or insufficient provision is made by or under this Act, and provision is, in the opinion of the Central Government, necessary.

Power to make rules regarding cantonment fund and property.

CHAPTER VII.

CONTRACTS.

112. Subject to the provisions of this Chapter, every Board shall be competent to enter into and perform any contract necessary for the purposes of this Act.

Contracts by whom to be executed.

Sanction.

113. (1) Every contract—

(a) for which budget provision does not exist, or
(b) which involves a value or amount exceeding one hundred rupees, shall require the sanction of the Board.

(2) Every contract other than a contract such as is referred to in sub-section (1) shall be sanctioned by the Board or by the Executive Officer on behalf of the Board.

114. (1) Every contract made by or on behalf of a Board, the value or amount of which exceeds fifty rupees, shall be in writing, and every such contract shall <sup>3</sup>[* *] be signed by two members, of whom the President or the Vice-President shall be one, and be countersigned by the Executive Officer and be sealed with the common seal of the Board <sup>4</sup>[* *]:

Execution of contracts.

Provided that, <sup>3</sup>[*] the Executive Officer may in a case of urgency, with the previous sanction of the President of the Board, execute on behalf of the Board any contract the value or amount of which does not exceed two hundred rupees.

(2) Where an Executive Officer executes a contract on behalf of a Board under sub-section (1), he shall submit a report of his action and of the reasons therefor to the Board at its next meeting.

Contracts improperly executed not to be binding on a Board.

115. If any contract is executed by or on behalf of a Board otherwise than in conformity with the provisions of this Chapter, it shall not be binding on the Board.

(i) to report the occurrence to the Executive Officer or to an officer, if any, appointed by him in this behalf with a view to securing the removal and disposal of the carcase by the public conservancy establishment; or

(ii) to remove and dispose of the carcase in accordance with any general directions given by the Board by public notice or any special directions given by the Executive Officer on receipt of such report as aforesaid; or

(k) save with the written permission of the Board and in such manner as it may authorise, stores or uses night-soil, manure, rubbish or any other substance emitting an offensive smell; or

(l) uses or permits to be used as a latrine any place not intended for that purpose;

NOTES.

SEC. 118 (1) (c).—A takhtposh or movable wooden platform cannot be held to be "earth, or material of any description, or any offensive matter, or rubbish" within the meaning of cl. (c), S. 118 (1). 28 Cr.L.J. 683=103 I.C. 411=1927 Lah. 647.

A verandah of a private house accessible to a public street is not a public place within the meaning of S. 118 and the mere fact that it is open to the road, and can be entered by the public is not sufficient for holding it to be anything but a private place. [11 P.R. 1890 (Cr.); (1881) A.W.N. 17; (1881) A.W.N. 8 and (1887) A.W.N. 75, Ref.] 1931 Lah. 576.
C. C. M.—30

shall be punishable with fine which may extend to fifty rupees.

(2) Whoever does not take reasonable means to prevent any child under the age of twelve years being in his charge from casing himself in any street or other public place within the cantonment shall be punishable with fine which may extend to twenty-five rupees.

(3) The owner or keeper of any animal found picketed or straying without a keep in a street or other public place in a cantonment shall be punishable with fine which may extend to twenty-rupees.

(4) Any animal found picketed as aforesaid may be removed by any officer or servant of the Board or by any police officer to a pound as if the animal had been found straying.

Dogs.

Registration and control of dogs. 119. (1) A Board may make bye-laws to provide for the registration of all dogs kept within the cantonment.

(2) Such bye-laws shall—

(a) require the registration, by the Officer Commanding each military unit, of all dogs kept in the lines occupied by that unit;

(b) require that every registered dog shall wear a collar to which shall be attached a metal token to be issued by the registration authority, and fix the fee payable for the issue thereof;

(c) require that any dog which has not been registered or which is not wearing such token shall, if found in any public place, be detained at a place set apart for the purpose; and

(d) fix the fee which shall be charged for such detention and provide that any such dog shall be liable to be destroyed or otherwise disposed of unless it is claimed and the fee in respect thereof is paid within one week; and may provide for such other matters as the Board thinks fit.

(3) A Board may—

(a) cause to be destroyed, or to be confined for such period as<sup>1</sup> [it] may direct, any dog or other animal which is, or is reasonably suspected to be, suffering from rabies, or which has been bitten by any dog or other animal suffering or suspected to be suffering from rabies;

(b) by public notice direct that, after such date as may be specified in the notice, dogs which are without collars or without marks distinguishing them as private property and are found straying on the streets or beyond the enclosures of the houses of their owners, if any, may be destroyed, and cause them to be destroyed accordingly.

(4) No damages shall be payable in respect of any dog or other animal destroyed or otherwise disposed of under this section.

(5) Whoever, being the owner or person in charge of any dog, neglects to restrain it so that it shall not be at large in any street without being muzzled and without being secured by a chain lead in any case in which—

(a) he knows that the dog is likely to annoy or intimidate any person, or

(b) the Board has, by public notice during the prevalence of rabies, directed that dogs shall not be at large without muzzles and chain leads, shall be punishable with fine which may extend to one hundred rupees.

(6) Whoever in a cantonment—

(a) allows any ferocious dog which belongs to him or is in his charge to be at large without being muzzled, or

(b) sets on or urges any dog or other animal to attack, worry or intimidate any person, or

(c) knowing or having reason to believe that any dog or animal belonging to him or in his charge has been bitten by an animal suffering or reasonably suspected to be suffering from rabies, neglects to give immediate information of the fact to the Executive Officer or gives information which is false, shall be punishable with fine which may extend to two hundred rupees.

Traffic.

120. Whoever in driving, leading or propelling a vehicle along a street fails, except in a case of actual necessity,—

(a) to keep to the left when passing a vehicle coming from the opposite direction, or

(b) to keep to the right when passing a vehicle going in the same direction as himself, shall be punishable with fine which may extend to fifty rupees.

Prevention of Fire, etc.

121. (1) A Board may, by public notice, direct that within such limits in the cantonment as may be specified in the notice, the roofs and external walls of huts or other buildings shall not, without the permission in writing of the Board, be made or renewed of grass, mats, leaves or other inflammable materials, and may, by notice in writing, require any person who has disobeyed any such direction as aforesaid to remove or alter the roofs or walls so made or renewed.

(2) A Board may, by notice in writing, require the owner of any building in the cantonment which has an external roof or wall made of any such material as aforesaid to remove such roof or wall within such time as may be specified in the notice, notwithstanding that a public notice under sub-section (1) has not been issued or that such roof or wall was made with the consent of the Board or before the issue of such public notice:

Provided that, in the case of any such roof or wall in existence before the issue of such a public notice or made with the consent of the Board, that authority shall make compensation, not exceeding the original cost of constructing the roof or wall, for any damage caused by the removal.

122. A Board may, by public notice, prohibit in any case where such prohibition appears to it to be necessary for the prevention of danger to life or property, the stacking or collecting of wood, dry grass, straw or other inflammable materials, or the placing of mats or thatched huts or the lighting of fires in any place in the cantonment, or within any limits therein, which may be specified in the notice.

123. No person shall set a naked light on or near any building in any street or other public place in a cantonment in such manner as to cause danger of fire:

Provided that nothing in the section shall be deemed to prohibit the use, subject to the permission in writing of the Board, of lights for purposes of illumination on the occasion of a festival or public or private entertainment.

124. (1) Notwithstanding anything contained in the Cinematograph Act, 1918, no exhibition of pictures or other optical effects by means of a cinematograph or other like apparatus for the purpose of which inflammable films are used, and no public dramatic performance or pantomime, shall be given in any cantonment elsewhere than in premises for which a licence has been granted by the Board under this section.

(2) If the owner of a cinematograph or other apparatus uses the apparatus or allows it to be used, or if any person takes any part in any public dramatic performance or pantomime, in contravention of the provisions of this section, or if the occupier of any premises allows them to be used in contravention of the provisions of this section or of any condition of any licence granted under this section, he shall be punishable with fine which may extend to two hundred rupees, and, in the case of a continuing offence, with an additional fine which may extend to fifty rupees for each day after the first during which the offence continues.

(3) Nothing in this section shall be deemed to prohibit the giving of any exhibition or any dramatic performance or pantomime in any theatre or institute which is the property of <sup>1</sup>[the Crown] where the exhibition, performance or pantomime is held with the permission and under the control of the military authorities.

125. Whoever in a cantonment discharges any fire-arm or lets off fireworks or fire-balloons, or engages in any game in such manner as to cause or to be likely to cause danger to persons passing by or dwelling or working in the neighbourhood or risk of injury to property shall be liable to fine which may extend to fifty rupees.

126. Where in a cantonment any building, or wall, or any thing affixed thereto, or any well, tank, reservoir, pool, depression, or excavation, or any bank or tree, is, in the opinion of the Board, <sup>2</sup>[in a ruinous state or] for want of sufficient repairs, protection or enclosure, <sup>2</sup>[a nuisance or] dangerous to persons passing by or dwelling or working in the neighbourhood, the Board may, by notice in writing, require the owner <sup>3</sup>[or part owner or person claiming to be the owner or part owner thereof, or, failing any of them, the occupier] thereof <sup>2</sup>[either to remove the same or] to repair, <sup>4</sup>[or to protect or to enclose] the same in such manner as it thinks necessary; and, if the danger is, in the opinion of the Board, imminent, it shall forthwith take such steps as it thinks necessary to avert the same.

127. A Board may, by notice in writing, require the owner or part owner, or person claiming to be the owner or part owner, of any building or land in the cantonment, or the lessee or the person claiming to be the lessee of any such land, which, by reason of disuse or disputed ownership or other cause, has remained unoccupied and has become the resort of idle and disorderly persons or of persons who have no ostensible means of subsistence or cannot give a satisfactory account of themselves, or is used for gaming or immoral purposes, or otherwise occasions or is likely to occasion a nuisance, to secure and enclose the same within such time as may be specified in the notice.

CHAPTER X.

SANITATION AND THE PREVENTION AND TREATMENT OF DISEASE.

Sanitary Authorities.

128. The following officers shall, for the purposes of sanitation, have control over, and be responsible for maintaining in a sanitary condition, those parts of a cantonment respectively, which are specified in the case of each, that is to say:—

LEG. REF.

(a) the <sup>1</sup>[Officer Commanding the station]—all buildings and lands which are occupied or used for military purposes;

(b) the Officer Commanding the air forces in the cantonment—all buildings and lands which are occupied or used for air-force purposes;

(c) the head of any civil department or railway administration occupying as such any part of the cantonment—all buildings and lands in his charge as head of that department or administration.

129. (1) The Health Officer shall exercise a general sanitary supervision over the whole cantonment, and shall submit monthly to the Board a report as to the sanitary condition of the cantonment, together with such recommendations in connection therewith as he thinks fit.

(2) The Assistant Health Officer shall perform such duties in connection with the sanitation of a cantonment as are, subject to the control of the Board, allotted to him by the Health Officer.

Conservancy and Sanitation.

130. All public latrines and urinals provided or maintained by a Board shall be so constructed as to provide separate compartments for each sex and not be a nuisance, and shall be provided with all necessary conservancy establishments, and shall regularly be cleansed and kept in proper order.

131. (1) On the application or with the consent of the occupier of any building or land, or, where the occupier of any building or land fails to make arrangements to the satisfaction of the Board for the matters referred to in this section, without such consent, after and giving notice in writing to the occupier, a Board may undertake the house scavenging of any building or land in the cantonment for such period as it thinks fit on such terms as it may prescribe in this behalf.

(2) Where the Board has undertaken the duties referred to in this section, all matter removed in the performance of such duties shall be the property of <sup>2</sup>[that Board].

(3) For the purposes of this section, "house scavenging" means the removal of filth or rubbish or other offensive matter from a privy, latrine, urinal drain, cesspool, or other common receptacle for such matter.

132. (1) Every Board shall provide or appoint, in proper and convenient situations, public receptacles, depots or places for the temporary deposit or disposal of household rubbish, offensive matter, carcases of dead animals and sewage.

(2) The Board may, by public notice, issue directions as to the time at which, the manner in which and the conditions subject to which, any matter referred to in sub-section (1) may be removed along a street or may be deposited or otherwise disposed of.

(3) All matter deposited in receptacles, depots or places provided or appointed under this section shall be the property of the Board.

133. The Executive Officer of any cantonment may, by notice in writing—

(a) require any person having the control whether as owner, lessee or occupier of any land or building in the cantonment—

LEG. REF.

(i) to close any cesspool appertaining to the land or building which is, in the opinion of the Executive Officer, a nuisance, or

(ii) to keep in a clean condition, in such manner as may be prescribed by the notice, any receptacle for filth or sewage accumulating on the land or in the building, or

(iii) to prevent the water of any private latrine, urinal, sink or bath room or any other offensive matter, from soaking, draining or flowing, or being put, from the land or building upon any street or other public place, or into any water-course or into any drain not intended for the purpose; or

(iv) to collect and deposit for removal by the conservancy establishment of the Board, within such time and in such receptacle or place, situate at not more than one hundred feet from the nearest boundary of the premises, as may be specified in the notice, any offensive matter or rubbish which such person has allowed to accumulate or remain under, in or on such building or land; or

(b) require any person to desist from making or altering any drain leading into a public drain; or

(c) require any person having the control of a drain in the cantonment to cleanse, purify, repair or alter the same, or otherwise put it in good order, within such time as may be specified in the notice.

134. (1) Where any well, tank, cistern, reservior, receptacle, or other place in the cantonment where water is stored or accumulates, whether within any private enclosure or not, is in such a condition as to create a nuisance or, in the opinion of the Health Officer, or the Assistant Health Officer, is or is likely to be a breeding place for mosquitoes, the Board may, by notice in writing, require the owner, lessee or occupier thereof, within such period as may be specified in the notice, to fill up or cover the well, cistern, reservoir or receptacle, or to fill up the tank, or to drain off or remove the water, as the case may be.

(2) The Board may, if it thinks fit, with the previous sanction of the <sup>1</sup>[Officer Commanding-in-Chief, the Command], meet the whole or any portion of the expenses incurred in complying with a requisition under sub-section (1).

135. A Board may, by notice in writing, require the owner or lessee of any building or land in the cantonment to provide, in such manner as may be specified in the notice, any latrine, urinal, cesspool, dust-bin or other receptacle for filth, sewage, or rubbish, or any additional latrine, urinal, cesspool or other receptacle as aforesaid, which should, in its opinion, be provided for the building or land.

136. Every person employing, whether on behalf of the Government or otherwise, more than ten workmen or labourers, and every person managing or having control of a market, school, theatre or other place of public resort, in a cantonment shall give notice of the fact to the Board, and shall provide such latrines and urinals, and shall employ such number of sweepers, as the Board thinks fit, and shall cause the latrines and urinals to be kept clean and in proper order:

Provided that nothing in this section shall apply in the case of a factory to which the Indian Factories Act, 1911, applies.

Private latrines.

137. A Board may, by notice in writing,—

(a) require the owner or other person having the control of any private latrine or urinal in the cantonment not to put the same to public use; or

(b) where any plan for the construction of private latrines or urinals has been approved by the Board, and copies thereof may be obtained free of charge on application,—

(i) require any person repairing or constructing any private latrine or urinal not to allow the same to be used until it has been inspected by or under the direction of the Health Officer and approved by him as conforming with such plan; or

(ii) require any person having control of any private latrine or urinal to re-build or alter the same in accordance with such plan; or

(c) require the owner or other person having the control of any such private latrine or urinal which, in the opinion of the Board, constitutes a nuisance, to remove the latrine or urinal; or

(d) require any person having the control whether as owner, lessee or occupier of any land or building in the cantonment—

(i) to have any latrines provided for the same shut out by a sufficient roof and wall or fence from the view of persons passing by or dwelling in the neighbourhood, or

(ii) to cleanse in such manner as the Board may specify in the notice any latrine or urinal belonging to the land or building;

(e) require any person being the owner and having the control of any drain in the cantonment to provide, within ten days from the service of the notice, such covering as may be specified in the notice.

138. (1) Where it appears to a Board that any block of buildings in the cantonment is in an unhealthy condition by reason of the manner in which the buildings are crowded together, or of the narrowness or closeness of the street, or of the want of proper drainage or ventilation, or of the impracticability of cleansing the buildings or other similar cause, it may cause the block to be inspected by a committee consisting of—

(a) the Health Officer,

(b) the Civil Surgeon of the district or, if his services are not available, some other medical officer <sup>1</sup>[in the service of the Crown],

(c) the Executive Engineer or a person deputed by the Executive Engineer in this behalf, and

<sup>2</sup>[(d) Where the cantonment is a class I or class II cantonment, two non-official members of the Board, or where the cantonment is a class III cantonment, one non-official member of the Board].

(2) The committee shall make a report in writing to the Board regarding the sanitary condition of the block, and if it considers that the condition thereof is likely to cause risk of disease to the inhabitants of the building or of the neighbourhood or otherwise to endanger the public health, it shall clearly indicate on a plan verified by the Executive Engineer or the person deputed by him to serve on the committee, the buildings which should in its opinion wholly or in part be removed in order to abate the unhealthy condition of the block.

(3) If, upon receipt of such report, the Board is of opinion that all or any buildings indicated should be removed, it may, by notice in writing, require the owners thereof to remove them:

Provided that the Board shall make compensation to the owners for any buildings so removed which may have been erected under proper authority:

Provided, further, that the Board may, if it considers it equitable in the circumstances so to do, pay to the owners such sum as it thinks fit as compensation for any buildings so removed which have not been erected under proper authority.

(4) For the purposes of this section "buildings" includes enclosure walls and fences appertaining to buildings.

LEG. REF.

<sup>1</sup> Substituted for 'of the Government' by

139. (1) Where it appears to a Board that any building or part of a building in the cantonment which is used as a dwelling house is so over-crowded as to endanger the health of the inmates thereof, it may, after such inquiry as it thinks fit, by notice in writing require the owner or occupier of the building or part thereof, as the case may be, within such time not being less than one month as may be specified in the notice, to abate the over-crowding of the same by reducing the number of lodgers, tenants, or other inmates to such number as may be specified in the notice.

(2) Any person who fails, without reasonable cause, to comply with a requisition made upon him under sub-section (1) shall be punishable with fine which may extend to fifty rupees, and, in the case of a continuing offence, to an additional fine which may extend to five rupees for every day after the first during which the failure has continued.

140. (1) Where any building in a cantonment is so ill-constructed or dilapidated as to be, in the opinion of the Board, in an insanitary state, the Board may, by notice in writing, require the owner, within such time as may be specified in the notice, to execute such repairs or to make such alterations as it thinks necessary for the purpose of removing such defects.

(2) A copy of every notice issued under sub-section (1) shall be conspicuously posted on the building to which it relates.

(3) A notice issued under sub-section (1) shall be deemed to have been complied with if the owner of the building to which it relates has, instead of executing the repairs or making the alterations directed by the notice, removed the building.

141. (1) The Executive Officer may, by notice in writing, require the owner, lessee or occupier of any building or land in the cantonment, which appears to him to be in a filthy or insanitary state, within twenty-four hours to cleanse the same or otherwise put it in a proper state, in such manner as may be specified in the notice.

(2) If, within three months from the date of the service of a notice under sub-section (1), any building or land in respect of which the notice was issued is again in a filthy or insanitary state, the owner, lessee or occupier as the case may be, shall be punishable with fine which may extend to two hundred rupees.

142. If a Board is satisfied that any building or part of a building in the cantonment which is intended for or used as a dwelling place is unfit for human habitation, it may cause a notice to be posted on some conspicuous part of the building prohibiting the owner or occupier thereof from using the building or room for human habitation, or allowing it to be so used, until it has been rendered fit for such use to the satisfaction of the Board.

143. A Board may, by notice in writing, require the owner, lessee, or occupier of any land in the cantonment to clear away and remove any thick or noxious vegetation or undergrowth which appears to it to be injurious to health or offensive to persons residing in the neighbourhood.

NOTES.

SEC. 141.—Where a person fails to comply with the notice served under S. 141 (1) of the Act, he can be fined under S. 141 (1) read with S. 268 of the Act. He cannot be prosecuted for the same failure under S. 141

(2) and his conviction under this sub-section is clearly illegal. The word "again" used in sub-sec. (2) suggests that the offence contemplated in that sub-section is a recurring and not a continuing offence. 158 I.C. 1010=36 Cr.L.J. 1493=1935 A. 905.

144. Where, in the opinion of a Board, the cultivation in the cantonment of any description of crop or the use therein of any kind of manure or the irrigation of any land therein in any specified manner is likely to be injurious to the health of persons dwelling in the neighbourhood, the Board may, by public notice, prohibit such cultivation, use or irrigation after such date as may be specified in the notice, or may, by a like notice, direct that it shall be carried out subject to such conditions as the Board thinks fit:

Provided that if, when a notice is issued under this section, any land to which it relates has been lawfully prepared for cultivation or any crop is sown therein or is standing thereon, the Board shall, if it directs that the notice is to take effect on a date earlier than that by which the crop would ordinarily be sown or reaped, as the case may be, make compensation to all persons interested in the land or crop for the loss, if any, incurred by them respectively by reason of compliance with the notice.

Burial and Burning Grounds.

145. A Board may, by notice in writing, require the owner or person in charge of any burial or burning ground in the cantonment to supply such information as may be specified in the notice concerning the condition, management or position of such ground.

Power to call for information regarding burial and burning grounds.

Permission for use of new burial or burning ground.

146. (1) No place in a cantonment which has not been used as a burial or burning ground before the commencement of this Act shall be so used without the permission in writing of the Board.

(2) Such permission may be granted subject to any conditions which the Board thinks fit to impose for the purpose of preventing annoyance to, or danger to the health of, persons residing in the neighbourhood.

147. (1) Where a Board, after making or causing to be made local inquiry, is of opinion that any burial or burning ground in the cantonment has become offensive to, or dangerous to the health of, persons living in the neighbourhood, it may, with the previous sanction of the Central Government, by notice in writing, require the owner or person in charge of such ground to close the same from such date as may be specified in the notice.

Power to require closing of burial or burning ground.

(2) Where the Central Government sanctions the issue of any notice under sub-section (1), it shall declare the conditions on which the burial or burning ground may be re-opened, and a copy of such declaration shall be annexed to the notice.

(3) Where the Central Government sanctions the issue of any such notice, it shall require a new burial or burning ground to be provided at the expense of the cantonment fund, or, if the community concerned is willing to provide a new burial or burning ground, the Central Government shall require a grant to be made from the cantonment fund towards the cost of the same.

(4) No corpse shall be buried or burnt in any burial or burning ground in respect of which a notice issued under this section is for the time being in force.

148. The provisions of sections 145, 146 and 147 shall not apply in the case of any burial ground which is for the time being managed by or on behalf of the Government.

Exemption from operation of sections 145 to 147.

149. A Board may, by public notice, prescribe routes in the cantonment by which alone corpses may be removed to burial or burning grounds.

Removal of corpses.

Prevention of Infectious or Contagious Diseases.

150. <sup>1</sup>[Any person], being in charge of, or in attendance, whether as a medical practitioner or otherwise, upon any person in a cantonment whom he knows or has reason to believe to be suffering from a contagious or infectious disease, or being the owner, lessee or occupier of any building in a cantonment in which he knows that any such person is so suffering, shall, if he fails to give information, or if he gives false information, to the Board respecting the existence of such disease, be punishable with fine which may extend to one hundred rupees:

Provided that no person shall be punishable under this section for failure to give information if he had reasonable cause to believe that the information had already been duly given:

Provided, further, that this section shall not apply in the case of venereal disease where the person suffering therefrom is under specific and adequate medical treatment and is, by reason of his habits and conditions of life and residence, unlikely to spread the disease.

151. (1) In the event of a cantonment being visited or threatened by an outbreak of any infectious or contagious disease among the inhabitants thereof or of any epidemic disease among any animals therein, the <sup>2</sup>[Officer Commanding-in-Chief, the Command], if he thinks that the provisions of this Act or of any law for the time being in force in the cantonment are insufficient for the purpose, may, with the previous sanction of the Central Government,—

- (a) take such special measures, and
  - (b) by public notice, make such temporary regulations to be observed by the public or by any class or section of the public,
- as he thinks necessary to prevent the outbreak or the spread of the disease:

Provided that, where in the opinion of the <sup>2</sup>[Officer Commanding-in-Chief, the Command], immediate measures are necessary, he may take action without such sanction as aforesaid and, if he does so, shall forthwith report such action to the Central Government.

(2) Whoever commits a breach of any temporary regulation made under sub-section (1) shall be deemed to have committed an offence under section 188 of the Indian Penal Code.

152. Where it is certified to the Executive Officer by a medical practitioner that the outbreak or spread of any infectious or contagious disease in the cantonment is, in the opinion of such medical practitioner, attributable to the milk supplied by any dairyman, the Executive Officer may, by notice in writing, require the dairyman, within such time as may be specified in the notice, to furnish him with a full and complete list of the names and addresses of all his customers within the cantonment, or to give him such information as will enable him to trace the persons to whom the dairyman has sold milk.

153. Where it is certified to the Executive Officer by the Health Officer that it is desirable, with a view to prevent the spread of any infectious or contagious disease in the cantonment, that the Health Officer should be furnished with a list of the customers of any washerman, the Executive Officer may, by notice in writing, require the washerman, within a time to be specified in the notice, to furnish the Health Officer with a full and complete list of the names and addresses of all owners within the cantonment of clothes and other articles which the washerman washes or has washed during the six weeks immediately preceding the date of the notice.

154. Where, after inspection, the Health Officer is of opinion that any infectious or contagious disease is caused or is likely to arise in the cantonment from the consumption of the milk supplied from a dairy or from the washing of clothes or other articles in any place, or from any process employed by a washerman, he shall report the matter to the Executive Officer.

Report after inspection of dairy or washerman's place of business.

155. Upon receipt of a report submitted by the Health Officer under section 154, the Executive Officer may, by notice in writing,—

(a) prohibit the supply of milk from the dairy until the notice has been withdrawn; or

(b) prohibit the washerman from washing clothes or other articles in any such place or by any such process as aforesaid until the notice has been withdrawn or unless he uses such place in such manner, or washes by such process, as the Executive Officer may direct in the notice.

156. The Health Officer may take possession of any milk, clothes or other articles which are or have recently been in the possession of any dairyman on whom a notice has been served under section 152, or of any clothes or other articles which are or have recently been in the possession of any washerman, on whom a notice has been served under section 153, and may subject the same or cause the same to be subjected to such chemical or other process as he may think necessary; and the Board shall pay from the cantonment fund all the costs of the process and shall also pay to the owner of the milk, clothes or <sup>1</sup>[other] articles such sum as compensation for any loss occasioned by such process as may appear to it to be reasonable.

Examination of milk or washed clothes.

157. Whoever in a cantonment—

(a) uses a public conveyance while suffering from an infectious or contagious disease, or

(b) uses a public conveyance for the carriage of a person who is suffering from any such disease, or

(c) uses a public conveyance for the carriage of the corpse of a person who has died from any such disease, shall be bound to take proper precautions against the communication of the disease to other persons using or who may thereafter use the conveyance and to notify such use to the owner, driver or person in charge of the conveyance, and further to report without delay to the Executive Officer the number of the conveyance and the name of the person so notified.

158. (1) Where any person suffering from, or the corpse of any person who has died from, an infectious or contagious disease has been carried in a public conveyance which ordinarily plies in a cantonment, the driver thereof shall forthwith report the fact to the Executive Officer who shall forthwith cause the conveyance to be disinfected if that has not already been done.

(2) No such conveyance shall be brought again into use until the Executive Officer has granted a certificate stating that it can be used without causing risk of infection.

159. Whoever fails to make to the Executive Officer any report which he is required to make by section 157 or section 158, shall be punishable with fine which may extend to one hundred rupees.

Penalty for failure to report.

160. Notwithstanding anything contained in any law for the time being in force, no owner, driver or person in charge of a public conveyance shall be bound to convey or to allow to be conveyed in such conveyance in or in the vicinity of a cantonment any person suffering from an infectious or contagious disease or the corpse of any person who has died from such disease unless and until such person pays or tenders a sum sufficient to cover any loss and expense which would ordinarily be incurred in disinfecting the conveyance.

Driver of conveyance not bound to carry person suffering from infectious or contagious disease.

161. Where a Board is, upon the advice of the Health Officer, of opinion that the cleansing and disinfection of any building or part of a building in the cantonment or of any articles in any such building or part which are likely to retain infection, or the renewal of the flooring of any such building or part of such building, would tend to prevent or check the spread of any infectious or contagious disease, he may, by notice in writing, require the owner or occupier to cleanse and disinfect the said building, part or articles, as the case may be, or to renew the said flooring, within such time as may be specified in the notice:

Disinfection of building or articles therein.

Provided that where, in the opinion of the Board, the owner or occupier is from poverty or any other cause unable effectually to carry out any such requisition, the Board may, at the expense of the cantonment fund, cleanse and disinfect the building, part or articles, or, as the case may be, renew the flooring.

162. (1) Where the destruction of any hut or shed in a cantonment is, in the opinion of the Board, necessary to prevent the spread of any infectious or contagious disease, the Board may, by notice in writing, require the owner to destroy the hut or shed and the materials thereof within such time as may be specified in the notice.

Destruction of infectious hut or shed.

(2) Where the President of a Board 1[* *] is satisfied that the destruction of any hut or shed in the cantonment is immediately necessary for the purpose of preventing the spread of any infectious or contagious disease, he may order the owner or occupier of the hut or shed to destroy the same forthwith, or may himself cause it to be destroyed after giving not less than two hours' notice to the owner or occupier thereof.

(3) The Board shall pay compensation to the owner of any hut or shed destroyed under this section.

163. The Board shall provide free of charge temporary shelter or house accommodation for the members of any family in which an infectious or contagious disease has appeared who have been compelled to leave their dwelling by reason of any proceedings taken under section 161 or section 162, and who desire such shelter or accommodation as aforesaid to be provided for them.

Temporary shelter for inmates of disinfected or destroyed building or shed.

164. (1) Where in a cantonment any building or part of a building is intended to be let in which any person has, within the six weeks immediately preceding, been suffering from an infectious or contagious disease, the person letting the building or part shall, before doing so, disinfect the same in such manner as the Board may, by public or special notice, direct together with all articles therein liable to retain infection.

Disinfection of building before letting the same.

(2) For the purposes of this section, the keeper of an hotel, lodging house or sarai shall be deemed to let to any person who is admitted as a guest therein that part of the building in which such person is permitted to reside.

165. No person shall, without previous disinfection of the same, give, lend, sell, transmit or otherwise dispose of to another person any article or thing which he knows or has reason to believe has been exposed to contamination by any infectious or contagious disease and is likely to be used in, or taken into, a cantonment.

Means of disinfection.

166. (1) Every Board shall—

(a) provide proper places with necessary attendants and apparatus for the disinfection of conveyances, clothing, bedding or other articles which have been exposed to infection;

(b) cause conveyances, clothing or other articles brought for disinfection to be disinfected either free of charge or on payment of such charges as it may fix.

(2) A Board may notify places at which articles of clothing, bedding, conveyances, or other articles which have been exposed to infection shall be washed, and, if it does so, no person shall wash any such thing at any place not so notified without having previously disinfected such thing.

(3) The President of a Board <sup>1</sup>[* *] may direct the destruction of any clothing, bedding or other article in the cantonment likely to retain infection, and may give such compensation as he thinks fit for any article so destroyed.

Making or selling of food, etc., or washing clothes by infected person. 167. Whoever, while suffering from, or in circumstances in which he is likely to spread, any infectious or contagious disease,—

(a) makes, carries, or offers for sale in a cantonment or takes any part in the business of making, carrying or offering for sale therein any article of food or drink or any medicine or drug for human consumption, or any article of clothing or bedding for personal use or wear, or

(b) takes any part in the business of the washing or carrying of clothes, shall be punishable with fine which may extend to one hundred rupees.

168. When a cantonment is visited or threatened by an outbreak of any infectious or contagious disease, the Board may, by public notice, restrict in such manner or prohibit for such period, as may be specified in the notice, the sale or preparation of any article of food or drink for human consumption specified in the notice or the sale of any flesh of any description of animals so specified.

Control over wells, tanks, etc. 169. (1) If a Board is of opinion that the water in any well, tank or other place is likely, if used for drinking, to engender, or cause the spread of, any disease, it may,—

(a) by public notice, prohibit the removal or use of such water for drinking;

(b) by notice in writing require the owner or person having control of such well, tank or place to take such steps as may be directed by the notice to prevent the public from having access to or using such water; or

(c) take such other steps as it may consider expedient to prevent the outbreak or spread of any such disease.

(2) In the event of a cantonment or any part of a cantonment being visited or threatened by an outbreak of any infectious or contagious disease, the Health Officer or any person authorised by him in this behalf may, without notice and at any time, inspect and disinfect any well, tank or other place from which water is, or is likely to be, taken for the purposes of drinking, and may further take such steps as he thinks fit to ensure the purity of the water or to prevent the use of the same for drinking purposes.

Disposal of infectious corpse. 170. Where any person has died in a cantonment from any infectious or contagious disease, the Executive Officer may, by notice in writing,—

(a) require any person having charge of the corpse to convey the same to a mortuary, thereafter to be disposed of in accordance with law; or

(b) prohibit the removal of the corpse from the place where death occurred except for the purpose of being buried or burned or of being conveyed to a mortuary.

Hospitals and Dispensaries.

Maintenance or aiding of hospitals or dispensaries.

171. (1) A Board may—

(a) provide and maintain either within or without the cantonment as many hospitals and dispensaries as it thinks fit; or

(b) make, upon such terms as it thinks fit to impose, a grant-in-aid to any hospital or dispensary <sup>1</sup>[or veterinary hospital], whether within or without the cantonment, not maintained by it.

(2) Every hospital or dispensary maintained or aided under sub-section (1) shall have attached to it a ward or wards for the treatment of persons suffering from infectious or contagious diseases.

(3) A medical officer, appointed in such manner as the Central Government may direct, shall be in charge of every hospital or dispensary maintained or aided under this section.

172. (1) Every hospital or dispensary maintained or aided under section 171 shall be maintained in accordance with any Medical supplies, appliances, etc. general or special orders of the Central Government <sup>2</sup>[* *] for the conduct of hospitals and dispensaries or in accordance with the said orders modified in such manner as the Central Government <sup>2</sup>[* *] <sup>3</sup>[* *], thinks fit.

(2) The Board shall cause every such hospital or dispensary to be provided with all requisite drugs, instruments, apparatus, furniture and appliances and with sufficient costs, bedding and clothing for in-patients.

173. At every hospital or dispensary maintained or aided under section 171, the sick poor of the cantonment, and other inhabitants of the cantonment suffering from infectious or contagious diseases, and, with the sanction of the Board, any other sick persons, may receive medical or <sup>4</sup>[surgical] treatment free of costs, and, if treated as in-patients, shall be either dieted gratuitously or, if the medical officer in charge so directs, shall be granted subsistence allowance on such scale as the Board may fix:

Free patients. Provided that the subsistence allowance shall not be less than the lowest allowance for the time being fixed for the subsistence of judgment-debtors by the <sup>5</sup>[Provincial] Government under section 57 of the Code of Civil Procedure, 1908.

174. Any sick person who is ineligible to receive medical <sup>1</sup>[or surgical] treatment free of costs in any hospital or dispensary under section 173 may be admitted to treatment therein upon such terms as the Board thinks fit.

Paying patients.

175. (1) If the Health Officer or the medical officer in charge of a hospital or dispensary maintained or aided under section 171 has reason to believe that any person living in the cantonment is suffering from an infectious or contagious disease, he may, by notice in writing, call upon such person to attend for examination at any such hospital or dispensary at such time as may be specified in the notice and not to quit it without the permission of the medical officer in charge; and, on the arrival of such person at the hospital or dispensary, the medical officer in charge thereof may examine him for the purpose of satisfying himself whether or not such person is suffering from an infectious or contagious disease:

Power to order person to attend hospital or dispensary.

Provided that, if, having regard to the nature of the disease or the condition of the person suffering therefrom, or the general environment and circumstances of such person, the Health Officer or medical officer, as the case may be, considers that the attendance of such person at a hospital or dispensary is likely to prove unnecessary or inexpedient, he shall examine such person at such person's own residence.

(2) If any person, on examination under sub-section (1), is found to be suffering from an infectious or contagious disease, the Health Officer or medical officer, as the case may be, may cause him to be detained in hospital until he is free from the infection or contagion:

Provided that, if having regard to the nature of the disease or the condition of the person suffering therefrom, or the general environment and circumstances of such person, he considers that the detention of such person at a hospital or dispensary is unnecessary or inexpedient, he shall discharge such person and take such measures or give such directions in the matter as he thinks necessary.

176. (1) If the Health Officer or the medical officer in charge of a hospital or dispensary maintained or aided under section 171 reports in writing to the <sup>2</sup>[Officer Commanding the station] that any person having received a notice under section 175 has refused or omitted to attend at the hospital or dispensary, specified in the notice, or that such person, having attended the hospital or dispensary, has quitted it without the permission of such medical officer, or that any person has failed to comply with any direction given to him under section 175, the <sup>2</sup>[Officer Commanding the station] may, by order in writing, direct such person to remove from the cantonment within twenty-four hours and not to re-enter it without his permission in writing.

Power to exclude from cantonment persons refusing to attend hospital or dispensary.

(2) No person who has under sub-section (1) been ordered to remove from and not to re-enter a cantonment shall enter any other cantonment in British India without the written permission of the <sup>2</sup>[Officer Commanding the station].

Control of Traffic for Hygienic Purposes.

Routes for pilgrims and others.

177. (1) A Board may provide or prescribe suitable routes for the use of persons passing through the cantonment—

(a) on their way to or from fairs or places of pilgrimage or other places of public resort; or

(b) during times when an infectious or contagious disease is prevalent; and may, by public notice, require such persons as aforesaid to use such routes and no others.

(2) All routes provided or prescribed under sub-section (1) shall be clearly and sufficiently indicated by the Board.

Special Conditions regarding Essential Services.

178. (1) Whoever, being a sweeper employed by a Board, in the absence of a written contract authorising him so to do and without reasonable cause, resigns his employment or absents himself from his duty without having given one month's notice to the Board, or neglects or refuses to perform his duties, or any of them, shall, be punishable with imprisonment which may extend to one month.

(2) The Central Government may, by notification in the Official Gazette, direct that on and from such date as may be specified in the notification, the provisions of this section shall apply in the case of any specified class of servants employed by a Board whose functions intimately concern the public health or safety.

(3) For the purpose of this section, "sweeper" includes any menial servant employed by a Board in the removal or disposal of filth or rubbish.

CHAPTER XI.

CONTROL OVER BUILDINGS, STREETS, BOUNDARIES, TREES, ETC.

Buildings.

1[178-A. No person shall erect or re-erect a building on any land in a cantonment, except with the previous sanction of the Board, nor otherwise than in accordance with the provisions of this Chapter and of the rules and bye-laws made under this Act relating to the erection and re-erection of buildings.]

179. (1) Whoever intends to erect or re-erect any building in a cantonment shall <sup>2</sup>[apply for sanction by giving] notice in writing of his intention to the Board.

(2) For the purpose of this Act, a person shall be deemed to erect or re-erect a building who—

(a) makes any material alteration or enlargement of any building, or
(b) converts into a place for human habitation any building not originally constructed for that purpose, or

(c) converts into more than one place for human habitation a building originally constructed as one such place, or

(d) converts two or more places of human habitation into a greater number of such places, or

(e) converts into a stable, cattle-shed or cowhouse any building originally constructed for human habitation, or

(f) makes any alteration which there is reason to believe is likely to affect prejudicially the stability or safety of any building or the condition of any building in respect of drainage, sanitation or hygiene, or

(g) makes any alteration to any building which increases or diminishes the height of, or area covered by, or the cubic capacity of, the building, or which reduces the cubic capacity of any room in the building below the minimum prescribed by any bye-law made under this Act.

180. (1) A person giving the notice required by section 179 shall specify the purpose for which it is intended to use the building to which such notice relates.

(2) No notice shall be valid until the information required under subsection (1) and any further information and plans which may be required under bye-laws made under this Act have been furnished to the satisfaction of the Board along with the notice.

181. (1) The Board may either refuse to sanction the erection or re-erection, as the case may be, of the building, or may sanction it either absolutely or subject to such directions as it thinks fit to make in writing in respect of all or any of the following matters, namely:—

- (a) the free passage or way to be left in front of the buildings;
  - (b) the space to be left about the building to secure free circulation of air and facilitate scavenging and the prevention of fire;
  - (c) the ventilation of the building, the minimum cubic area of the rooms and the number and height of the storeys of which the building may consist;
  - (d) the provision and position of drains, latrines, urinals, cesspools or other receptacles for filth;
  - (e) the level and width of the foundation, the level of the lowest floor and the stability of the structure;
  - (f) the line of frontage with neighbouring buildings if the building abuts on a street;
  - (g) the means to be provided for egress from the building in case of fire;
  - (h) the materials and method of construction to be used for external and party walls for rooms, floors, fireplaces, and chimneys;
  - (i) the height and slope of the roof above the uppermost floor upon which human beings are to live or cooking operations are to be carried on; and
  - (j) any other matter affecting the ventilation and sanitation of the buildings;
- and the person erecting or re-erecting the building shall obey all such written directions in every particular.

<sup>1</sup>[(2) The Board may refuse to sanction the erection or re-erection of any building, either on grounds sufficient in the opinion of the Board affecting the particular building, or in pursuance of a general scheme sanctioned by the Officer Commanding-in-Chief, the Command, restricting the erection or re-erection of buildings within specified limits for the prevention of overcrowding or in the interests of persons residing within such limits or for any other public purpose.

(3) The Board, before sanctioning the erection or re-erection of a building on land which is under the management of the Military Estates Officer, shall refer the application to the Military Estates Officer for ascertaining whether there is any objection on the part of Government to such erection or re-erection; and the Military Estates Officer shall return the application together with his report thereon to the Board within thirty days after it has been received by him.

(4) The Board may refuse to sanction the erection or re-erection of any building—

- (a) when the land on which it is proposed to erect or re-erect the building is held on a lease from <sup>2</sup>[the Crown] if the erection or re-erection constitutes a breach of the terms of the lease, or

(b) when the land on which it is proposed to erect or re-erect the building is not held on a lease from <sup>1</sup>[the Crown], if the right to build on such land is in dispute between the person applying for sanction and the Government.

(5) If the Board decides to refuse to sanction the erection or re-erection of the building, it shall communicate in writing the reasons for such refusal to the person by whom notice was given.

(6) Where the Board neglects or omits, for one month after the receipt of a valid notice, to make and to deliver to the person who has given the notice any order of any nature specified in this section, and such person thereafter by a written communication sent by registered post to the Board calls the attention of the Board to the neglect or omission, then, if such neglect or omission continues for a further period of fifteen days from the date of such communication the Board shall be deemed to have given sanction to the erection or re-erection, as the case may be, unconditionally:

Provided that, in any case to which the provisions of sub-section (3) apply, the period of one month herein specified shall be reckoned from the date on which the Board has received the report referred to in that sub-section].

182. (1) No compensation shall be claimable by any person for any damage or loss which he may sustain in consequence of the refusal of the Board of sanction to the erection of any building or in respect of any direction issued by it under sub-section (1) of section 181.

(2) The Board shall make compensation to the owner of any building for any actual damage or loss sustained by him in consequence of the prohibition of the re-erection of any building or of its requiring any land belonging to him to be added to the street:

Provided that the Board shall not be liable to make any compensation in respect of the prohibition of the re-erection of any building which for a period of three years or more immediately preceding such refusal has not been in existence or has been unfit for human habitation.

183. Every sanction for the erection or re-erection of a building given or deemed to have been given by the Board as hereinbefore provided shall be available for one year from the date on which it is given, and, if the building so sanctioned is not begun by the person who has obtained the sanction or some one lawfully claiming under him within that period, it shall not thereafter be begun <sup>2</sup>[unless the Board on application made therefor has allowed an extension of that period].

<sup>3</sup>[183-A. A Board, when sanctioning the erection or re-erection of a building as hereinbefore provided, shall specify a reasonable period after the work has commenced within which the erection or re-erection is to be completed, and, if the erection or re-erection is not completed within the period so fixed, it shall not be continued thereafter without fresh sanction obtained in the manner hereinbefore provided, unless the Board on application made therefor has allowed an extension of that period:

Provided that not more than two such extensions shall be allowed by the Board in any case].

Illegal erection and re-erection.

184. Whoever begins, continues or completes the erection or re-erection of a building—

(a) without having given a valid notice as required by sections 179 and 180, or before the building has been sanctioned or is deemed to have been sanctioned, or

SEC. 184 (b): SCOPE OF.—S. 184 (b) does not provide a punishment for mere non-compliance with a direction made under sub-S. (1) of S. 181, but for the beginning, continuation, or completion of the erection of a building without complying with such a direction. 35 Cr.L.J. 666=1934 Oudh 29.

SECS. 184 AND 185.—There is a clear distinction between the offences under Ss. 184 and 185 of the Act. One relates to the erection or re-erection of a building without the permission of the Cantonment Authority; the other offence is the failure to comply with a notice issued by authority. Where a building was erected before 1924 but the prosecution was for the offence of disobeying a notice after the Act came into force, held, that the prosecution was sustainable and that the time-limit for the same was six months from the date of the disobedience 136 I.C. 713=33 Cr.L.J. 336=1932 Lah. 370.

SECS. 184 AND 268.—S. 184 provides no penalty for a continuing failure or contravention, although such a penalty is provided in S. 268. 35 Cr.L.J. 666=1934 Oudh 29. It is not proper to substitute a conviction under S. 268 for the one under S. 184 (b). (Ibid.).

(a) the manner in which notice of the intention to erect or re-erect a building in the cantonment shall be given to the Board and the information and plans to be furnished with the notice;

(b) the type or description of buildings which may or may not, and the purpose for which a building may or may not, be erected or re-erected [in the cantonment or any part thereof]<sup>1</sup>

(c) the minimum cubic capacity of any room or rooms in a building which is to be erected or re-erected; 2[* *]

(d) the fees payable on provision by the Board of plans or specifications of the type of buildings which may be erected in the cantonment or any part thereof;

2[(e) the circumstances in which a mosque, temple or church or other sacred building may be erected or re-erected; and

(f) with reference to the erection or re-erection of buildings, or of any class of building, all or any of the following matters, namely:—

(i) the line of frontage where the building abuts on a street;

(ii) the space to be left about the building to secure free circulation of air and facilities for scavenging and for the prevention of fire;

(iii) the materials and method of construction to be used for external and party-walls, roofs and floors;

(iv) the position, the material and the method of construction of fire-places, chimneys, drains, latrines privies, urinals and cesspools;

(v) height and slope of the roof above the uppermost floor upon which human beings are to live or cooking operations are to be carried on;

(vi) the level and width of the foundation, the level of the lowest floor and the stability of the structure;

(vii) the number and height of the storeys of which the building may consist;

(viii) the means to be provided for egress from the building in case of fire,

(ix) the safeguarding of wells from pollution; or

(x) the materials and method, of construction to be used for godowns intended for the storage of foodgrains in excess of fifty maunds in order to render them rat proof.]

187. (1) No owner or occupier of any building in a cantonment shall, without the permission in writing of the Board, add to or place against or in front of the building any projection or structure overhanging, projecting into, or encroaching on, any street or any drain, sewer or aqueduct therein.

(2) A Board may, by public notice, temporarily close any street or any part of a street for repair or for the purpose of carrying out any work connected with drainage, water-supply or lighting or any other work which it is by or under this Act required or permitted to carry out:

Provided that where, owing to any works or repairs or from any other cause, the condition of any street or of any water-works, drain, culvert or premises vested in the Board, is such as to be likely to cause danger to the public, the Board shall—

(a) take all reasonable means for the protection of the adjacent buildings and land and provide reasonable means of access thereto;

(b) cause sufficient barriers or fences to be erected for the security of life and property, and cause such barriers or fences to be sufficiently lighted from sunset to sunrise.

193. (1) A Board may cause a name to be given to any street and to be affixed on any building in the cantonment in such place as it thinks fit, and may also cause a number to be affixed to any such building.

Names of streets and numbers of buildings.

(2) Whoever destroys, pulls down, defaces or alters any such name or number or puts up any name or number differing from that put up by the order of the Board shall be punishable with fine which may extend to twenty rupees.

<sup>1</sup>[(3) When a number has been affixed to any building under sub-section (1), the owner of the building shall maintain the number in order, and shall replace it if removed or defaced, and if he fails to do so the Board may by notice in writing require him to replace it].

(2) A Board may, by notice in writing, require the owner or lessee of any land in the cantonment—

(a) to remove from the land any boundary wall, hedge or fence which is, in its opinion, unsuitable, unsightly or otherwise objectionable; or

(b) to construct on the land sufficient boundary walls, hedges or fences of such material, description or dimensions as may be specified in the notice; or

(c) to maintain the boundary walls, hedges or fences of such lands in good order:

Provided that, in the case of any such boundary wall, hedge or fence which was erected with the consent or under the orders of the Board or which was in existence at the commencement of this Act, the Board shall make compensation for any damage caused by the removal thereof.

(3) The Board may, by notice in writing, require the owner, lessee or occupier of any such land to cut or trim any hedge on the land in such manner and within such time as may be specified in the notice.

195. (1) Where, in the opinion of a Board, the felling of any tree of mature growth standing in a private enclosure in the cantonment is necessary for any reason, the Board may, by notice in writing, require the owner, lessee or occupier of the land to fell the tree within such time as may be specified in the notice.

Felling, lopping, and trimming of trees.

(2) A Board may—

(a) cause to be lopped or trimmed any tree standing on land in the cantonment which belongs to the <sup>1</sup>[Crown]; or

(b) by public notice require all owners, lessees or occupiers of land in the cantonment, or by notice in writing require the owner, lessee or occupier of any such land, to lop or trim, in such manner as may be specified in the notice, all or any trees standing on such land or to remove any dead trees from such land.

196. Whoever, without the permission in writing of the Board, digs up the surface of any open space in the cantonment, which is not private property, shall be punishable with fine which may extend to twenty rupees, and, in the case of a continuing offence <sup>2</sup>[with an additional fine] which may extend to five rupees for every day after the first during which the offence continues.

197. (1) If, in the opinion of a Board, the working of a quarry in the cantonment, or the removal of stone, earth or other material from the soil in any place in the cantonment, is dangerous to persons residing in or frequenting the neighbourhood of such quarry or place, or creates, or is likely to create, a nuisance, the Board may, by notice in writing, prohibit the owner, lessee or occupier of such quarry or place of the person responsible for such <sup>2</sup>[working] or removal, from continuing or permitting the working of such quarry or the moving of such material, or require him to take such steps in the matter as the Board may direct for the purpose of preventing danger or abating the nuisance arising or likely to arise therefrom.

(2) If, in any case referred to in sub-section (1), the Board is of opinion that such a course is necessary in order to prevent imminent danger, it may, by order in writing, require a proper hoarding or fence to be put up for the protection of passers-by.

CHAPTER XII.

MARKETS, SLAUGHTER-HOUSES, TRADES AND OCCUPATIONS.

198. (1) A Board may provide and maintain, either within or without the cantonment, public markets and public slaughter-houses, to such number as it thinks fit, together with stalls, shops, sheds, pens and other buildings or conveniences for the use of persons carrying on trade or business in or frequenting such markets or slaughter-houses, and may provide and maintain in any such market buildings, places, machines, weights, scales and measures for the weighing or measurement of goods sold therein.

(2) When such market or slaughter-house is situated beyond cantonment limits, the Board shall have the same power for the inspection and proper regulation of the same as if it were situated within those limits.

(3) The Board may at any time, by public notice, close any public market or public slaughter-house or any part thereof.

(4) Nothing in this section shall be deemed to authorise the establishment of a public market or public slaughter house within the limits of any area administered by any local authority other than the Board without the permission of such local authority or otherwise than on such conditions as such local authority may approve.

199. (1) No person shall, without the general or special permission in writing of the Board, sell or expose for sale any animal or article in any public market.

(2) Any person contravening the provisions of this section, and any animal or article exposed for sale by such person, may be summarily removed from the market by or under the orders of the Executive Officer or any officer or servant of the Board authorised by it in this behalf.

Levy of stallages, rents and fees.

200. A Board may—

(a) charge for the occupation or use of any stall, shop, standing, shed or pen in a public market, or public slaughter-house, or for the right to expose goods for sale in a public market, or for weighing or measuring goods sold therein, or for the right to slaughter animals in any public slaughter-house, such stallages, rents and fees as it thinks fit; or

(b) with the sanction of the <sup>1</sup>[Officer Commanding-in-Chief, the Command] farm the stallages, rents and fees leviable as aforesaid or any portion thereof for any period not exceeding one year at a time; or

(c) put up to public auction, or with the sanction of the <sup>1</sup>[Officer Commanding-in-Chief, the Command], dispose of by private sale, the privilege of occupying or using any stall, shop, standing, shed or pen in a public market or public slaughter-house for such term and on such conditions as it thinks fit.

201. A copy of the table of stallages, rents and fees, if any, leviable in any public market or public slaughter-house, and of the bye-laws made under this Act for the purpose of regulating the use of such market or slaughter-house, printed in the English language and in such other language or languages as the Board may direct, shall be affixed in some conspicuous place in the market or slaughter-house.

202. (1) No place in a cantonment other than a public market shall be used as a market, and no place in a cantonment other than a public slaughter-house, shall be used as a slaughter-house, unless such place has been licensed as a market or slaughter-house, as the case may be, by the Board:

Provided that nothing in this sub-section shall apply in the case of a slaughter-house established and maintained by the Government.

(2) Nothing in sub-section (1) shall be deemed—

(a) to restrict the slaughter of any animal in any place on the occasion of any festival or ceremony, subject to such conditions as to prior or subsequent notice as the Executive Officer with the previous sanction of the District Magistrate may by public or special notice, impose in this behalf, or

(b) to prevent the Executive Officer, with the sanction of the Board, from setting apart places for the slaughter of animals in accordance with religious custom, when such animals are slaughtered for consumption by the troops or for the purpose of the sale of the flesh thereof to the troops.

(3) Whoever omits to comply with any condition imposed by the Executive Officer under clause (a) of sub-section (2) shall be punishable with fine which may extend to fifty rupees and, in the case of a continuing offence, with an additional fine which may extend to ten rupees for every day after the first during which the offence is continued.

203. (1) A Board may charge such fees as it thinks fit to impose for the grant of a licence to any person, to open a private market or private slaughter-house in the cantonment, and may grant such licence subject to such conditions, consistent with this Act and any bye-laws made thereunder, as it thinks fit to impose.

Conditions of grant of licence for private market or slaughter-house.

(2) The Board may refuse to grant any such licence without giving reasons for such refusal.

204. (1) Any person who keeps open for public use any market or slaughter-house in respect of which a licence is required by or under this Act, without obtaining licence therefor, or while the licence therefor is suspended, or after the same has been cancelled, shall be punishable with fine which may extend to fifty rupees and, in the case of a continuing offence, with an additional fine which may extend to five rupees for every day after the first during which the offence is continued.

Penalty for keeping market or slaughter-house open without licence, etc.

(2) When a licence to open a private market or private slaughter-house is granted or refused or is suspended or cancelled, the Board shall cause a notice of the grant, refusal, suspension or cancellation to be posted in English, and in such other language or languages as it thinks necessary, in some conspicuous place by or near the entrance to the place to which the notice relates.

205. Whoever, knowing that any market or slaughter-house has been opened to the public without a licence having been obtained therefor when such licence is required by or under this Act, or that the licence granted therefor is for the time being suspended or that it has been cancelled, sells or exposes for sale any article in such market, or slaughters any animal in such slaughter-house, shall be punishable with fine which may extend to fifty rupees and, in the case of a continuing offence, with an additional fine which may extend to five rupees for every day after the first during which the offence is continued.

Penalty for using unlicensed market or slaughter-house.

206. (1) Where, in the opinion of the Board, it is necessary on sanitary grounds so to do, it may, by public notice, prohibit for such period, not exceeding one month, as may be specified in the notice, or for such further period, not exceeding one month, as it may specify by a like notice, the use of any private slaughter-house specified in the notice, or the slaughter therein of any animal of any description so specified.

(2) A copy of every notice issued under sub-section (1) shall be conspicuously posted in the slaughter-house to which it relates.

207. (1) Any servant of a Board, authorised by order in writing in this behalf by the President of the Board, 1[* *] or the Health Officer, may, if he has reason to believe that any animal has been, is being, or is about to be slaughtered in any place in contravention of the provisions of this Chapter, enter into and inspect any such place at any time, whether by day or by night.

(2) Every such order shall specify the place to be entered and the locality in which the same is situated and the period, which shall not exceed seven days, for which the order is to remain in force.

208. A Board may, with the approval of the Central Government, make bye-laws consistent with this Act to provide for all or any of the following matters, namely:—

(a) the days on, and the hours during, which any private market or private slaughter-house may be kept open for use;

(b) the regulation of the design, ventilation and drainage of such markets and slaughter-houses, and the material to be used in the construction thereof;

(c) the keeping of such markets and slaughter-houses and lands and buildings appertaining thereto in a clean and sanitary condition, the removal of filth and refuse therefrom, and the supply therein of pure water and of a sufficient number of latrines and urinals for the use of persons using or frequenting the same ;

(d) the manner in which animals shall be stalled at a slaughter-house ;

(e) the manner in which animals may be slaughtered ;

(f) the disposal or destruction of animals offered for slaughter which are, from disease or any other cause, unfit for human consumption ; and

(g) the destruction of carcasses which from disease or any other cause are found after slaughter to be unfit for human consumption.

Trades and Occupations.

209. (1) A Board may provide suitable places for the exercise by washermen of their calling, and may require payment of such fees for the use thereof as it thinks fit.

Provision of washing places.

(2) Where the Board has provided such places as aforesaid it may, by public notice, prohibit the washing of clothes by washermen at any other place in the cantonments :

Provided that such prohibition shall not be deemed to apply to the washing by a washerman of his own clothes or of the clothes of any other person who is an occupier of the place at which they are washed.

(3) Whoever contravenes any prohibition contained in a notice issued under sub-section (2) shall be punishable with fine which may extend to twenty rupees.

Licences required for carrying on of certain occupations.

210. (1) No person of any of the following classes, namely :—

(a) butchers and vendors of poultry, game or fish ;

(b) persons keeping pigs for profit, and dealers in the flesh of pigs which have been slaughtered in India ;

(c) persons keeping milch cattle or milch goats for profit ;

(d) persons keeping for profit any animals other than pigs, milch cattle or milch goats ;

(e) dairymen, buttermen and makers and vendors of ghee ;

(f) makers of bread, biscuits or cake, and vendors of bread, biscuits or cake made in India ;

(g) vendors of fruit or vegetables ;

(h) manufacturers of aerated or other potable waters or of ice or ice-cream, and vendors of the same ;

<sup>1</sup>[(i) vendors of any medicines, drugs or articles of food or drink for human consumption (other than the flesh of pigs, milk, butter, bread, biscuits, cake, fruit, vegetables, aerated or other potable waters or ice or ice-cream) which are of a perishable nature ; shall carry on his trade, calling or occupation in any part of a cantonment unless he has applied for and obtained a licence in this behalf from the Board.

(2) A licence granted under sub-section (1) shall be valid <sup>3</sup>[until the end of the year in which it is issued] and the grant of such licence shall not be withheld by the Board unless it has reason to believe that the business which it is intended to establish or maintain would be offensive or dangerous to the public.

(3) Notwithstanding anything contained in sub-section (1),—

(a) no person who was, at the commencement of this Act, carrying on his trade, calling or occupation in any part of a cantonment shall be bound to apply for a licence for carrying on such trade or occupation in that part until he has received from the Board not less than three months' notice in writing of his obligation to do so, and if the Board refuses to grant him a licence, it shall pay compensation for any loss, incurred by reason of such refusal;

(b) no person shall be required to take out a licence for the sale or storage of petroleum or for the sale or possession for sale of poisons or white arsenic in any case in which he is required to take out a licence for such sale, storage or possession for sale by or under the Indian Petroleum Act, 1899, or the Poisons Act, 1919.

(4) The Board may charge for the grant of licences under this section such fees <sup>4</sup>[not exceeding the cost of granting the licences], as it may fix with the previous sanction of the Central Government.

211. A licence granted to any person under section 210 shall specify the part of the cantonment in which the licensee may carry on his trade, calling or occupation, and may regulate the hours and manner of transport within the cantonment of any specified articles intended for human consumption, and may contain any other conditions which the Board thinks fit to impose in accordance with bye-laws made under this Act.

General Provisions.

212. If a Board is satisfied that any place used under a licence granted under this Chapter is a nuisance or is likely to be dangerous to life, health or property, the Board may, by notice in writing, require the owner, lessee or occupier thereof to discontinue the use of such place or to effect such alterations, additions, or improvements as will, in the opinion of the Board, render it no longer a nuisance or dangerous.

213. Whoever carries on any trade, calling or occupation for which a licence is required without obtaining a licence therefor or while the licence therefor is suspended or after the same has been cancelled, and whoever, after receiving a notice under section 212, uses or allows to be used any building or place in contravention thereof, shall be punishable with fine which may extend to two hundred rupees and, in the case of a continuing offence, with an additional fine which may extend to forty rupees for every day after the first during which the offence is continued.

214. Whoever feeds or allows to be fed on filthy or deleterious substances any animal, which is kept for the purpose of supplying milk to, or which is intended to be used as food for, the inhabitants of a cantonment or allows it to graze in any place in which grazing has, for sanitary reasons, been prohibited by public notice by the Board, shall be punishable with fine which may extend to fifty rupees.

Entry, Inspection and Seizure.

215. (1) The President or the Vice-President <sup>1</sup>[ * * ] the Executive Officer, the Health Officer, the Assistant Health Officer, or any other officer or servant of a Board authorised by it in writing in this behalf,—

(a) may at any time enter into any market, building, shop, stall or other place in the cantonment for the purpose of inspecting, and may inspect, any animals, article or thing intended for human food or drink or for medicine, whether exposed or hawked about for sale or deposited in or brought to any place for the purpose of sale, or of preparation for sale, or any utensil or vessel for preparing, manufacturing or containing any such article, or thing, and may enter into and inspect any place used as a slaughter-house and may examine any animal or article therein;

(b) may seize any such animal, article or thing which appears to him to be diseased, or unwholesome or unfit for human food or drink or medicine, as the case may be, or to be adulterated or to be not what it is represented to be, or any such utensil or vessel which is of such a kind or in such a state as to render any article prepared, manufactured or contained therein unwholesome or unfit for human food or for medicine, as the case may be.

(2) Any article seized under sub-section (1) which is of a perishable nature may, under the orders of the Health Officer or the Assistant Health Officer, forthwith be destroyed if, in his opinion, it is diseased, unwholesome or unfit for human food, drink or medicine, as the case may be.

(3) Every animal, article, utensil, vessel or other thing seized under sub-section (1) shall, if it is not destroyed under sub-section (2), be taken before a Magistrate.

(4) The owner or person in possession, at the time of seizure under sub-section (1), of any animal or carcass which is diseased or of any article or thing which is unwholesome or unfit for human food, drink or medicine, as the case may be, or is adulterated or is not what it is represented to be, or of any utensil or vessel which is of such kind or in such state as is described in clause (b) of sub-section (1), shall be punishable with fine which may extend to one hundred rupees, and the animal, article, utensil, vessel or other thing shall be liable to be forfeited to the Board or to be destroyed or to be so disposed of as to prevent its being exposed for sale or used for the preparation of food, drink or medicine, as the case may be.

Explanation I.—If any such article, having been exposed or stored in, or brought to, any place mentioned in sub-section (1) for sale as ghee, contains any substance not exclusively derived from milk, it shall be deemed, for the purposes of this section, to be an article which is not what it is represented to be.

Explanation II.—Meat subjected to the process of blowing shall be deemed to be unfit for human food.

Explanation III.—The article of food or drink shall not be deemed to be other than what it is represented to be merely by reason of the fact that there has been added to it some substance not injurious to health:

Provided that—

(a) such substance has been added to the article because the same is required for the preparation or production thereof as an article of commerce in a state fit for carriage or consumption and not fraudulently to increase the bulk, weight or measure of the food or drink or conceal the inferior quality thereof, or

(b) in the process of production, preparation or conveyance of such article of food or drink, the extraneous substance has unavoidably become inter-mixed therewith, or

(c) the owner or person in possession of the article has given sufficient notice by means of a label distinctly and legibly written or printed thereon or therewith, or by other means of a public description, that such substance has been added, or

(d) such owner or person has purchased the article with a written warranty that it was of a certain nature, substance and quality and had no reason to believe that it was not of such nature, substance and quality, and has exposed it or hawked it about or brought it for sale in the same state and by the same description as that in and by which he purchased it.

Import of Cattle and Flesh.

216. (1) No person shall, without the permission in writing of the Board
Import of cattle and flesh. bring into a cantonment any animal intended for human consumption, or the flesh of any animal slaughtered outside the cantonment otherwise than in a slaughter-house maintained by the Government or the Board.

(2) Any animal or flesh brought into a cantonment in contravention of sub-section (1) may be seized by the Executive Officer or by any servant of the Board and sold or otherwise disposed of as the Board may direct, and, if it is sold, the sale proceeds may be credited to the cantonment fund.

(3) Whoever contravenes the provisions of sub-section (1) shall be punishable with fine which may extend to fifty rupees.

(4) Nothing in this section shall be deemed to apply to cured or preserved meat or to animals driven or meat carried through a cantonment for consumption outside thereof, or to meat brought into a cantonment by any person for his immediate domestic consumption:

Provided that the Board may, by public notice, direct that the provisions of this section shall apply to cured or preserved meat of any specified description or brought from any specified place.

NOTES.

SEC. 216.—See Notes under S. 213, supra.

CHAPTER XIII.

WATER-SUPPLY, DRAINAGE AND LIGHTING.

Water-supply.

217. (1) In every cantonment where a sufficient supply of pure water for domestic use does not already exist, the Board shall provide or arrange for the provision of such a supply.

Maintenance of water-supply.

(2) The Board shall, as far as possible, make adequate provision that such supply shall be continuous throughout the year, and that the water shall be at all times pure and fit for human consumption.

218. (1) The Board may, with the previous sanction of the Central Government, by public notice, declare any lake, stream, spring, well, tank, reservoir or other source, whether within or without the limits of the cantonment (other than a source of water-supply under the control of the <sup>1</sup>[Military Engineer] Services or the Public Works Department) from which water is or may be made available for the use of the public in the cantonment to be a source of public water-supply.

Control over sources of public water-supply.

(2) Every such source shall be under the control of the Board.

219. The Board may, by notice in writing, require the owner or any person having the control of any source of public water-supply which is used for drinking purposes—

Power to require maintenance or closing of private source of public drinking water-supply.

(a) to keep the same in good order and to clear it from time to time of silt, refuse and decaying vegetation, or

(b) to protect the same from contamination in such manner as the Board may direct, or

(c) if the water therein is proved to the satisfaction of the Board to be unfit for drinking purposes, to take such measures as may be specified in the notice to prevent the public from having access to or using such water:

Provided that, in the case of a well, such person as aforesaid may, instead of complying with the notice, signify in writing his desire to be relieved of all responsibility for the proper maintenance of the well and his readiness to place it under the control and supervision of the Board for the use of the public, and, if he does so, he shall not be bound to carry out the requisition, and the Board shall undertake the control and supervision of the well.

220. (1) The Board may permit the owner, lessee or occupier of any building or land to connect the building or land with a source of public water-supply by means of communication pipes of such size and description as it may prescribe for the purpose of obtaining water for domestic use.

Supply of water.

(2) The occupier of every building so connected with the water-supply shall be entitled to have for domestic use, in return for the water tax, if any, such quantity of water as the Board may determine.

(3) All water supplied in excess of the quantity to which such supply is limited under sub-section (2) and, in a cantonment in which a water tax is not imposed, all water supplied under this section, shall be paid for at such rate as the Board may fix.

(4) The supply of water for domestic use shall not be deemed to include any supply—

- (a) for animals or for washing vehicles where such animals or vehicles are kept for sale or hire ;
- (b) for any trade, manufacture or business ;
- (c) for fountains, swimming baths or any ornamental or mechanical purpose ;
- (d) for gardens or for purposes of irrigation ;
- (e) for making or watering roads or paths ; or
- (f) for building purposes.

221. If it appears to the Board that any building or land in the cantonment is without a proper supply of pure water, the Board may, by notice in writing, require the owner, lessee or occupier of the building or land and to obtain from a source of public water-supply such quantity of water as is adequate to the requirements of the persons usually occupying or employed upon the building or land, and to provide communication pipes of the prescribed size and description, and to take all necessary steps for the above purposes.

222. (1) The Board may, by agreement, supply, from any source of public water-supply, the owner, lessee or occupier of any building or land in the cantonment with any water for any purpose, other than a domestic purpose, on such terms and conditions, consistent with this Act and the rules and bye-laws made thereunder, as may be agreed upon between the Board and such owner, lessee or occupier.

(2) The Board may withdraw such supply or curtail the quantity thereof at any time if it should appear necessary to do so for the purpose of maintaining sufficient supply of water for domestic use by inhabitants of the cantonment.

223. Notwithstanding any obligation imposed on Boards under this Act, a Board shall not be liable to any forfeiture, penalty or damages for failure to supply water or for curtailing the quantity thereof if the failure or curtailment, as the case may be, arises from accident or from drought or other unavoidable cause unless, in the case of an agreement for the supply of water under section 222, the Board has made express provision for forfeiture, penalty or damages in the event of such failure or curtailment.

224. Notwithstanding anything hereinbefore contained or contained in any agreement under section 222, the supply of water by a Board to any building or land shall be, and shall be deemed to have been, granted subject to the following conditions, namely :—

(a) the owner, lessee or occupier of any building or land in or on which water supplied by the Board is wasted by reason of the pipes, drains or other works being out of repair shall, if he has knowledge thereof, give notice of the same to such officer as the Board may appoint in this behalf ;

(b) the Executive Officer or any other officer or servant of the Board authorized by it in writing in this behalf may enter into or on any premises supplied with water by the Board, for the purpose of examining all pipes, taps, works and fittings connected with the supply of water and of ascertaining whether there is any waste or misuse of such water ;

(c) the Board may, after giving notice in writing, cut off the connection between any source of public water-supply and any building or land to which water is supplied for any purpose therefrom, or turn off such supply if—

(i) the owner or occupier of the building or land neglects to pay the water tax or other charges connected with the water-supply within one month from the date on which such tax or charge falls due for payment ;

(ii) the occupier refuses to admit the Executive Officer or other authorised officer or servant of the Board into the building or land for the purpose of making any examination or inquiry authorised by clause (b) or prevents the making of such examination or inquiry;

(iii) the occupier wilfully or negligently misuses or causes waste of water;

(iv) the occupier wilfully or negligently injures or damages his meter or any pipe or tap conveying water from the water-works;

(v) any pipes, taps, works or fittings connected with the supply of water to the building or land are found, on examination by the Executive Officer, to be out of repair to such an extent as to cause a waste of water;

(d) the expense of cutting off the connection or of turning off the water in any case referred to in clause (c) shall be paid by the owner or occupier of the building or land;

(e) no action taken under or in pursuance of clause (c) shall relieve any person from any penalty or liability which he may otherwise have incurred.

225. A Board may allow any person not residing within the limits of the Supply to persons outside

cantonment to take or be supplied with water for any purpose from any source of public water-supply on such terms as it may prescribe, and may at any time withdraw or curtail such supply.

Penalty.

226. Whoever—

(a) uses for other than domestic purposes any water supplied by a Board for domestic use, or

(b) where water is supplied by agreement with a Board for a specified purpose, uses that water for any other purpose, shall be punishable with fine which may extend to fifty rupees, and the Board shall be entitled to recover from him the price of the water misused.

Water, Drainage and other Connections.

Power of Board to lay wires, connections, etc.

227. A Board may carry any cable, wire, pipe, drain, sewer or channel of any kind,—

(a) for the purpose of carrying out, establishing or maintaining any system of water-supply, lighting, drainage or sewerage, through, across, under or over any road or street, or any place laid out or intended as a road or street, or, after giving reasonable notice in writing to the owner or occupier, into, through, across, under or over any land or building, or up the side of any building, situated within the cantonment, or

(b) for the purpose of supplying water or of the introduction or distribution of outfall of water or for the removal or outfall of sewage, after giving reasonable notice in writing to the owner or occupier, into, through, across, under or over any land or building, or up the side of any building, situated outside the cantonment;

and may at all times do all acts and things which may be necessary or expedient for repairing or maintaining any such cable, wire, pipe, drain, sewer or channel in an effective state for the purpose for which the same may be used or is intended to be used:

Provided that no nuisance shall be caused in excess of what is reasonably necessary for the proper execution of the work:

Provided, further, that compensation shall be payable to the owner or occupier for any damage sustained by him which is directly occasioned by the carrying out of any such operation.

228. In the event of any cable, wire, pipe, drain, sewer or channel being Wires, etc., laid above

laid or carried above the surface of any land or through, over or up the side of any building, such cable, wire, pipe, drain, sewer or channel shall be so laid or carried as to interfere as little as possible with the rights of the owner or occupier to the due enjoyment of such land or building, and compensation shall be payable by the Board in respect of any substantial interference with the right to any such enjoyment.

229. No person shall, for any purpose whatsoever, without the permission of the Board, at any time make or cause to be made any connection or communication with any cable, wire, pipe, drain, sewer or channel constructed or maintained by, or vested in, a Board.

Connection with main not to be made without permission.

230. A Board may prescribe the size of the ferrules to be used for the supply of gas, if any, and may establish meters or other appliances for the purpose of testing the quantity of any water, or the quantity or quality of any gas, supplied to any premises by the Board.

Power to prescribe ferrules and to establish meters, etc.

231. The ferrules, communication pipes, connections, meters, stand-pipes and all fittings thereon or connected therewith leading from water mains or from pipes, drains, sewers or channels, into any house or land, to which water or gas is supplied by a Board, and the pipes, fittings and works inside any such house or within the limits of any such land, shall in all cases be <sup>1</sup>[installed or] executed subject to the inspection and to the satisfaction of the Board.

Power of inspection.

232. A Board may fix the charges to be made for the establishment by them or through their agency of communications from, and connections with, mains, or pipes for the supply of water, or gas, or for meters or other appliances for testing the quantity or quality thereof supplied, and may levy such charges accordingly.

Power to fix rates and charges.

233. (1) Where in any cantonment there is a water-supply under the control of the [Military Engineer]<sup>2</sup> Services or the Government water-supply. Public Works Department, the officer of the <sup>2</sup>[Military Engineer] Services or of the Public Works Department, as the case may be, in charge of such water-supply (hereinafter in this <sup>3</sup>[Chapter] referred to as the officer) may publish in the cantonment in such manner as he thinks fit a notice declaring that any lake, stream, spring, well, tank, reservoir or other source, whether within or without the limits of the cantonment (other than a source of public water-supply) under the control of the Board is a source of public water-supply and may, for the purpose of keeping any such source in good order or of protecting it from contamination or from use, require the Board to exercise any power conferred upon <sup>4</sup>[it] by section 219.

(2) In the case of any water-supply such as is referred to in sub-section (1), the following provisions of this Chapter, namely, the provisions of sections 220, 222, 223, 224, 226, 227, 228, 229, 230, 231 and 232 shall, as far as may be, be applicable in respect of the supply of water to the cantonment, and for the purpose of such application references to the Board shall be construed as references to the Officer, and references to the Executive Officer or other officer or servant of the Board shall be construed as references to such person as may be authorised in this behalf by the Officer.

234. In any case in which the provisions of section 233 apply <sup>5</sup>[and in which the Board is not receiving a bulk supply of water under S. 234-A], the water-tax, if any, imposed in the cantonment and all other charges arising out of the supply of water which may be imposed under the provisions of this Chapter as applied by section 233 shall be recovered by the Board, and all monies so recovered, or such proportion thereof as the Central Government may in each case determine, shall be paid by the Board to the Officer.

<sup>1</sup>[234-A. (1) Where in any cantonment there is a water-supply such as is referred to in sub-section (1) of S. 233, the Board may receive from the Military Engineer Services or the Public Works Department, as the case may be, at such point or points as may be agreed upon between the Board and the Officer, a supply of water adequate to the requirements for domestic use of all persons in the cantonment other than entitled consumers.

(2) Any supply of water received under sub-section (1) shall be bulk supply, and the Board shall make such payments to the Officer for all water so received as may be agreed upon between the Board and the Officer, or, in default of such agreement, as may be determined by the Central Government to be reasonable having regard to the actual cost of supplying the water in the cantonment and the rate charged for water in any adjacent municipality:

Provided that, notwithstanding anything contained in this Act, the Board shall not charge for the supply to persons in the cantonment of water received by the Board under this section a rate calculated to produce more than the sum of the payments made to the Officer for water received and the actual cost of the supply thereof by the Board to consumers.

(3) If any dispute arises between the Board and the Officer regarding the amount of water adequate to the requirements of persons in the cantonment other than entitled consumers, the dispute shall be referred to the Central Government whose decision shall be final.]

<sup>1</sup>[234-B. Where under the provisions of sub-section (1) of S. 234-A a bulk supply of water is received by the Board, the Board shall be solely responsible for the supply of water to all persons in the cantonment other than entitled consumers; and the provisions of this Act shall apply as if such bulk supply were a source of public water-supply under the control of the Board and as if the communications from and connections with such bulk supply for the purpose of supplying water to such persons were a system of water-supply established and maintained by the Board.]

CHAPTER XIV.

REMOVAL AND EXCLUSION FROM CANTONMENTS AND SUPPRESSION OF SEXUAL IMMORALITY.

235. The <sup>2</sup>[Officer Commanding the station] may, on receiving information that any building in the cantonment is used as a brothel or for purposes of prostitution, by order in writing setting forth the substance of the information received, summon the owner, lessee, tenant or occupier of the building to appear before him either in person or by an authorised agent, and, if the <sup>3</sup>[Officer Commanding the station], is then satisfied as to the truth of the information, he may, by order in writing, direct the owner, lessee, tenant or occupier, as the case may be, to discontinue such use of the building within such period as may be specified in the order.

236. (1) Whoever in a cantonment loiters for the purpose of prostitution or importunes any person to the commission of sexual immorality, shall be punishable with imprisonment which may extend to one month, or with fine which may extend to two hundred rupees.

Penalty for loitering and importuning for purpose of prostitution.

(2) No prosecution for an offence under this section shall be instituted except on the complaint of the person importuned, or of a military officer in whose presence the offence was committed, or of a member of the Military or Air Force Police, being employed in the cantonment and authorised in this behalf by the <sup>1</sup>[Officer Commanding the station], in whose presence the offence was committed, or of a police officer not below the rank of a sub-inspector <sup>2</sup>[or a sergeant] who is employed in the cantonment and authorised in this behalf by the <sup>1</sup>[Officer Commanding the station] <sup>2</sup>[with the concurrence of the District Magistrate].

237. If the <sup>3</sup>[Officer Commanding the station] is, after such inquiry as he thinks necessary, satisfied that any person residing in or frequenting the cantonment is a prostitute or has been convicted of an offence under section 236, or of the abatement of such an offence, he may cause to be served on such person an order in writing requiring such person to remove from the cantonment within such time as may be specified in the order and prohibiting such person from re-entering it without the permission in writing of the <sup>1</sup>[Officer Commanding the station].

Removal of lewd persons from cantonment.

Removal and exclusion from cantonments of disorderly persons.

238. (1) A Magistrate of the first class, having jurisdiction in a cantonment, on receiving information that any person residing in or frequenting the cantonment—

(a) is a disorderly person who has been convicted more than once of gaming or who keeps or frequents a common gaming house, a disorderly drinking shop or a disorderly house of any other description, or

(b) has been convicted more than once, either within the cantonment or elsewhere, of an offence punishable under Chapter XVII of the Indian Penal Code, or

NOTES.

SEC. 236 (1).—There is nothing in the wording of S. 236 (1) which requires that the person importuning must importune to the commission of sexual immorality with himself or herself. 37 Cr.L.J. 372=1936 A. L.J. 193=1936 All. 129. A Magistrate can convict a male of the offence of loitering for the purpose of prostitution under S. 236(1). 28 Bom.L.R. 298=27 Cr.L.J. 554=1926 Bom. 227.

SEC. 236 (2): PROSECUTION BY EXECUTIVE OFFICER.—LEGALITY OF.—In order that a person can be legally convicted under S. 236, it is necessary that it should be instituted strictly in accordance with the provisions laid down in sub-S. (2), S.236. An Executive Officer of a Cantonment launched a prosecution under S. 236 against the accused and the accused was convicted under that section. The Executive Officer was not the person importuned, nor did the prosecution allege that the offence was committed in his presence or that he had been authorized in this behalf by the Officer Commanding the station. Held, that the prosecution being illegally instituted, the conviction of the accused must be set aside. 1933 Lah. 590=147 I.C. 1200. A complaint under S. 236 was sent in writing by a Regimental Provost Sergeant to a Sub-Inspector of Police who forwarded it in original to the Magistrate. The Magistrate acted upon the complaint. The Regimental Provost Sergeant was a member of the military police and was authorised to make complaints under S. 236. A part of the offence was committed in presence of this officer. Held, that a proper complaint was made to the Magistrate in accordance with the provisions of S. 236 (2). 37 Cr.L.J. 372=1936 A. 129 cited supra.

(c) has been convicted, either within the cantonment or elsewhere, of any offence punishable under section 156 of the Army Act, or may record in writing the substance of the information received, and may issue a summons to such person requiring such person to appear and show cause why he should not be required to remove from the cantonment and be prohibited from re-entering it.

(d) has been ordered under Chapter VIII of the Code of Criminal Procedure, 1898, either within the cantonment or elsewhere, to execute a bond for his good behaviour,

(2) Every summons issued under sub-section (1) shall be accompanied by a copy of the record aforesaid, and the copy shall be served along with the summons on the person against whom the summons is issued.

(3) The Magistrate shall, when the person so summoned appears before him, proceed to inquire into the truth of the information received and take such further evidence as he thinks fit, and if, upon such inquiry, it appears to him that such person is a person of any kind described in sub-section (1) and that it is necessary for the maintenance of good order in the cantonment that such person should be required to remove therefrom and be prohibited from re-entering the cantonment, the Magistrate shall report the matter to the <sup>1</sup>[Officer Commanding the station], and, if the <sup>1</sup>[Officer Commanding the station] so directs, shall cause to be served on such person an order in writing requiring him to remove from the cantonment within such time as may be specified in the order and prohibiting him from re-entering it without the permission in writing of the <sup>1</sup>[Officer Commanding the station].

239. (1) If any person in a cantonment causes or attempts to cause or does any act which he knows is likely to cause dis-loyalty, disaffection or breaches of discipline amongst any portion of His Majesty's forces or is a person who, the <sup>1</sup>[Officer Commanding the station] has reason to believe, is likely to do any such act, the <sup>1</sup>[Officer Commanding the station] may make an order in writing setting forth with the reasons for the making of the same and requiring such person to remove from the cantonment within such time as may be specified in the order and prohibiting him from re-entering it without the permission in writing of the <sup>1</sup>[Officer Commanding the station]:

Removal and exclusion from cantonment of seditious persons.

Provided that no order shall be made under this section against any person unless he has had a reasonable opportunity of being informed of the grounds on which it is proposed to make the order and of showing cause why the order should not be made.

(2) Every order made under sub-section (1) shall be sent to the Superintendent of Police of the district, who shall cause a copy thereof to be served on the person concerned.

(3) Upon the making of any order under sub-section (1), the <sup>1</sup>[Officer Commanding the station] shall forthwith send a copy of the same to the Central Government.

(4) The Central Government may, of its own motion, and shall, on application made to it in this behalf within one month of the date of the order by the person against whom the order has been made, call upon the District Magistrate to make, after such inquiry as the Central Government may prescribe, a report regarding the justice of the order and the necessity therefor. At every such inquiry the person against whom the order has been made shall be given an opportunity of being heard in his own defence.

(5) The Central Government may, at any time after the receipt of a copy of an order sent under sub-section (3) or, where a report has been called for under sub-section (4), on receipt of that report, if it is of opinion that the order should be varied or rescinded, <sup>1</sup>[make] such orders thereon as <sup>2</sup>[it] thinks fit.

(6) Any person who has been excluded from a cantonment by an order made under this section may, at any time after the expiry of one month from the date thereof, apply to the Officer Commanding-in-Chief, the Command, for the rescission of the same and, on such application being made, the said Officer may, after making such inquiry, if any, as he thinks necessary, either reject the application or rescind the order.

Penalty.

(a) fails to comply with an order issued under this Chapter within the period specified therein, or, whilst an order prohibiting him from re-entering a cantonment without permission is in force, re-enters the cantonment without such permission, or

(b) knowing that any person has, under this Chapter, been required to remove from the cantonment and has not obtained the requisite permission to re-enter it, harbours or conceals such person in the cantonment, shall be punishable with fine which may extend to two hundred rupees, and, in the case of continuing offence with an additional fine which may extend to twenty rupees for every day after the first during which he has persisted in the offence.

CHAPTER XV.

POWERS, PROCEDURE, PENALTIES AND APPEALS.

Entry and Inspection.

241. It shall be lawful for the President or the Vice-President of a Board, or the Executive Officer, or the Health Officer or Assistant Health Officer or any person specially authorised by the Health Officer or the Assistant Health Officer, or for any other person authorised by general or special order of a Board in this behalf, to enter into or upon any building or land with or without assistants or workmen in order to make any inquiry inspection, measurement, valuation or survey, or to execute any work, which is authorised by or under this Act or which it is necessary to make or execute for any of the purposes or in pursuance of any of the provisions of this Act or of any rule, bye-law or order made thereunder:

Provided that nothing in this section shall be deemed to confer upon any person any power such as is referred to in section 207 or section 215 or to authorise the conferment upon any person of any such power.

242. With the previous sanction of the President, any member of a Board may inspect any work or institution constructed or maintained in whole or part, at the expense of the Board, and any register, book, accounts or other document belonging to, or in the possession of, the Board.

243. (1) A Board may, by general or special order, authorise any person—

(a) to inspect any drain, privy, latrine, urinal, cesspool, pipe, sewer or channel in or on any building or land in the cantonment, and, in his discretion, to cause the ground to be opened for the purpose of preventing or removing any nuisance arising from the drain, privy, latrine, urinal, cesspool, pipe, sewer or channel, as the case may be;

LEG. REF.

<sup>1</sup> Substituted for words "refer the case to the Governor-General in Council, who shall pass" by A.O., 1937.

(b) to examine works under construction in the cantonment, to take levels or to remove, test, examine, replace or read any meter.

(2) If, on such inspection, the opening of the ground is found to be necessary for the prevention or removal of a nuisance, the expenses thereby incurred shall be paid by the owner or occupier of the land or building, but if it is found that no nuisance exists or but for such opening would have arisen, the ground or portion of any building, drain or other work opened, injured or removed for the purpose of such inspection shall be filled in, reinstated, or made good, as the case may be, by the Board.

244. (1) The Executive Officer of a cantonment may, with or without assistants or workmen, enter on any land within fifty yards of any work authorised by or under this Act for the purpose of depositing thereon any soil, gravel, stone or other materials, or of obtaining access to such work, or for any other purpose connected with the carrying on of the same.

Power to enter land adjoining land where work is in progress.

(2) The Executive Officer shall, before entering on any land under subsection (1), give the occupier, or, if there is no occupier, the owner not less than three days' previous notice in writing of his intention to make such entry, and shall state the purpose thereof, and shall, if so required by the occupier or owner, fence off so much of the land as may be required for such purpose.

(3) The Executive Officer shall, in exercising any power conferred by this section, do as little damage as may be, and compensation shall be payable, by the Board to the owner or occupier of such land, or to both for any such damage whether permanent or temporary.

245. It shall be lawful for any person, authorised by or under this Act to make any entry into any place, to open or cause to be opened any door, gate or other barrier—

Breaking into premises.

(a) if he considers the opening thereof necessary for the purpose of such entry; and

(b) if the owner or occupier is absent, or being present refuses to open such door, gate or barrier,

246. Save as otherwise expressly provided in this Act, no entry authorised by or under this Act shall be made except between the hours of sunrise and sunset.

Entry to be made in the day time.

247. Save as otherwise expressly provided in this Act, no building or land shall be entered without the consent of the occupier, or if there is no occupier, of the owner thereof, and no such entry shall be made without giving the said occupier or owner, as the case may be, not less than four hours' written notice of the intention to make such entry:

Owner's consent ordinarily to be obtained.

Provided that no such notice shall be necessary if the place to be inspected is a stable for horses or a shed for cattle, or a latrine, privy or urinal or a work under construction.

248. When any place used as a human dwelling is entered under this Act, due regard shall be paid to the social and religious customs and usages of the occupants of the place entered, and no apartment in the actual occupancy of a female shall be entered or broken open until she has been informed that she is at liberty to withdraw and every reasonable facility has been afforded to her for withdrawing.

Regard to be had to social and religious usages.

NOTES.

SEC. 247.—The entry which is contemplated in S. 247 is one without the consent of the occupier or the owner. Where the entry is with the implied consent of such occupier or owner, no question of written notice arises. 153 I.C. 469=36 Cr.L.J. 356=1935 All. 160.

249. Whoever obstructs or molests any person employed by a Board who is not a public servant within the meaning of section 21 of the Indian Penal Code or any person with whom the Board has lawfully contracted, in the execution of his duty or of anything which he is empowered or required to do by virtue or in consequence of any of the provisions of this Act or of any rule, bye-law or order made thereunder, or in fulfilment of his contract, as the case may be, shall be punishable with fine which may extend to one hundred rupees.

Powers and Duties of Police Officers.

250. Any member of the police force employed in a cantonment may, without a warrant, arrest any person committing in his view a breach of any of the provisions of this Act which are specified in Schedule IV:

Provided that—

(a) in the case of the breach of any such provision as is specified in Part B of Schedule IV, no person shall be so arrested who consents to give his name and address, unless there is reasonable ground for doubting the accuracy of the name or address so given, the burden of proof of which shall lie on the arresting officer, and no person so arrested shall be detained after his name and address have been ascertained; and

(b) no person shall be so arrested for an offence under section 236 except—

(i) at the request of the person importuned or of a military officer in whose presence the offence was committed; or

(ii) by or at the request of a member of the Military or Air Force Police, who is employed in the cantonment and authorised in this behalf by the <sup>1</sup>[Officer Commanding the station], and in whose presence the offence was committed or by or at the request of any police officer not below the rank of a Sub-Inspector who is employed in the cantonment and authorised in this behalf by the <sup>1</sup>[Officer Commanding the station].

251. It shall be the duty of all police officers to give immediate information to the Board of the commission of any offence against the provisions of this Act or of any rule or bye-law made thereunder, and to assist all cantonment officers and servants in the exercise of their lawful authority.

Notices.

252. Where any notice, order or requisition made under this Act or any rule or bye-law made thereunder requires anything to be done for the doing of which no time is fixed in this Act or in the rule or bye-law, the notice, order or requisition shall specify a reasonable time for doing the same.

Authentication and validity of notices issued by Board.

253. Every notice, order or requisition issued by a Board under this Act or any rule or bye-law made thereunder shall be signed—

(a) <sup>2</sup>[* * *] either by the President of the Board or by the Executive Officer, <sup>3</sup>[* * *]; or

SEC. 249: OBSTRUCTION—REFUSAL TO PAY RENT.—Where a tenant, who is liable to pay rent to a contractor of the Cantonment Committee who has been duly authorized to collect rent from him, refuses to pay rent either to him or to his servant, the mere refusal to pay rent does not amount to an obstruction within the purview of S. 249. Therefore an action for malicious prosecution lies against the complainant. 188 I.C. 282=1932 All. 386.

(b) by the members of any committee especially authorised by the Board in this behalf.

254. (1) Every notice, order or requisition issued under this Act or any rule or bye-law made thereunder shall, save as otherwise expressly provided, be served or presented—Service of notice, etc.

(a) by giving or tendering the notice, order or requisition, or sending it by post, to the person for whom it is intended; or

(b) if such person cannot be found, by affixing the notice, order or requisition on some conspicuous part of his last known place of abode or business, if within the cantonment, or by giving or tendering the notice, order or requisition to some adult male member or servant of his family, or by causing it to be affixed on some conspicuous part of the building or land, if any, to which it relates.

(2) When any such notice, order or requisition is required or permitted to be served upon an owner, lessee or occupier of any building or land, it shall not be necessary to name the owner, lessee or occupier therein, and the service thereof shall, save as otherwise expressly provided, be effected either—

(a) by giving or tendering the notice, order or requisition, or sending it by post, to the owner, lessee or occupier, or, if there are more owners, lessees or occupiers than one, [on any one of them]<sup>1</sup>, or

(b) if no such owner, lessee or occupier can be found, by giving or tendering the notice, order or requisition to the authorised agent, if any, of any such owner, lessee or occupier or to an adult male member or servant of the family of any such owner, lessee or occupier, or by causing it to be affixed on some conspicuous part of the building or land to which it relates.

(3) When the person on whom a notice, order or requisition is to be served is a minor, service upon his guardian or upon an adult male member or servant of his family shall be deemed to be service upon the minor.

255. Every notice which, by or under this Act, is to be given or served as a public notice or as a notice which is not required to be given to any individual therein specified shall, save as otherwise expressly provided, be deemed to have been sufficiently given or served if a copy thereof is affixed in such conspicuous part of the office of the Board, or in such other public place, during such period or is published in such local newspaper or in such other manner, as the Board may direct.
 Method of giving notice.

256. In the event of non-compliance with the terms of any notice, order or requisition issued to any person under this Act, or any rule or bye-law made thereunder, requiring such person to execute any work or to do any act, it shall be lawful for the Board whether or not the person in default is liable to punishment for such default or has been prosecuted or sentenced to any punishment therefor, after giving notice in writing to such person, to take such action or such steps as may be necessary for the completion of the act or work required to be done or executed by him and all the expenses incurred on such account shall be recoverable by the Board.
 Powers of Board in case of non-compliance with notice, etc.

Recovery of Money.

257. (1) If any such notice as is referred to in section 256 has been given to any person in respect of property of which he is the owner, the Board may require any occupier of such property or of any part thereof to pay to it, instead of to the owner, any rent payable by him in respect of such property, as it falls due, up to the amount recoverable from the owner under section 256:
 Liability of occupier to pay in default of owner.

Provided that, if the occupier, on application made to him by the Board, refuses truly to disclose the amount of his rent or the name or address of the person to whom it is payable, the Board may recover from the occupier the whole amount recoverable under section 256.

(2) Any amount recovered from an occupier instead of from an owner under sub-section (1) shall, in the absence of any contract between the owner and the occupier to the contrary, be deemed to have been paid to the owner.

258. (1) Where any person, by reason of his receiving the rent of immovable property as an agent or trustee, or of his being as an agent or trustee the person who would receive the rent if the property were let to a tenant, would under this Act be bound to discharge any obligation imposed on the owner of the property for the discharge of which money is required, he shall not be bound to discharge the obligation unless he has, or but for his own improper act or default might have had, funds in his hands belonging to the owner sufficient for the purpose.

(2) The burden of proving any fact entitling an agent or trustee to relief under sub-section (1) shall lie upon him.

(3) Where any agent or trustee has claimed and established his right to relief under this section, the Board may, by notice in writing, require him, to apply to the discharge of such obligation as aforesaid the first monies which may come to his hands on behalf, or for the use, of the owner, and, on failure to comply with the notice, he shall be deemed to be personally liable to discharge the obligation.

<sup>1</sup>[259. (1) Notwithstanding anything elsewhere contained in this Act, arrears of any tax and any other money recoverable by a Board under this Act may be recovered together with the cost of recovery either by suit or, on application to a Magistrate having jurisdiction in the cantonment or in any place where the person from whom such tax or money is recoverable may for the time being be residing, by the distress and sale of any movable property of, or standing timber, growing crops or grass belonging to, such person which is within the limits of such Magistrate's jurisdiction, and shall, if payable by the owner of any property as such, be a charge on the property until paid:

Provided that the tools of artisans shall be exempt from such distress or sale.

(2) An application to a Magistrate under sub-section (1) shall be in writing and shall be signed by the President or Vice-President of the Board or by the Executive Officer, but shall not require to be personally presented].

LEG. REF.

<sup>1</sup> S. 259 substituted for old section by Act XXIV of 1936.

NOTES.

SEC. 259.—The expression "recoverable by the Cantonment Authority under the Act" does not include the case of money due under ordinary contract between that authority and others. It merely applies to such dues as are recoverable by the Cantonment Authority under the express provisions of certain sections of this Act which entitle it to levy fees for permitting certain acts to be done. Where therefore the Cantonment Authority proceeds to recover arrears of rent due from a tenant by distress and sale of his immovable property its action is illegal and makes the Authority liable to pay damages to the tenant for its illegal action. 150 I.C. 682=1933 Lah. 517. A magistrate acting under S. 259 has jurisdiction to decide whether the conditions under which the Cantonment Authority can resort to him are fulfilled or not. But he is not entitled to go into questions for which a separate remedy exists under the Act to the person from whom recovery is sought. 1938 A.M.L.J. 18. Where there is a revocation of certain remission of tax and the Cantonment Board applies under S. 259 of the Act for recovery of the amounts due, its claim is only for arrears of taxes. The circumstance that the amount was once remitted does not change the nature of the claim. 1938 A.M.L.J. 18. S. 259 is not necessarily confined to arrears of tax due prior to the amendment. The amendment creates no fresh liability to pay, nor does it enlarge the liability. It merely provides a machinery for recovery. 1938 A.M.L.J. 18.

260. In the event of any disagreement as to the liability of a Board to pay any compensation under this Act, or as to the amount of any compensation so payable, the person claiming such compensation may apply to the Board for the reference of the matter to a Committee of Arbitration, and the Board shall forthwith proceed to convene a Committee of Arbitration to determine the matter in dispute.

261. When a Committee of Arbitration is to be convened, the Board shall cause a public notice to be published stating the matter to be determined, and shall forthwith send copies of the order to the District Magistrate, and to the other party concerned, and shall, as soon as may be, nominate such members of the Committee, as it is entitled to nominate under section 262, and, by notice in writing, call upon the other persons who are entitled to nominate a member or members of the Committee to nominate such member or members in accordance with the provisions of that section.

Constitution of Committee of Arbitration.

262. (1) Every Committee of Arbitration shall consist of five members, namely:—

(a) a Chairman who shall be a person not in the service of the <sup>1</sup>[Crown] or the Board, and who shall be nominated by the <sup>2</sup>[Officer Commanding the station];

(b) two persons nominated by the Board; and

(c) two persons nominated by the other party concerned <sup>3</sup>[* * *].

(2) If the Board or the other party concerned or the <sup>2</sup>[Officer Commanding the station] fails within seven days of the date of issue of the notice referred to in section 261 to make any nomination which it or he is entitled to make or, if any member who has been so nominated neglects or refuses to act and the Board or other person by whom such member was nominated fails to nominate another member in his place within seven days from the date on which it or he may be called upon to do so by the District Magistrate, the District Magistrate shall forthwith appoint a member or members, as the case may be, to fill the vacancy or vacancies.

No person to be nominated who has direct interest or whose services are not immediately available.

263. (1) No person who has a direct interest in the matter under reference, or whose services are not immediately available for the purposes of the Committee, shall be nominated a member of a Committee of Arbitration.

(2) If, in the opinion of the District Magistrate, any person who has been nominated has a direct interest in the matter under reference, or is otherwise disqualified for nomination, or if the services of any such person are not immediately available as aforesaid, and if the Board or other person by whom any such person was nominated fails to nominate another member within seven days from the date on which it or he may be called upon to do so by the District Magistrate, such failure shall be deemed to constitute a failure to make a nomination within the meaning of section 262.

264. (1) When a Committee of Arbitration has been duly constituted, the Board shall, by notice in writing, inform each of the members of the fact, and the Committee shall meet as soon as may be thereafter,

(2) The Chairman of the Committee shall fix the time and place of meetings, and shall have power to adjourn any meeting from time to time as may be necessary.

(3) The Committee shall receive and record evidence, and shall have power to administer oaths to witnesses, and, on requisition in writing signed by the Chairman of the Committee, the District Magistrate shall issue the necessary processes for the attendance of witnesses and the production of documents required by the Committee, and may enforce the said processes as if they were processes for attendance or production before himself.

265. (1) The decision of every Committee of Arbitration shall be in accordance with the majority of votes taken at a meeting at which the Chairman and at least three of the other members are present.

Decisions of Committees of Arbitration.

(2) If there is not a majority of votes in favour of any proposed decision, the opinion of the Chairman shall prevail.

(3) The decision of a Committee of Arbitration shall be final and shall not be questioned in any Court.

266. <sup>1</sup>[(1)] Save as otherwise expressly provided in this Act, no Court shall proceed to the trial of any offence made punishable by or under this Act, other than an offence specified in Schedule IV, except on the complaint of, or upon information received from, the Board concerned or a person authorised by the Board by a general or special order in this behalf.

<sup>1</sup>[(2) No offence made punishable under this Act shall be tried by any Magistrate or by any Bench, if such Magistrate or any of the Magistrates composing the Bench is a member of the Board.]

267. (1) A Board, or any person authorised by it, by general or special order in this behalf, may, either before or after the institution of the proceedings, compound any offence made punishable by or under this Act other than an offence under Chapter XIV:

Provided that no offence shall be compoundable which is committed by failure to comply with a notice, order or requisition issued by or on behalf of the Board, unless and until the same has been complied with in so far as compliance is possible.

(2) Where an offence has been compounded, the offender, if in custody, shall be discharged and no further proceedings shall be taken against him in respect of the offence so compounded.

LEG. REF.

<sup>1</sup> Section 266 renumbered as sub-section (1) of S. 266 and Sub-sec. (2) of S. 266 inserted by Act XXIV of 1936.

NOTES.

SEC. 266: INTERPRETATION.—Section 266 only lays down that no Court shall proceed to the trial of any offence under the Act unless moved by the persons mentioned therein and if the persons mentioned therein initiate the proceedings as provided in the section, the Court must follow the procedure laid down in Cr. P. Code. 109 I.C. 607=29 Cr.L.J. 591 (Nag.) Where the prosecution of a person for an offence not specified in Sch. IV of this Act is instituted on a letter which is a personal application by the Executive Officer of the Cantonment Authority for his prosecution, and it is not shown that the Executive Officer is authorised by the Cantonment Authority by a general or special order to act on its behalf in such a proceeding, the complaint is not made in the manner required by S. 266 of the Act and a conviction thereon is liable to be set aside. 158 I.C. 1010=36 Cr.L.J. 1493=1935 A. 905. A complaint was lodged by the Cantonment Board through a Sub-Overseer, signed by the Executive Officer of the Board. The Executive Officer never appeared before the Magistrate. Sub-Overseer did not hold any power of attorney on behalf of the Board. No power of authority was filed to show that the Executive Officer had any authority to lodge such a complaint. On conviction the accused filed a revision. The Executive Officer filed an affidavit that he had an authority to file the complaint. Held, that failure to file the authority is an omission curable under S. 537, Cr. P. Code. 29 Cr.L.J. 822=1928 Lah. 946.

268. Whoever, in any case in which a penalty is not expressly provided by this Act, fails to comply with any notice, order or requisition issued under any provision thereof, or otherwise contravenes any of the provisions of this Act, shall be punishable with fine which may extend to two hundred rupees, and, in the case of a continuing failure or contravention, with an additional fine which may extend to twenty rupees for every day after the first during which he has persisted in the failure or contravention.

General penalty.

269. Where any person to whom a licence has been granted under this Act or any agent or servant of such person commits a breach of any of the conditions thereof, or of any bye-law made under this Act for the purpose of regulating the manner or circumstances in, or the conditions subject to, which anything permitted by such licence is to be or may be done, the Board may, without prejudice to any other penalty which may have been incurred under this Act, by order in writing, cancel the licence or suspend it for such period as it thinks fit:

Cancellation and suspension of licenses.

Provided that no such order shall be made until an opportunity has been given to the holder of the licence to show cause why it should not be made.

270. Where any person has incurred a penalty by reason of having caused any damage to the property of a Board, he shall be liable to make good such damage, and the amount payable in respect of the damage shall, in case of dispute, be determined by the Magistrate by whom the person incurring such penalty is convicted, and, on non-payment of such amount on demand, the same shall be recovered by distress and sale of the movable property of such person, and the Magistrate shall issue a warrant for its recovery accordingly.

Recovery of amount payable in respect of damage to cantonment property.

Limitation.

271. No Court shall try any person for an offence made punishable by or under this Act, after the expiry of six months from the date of the commission of the offence, unless complaint in respect of the offence has been made to a Magistrate within the six months aforesaid.

Limitation for prosecution.

NOTES.

SEC. 268.—The Executive Officer of the Cantonment is not a member of the "Cantonment Authority" as defined in S. 2 (v) and a notice issued by him for the removal of an encroachment is invalid. Consequently a person cannot be convicted for disobeying a notice issued by the Executive Officer for removal of encroachment on Government land. Subsequent confirmation of the action of the Executive Officer by the Cantonment Board is of no avail as the notice disobeyed is the notice from the Executive Officer. 35 Cr.L.J. 612=1933 Lah. 545 (1). The Cantonment Authority gave a qualified sanction to A to proceed with the construction of his building at his own risk in that the site on which the construction was being built was claimed by the Government, but there was no "Municipal objection". As soon as A proceeded to build, the Cantonment Authority served him with a notice "to demolish the unauthorised construction". A having failed to comply with this notice, he was prosecuted under S. 187 read with S. 268,

Held, that there was no unauthorized construction because A had sanction from the Board to build the room, that it was preposterous to suggest that when A had had the sanction of the Board in writing under S. 181, he did not have the permission in writing of the Cantonment Authority, and that the question between the parties was a purely civil one and as a matter of fact A had not exceeded the authority given him by the Board in sanctioning his application for building. 146 I.C. 2=34 Cr.L.J. 1191=1933 All. 486. A merchant who is selling bamboos, rafters, wooden boards and beams within the limits of the Cantonment without any licence is liable to prosecution under S. 268 for being a dealer in wood within the meaning of S. 210 (1). 1934 All. 987 (1)=36 Cr.L.J. 261. Suits.

272. No suit or prosecution shall be entertained in any Court against any Board<sup>1</sup> [* *] or against any <sup>2</sup>[Officer Commanding a station], or against any member of a Board, or against any officer or servant of a Board, for anything in good faith done, or intended to be done, under this Act or any rule or bye-law made thereunder.

273. (1) No suit shall be instituted against any Board or against any member of a Board, or against any officer or servant of a Board, in respect of any act done, or purporting to have been done, in pursuance of this Act or of any rule or bye-law made thereunder, until the expiration of two months after notice in writing has been left at the office of the Board, and, in the case of such member, officer or servant, unless notice in writing has also been delivered to him or left at his office or place of abode, and unless such notice states explicitly the cause of action, the nature of the relief sought, the amount of compensation claimed, and the name and place of abode of the intending plaintiff, and unless the plaint contains a statement that such notice has been so delivered or left.

(2) If the Board, member, officer or servant has, before the suit is instituted, tendered sufficient amends to the plaintiff, the plaintiff shall not recover any sum in excess of the amount so tendered, and shall also pay all costs incurred by the defendant after such tender.

(3) No suit, such as is described in sub-section (1), shall, unless it is an action for the recovery of immovable property or for a declaration of title thereto, be instituted after the expiry of six months from the date on which the cause of action arises.

(4) Nothing in sub-section (1) shall be deemed to apply to a suit in which the only relief claimed is an injunction of which the object would be defeated by the giving of the notice or the postponement of the institution of the suit or proceeding.

Appeals and Revision.

274. (1) Any person aggrieved by any order described in the second column of Schedule V may appeal to the authority specified in that behalf in the third column thereof.

(2) No such appeal shall be admitted if it is made after the expiry of the period specified in that behalf in the fourth column of the said Schedule.

(3) The period specified as aforesaid shall be computed in accordance with the provisions of the Indian Limitation Act, 1908, with respect to the computation of periods of limitation thereunder.

275. (1) Every appeal under section 274 shall be made by petition in writing accompanied by a copy of the order appealed against.

(2) Any such petition may be presented to the authority which made the order against which the appeal is made, and that authority shall be bound to forward it to the appellate authority, and may attach thereto any report which it may desire to make by way of explanation.

SEC. 273.—S. 273 (1) does not contemplate the class of suits of private contracts for which specific rules of evidence are prescribed by the Limitation Act. It contemplates actions brought against the Board in respect of acts done in pursuance of any rule or bye-law that has the force of law. Hence a suit against the Board for the price of goods supplied is not governed by S. 273 but by Art. 52, Limitation Act. 149 I.C. 49=1934 A.L.J. 805=1934 All. 436.

On the admission of an appeal from an order, other than an order contained in a notice issued under clause (a) of section 137, section 140, section 176, or section 238, all proceedings to enforce the order and all prosecutions for any contravention thereof shall be held in abeyance pending the decision of the appeal, and, if the order is set aside on appeal, disobedience thereto shall not be deemed to be an offence.

Finality of appellate orders.

278. Save as otherwise provided in section 277, every order of an appellate authority shall be final.

279. No appeal shall be decided under this Chapter unless the appellant has been heard, or has had a reasonable opportunity of being heard in person or through a legal practitioner.

(a) for persons working as job porters for the conveyance of goods;

(b) for animals or vehicles let out on hire;

(c) for the proprietors or drivers of vehicles, boats or other conveyances, or of animals kept or plying for hire; or

(d) for persons impelling or carrying such vehicles or other conveyances;

(26) the prescribing of the fee payable for any licence required under clause (25), and of the conditions subject to which such licences may be granted, revised, suspended or withdrawn;

(27) the regulation of the charges to be made for the services of such job porters and of the hire of such animals, vehicles or other conveyances, and for the remuneration of persons impelling or carrying such vehicles or conveyances as are referred to in clause (25);

(28) the regulation or prohibition, for purposes of sanitation or the prevention of disease or the promotion of public safety or convenience, of any act which occasions or is likely to occasion a nuisance, and for the regulation or prohibition of which no provision is made elsewhere by or under this Act;

(29) the circumstances and the manner in which owners of buildings or land in the cantonment, who are temporarily absent from, or are not resident in the cantonment, may be required to appoint as their agents for all or any of the purposes of this Act or of any rule or bye-law made thereunder, persons residing within or near the cantonment;

(30) the prevention of the spread of infectious or contagious disease within the cantonment;

(31) The segregation in, or the removal and exclusion from the cantonment, or the destruction, of animals suffering or reasonably suspected to be suffering from any infectious or contagious disease;

(32) The supervision, regulation, conservation and protection from injury, contamination or trespass of sources and means of public water-supply, and of appliances for the distribution of water whether within or without the limits of the cantonment;

(33) the manner in which connections with water-works may be constructed or maintained, and the agency which shall or may be employed for such construction and maintenance;

(34) the regulation of all matters and things relating to the supply and use of water including the collection and recovery of charges therefor and the prevention of evasion of the same;

(35) the maintenance of schools, and the furtherance of education generally;

(36) the regulation or prohibition of the cutting or destruction of trees or shrubs, or of the making of excavations, or of the removal of soil or quarrying, where such regulation or prohibition appears to the Board to be necessary for the maintenance of a water-supply, the preservation of the soil, the prevention of landslips or of the formation of ravines or torrents, or the protection of land against erosion, or against the deposit thereon of sand, gravel or stones;

(37) the rendering necessary of licences* for the use of premises within the cantonment as stables or cowhouses or as accommodation for sheep, goats or fowls;

(38) the control of the use in the cantonment of mechanical whistles, syrens or trumpets; and

(39) generally for the regulation of the administration of the cantonment under this Act.

283. Any bye-law made by a Board under this Act may provide that a contravention thereof shall be punishable—

Penalty for breach of bye-laws.

(a) with fine which may extend to one hundred rupees; or

(b) with fine which may extend to one hundred rupees and, in the case of a continuing contravention, with an additional fine which may extend to twenty rupees for every day during which such contravention continues after conviction for the first such contravention; or

(c) with fine which may extend to ten rupees for every day during which the contravention continues after the receipt of a notice from the Board by the person contravening the bye-law requiring such person to discontinue such contravention.

284. (1) Any power to make bye-laws conferred by this Act is conferred subject to the condition of the bye-laws being made after previous publication and of their not taking effect until they have been approved and confirmed by the Central Government and published in the Official Gazette.

(2) The Central Government in confirming a bye-law may make any change therein which appears to it to be necessary.

(3) The Central Government may, after previous publication of its intention, cancel any bye-law which it has confirmed, and thereupon the bye-law shall cease to have effect.

285. (1) A copy of all rules and bye-laws made under this Act shall be kept at the office of the Board and shall, during office hours, be open free of charge to inspection by any inhabitant of the cantonment.

(2) Copies of all such rules and bye-laws shall be kept at the office of the Board <sup>1</sup>[and shall be sold to the public at cost price singly, or in collections at the option of the purchaser.]

CHAPTER XVII.

SUPPLEMENTAL PROVISIONS.

286. The Central Government may, by notification in the Official Gazette, and subject to any conditions as to compensation or otherwise which it thinks fit to impose, extend to any area beyond a cantonment and in the vicinity thereof, with or without restriction or modification, any of the provisions of Chapters IX, X, XI, XII, XIII, XIV and XV or of any rule or bye-law made under this Act for the cantonment which relates to the subject-matter of any of those Chapters, and every enactment, rule or bye-law so extended shall thereupon apply to that area as if the area were included in the cantonment.

<sup>1</sup>[286-A. The Board may empower any of its members or officers to exercise or perform in the absence of the Executive Officer from the Cantonment all or any of such powers or duties of an Executive Officer under this Act as the Central Government may, by notification in the Official Gazette, specify in this behalf.]

287. (1) Paragraphs 2 and 3 of section 54, and sections 59, 107 and 123 of the Transfer of Property Act, 1882, with respect to the transfer of property by registered instrument, shall, on and from the commencement of this Act, extend to every cantonment.

<sup>2</sup>[(2) The Registrar or Sub-Registrar of the district or sub-district formed for the purposes of the Indian Registration Act, 1908, in which any cantonment is situated, shall <sup>3</sup>[when any document relating to immovable property within the cantonment is registered, send information of the registration] forthwith to the Board or such other authority as the Central Government may prescribe in this behalf.]

288. No notice, order, requisition, licence, permission in writing or other document issued under this Act shall be invalid merely by reason of any defect of form.

289. A copy of any receipt, application, plan, notice, order or other document or of any entry in a register, in the possession of a Board shall, if duly certified by the legal keeper thereof or other person authorised by the Board in this behalf, be admissible in evidence of the existence of the document or entry, and shall be admitted as evidence of the matters and transactions therein recorded in every case where, and to the same extent to which, the original document or entry would, if produced, have been admissible to prove such matters.

290. No officer or servant of a Board shall, in any legal proceeding to which the Board is not a party, be required to produce any register or document the contents of which can be proved under section 289 by a certified copy, or to appear as a witness to prove any matter or transaction recorded therein save by order of the Court made for special cause.

291. For the purposes of the Government Buildings Act, 1899, Cantonments and Boards shall be deemed to be municipalities and municipal authorities respectively.

THE CANTONMENTS (HOUSE-ACCOMMODATION) ACT (VI OF 1923).

PREFATORY NOTE.—Necessity for a special law relating to house accommodation in cantonments:—In introducing the first Bill of 1898 in the Council, the Law Member said:—

Necessity for the Act. "For many years past we have had under consideration the question of house accommodation in cantonments. In the early days of the British dominion in India, the camps, stations and posts of the field army developed into cantonments where troops were stationed in garrison. These cantonments were localities set apart for the troops and were intended for their use only, but, as time went on non-military persons were permitted to reside in cantonments under the regulations of the day; land was occupied, and houses were built for the accommodation of officers and for other purposes, under the rules and conditions prevailing at that time.

"In later years, owing to various circumstances, great difficulties have been experienced in working the regulations applicable to cantonments, and the difficulties of finding suitable accommodation for officers—especially for those obliged to live in a particular part of cantonments—have much increased.

"The whole question has been exhaustively considered by officers specially appointed by committees and by other authorities; it has been discussed in every possible aspect and the investigation has spread over a great many years. The present Bill is the outcome of that discussion the objections raised have been carefully considered, and we have recognised that conditions of ownership and tenancy must be governed by the regulations in force when any particular house was built. But as cantonments are and were intended for occupation of troops, and as the whole of the land belongs, as a general rule, to the state, and houses were built in many cases by persons who had no status in cantonments, not for their own use, but as a source of profit, we consider that it is not inequitable to lay upon house-holders the burden of proving that they hold their grants under special conditions, and ought not to be subjected to the provisions which convenience and military requirements dictate in a locality which has been set apart for military purposes. The necessity for securing house accommodation for the military and civil officers of the Government is essential, but we have endeavoured to safeguard the interests of the house-owners, and to remove any reasons for complaint on the part of the latter.

"It will be observed that in the Bill the cantonment Rules have been indefinitely referred to, inasmuch as that, though prepared and published for criticism sometime ago, they have not yet come into force. It is intended, however, to bring them into operation before the Bill becomes law. These results will provide fully for the matters dealt with in the Bill so far as grants made under them will be concerned. Consequently, I may point out that the operation of the Bill will be practically restricted to past grants only." (See also Statement of Objects and Reasons and also proceedings in council, Fort St. George Gazette, Supplement, 22nd Nov. 1898.)

As stated in the preamble to this Bill, various conditions, rules, and regulations and orders in regard to the grant of land and the occupation of land and houses in cantonments have been from time to time made with the object of making accommodation available for officers whose duties require their residence within cantonment limits. These provisions have been collected and published for general information but, notwithstanding their issue in the past, great difficulties have been, and are still being, experienced in the matter.

The necessity for removing these difficulties and of making suitable provision for the housing of officers has long been recognised by the Government and a special Chapter was in 1888 with that object included in the Bill "to amend the law relating to cantonments." The chapter was, however, subjected to criticisms at that time, and as the matter seemed to call for further consideration, while it was thought undesirable to delay the whole measure on that account it was decided to exclude the provisions in question and to proceed with the rest of the Bill, which was eventually passed into law as the Cantonments Act, 1889 (XIII of 1889). The difficulties referred to have, as was expected, steadily increased and the Government of India consider it inexpedient any longer to defer remedial legislation on the subject.

The Bill which it is proposed now to introduce has been framed after careful consideration of the objections previously raised, and, while aiming at securing house accommodation for the military and civil officers of the Government whose presence in cantonments is obviously necessary, it endeavours also to safeguard as far as possible the interests of the house-owners concerned.

This Bill was passed as the Cantonments House Accommodation Act of 1899, which is the first enactment in British India specifically dealing with the accommodation of Houses within cantonment limits. There were certain defects in this Act, and consequently a necessity was felt for amendment and codification. Hence, this Act again came for the consideration of the Government of India in 1901.

The Hon'ble Sir Edmond Ellis in introducing the Cantonments Bill (1901) into the Council made the following statements as to the necessity for amendment and the enactment of a new measure:—

"My lord, I propose to make a statement regarding the course which we intend to pursue in dealing with the Cantonments (House Accommodation) Bill.

"This Bill, the object of which is to grapple with the great and ever increasing difficulty experienced by officers in securing suitable accommodation in houses built within the limits of cantonment was, after the most prolonged consideration dating back to the year 1887, if not earlier, introduced in the Legislative Council by my predecessor Sir Edwin Collen on the 4th November, 1898. The Statement of Objects and Reasons and the Bill were duly published in the Gazette of India and circulated for criticism, and the result was the receipt, during the year 1899, of a larger number of representations official and non-official, regarding the measure. To all of these the most anxious consideration has been given by the Governor-General in Council.

"As was only to be expected, the bill has not been favourably received by the majority of the house owners in cantonments, the objections put forward being most pronounced in the case of the very cantonments in which the want of accommodation for officers has been most acutely felt. On the other hand the measure has met with approval in many quarters, and in some cases even the house owners themselves have admitted, the necessity for such a Bill and the equity of its provisions.

"Now, I desire to make it very plain at the outset that the Government of India are unable to admit that cantonment areas can be regarded in the same light as the other parts of the country. On the contrary, the circumstances in them are altogether special and totally different from the circumstances anywhere else and I have no hesitation in asserting that this fact is well-known and thoroughly felt and appreciated by every resident of any of the permanent military stations, which here in India we call cantonments. The term has for over a century been applied in this country to well-defined areas, always primarily and in some instances almost exclusively set apart for the occupation of troops and their followers. The necessity for maintaining special laws in such places surely goes without saying and this has indeed been recognised in actual practice and throughout all our legislation affecting cantonments. When therefore I find the common law of England cited and vague denunciations directed against the measure on the ground that it encroaches upon private rights which ought to be held sacred and inviolable my answer is that the subject is approached from the wrong standpoint and that I fail to perceive the force of arguments which beg the question and have in fact no application to the case.

"And this brings me at once to the most important part of the bill and of the opposition which it has excited, I allude to clause (3), sub-clause (5) in which it is laid down that all land in a cantonment to which the provisions of the proposed Act are, after due enquiry, applied shall be presumed to be held under a grant from His Majesty, unless and until the person in possession proves to the satisfaction of the Local Government, that he held the land by a lawful title acquired prior to the formation of the cantonment. This provision, of course, shifts the burden of proof from the Government on to the shoulders of the cantonment house owner and it has, perhaps, not unnaturally been objected to as involving a serious interference with the rights of property. It has been urged that the presumption laid down by it is directly opposed to the ordinary legal principle which recognises possession as good prima facie evidence of title and that it is unfair to remove the onus probandi from the Government on whom it ought to be to the house owner. From what I have already said it will be anticipated that I cannot admit that this objection should be allowed to prevail. Cantonments are military stations in which military considerations always have been and always must be regarded as paramount and can never have been intentionally put on one side. The possession of the Government with regard to them has been clear, for throughout all the various orders which have been issued, the principle has constantly been affirmed that land in cantonments is held subject to the requirements of the military authorities. Proceeding on the presumption which I have alluded to above and which I maintain is a fair presumption all that the bill does is to reproduce and render enforceable conditions the impositions of which on persons permitted to build house in cantonments has been consistently aimed at ever since cantonments were formed in India and has, as I shall endeavour to show, been insisted upon by a series of executive orders issued in Army Regulations for the guidance of cantonment authorities. As the orders in the three presidencies were distinct it will be necessary to notice each separately. 'In Bengal the first order was issued in April, 1801, and by it, the Governor-General in Council directed that if individuals not officers shall purchase they must remove the materials as the ground within the cantonment is to be kept appropriated exclusively to the use of troops; this order was republished on the 28th September, 1807. Again in 1836 regulations were laid down for the occupation of land and the disposal of buildings in cantonments. Four conditions were attached—First, that the Government should retain the power of resumption on one month's notice; second, that the ground being in every case the property of the Government could not be sold by the grantee; third, that the buildings erected on the land should not be sold to any civilian without the consent of the officer commanding stations; and fourth, that the transfer of any house of over 5,000 Rupees in value to a native of India should be subject to the sanction of the Government. The attention of all officers commanding stations was drawn to these orders by the Commander-in-Chief on the 20th April, 1853 and the General Regulations of the Bengal Army of 1885 practically reproduced them. In 1858 they were incorporated in Code of Regulations for the Public Works Department and they were again and again reproduced in the Regulations issued in 1873, 1880 and 1897. In the Punjab it may be added the Bengal Regulations were followed. In Bombay a general order of January, 1807 pointed out that any permission which officers might receive to erect houses on ground within Military cantonments conferred on them no rights of property in the land as that continued to be the property of the State. Another general order dated the 30th October, 1832, asserted that no private landed property was to be included within the limits of a cantonment in which the whole of the ground belongs to Government. If at the same time provided for the removal from cantonments of any person not being an officer or a soldier, and in such cases permitted the taking away of the materials of any building belonging to any such person. In 1835 another Government order laid down rules for the occupation of land in cantonment and pointed out that "permission" to occupy ground within the limits of a cantonment conferred no proprietary rights on the occupant. This was affirmed by an order which was issued in May, 1838 and included a clause for resumption on one month's notice. In 1851, these orders were affirmed and in 1862 a Government Resolution was issued restating the principles already laid down. The regulations for the Bombay Presidency of 1875 and the Army Regulations (India) of 1887 followed on the same lines.

In Madras the earliest order on the subject appears to have been issued on the 8th May, 1812, and in it the Governor in Council laid down that no officer or person should be permitted to erect any building on ground belonging to the company within the walls of a Fort or within the limits of any cantonment, but on condition of immediate surrender to the Government, and that no grant in perpetuity of any piece of ground within the precincts of a Fort or Cantonment should be accorded to any individual. Leases renewable at the pleasure of the Government were to be given. These orders were republished as a Code of Regulations under the authority of the Governor in Council on the 1st October, 1813. Revised Codes embodying the same conditions were republished on the 12th September, 1820 and again on the 19th December, 1826. Similar orders were issued on the 4th December, 1829; and on the 17th April, 1849, revised rules framed on the same principles were published. These appear again in the Madras Army Regulations of 1869 and 1876 and in the Army Regulations (India) of 1887. From the above it is evident that the Government have consistently and continuously affirmed their rights as regards building sites in cantonments. Moreover in regard to the right of Government to regulate the purchase and letting of houses for the accommodation of Military officers, I would point out that the right was recognised by the Cantonments Acts of 1864 and 1880. By section 19 of Act XXII of 1864 it was provided that rules might be made—first, for regulating any cases in which the land within the limits of a cantonment was the property of the Government but the occupation and use of which by private persons was permissive and for imposing terms on which such occupation and use should be allowed and conditions under which the Government might resume possession on giving compensations;

secondly, for maintaining proper Registers of immovable property within cantonment limits and for providing for the registration of transfer of such property; and thirdly, for regulating the manner in which houses within the limits of cantonments should be claimable for purchase or hire for the accommodation, when necessary, of Military officers. These three headings were reproduced in section 27 of Act III of 1880 and it appears to me that if house owners urge that they purchased property in ignorance of the conditions imposed by the Government they have only themselves to blame, for not having made ordinary inquiries as to the circumstances in which land in cantonments has in fact always been and must of necessity always be held. I now come to deal with the present position which appears to be this. In some cases the Government would undoubtedly be able to prove that conditions such as those which I just described were expressly imposed and as expressly accepted. In most cases it could prove that the existence of the orders on the subject above referred to was so much a matter of common knowledge that the imposition and the acceptance of the conditions laid down in them must be implied. But in others it might be able to prove nothing except that the particular cantonment concerned had existed as such for so many years and that some sort of control over the building of houses in it had always been exercised. It may be that the orders laid down by the higher military authorities and the Government have not always been observed and that express and un-conditional grants of building sites, or express agreements permitting the building of houses and imposing no conditions whatsoever have been made. In such cases there is recourse to clause 4 of the Bill, which I shall be prepared to amend in order to make the point perfectly clear that there is no intention to interfere except in certain number of exceptional cases, and it is to meet these that this measure is proposed. Neither the Government nor the house owner, if put to proof, could show either how the land was originally included in the cantonment or under what circumstances the building on it came to be erected. I maintain that in such cases it is but right to give to the Government the benefit of whatever doubt and uncertainty there may be and to presume in the absence of title-deeds on either side that the land is the Government land and must be insisted upon as paramount. The very existence of houses in most cantonments depends primarily on the presence of His Majesty's troops: the value of house property would as a rule be much diminished if the troops were withdrawn; and under these circumstances, it is surely not too much to assume that houses in cantonments were in fact built for the accommodation of Military men; and that appropriation for their use in suitable repair and at reasonable rents is perfectly reasonable, just and proper.

By the earlier part of clause (3) of the Bill the application of the measure is to be left to the Local Governments and is to depend on the result of a careful inquiry regarding the precise circumstances of each cantonment. If the occupant of any building site can show to the satisfaction of the Local Government—judicial proof, be it noticed is not required—that he holds the land by a lawful title acquired prior to the formation of the cantonment, then the land will be excluded from the operation of the proposed Act. And subject to the burden of proof referred to above instead of there being anything to prevent a resort to the Civil Courts by any one aggrieved in the matter, the obnoxious clause under consideration expressly directs that, if pending the inquiry or at any time thereafter any land is proved by the decree of a court of competent jurisdiction to be held under such a lawful title, it shall be excluded from the area of the notification bringing the measure into operation." (See Fort St. George Gazette, Part III, 5th Nov., 1901, pp. 28-29).

The present Act is Act of 1923. The Bill which subsequently became Act of 1923 was introduced in the Legislative Council in 1922. The following extracts from the Statement of Objects and Reasons attached to the Bill may most usefully be noticed.

The following is the Statement of Objects and Reasons to the Cantonments House Accommodation Act, 1922.

"A Committee which was appointed in the winter 1920-1921 to enquire into and make recommendations in regard to the administration of cantonments recommended inter alia that the Cantonments House Accommodation Act should be revised, so as to remove certain defects which have been brought to light and to carry out more fully the intention of the Act, namely, the better provision of house accommodation for military officers in cantonments. These recommendations have now been examined by the Government of India whose conclusions are embodied in the draft Bill.

A number of the amendments are designed merely to bring the Act up to date by specifying, in place of the authorities by whom the Act is at present administered other authorities recently constituted, e.g., District Commanders in lieu of Divisional Commanders.

The principal changes of substance which the Bill seeks to introduce are—firstly, to substitute for the procedure under which houses are liable to be appropriated for use, on a monthly tenancy, by military officers, holding direct from the house owner, a procedure under which Government will take such houses as may be required on a repairing lease for a term of at least 5 years and will allot the houses so leased to officers requiring accommodation. Under this procedure officers will become the tenants of Government, who alone will deal with the house owners. Where a military officer prefers to take a house by private agreement with a house owner, and not from Government, it is considered that there is no justification for interference between the two parties in cases of dispute, which will in future be settled, as they would outside a cantonment, either by agreement between the parties or by recourse to the law Courts. Thirdly, the Bill alters the constitution of committees of Arbitration and provides for an appeal to the Court against the decisions of such committees.

An Act further to amend and to consolidate the law relating to the provision of house-accommodation for military officers in cantonments.

WHEREAS it is expedient further to amend and to consolidate the law relating to the provision of house-accommodation for military officers in cantonments; It is hereby enacted as follows:—

CHAPTER I.

PRELIMINARY.

Short title, extent and commencement.

1. (1) This Act may be called THE CANTONMENTS (HOUSE-ACCOMMODATION) ACT, 1923.

(2) It extends to the whole of British India (inclusive of British Baluchistan) [ * * * * ].<sup>2</sup>

LEG. REF.

<sup>1</sup> For Statement of Objects and Reasons, see Gazette of India, 1922, Pt. V, p. 233; and for Report of Joint Committee, see ibid., 1923,

(3) It shall come into force on the first day of April, 1923, but it shall not become operative in any cantonment or part of a cantonment until the issue, or otherwise than in pursuance, of a notification as hereinafter provided by section 3:

Provided that any notification made under section 3 of the <sup>1</sup>Cantonments (House-Accommodation) Act, 1902, which is in force at the commencement of this Act, shall be deemed to be a notification made under section 3 of this Act.

Definitions.

2. (1) In this Act, unless there is anything repugnant in the subject or context,—

(a) "Brigade area" means one of the Brigade areas, whether occupied by a brigade or not, into which India is for military purposes for the time being divided, and includes any area which the Central Government may, by notification in the Official Gazette, declare to be a Brigade area for all or any of the purposes of this Act;

(c) "Command" means one of the Commands into which India is for military purposes for the time being divided, and includes any area which the Central Government may, by notification in the Official Gazette, declare to be a Command for all or any of the purposes of this Act;

(d) <sup>4</sup>["Officer Commanding the station"] means the officer for the time being in command of the forces in a cantonment <sup>5</sup>[or, if that officer is the Officer Commanding the District, the military officer who would be in command of those forces in the absence of the Officer Commanding the District].

(e) "District" means one of the Districts into which India is for military purposes for the time being divided; it includes a Brigade area which does not form part of any such District and any area which the Central Government may, by notification in the Official Gazette, declare to be a District for all or any of the purposes of this Act;

(f) "house" means a house suitable for occupation by a military officer or a military mess, and includes the land and buildings appurtenant to a house;

(g) "military officer" means a commissioned or warrant officer of His Majesty's military or air-forces on military or air-force duty in a cantonment, and includes a Chaplain on duty with troops in a cantonment, <sup>6</sup>[an officer of the Cantonments Department] and any person in Army departmental employment whom the Officer Commanding the District may at any time, by an order in writing, place on the same footing as a military officer for the purposes of this Act;

(h) "owner" includes the person who is receiving, or is entitled to receive, the rent of a house, whether on his own account or on behalf of himself and others or as an agent or trustee, or who would so receive the rent, or be entitled to receive it, if the house were let to a tenant; and

(i) a house is said to be in a state of reasonable repair when—
 (i) all floors, walls, pillars and arches are sound and all roofs sound and watertight,

(ii) all doors and windows are intact, properly painted or oiled, and provided with proper locks or bolts or other secure fastenings, and

(iii) all rooms, out-houses and other appurtenant buildings are properly colour-washed or white-washed.

LEG. REF.

(2) If any question arises whether any land or building is appurtenant to a house, it shall be decided by the <sup>1</sup>[Officer Commanding the station] whose decision thereon shall, subject to revision by the <sup>2</sup>[Collector], be final.

CHAPTER II.

APPLICATION OF ACT.

3. (1) The <sup>3</sup>[Central Government], <sup>4</sup>[ * * * * * ], may, by notification in the Official Gazette, declare this Act to be operative in any cantonment or part of a cantonment <sup>5</sup>[ * * * * * ] other than a cantonment situate within the limits of a presidency-town.

Cantonments or parts of cantonments in which Act to be operative.

(2) Before issuing a notification under sub-section (1) in respect of any cantonment or part of a cantonment, the <sup>3</sup>[Central Government] shall cause local inquiry to be made with a view to determining whether it is expedient to issue such notification, and what portion (if any) of the area proposed to be included therein should be excluded therefrom.

Saving of written instruments.

CHAPTER III.

APPROPRIATION OF HOUSES.

5. Every house situate in a cantonment or part of a cantonment in respect of which a notification under sub-section (1) of section 3 is for the time being in force shall be liable to appropriation by the <sup>7</sup>[Central] Government on a lease in the manner and subject to the conditions hereinafter provided.

Conditions on which houses may be appropriated.

(a) a military officer who is stationed in or has been posted to the cantonment, or a President of a military mess in the cantonment, applies in writing to the Officer Commanding the station stating that he is unable to secure suitable accommodation in the cantonment for himself or the mess on reasonable terms by private agreement, and that no suitable house or quarter belonging to <sup>9</sup>[the Crown] is available for his occupation or for the occupation of the mess, and the Officer Commanding the station is satisfied on inquiry of the truth of the facts so stated; or

(b) the Officer Commanding the Station is satisfied on inquiry that there

6. (1) Where the Officer commanding the station considers that the liability imposed by section 5 should be enforced in respect of any house, he shall serve a notice on the owner of the house requiring him to permit the house to be inspected, measured and surveyed by such person and on such day, not being less than three days from the service of the notice, and at such time as may be specified in the notice.

(2) On the day and at the time so specified, the owner shall be bound to afford all reasonable facilities to the person specified in the notice for the purpose of the inspection, measurement and survey of the house, and, if he refuses or neglects to do so, the said person may, subject to rules made under this Act, enter on the premises and do all such things as may be reasonably necessary for the said purpose.

NOTES.

SECS. 6 AND 11.—The Cantonments Act does not contain any prohibition against a transfer by an owner of his right to continue in occupation of the house. All that the Act says is that no notice shall be issued is not in the cantonment a sufficient and assured supply of houses available at reasonable rates of rent by private agreement to meet the requirements of the military officers and military messes whose accommodation in the cantonment is in his opinion necessary or expedient, the Officer Commanding the station may, with a view to enforcing the liability under section 5, serve a notice on the owner of any house which appears to him to be suitable for occupation by a military officer or a military mess, as the case may be, within the cantonment, or, if this Act is in force in part only of the cantonment, within that part, requiring the owner to permit the house to be inspected, measured and surveyed by such person and on such date not being less than three clear days from the service of the notice, and at such time between sunrise and sunset, as may be specified in the notice.

(2) On the date and at the time so specified the owner shall be bound to afford all reasonable facilities to the person specified in the notice for the purpose of the inspection, measurement and survey of the house and, if he refuses or neglects to do so, such person may, subject to any rules made under this Act, enter on the premises and do all such things as may be reasonably necessary for the said purpose.]

7. (1) If, on the report of such person as aforesaid, the <sup>1</sup>[Officer Commanding the station] is satisfied that the house is suitable for occupation by a military officer or a military mess, he may <sup>2</sup>[* * * * *] by notice—

(a) require the owner to execute a lease of the house to the <sup>3</sup>[Central] Government for a specified period which shall not be less than five years;

(b) require the existing occupier, if any, to vacate the house; and

(c) require the owner to execute within such time as may be specified in the notice such repairs as may, in the opinion of the <sup>1</sup>[Officer Commanding the station], be necessary for the purpose of putting the house into a state of reasonable repair.

(2) Every notice issued under sub-section (1) shall state the amount of the annual rent proposed as reasonable for the house, calculated on the assumption that the owner will carry out the required repairs, if any. It shall also contain an estimate of the cost of such repairs.

(3) The following shall be deemed to be conditions of every lease executed under sub-section (1), namely:—

(a) that the house shall, on the expiration of the lease, be redelivered to the owner in a state of reasonable repair, and

(b) that the grounds and the garden, if any, appertaining to the house shall be maintained in the condition in which they are at the time at which the lease is executed:

<sup>4</sup>[Provided that nothing in this sub-section shall be deemed to affect the right of the <sup>3</sup>[Central] Government to avoid the lease in any such event as is specified in clause (e) of section 108 of the Transfer of Property Act, 1882.]

LEG. REF.

NOTES.

under section 6 if the house is occupied by the owner. The owner, therefore, may agree that if the house is required by the military authorities, he would deliver possession thereof to them. The Cantonment Magistrate is not prohibited from entering into any such agreement with an intending purchaser or even an owner in possession. Such an agreement would not defeat the provisions of the Cantonments Act. 25 Bom.L.R. 938=85 I.C. 442=1924 Bom. 258.

9. No house in any cantonment or part of a cantonment in which this Act is operative shall, unless it was so occupied at the date of the issue of the notification declaring this Act or the <sup>2</sup>Cantonments (House-Accommodation) Act, 1902, as the case may be, to be operative, be occupied for the purposes of a hospital, school, school hostel, bank, hotel, or shop, or by a railway administration, a company or firm engaged in trade or business or a club, without the previous sanction of the Officer Commanding the District given with the concurrence of the Commissioner or, in a province where there are no Commissioners, of the Collector.

Houses not to be appropriated in certain cases.

10. No notice shall be issued under section 7 if the house—

(a) was, at the date of the issue of the notification declaring this Act or the <sup>2</sup>Cantonments (House Accommodation) Act, 1902, as the case may be, to be operative in the cantonment or part of the cantonment, or is, with such sanction as is required by section 9, occupied as a hospital, school, school hostel, bank, hotel or shop, and has been so occupied continuously during the three years immediately preceding the time when the occasion for issuing the notice arises, or,

(b) was, at the date of such a notification as is referred to in clause (a), or is, with such sanction as aforesaid, occupied by a railway administration or by a company or firm engaged in trade or business or by a club, or

(c) is occupied by the owner, or,

(d) has been appropriated by the Provincial Government with the concurrence of the Officer Commanding the District, or by the Central Government for use as a public office or for any other purpose.

11. (1) If a house is unoccupied, a notice issued under section 7 may require the owner to give possession of the same to the <sup>3</sup>[Officer Commanding the station] within twenty-one days from the service of the notice.

Time to be allowed for giving possession of house.

(2) If a house is occupied, a notice issued under section 7 shall not require its vacation in less than thirty days from the service of the notice.

(3) Where a notice has been issued under section 7 and the house has been vacated in pursuance thereof, the lease shall be deemed to have commenced on the date on which the house was so vacated.

12. If the owner fails to give possession of a house to the <sup>3</sup>[Officer Commanding the station] in pursuance of a notice issued under section 7, or if the existing occupier fails to vacate a house in pursuance of such a notice, the District Magistrate, by himself or by another person generally or specially authorised by him in this behalf, shall enter on the premises and enforce the surrender of the house.

Surrender of house when to be enforced.

LEG. REF.

8. The Officer Commanding the District shall not sanction the issue of any notice under section 7 unless he is satisfied—

(i) that the house in respect of which it is proposed to issue the notice is suitable for occupation by a military officer or a military mess, and

(ii) that there is not in the cantonment or, if this Act is in force in a part only of the cantonment, then in that part thereof, a sufficient number of houses already available and suitable for occupation by military officers or military messes whose accommodation in the cantonment or a part thereof, as the case may be, is in his opinion necessary or expedient.

NOTES.

SEC. 11.—See 1934 B. 258, cited under section 6, supra.

Option in certain cases for owner on whom notice is issued under section 7 to call upon the Government to purchase.

13. (1) If a house, in respect of which a notice is issued under section 7, is shown to the satisfaction of the <sup>1</sup>[Central Government], or is proved by a decree or order of a Court of competent jurisdiction to have been erected—

(a) under any conditions, rules, regulations or orders which were in force in Bengal prior to the eighth day of December, 1864, and conferred on the owner the option of offering the house for sale to the military officer applying for its appropriation for his occupation or to the East India Company or the Government, or

(b) under any conditions, rules, regulations or orders which were in force in Bombay prior to the first day of June, 1875, and conferred such an option as is described in clause (a), then the owner shall have the option of either complying with the notice or offering the house for sale to the <sup>2</sup>[Central] Government.

(2) If the owner elects to sell the house, and the <sup>2</sup>[Central] Government is willing to purchase it, the question of the amount of the purchase-money to be paid shall, in the event of disagreement, be referred to <sup>3</sup>[a Civil Court, in accordance with the provisions of Chapter IV.]

14. (1) If a house, in respect of which a notice is issued under section 7, is occupied by a tenant holding in good faith and for valuable consideration under a registered lease for any term exceeding one year, the <sup>4</sup>[Central Government] shall, for the term of one year from the date on which the house is vacated in pursuance of the notice, or for the unexpired term of the lease whichever is the shorter, be liable to the owner for the rent fixed by the registered lease instead of for the rent payable under this Act if the rent so fixed exceeds the rent so payable.

(2) If a house, in respect of which a notice is issued under section 7, is occupied by a tenant holding in good faith and for valuable consideration under a registered lease from year to year, the <sup>4</sup>[Central Government] shall be liable as aforesaid for the term of six months from the date on which the house is vacated in pursuance of the notice.

(3) Nothing in this section shall be deemed—

(a) to render the <sup>5</sup>[Central Government] so liable unless an application in writing in this behalf is made by the owner to the <sup>6</sup>[Officer Commanding the station] within fifteen days from the service of the notice; or

(b) to limit or otherwise affect any agreement between the <sup>5</sup>[Crown] and the owner.

15. (1) If the owner considers that the rent stated in a notice issued under section 7 is not reasonable, he may, within a period of <sup>7</sup>[thirty] days from the service of such notice, <sup>7</sup>[refer the matter to a Civil Court in accordance with the provisions of Chapter IV]:

17. Where—

(a) the owner fails to comply with a notice issued under sub-section (1) of section 16 and has not, within fifteen days from the service of such notice, required that the matter be referred to a Committee of Arbitration, or

(b) a Committee of Arbitration decides that repairs are necessary and the extent to which they are necessary, and specifies the period within which they are to be executed, and the owner fails to execute them within such period, and has not within one month from the date of the decision appealed therefrom to the Civil Court as hereinafter provided, or

(c) the owner fails to execute within such period as may be specified by the Civil Court hearing such appeal such repairs as the Court may decide to be necessary, the Military Engineer Services, or the Public Works Department shall, on the application of the Officer Commanding the station, cause the repairs specified in the notice, or, if the matter has been referred to a Committee of Arbitration in the decision of the Committee or the Civil Court, as the case may be, to be executed at the expense of the Government, and the cost thereof may be deducted from the rent payable to the owner.

the station], and that officer shall be bound to forward it to the authority empowered by section 30 to hear the appeal, and may attach thereto any report which he may desire to make in explanation of the notice appealed against.

(3) If any such petition is presented direct to the Officer Commanding the District and an immediate order on the petition is not necessary, the Officer Commanding the District may refer the petition to the <sup>1</sup>[Officer Commanding the station] for report.

32. <sup>2</sup>[(1)] The decision on any such appeal of the Officer Commanding the District <sup>3</sup>[* * * *] shall be final, and shall not be questioned in any Court otherwise than on the ground that the house is situate in a cantonment, or part of a cantonment in which this Act is not operative:

Provided that no appeal shall be decided until the appellant has been heard or has had a reasonable opportunity of being heard in person or through a legal practitioner, <sup>4</sup>[and in giving a decision the Officer Commanding the District shall record briefly the grounds therefor].

<sup>5</sup>[(2) Notice of the result of the appeal shall be given to the appellant as soon as may be, and, where the appellant is a tenant of the house, to the owner of the house also.]

33. Where an appeal has been presented under section 30 within the period prescribed <sup>6</sup>[therein] all action on the notice shall, on the application of the appellant, be held in abeyance pending the decision of the appeal.

CHAPTER VI.

SUPPLEMENTAL PROVISIONS.

34. Every notice or requisition prescribed by this Act shall be in writing, signed by the person by whom it is given or made or by his duly appointed agent, and may be served by post on the person to whom it is addressed, or, in the case of an owner who does not reside in or near the cantonment, on his agent appointed <sup>7</sup>[in accordance with a bye-law made under clause (29) of section 282 of the Cantonments Act, 1924].

<sup>8</sup>[34-A. The period prescribed for making any reference or preferring any appeal under this Act shall be computed in accordance with the provisions of the Indian Limitation Act, 1908].

Power for Central Government to make rules. 35. (1) The Central Government may make rules<sup>9</sup> to carry out the purposes and objects of this Act.

(2) In particular and without prejudice to the generality of the foregoing power, such rules may—

(a) <sup>10</sup>[* * * *]

(b) define the powers of entry, inspection, measurement or survey which may be exercised in carrying out the purposes and objects of this Act or of any rule made hereunder.

THE CARRIAGE BY AIR ACT (XX OF 1934).

[AMENDED BY ACT XXXI OF 1939.]

[19th August, 1934.]

An Act to give effect in British India to a Convention for the unification of certain rules relating to international carriage by air.

WHEREAS a Convention for the unification of certain rules relating to international carriage by air (hereinafter referred to as the Convention) was, on the 12th day of October, 1929, signed at Warsaw;

AND WHEREAS it is expedient that British India should accede to the Convention and should make provision for giving effect to the said Convention in British India;

AND WHEREAS it is also expedient to make provision for applying the rules contained in the Convention (subject to exceptions, adaptations and modifications) to carriage by air in British India which is not international carriage within the meaning of the Convention;

It is hereby enacted as follows:—

Short title, extent and commencement.

1. (1) This Act may be called THE CARRIAGE BY AIR ACT, 1934.

LEG. REF.

(2) It extends to the whole of British India, including British Baluchistan and the Sonthal Parganas.

(3) It shall come into force on such date as the <sup>1</sup>[Central Government] may, by notification in the <sup>1</sup>[Official Gazette] appoint.

2. (1) The rules contained in the First Schedule, being the provisions of the convention relating to the rights and liabilities of carriers, passengers, consignors, consignees and other persons shall, subject to the provisions of this Act, have the force of law in British India in relation to any carriage by air to which those rules apply, irrespective of the nationality of the aircraft performing the carriage.

(2) The <sup>1</sup>[Central Government] may, by notification in the <sup>1</sup>[Official Gazette] certify who are the High Contracting Parties to the Convention, in respect of what territories they are parties, and to what extent they have availed themselves of the Additional Protocol to the Convention, and any such notification shall be conclusive evidence of the matters certified therein.

(3) Any reference in the First Schedule to the territory of any High Contracting Party to the Convention shall be construed as a reference to all the territories in respect of which he is a party.

<sup>2</sup>[3-a) Any reference in the First Schedule to agents of the carrier shall be construed as including a reference to servants of the carrier.]

(4) Notwithstanding anything contained in the Indian Fatal Accidents Act, 1855, or any other enactment or rule of law in force in any part of British India, the rules contained in the First Schedule shall, in all cases to which those rules apply, determine the liability of a carrier in respect of the death of a passenger, and the rules contained in the Second Schedule shall determine the persons by whom and for whose benefit and the manner in which such liability may be enforced.

(5) Any sum in francs mentioned in rule 22 of the First Schedule shall, for the purpose of any action against a carrier, be converted into rupees at the rate of exchange prevailing on the date on which the amount of damages to be paid by the carrier is ascertained by the Court.

3. (1) Every High Contracting Party to the Convention who has not availed himself of the provisions of the Additional Protocol thereto shall, for the purposes of any suit brought in a Court in British India in accordance with the provisions of rule 28 of the First Schedule to enforce a claim in respect of carriage undertaken by him, be deemed to have submitted to the jurisdiction of that Court and to be a person for the purposes of the Code of Civil Procedure, 1908.

(2) The High Court may make rules of procedure providing for all matters which may be expedient to enable such suits to be instituted and carried on.

(3) Nothing in this section shall authorise any Court to attach or sell any property of a High Contracting Party to the Convention.

4. The <sup>1</sup>[Central Government] may, by notification in the <sup>1</sup>[Official Gazette] apply the rules contained in the first Schedule and any provision of section 2 to such carriage by air, not being international carriage by air as defined in the First Schedule, as may be specified in the notification, subject however to such exceptions, adaptations and modifications, if any, as may be so specified.

FIRST SCHEDULE.

RULES.

CHAPTER I.

SCOPE—DEFINITIONS.

1. (1) These rules apply to all international carriage of persons, luggage or goods performed by aircraft for reward. They apply also to such carriage when performed gratuitously by an air transport undertaking.

(2) In these rules "High Contracting Party" means a High Contracting Party to the Convention.

(3) For the purposes of these rules the expression "international carriage" means any carriage in which, according to the contract made by the parties, the place of departure and the place of destination, whether or not there be a break in the carriage or transshipment, are situated either within the territories of two High Contracting Parties, or within the territory of a single High Contracting Party, if there is an agreed stopping place within a territory subject to the sovereignty, suzerainty, mandate or authority of another Power, even though that Power is not a party to the Convention. A carriage without such an agreed stopping place between territories subject to the sovereignty, mandate or authority of the same High Contracting Party is not deemed to be international for the purposes of these rules.

(4) A carriage to be performed by several successive air carriers is deemed for the purposes of these rules, to be one undivided carriage, if it has been regarded by the parties as a single operation, whether it has been agreed upon under the form of a single contract or of a series of contracts, and it does not lose its international character merely because one contract or a series of contracts is to be performed entirely within a territory subject to the sovereignty, suzerainty, mandate or authority of the same High Contracting Party.

2. (1) These rules apply to carriage performed by the State or by legally constituted public bodies provided it falls within the conditions laid down in rule 1.

(2) These rules do not apply to carriage performed under the terms of any international postal Convention.

CHAPTER II.

DOCUMENTS OF CARRIAGE.

Part I.—Passenger ticket.

3. (1) For the carriage of passengers the carrier must deliver a passenger ticket which shall contain the following particulars:—

- (a) the place and date of issue;
- (b) the place of departure and of destination;
- (c) the agreed stopping places, provided that the carrier may reserve the right to alter the stopping places in case of necessity, and that if he exercises that right the alteration shall not have the effect of depriving the carriage of its international character;
- (d) the name and address of the carrier or carriers;
- (e) a statement that the carriage is subject to the rules relating to liability contained in this Schedule.

(2) The absence, irregularity or loss of the passenger ticket does not affect the existence or the validity of the contract of carriage, which shall none the less be subject to these rules. Nevertheless, if the carrier accepts a passenger without a passenger ticket having been delivered he shall not be entitled to avail himself of those provisions of the Schedule which exclude or limit his liability.

Part II.—Luggage ticket.

4. (1) For the carriage of luggage, other than small personal objects of which the passenger takes charge himself, the carrier must deliver a luggage ticket.

(2) The luggage ticket shall be made out in duplicate one part for the passenger and the other part for the carrier.

(3) The luggage ticket shall contain the following particulars:—

- (a) the place and date of issue;
- (b) the place of departure and of destination;
- (c) the name and address of the carrier or carriers;
- (d) the number of the passenger ticket;
- (e) a statement that delivery of the luggage will be made to the bearer of the luggage ticket;
- (f) the number and weight of the packages;
- (g) the amount of the value declared in accordance with R. 22 (2);
- (h) a statement that the carriage is subject to the rules relating to liability contained in this Schedule.

(4) The absence, irregularity or loss of the luggage ticket does not affect the existence or the validity of the contract of carriage, which shall none the less be subject to these rules. Nevertheless if the carrier accepts luggage without a luggage ticket having been delivered, or if the luggage ticket does not contain the particulars set out at (d), (f) and (h) of sub-rule (3) the carrier shall not be entitled to avail himself of those provisions of this Schedule which exclude or limit his liability.

Part III.—Air consignment note.

5. (1) Every carrier of goods has the right to require the consignor to make out and hand over to him a document called an "air consignment," and every consignor has the right to require the carrier to accept this document.

(2) The absence, irregularity or loss of this document does not affect the existence or the validity of the contract of carriage which shall be subject to the provisions of R. 9, be none the less governed by these rules.

6. (1) The air consignment note shall be made out by the consignor in three original parts and be handed over with the goods.

(2) The first part shall be marked "for the carrier", and shall be signed by the consignor. The second part shall be marked "for the consignee"; it shall be signed by the consignor and by the carrier and shall accompany the goods. The third part shall be signed by the carrier and handed by him to the consignor after the goods have been accepted.

(3) The carrier shall sign an acceptance of the goods.

(4) The signature of the carrier may be stamped; that of the consignor may be printed or stamped.

(5) If, at the request of the consignor; the carrier makes out the air consignment note, he shall be deemed, subject to proof to the contrary, to have done so on behalf of the consignor.

7. The carrier of goods has the right to require the consignor to make out separate consignment notes when there is more than one package.

8. The air consignment note shall contain the following particulars:—

- (a) the place and date of its execution;
- (b) the place of departure and of destination;
- (c) the agreed stopping places provided that the carrier may reserve the right to alter the stopping places in case of necessity, and that if he exercises that right the alteration shall not have the effect of depriving the carriage of its international character;
- (d) the name and address of the consignor;
- (e) the name and address of the first carrier;
- (f) the name and address of the consignee, if the case so requires;
- (g) the nature of goods;
- (h) the number of the packages, the method of packing and the particular marks or numbers upon them;
- (i) the weight, the quantity and the volume or dimensions of the goods;
- (j) the apparent condition of the goods and of the packing;
- (k) the freight, if it has been agreed upon, the date and place of payment, and the person who is to pay it;
- (l) if the goods are sent for payment on delivery, the price of the goods, and if the case so requires, the amount of the expenses incurred;
- (m) the amount of the value declared in accordance with R. 22 (2);
- (n) the number of parts of the air consignment note;
- (o) the document handed to the carrier to accompany the air consignment note;
- (p) the time fixed for the completion of the carriage and a brief note of the route to be followed, if these matters have been agreed upon;
- (q) a statement that the carriage is subject to the rules relating to liability contained in this Schedule.

9. If the carrier accepts goods without an air consignment note having been made out or if the air consignment note does not contain all the particulars set out in R. 8 (a) to (i) inclusive and (q), the carrier shall not be entitled to avail himself of the provisions of this Schedule which exclude or limit his liability.

10. (1) The consignor is responsible for the correctness of the particulars and statements relating to the goods which he inserts in the air consignment note.

(2) The consignor will be liable for all damage suffered by the carrier or any other person by reason of the irregularity, incorrectness or incompleteness of the said particulars and statements.

11. (1) The air consignment note is prima facie evidence of the conclusion of the contract, of the receipt of the goods and of the conditions of carriage.

(2) Statements in the air consignment note relating to the weight dimensions and packing of the goods, as well as those relating to the number of packages are prima facie evidence of the facts stated; those relating to the quantity, volume and condition of the goods do not constitute evidence against the carrier except so far as they both have been, and are stated in the air consignment note to have been, checked by him in the presence of consignor or relate to the apparent condition of the goods.

12. (1) Subject to his liability to carry out all his obligations under the contract of carriage, the consignor has the right to dispose of the goods by withdrawing them at the aerodrome of departure or destination, or by stopping them in the course of the journey on any landing, or by calling for them to be delivered at the place of destination or in the course of the journey to a person other than the consignee named in the air consignment note, or by requiring them to be returned to the aerodrome of departure. He must not exercise this right of disposition in such a way as to prejudice the carrier or other consignors and he must repay any expenses occasioned by the exercise of this right.

(2) If it is impossible to carry out the orders of the consignor the carrier must so inform him forthwith.

(3) If the carrier obeys the orders of the consignor for the disposition of the goods without requiring the production of the part of the air consignment note delivered to the latter, he will be liable without prejudice to his right of recovery from the consignor, for any damage which may be caused thereby to any person who is lawfully in possession of that part of the air consignment note.

(4) The right conferred on the consignor ceases at the moment when that of the consignee begins in accordance with R. 13. Nevertheless, if the consignee declines to accept the consignment note or the goods or if he cannot be communicated with, the consignor resumes his right of disposition.

13. (1) Except in the circumstances set out in R. 12, the consignee is entitled, on arrival of the goods at the place of destination, to require the carrier to hand over to him the air consignment note and to deliver the goods to him, on payment of the charges due and on complying with the conditions of carriage set out in the air consignment note.

(2) Unless it is otherwise agreed, it is the duty of the carrier to give notice to the consignee as soon as the goods arrive.

(3) If the carrier admits the loss of the goods, or if the goods have not arrived at the expiration of seven days after the date on which they ought to have arrived, the consignee is entitled to put into force against the carrier the rights which flow from the contract of carriage.

14. The consignor and the consignee can respectively enforce all the rights given them by Rr. 12 and 13 each in his own name, whether he is acting in his own interest or in the interest of another, provided that he carries out the obligations imposed by contract.

15. (1) Rules 12, 13 and 14, do not affect either the relations of the consignor or the consignee with each other or the mutual relations of third parties whose rights are derived either from the consignor or from the consignee.

(2) The provisions of Rr. 12, 13 and 14 can only be varied by express provision in the air consignment note.

16. (1) The consignor must furnish such information and attach to the air consignment note such documents as are necessary to meet the formalities of customs, octroi or police before the goods can be delivered to the consignee. The consignor is liable to the carrier for any damage occasioned by the absence, insufficiency or irregularity of any such information or documents, unless the damage is due to the fault of the carrier or his agents.

(2) The carrier is under no obligation to enquire into the correctness or sufficiency of such information or documents.

CHAPTER III.

LIABILITY OF THE CARRIER.

17. The carrier is liable for damage sustained in the event of the death or wounding of a passenger or any other bodily injury suffered by a passenger, if the accident which caused the damage so sustained took place on board the aircraft or in the course of any of the operations of embarking or disembarking.

18. (1) The carrier is liable for damage sustained in the event of the destruction or loss of, or of damage to, any registered luggage or any goods, if the occurrence which caused the damage so sustained took place during carriage by air.

(2) The carriage by air within the meaning of the preceding paragraph comprises the period during which the luggage or goods are in charge of the carrier, whether in an aerodrome or on board an aircraft, or, in the case of a landing outside an aerodrome, in any place whatsoever.

(3) The period of the carriage by air does not extend to any carriage by land, by sea or by river performed outside an aerodrome. If, however, such a carriage takes place in the performance of a contract for carriage by air, for the purpose of loading, delivery or transshipment, any damage is presumed, subject to proof to the contrary, to have been the result of an event which took place during the carriage by air.

19. The carrier is liable for damage occasioned by delay in the carriage by air of passengers, luggage or goods.

20. (1) The carrier is not liable if he proves that he and his agents have taken all necessary measures to avoid the damage or that it was impossible for him or them to take such measures.

(2) In the carriage of goods and luggage the carrier is not liable if he proves that the damage was occasioned by negligent pilotage or negligence in the handling of the aircraft or in navigation and that, in all other respects, he and his agents have taken all necessary measures to avoid the damage.

21. If the carrier proves that the damage was caused by or contributed to by the negligence of the injured person the Court may exonerate the carrier wholly or partly from his liability.

22. (1) In the carriage of passengers the liability of the carrier for each passenger is limited to the sum of 1,25,000 francs. Where damages may be awarded in the form of periodical payments, the equivalent capital value of the said payments shall not exceed 1,25,000 francs. Nevertheless, by special contract, the carrier and the passenger may agree to a higher limit of liability.

(2) In the carriage of registered luggage and of goods, the liability of the carrier is limited to a sum of 250 francs per kilogram, unless the consignor has made, at the time when the package was handed over to the carrier, a special declaration of the value at delivery and has paid a supplementary sum if the case so requires. In that case the carrier will be liable to pay a sum not exceeding the declared sum, unless he proves that that sum is greater than the actual value of the consignor at delivery.

(3) As regards objects of which the passenger takes charge himself the liability of the carrier is limited to 5,000 francs per passenger.

(4) The sums mentioned in this rule shall be deemed to refer to the French franc consisting of 65½ milligrams gold of a millesimal fineness 900.

23. Any provision tending to relieve the carrier of liability or to fix a lower limit than that which is laid down in these rules shall be null and void, but the nullity of any such provision does not involve the nullity of the whole contract which shall remain subject to the provisions of this Schedule.

24. (1) In the cases covered by Rr. 18 and 19 any action for damages, however founded, can only be brought subject to the conditions and limits set out in this Schedule.

(2) In the cases covered by R. 17 the provisions of sub-R. (1) also apply without prejudice to the questions as to who are the persons who have the right to bring suit and what are their respective rights.

25. (1) The carrier shall not be entitled to avail himself of the provisions of this Schedule which exclude or limit his liability if the damage caused by his wilful misconduct or by such default on his part as is in the opinion of the Court equivalent to wilful misconduct.

(2) Similarly the carrier shall not be entitled to avail himself of the said provisions, if the damage is caused as aforesaid by any agent of the carrier acting within the scope of his employment.

26. (1) Receipt by the person entitled to delivery of luggage or goods without complaint is prima facie evidence that the same have been delivered in good condition and in accordance with the document of carriage.

(2) In the case of damage, the person entitled to delivery must complain to the carrier forthwith after the discovery of the damage, and, at the latest, within three days from the date of receipt in the case of luggage and seven days from the date of receipt in the case of goods. In the case of delay the complaint must be made at the latest within fourteen days from the date on which the luggage or goods have been placed at his disposal.

(3) Every complaint must be made in writing upon the document of carriage or by separate notice in writing despatched within the times aforesaid.

(4) Failing complaint within the times aforesaid, no action shall lie against the carrier, save in the case of fraud on his part.

27. In the case of the death of the person liable, an action for damages lies in accordance with these rules against those legally representing his estate.

28. An action for damages must be brought at the option of the plaintiff, either before the Court having jurisdiction where the carrier is ordinarily resident, or has his principal place of business, or has an establishment by which the contract has been made or before the Court having jurisdiction at the place of destination.

29. The right of damages shall be extinguished if an action is not brought within two years, reckoned from the date of arrival at the destination, or from the date on which the aircraft ought to have arrived, or from the date on which the carriage stopped.

30. (1) In the case of a carriage to be performed by various successive carriers and falling within the definition set out in sub-R. (4) of R. 1, each carrier who accepts passengers, luggage or goods is subjected to the rules set out in this Schedule, and is deemed to be one of the contracting parties to the contract of carriage in so far as the contract deals with that part of the carriage which is performed under his supervision.

(2) In the case of carriage of this nature, the passenger or his representative can take action only against the carrier who performed the carriage during which the accident or the delay occurred, save in the case where, by express agreement, the first carrier has assumed liability for the whole journey.

(3) As regards luggage or goods, the passenger or consignor will have a right of action against the first carrier, and the passenger or consignee who is entitled to delivery will have a right of action against the last carrier, and further, each may take action against the carrier who performed the carriage during which the destruction, loss, damage or delay took place. These carriers will be jointly and severally liable to the passenger or to the consignor or consignee.

CHAPTER IV.

PROVISIONS RELATING TO COMBINED CARRIAGE.

31. (1) In the case of combined carriage performed partly by air and partly by any other mode of carriage, the provisions of this Schedule apply only to the carriage by air, provided that the carriage by air, falls within the terms of rule 1.

(2) Nothing in this Schedule shall prevent the parties in the case of combined carriage from inserting in the document of air carriage conditions relating to other modes of carriage, provided that the provisions of this Schedule are observed as regards the carriage by air.

CHAPTER V.

GENERAL AND FINAL PROVISIONS.

32. Any clause contained in the contract and all special agreements entered into before the damage occurred by which the parties purport to infringe the rules laid down by this Schedule, whether by deciding the law to be applied, or by altering the rules as to jurisdiction shall be null and void. Nevertheless for the carriage of goods arbitration clauses are allowed, subject to these rules, if the arbitration is to take place in the territory of one of the High Contracting Parties within one of the jurisdictions referred to in R. 28.

33. Nothing contained in this Schedule shall prevent the carrier either from refusing to enter into any contract of carriage, or from making regulations which do not conflict with the provisions of this Schedule.

34. This Schedule does not apply to international carriage by air performed by way of experimental trial by air navigation undertakings with the view to the establishment of a regular line of air navigation, nor does it apply to carriage performed in extraordinary circumstances outside the normal scope of an air carrier's business.

35. The expression "days" when used in these rules means current days, not working days.

36. When a High Contracting Party has declared at the time of ratification of or of accession to the Convention that the first paragraph of Art. 2 of the Convention shall not apply to international carriage by air performed directly by the State, its colonies, protectorates or mandated territories or by any other territory under its sovereignty, suzerainty or authority, these rules shall not apply to international carriage by air so performed.

SECOND SCHEDULE

(See section 2.)

PROVISIONS AS TO LIABILITY OF CARRIERS IN THE EVENT OF THE DEATH OF A PASSENGER.

1. The liability shall be enforceable for the benefit of such of the members of the passenger's family as sustained damage by reason of his death.

In this rule the expression "member of a family" means wife or husband, parent, step-parent, grand-parent, brother, sister, half-brother, half-sister, child, step-child, grand-child:

Provided that in deducing any such relationship as aforesaid any illegitimate person and any adopted person shall be treated as being, or as having been, the legitimate child of his mother and reputed father or, as the may be, of his adopters.

2. An action to enforce the liability may be brought by the personal representative of the passenger or by any person for whose benefit the liability is under the last preceding rule enforceable, but only one action shall be brought in British India in respect of the death of any one passenger, and every such action by whomsoever brought shall be for the benefit of all such persons so entitled as aforesaid as either are domiciled in British India, or, not being domiciled there express a desire to take the benefit of the action.

3. Subject to the provisions of the next succeeding rule the amount recovered in any such action, after deducting any costs not recovered from the defendant, shall be divided between the persons entitled in such proportions as the Court may direct.

4. The Court before which any such action is brought may at any stage of the proceedings make any such order as appears to the Court to be just and equitable in view of the provisions of the First Schedule to this Act limiting the liability of a carrier and of any proceedings which have been, or are likely to be, commenced outside British India in respect of the death of the passenger in question.

THE CARRIAGE OF GOODS BY SEA ACT (XXVI OF 1925).<sup>1</sup>

[21st September, 1925]

An Act to amend the law with respect to the carriage of goods by sea.

WHEREAS at the International Conference on Maritime Law held at Brussels in October 1922, the delegates at the Conference, including the delegates representing His Majesty agreed unanimously to recommend their respective Governments to adopt as the basis of a convention a draft convention for the unification of certain rules relating to bills of lading;

AND WHEREAS at a meeting held at Brussels in October, 1923, the rules contained in the said draft convention were amended by the Committee appointed by the said Conference;

AND WHEREAS provision has been made by the Carriage of Goods by Sea Act, 1924, that the said rules as so amended and as set out with modifications in the schedule shall, subject to the provisions of that Act, have the force of law with a view to establishing the responsibilities, liabilities, rights and immunities attaching to carriers under bills of lading;

AND WHEREAS it is expedient that like provision should be made in British India; It is hereby enacted as follows:—

Short title and extent. 1. (1) This Act may be called THE INDIAN CARRIAGE OF GOODS BY SEA ACT, 1925.

(2) It extends to the whole of British India.

Application of rules. 2. Subject to the provisions of this Act, the rules set out in the schedule (hereinafter referred to as "the rules") shall have effect in relation to and in connection with the carriage of goods by sea in ships carrying goods from any port in British India to any other port whether in or outside British India.

Absolute warranty of seaworthiness not to be implied in contracts to which rules apply. 3. There shall not be implied in any contract for the carriage of goods by sea to which the rules apply any absolute undertaking by the carrier of the goods to provide a seaworthy ship.

Statement as to application of Rules to be included in bills of lading. 4. Every bill of lading, or similar document of title, issued in British India which contains or is evidence of any contract to which the rules apply, shall contain an express statement that it is to have effect subject to the provisions of the said rules as applied by this Act.

Modification of Article VI of Rules in relation to goods carried in sailing ships and by prescribed routes. 5. Article VI of the Rules shall, in relation to—
(a) the carriage of goods by sea in sailing ships carrying goods from any port in British India to any other port whether in or outside British India, and

(b) the carriage of goods by sea in ships carrying goods from a port in British India notified<sup>2</sup> in this behalf in the <sup>3</sup>[Official Gazette] by the

RULES RELATING TO BILLS OF LADING.

ARTICLE I.

DEFINITIONS.

In these rules the following expressions have the meanings hereby assigned to them respectively that is to say—

(a) "Carrier" includes the owner or the charterer who enters into a contract of carriage with a shipper;

(b) "Contract of carriage" applies only to contracts of carriage covered by a bill of lading or any similar document of title, in so far as such document relates to the carriage of goods by sea, including any bill of lading or any similar document as aforesaid, issued under or pursuant to a charterparty from the moment at which such bill of lading or similar document of title regulates the relations between a carrier and a holder of the same;

(c) "Goods" includes goods, wares, merchandises, and articles of every kind whatsoever, except live animals and cargo which by the contract of carriage is stated as being carried on deck and is so carried;

(d) "Ship" means any vessel used for the carriage of goods by sea;

(e) "Carriage of goods" covers the period from the time when the goods are loaded on to the time when they are discharged from the ship.

ARTICLE II.

RISKS.

ARTS. II AND III.—CASE UNDER BURMA CARRIAGE OF GOODS BY SEA ACT. Where in a contract to carry a cargo of potatoes by sea all the terms and provisions of the Burma Carriage of Goods Act had been incorporated as applicable to the contract, and there is damage to the cargo owing to the negligence of the servants of the carrier, by virtue of Art. 11 of the Schedule the carrier shall be liable under the contract and not by way of tort in addition to it. A suit in respect of such damage is to be brought within one year after delivery or the date when goods should have been delivered. 1940 Rang.L.R. 552=A.I.R. 1940 Rang. 294.

and discharge of such goods shall be subject to the responsibilities and liabilities, and entitled to the rights and immunities hereinafter set forth.

ARTICLE III.

RESPONSIBILITIES AND LIABILITIES.

1. The carrier shall be bound, before and at the beginning of the voyage, to exercise due diligence to—

- (a) Make the ship seaworthy;
- (b) Properly man, equip, and supply the ship;
- (c) Make the holds, refrigerating and cool chambers, and all other parts of the ship in which goods are carried, fit and safe for their reception, carriage and preservation.

2. Subject to the provisions of Article IV, the carrier shall properly and carefully load, handle, stow, carry, keep, care for and discharge the goods carried.

3. After receiving the goods into his charge, the carrier, or the master or agent of the carrier, shall, on demand of the shipper; issue to the shipper a bill of lading showing among other things—

(a) The leading marks necessary for identification of the goods as the same are furnished in writing by the shipper before the loading of such goods starts, provided such marks are stamped or otherwise shown clearly upon the goods if uncovered, or on the cases or covering in which such goods are contained, in such a manner as should ordinarily remain legible until the end of the voyage;

(b) Either the number of packages or pieces, or the quantity, or weight, as the case may be, as furnished in writing by the shipper;

(c) The apparent order and condition of the goods:

Provided that no carrier, master or agent of the carrier, shall be bound to state or show in the bill of lading any marks, number, quantity, or weight which he has reasonable grounds for suspecting not accurately to represent the goods actually received, or which he has had no reasonable means of checking.<sup>1</sup>

4. Such a bill of lading shall be prima facie evidence of the receipt by the carrier of the goods as therein described in accordance with paragraph 3 (a), (b) and (c).

5. The shipper shall be deemed to have guaranteed to the carrier the accuracy at the time of shipment of the marks, number, quantity and weight; as furnished by him, and the shipper shall indemnify the carrier against all loss, damages and expenses arising or resulting from inaccuracies in such particulars. The right of the carrier to such indemnity shall in no way limit his responsibility and liability under the contract of carriage to any person other than the shipper.

6. Unless notice of loss or damage and the general nature of such loss or damage be given in writing to the carrier or his agent at the port of discharge before or at the time of the removal of the goods into the custody of the person entitled to delivery thereof under the contract of carriage, or, if the loss or damage be not apparent, within three days, such removal shall be prima facie evidence of the delivery by the carrier of the goods as described in the bill of lading.<sup>2</sup>

The notice in writing need not be given if the state of the goods has at the time of their receipt been the subject of joint survey or inspection.

In any event the carrier and the ship shall be discharged from all liability in respect of loss or damage unless suit is brought within one year after delivery of the goods or the date when the goods should have been delivered.

NOTES.

SCH. I, ART. III, PARA. 6: CONSTRUCTION—PERIOD OF ONE YEAR—IF CAN BE EXTENDED. The period of one year fixed in para. 6, Art. 3, Sch. I is to be construed strictly and is not to be allowed to be extended by vague and indefinite arguments and pleas. Where a ship leaves the port on a particular date she must be deemed to have delivered the cargo to the consignees within the meaning of para. 6, Art. 3, and it is not open to the consignees to take advantage of a survey, which has been unduly delayed in order to extend the period of time. 1937 Sind 11=168 I.C. 330.

PORT TRUST—IF AGENTS OF SHIP OWNERS.—The Port Trust are not the agents of the ship-owners to hold identified and ascertained consignments indefinitely at the will of the consignees, so as to make the ship-owners liable for the loss caused to the consignments, although in particular cases it may well be that they are agents of the ship-owners for the limited purpose of identifying and delivering the consignments mixed together. 1937 Sind 11.

"REMOVAL"—MEANING.—The word 'removal' in Para. 6, Art. 3, Sch. I, Carriage of Goods by Sea Act, means physical removal. 1937 Sind 11.

In the case of any actual or apprehended loss or damage the carrier and the receiver shall give all reasonable facilities to each other for inspecting and tallying the goods.

7. After the goods are loaded the bill of lading to be issued by the carrier, master or agent of the carrier, to the shipper shall, if the shipper so demand be a "shipped" bill of lading, provided that, if the shipper shall have previously taken up any document of title to such goods, he shall surrender the same as against the issue of the "shipped" bill of lading but at the option of the carrier, such document of title may be noted at the port of shipment by the carrier, master or agent with the name or names of the ship or ships upon which the goods have been shipped and the date or dates of shipment, and when so noted the same shall for the purpose of this Article be deemed to constitute a "shipped" bill of lading.

8. Any clause, covenant or agreement in a contract of carriage relieving the carrier or the ship from liability for loss or damage to or in connexion with goods arising from negligence, fault or failure in the duties and obligations provided in this Article or lessening such liability otherwise than as provided in these rules, shall be null and void and of no effect.

A benefit of insurance or similar clause shall be deemed to be a clause relieving the carrier from liability.

ARTICLE IV.

RIGHTS AND IMMUNITIES.

1. Neither the carrier nor the ship shall be liable for loss or damage arising or resulting from unseaworthiness unless caused by want of due diligence on the part of the carrier to make the ship seaworthy and to secure that the ship is properly manned, equipped and supplied and to make the holds, refrigerating and cool chambers and all other parts of the ship in which goods are carried fit and safe for their reception, carriage and preservation in accordance with the provisions of paragraph 1 of Article III.

Whenever loss or damage had resulted from unseaworthiness, the burden of proving the exercise of due diligence shall be on the carrier or other person claiming exemption under this section.

2. Neither the carrier nor the ship shall be responsible for loss or damage arising or resulting from—

- (a) act, neglect, or default of the master, mariner, pilot or the servants of the carrier in the navigation or in the management of the ship;
- (b) fire, unless caused by the actual fault or privity of the carrier;
- (c) perils, dangers and accidents of the sea or other navigable waters;
- (d) act of God;
- (e) act of war;
- (f) act of public enemies;
- (g) arrest or restraint of princes, rulers or people, or seizure under legal process;
- (h) quarantine restriction;
- (i) act or omission of the shipper or owner of the goods, his agent, or representative;
- (j) strikes or lock-outs or stoppage or restraint of labour from whatever cause, whether partial or general;
- (k) riots and civil commotions;
- (l) saving or attempting to save life or property at sea;
- (m) wastage in bulk or weight or any other loss or damage arising from inherent defect, quality, or vice of the goods;
- (n) insufficiency of packing;
- (o) insufficiency or inadequacy of marks;
- (p) latent defects not discoverable by due diligence;
- (q) any other cause arising without the actual fault or privity of the carrier, or without the fault or neglect of the agents or servants of the carrier, but the burden of

NOTES.

ART. IV, R. 2 (q).—The rules made under the Carriage of Goods by Sea Act, apply by reason of section 2 of that Act, only to the carriage of goods by sea in ships carrying goods from any port in British India to any other port whether in or outside British India. A lighter transporting goods from the wharf to a steamer lying at anchor in the roads does not come within the purview of section 2 of the Act. Even if the lighter be held to be a "ship" cl. (q) of rule 2 of Art. IV of the schedule to that Act would make the owners of the lighter liable for the loss caused by the fault of their agent, the tindal. A common carrier is liable for the loss of goods entrusted to him for carriage unless the loss be due to an act of God or of the King's Enemies. 49 L.W. 341 = A.I.R. 1939 Mad. 401 = (1939) 1 M.L.J. 235.

proof shall be on the person claiming the benefit of this exception to show that neither the actual fault or privity of the carrier nor the fault or neglect of the agents or servants of the carrier contributed to the loss or damage.

3. The shipper shall not be responsible for loss or damage sustained by the carrier or the ship arising or resulting from any cause without the act, fault or neglect of the shipper, his agents or his servants.

4. Any deviation in saving or attempting to save life or property at sea or any reasonable deviation shall not be deemed to be an infringement or breach of these Rules, or of the contract of carriage and the carrier shall not be liable for any loss or damage resulting therefrom.

5. Neither the carrier nor the ship shall in any event be or become liable for any loss or damage to or in connexion with goods in an amount exceeding 100l. per package or unit or the equivalent of that sum in other currency unless the nature and value of such goods have been declared by the shipper before shipment and inserted in the bill of lading.

This declaration if embodied in the bill of lading shall be prima facie evidence, but shall not be binding or conclusive on the carrier.

By agreement between the carrier, master or agent of the carrier and the shipper another maximum amount than that mentioned in this paragraph may be fixed provided that such maximum shall not be less than the figure above named.

Neither the carrier nor the ship shall be responsible in any event for loss or damage to or in connexion with goods if the nature or value thereof has been knowingly misstated by the shipper in the bill of lading.

6. Goods of an inflammable, explosive or dangerous nature to the shipment whereof the carrier, master or agent of the carrier, has not consented, with knowledge of their nature and character may at any time before discharge be landed at any place or destroyed or rendered innocuous by the carrier without compensation, and the shipper of such goods shall be liable for all damages and expenses directly or indirectly arising out of or resulting from such shipment.

If any such goods shipped with such knowledge and consent shall become a danger to the ship or cargo, they may in like manner be landed at any place or destroyed or rendered innocuous by the carrier without liability on the part of the carrier except to general average, if any.

ARTICLE V.

SURRENDER OF RIGHTS AND IMMUNITIES, AND INCREASE OF RESPONSIBILITIES AND LIABILITIES.

A carrier shall be at liberty to surrender in whole or in part all or any of his rights and immunities or to increase any of his responsibilities and liabilities under the rules contained in any of these Articles, provided such surrender or increase shall be embodied in the bill of lading issued to the shipper.

The provisions of these rules shall not be applicable to charterparties, but if bills of lading are issued in the case of a ship under a charterparty they shall comply with the terms of these rules. Nothing in these rules shall be held to prevent the insertion in a bill of lading of any lawful provision regarding general average.

ARTICLE VI.

SPECIAL CONDITIONS.

Notwithstanding the provisions of the preceding Articles, a carrier, master or agent of the carrier, and a shipper shall in regard to any particular goods be at liberty to enter into any agreement in any terms as to the responsibility and liability of the carrier for such goods, and as to the rights and immunities of the carrier in respect of such goods, or his obligation as to seaworthiness, so far as this stipulation is not contrary to public policy, or the care or diligence of his servants or agents in regard to the loading, handling, stowage, carriage, custody, care, and discharge of the goods carried by sea, provided that in this case no bill of lading has been or shall be issued and that the terms agreed shall be embodied in a receipt which shall be a non-negotiable document and shall be marked as such.

Any agreement so entered into shall have full legal effect:

Provided that this Article shall not apply to ordinary commercial shipments made in the ordinary course of trade, but only to other shipments where the character or condition of the property to be carried or the circumstances, terms and conditions under which the carriage is to be performed, are such as reasonably to justify a special agreement.

ARTICLE VII.

LIMITATIONS ON THE APPLICATION OF THE RULES.

Nothing herein contained shall prevent a carrier or a shipper from entering into any agreement, stipulation, condition; reservation or exemption as to the responsibility and liability of the carrier or the ship for the loss or damage to or in connexion with the custody and care and handling of goods prior to the loading on and subsequent to the discharge from the ship on which the goods are carried by sea.

ARTICLE VIII.

LIMITATION OF LIABILITY.

The provisions of these Rules shall not affect the rights and obligations of the carrier under any statute for the time being in force relating to the limitation of the liability of owners of sea-going vessels.

ARTICLE IX.

The monetary units mentioned in these Rules are to be taken to be gold value.

THE CARRIERS ACT (III OF 1865)<sup>1</sup>

EFFECT OF LEGISLATION

Year.	No.	Short title.	Effect of subsequent legislation.
1865	III	The Carriers Act, 1865	Repealed in part by Act IX of 1890. Section 2 repealed in part by Act X of 1914. Repealed (as to carriers by rail), by Act IV of 1879. Amended by Act X of 1899, S. 2 Amended by Act XIII of 1921.

PREFATORY NOTE: DEFINITION AND KINDS OF CARRIERS.—A carrier is one who undertakes the transportation of persons or movable property, and the authorities, both elementary and judicial, recognize two kinds of classes of carriers, viz., 'private carriers' and 'common carriers'. While a common carrier has been defined as one who holds himself out to the public to carry persons or freight for hire, the term did not, at the common law, embrace a carrier of passengers, and is commonly confined to carriers of goods, as distinguished from common carriers of passengers. (See the definition in S. 2). A private carrier is one who, without being engaged in such business as a public employment, undertakes to deliver goods in a particular case for hire or reward. A common carrier differs from a private carrier in two important respects: (1) In respect of duty, he being obliged by law to undertake the charge of transportation, which no other person without a special agreement is. (2) In respect of risk, the former being regarded by the law as an insurer, the latter, being liable like ordinary bailees.

APPLICABILITY OF LAW OF BAILMENTS.—(1) TO CARRIAGE OF GOODS.—The rules of liability applicable to private carriers of goods are those which are in general applicable to ordinary bailees, and the law as to common carriers of goods is a branch of the law covering the subject of bailments. That is, the carrier of goods is a bailee, and, aside from any considerations of public policy which affect the liability of a carrier conducting a public employment his duties and liabilities are in general those of an ordinary bailee; but these considerations of public policy have led to the recognition by the Courts from an early period in the history of the common law, of rules respecting the duty of the common carrier as to serving the public and as to liability for goods entrusted to his care which do not apply to private carriers of goods.

(2) TO CARRIAGE OF PASSENGERS.—A carrier of passengers is not, as to the person of the passenger, a bailee, and in this respect the law of carriers of passengers is not a part of the subject of bailments; but inasmuch as those who hold themselves out as prosecuting the business of carrying passengers for hire are regarded as undertaking a public duty, they are properly classed in this respect with public carriers of goods, and it is proper to treat them under the general heading of "Carriers". Moreover public carriers of passengers are deemed common carriers as to the baggage accepted by them for transportation as a part of the business of transporting passengers.

LEF. REF.

<sup>1</sup> For Statement of Objects and Reasons of the Bill which was passed into law as Act III of 1865, see Gazette of India Extra-

WHO ARE COMMON CARRIERS OF GOODS.—A common carrier has been defined as "one who undertakes for hire or reward to transport the goods of such as choose to employ him from place to place."

RIGHTS AND LIABILITIES OF COMMON CARRIERS.—"A common carrier must carry all goods that are tendered to him for carrying without insisting upon an unreasonable condition, provided they are of the description which he professes to carry, [Garton v. Bristol and Exeter Railway, (1861) 1 B. and S. 162; Great Western Railway v. Sutton, 1868 L.R. 4 H.L. 226], he has accommodation for the goods [Jackson v. Rogers, (1863) 2 Show 327] and reasonable payment of their carriage is offered [Wyld v. Pickford, (1841) 8 Mec. and W. 443; 58 R.R. 775], and the sender is ready and willing to pay it (Bullen and Leake, 3rd Ed., p. 277); and also provided that the goods are brought neither too late for the journey by which they are to go [see Pickford v. Grand Junction Railway, (1844) 12 Mec. and W. 766]; nor too long a time before the journey is to begin [Lane v. Cotton, (1701) 1 Raym. (Ld.); at p. 652; see Great Western Railway v. Bunch, (1888) 13 App. Cas. 31]. But the carrier may apparently refuse to take goods which will subject him to exceptional danger [Edwards v. Sherrat, (1801) 1 East 604, per Hale, C.J.; Morse v. Shuc; (1672) 1 Vent. 238]. Unless otherwise agreed; he must deliver within a reasonable time having regard to the circumstances of the case [Taylor v. Great Northern Railway, (1866) L.R. 1 C.P. 385; Hales v. London and North-Western Railway, (1863) 4 B. and S. 661] and by the route which he professes to be his route [Foster v. G.W. Ry., (1904) 2 K.B. 306, distinguishing Mallet v. G.E. Ry., (1899) 1 Q.B. 309; see Ency. of Laws of England, Vol. II, p. 580]. A carrier is liable for injury arising from negligence in the execution of his contract to carry, unless he has effectively stipulated that he shall be free from such liability. If the contract is one which deprives the passenger of the benefit of a duty or care which he is prima facie entitled to expect that the Railway Company has accepted, the latter must discharge the burden of proving that the passenger assented to the special terms imposed. This he may show to have been done either in person or through the agency of another. Such agency will be held to have been established when he is shown to have authorised antecedently or by way of ratification the making of the contract under circumstances in which he must be taken to have left everything to his agent. In such a case it is sufficient to prove that he has been content to accept the risk of allowing terms to be made without taking the trouble to learn what was being agreed to. In such cases the Railway company may infer his intention from his conduct. Where therefore a passenger who is to be carried upon special conditions at a reduced fare has allowed terms to be made for him by an agent the presumption is that the passenger was content to accept the risk without enquiring what the terms agreed upon by his agent were. 19 C.W.N. 905 (P.C.); see also 54 Cal. 430.

ordinary, dated 1st August, 1864, and for Proceedings relating to the Bill, see ibid., Supplement, p. 497, and ibid., 1865, pp. 51, 64 and 65.

The Act has been declared to be in force in the whole of British India, except as regards the Scheduled Districts, by the Laws Loans Extent Act (XV of 1874), S. 3.

It has been applied to Upper Burma generally (except the Shan States) by the Burma Laws Act (XIII of 1898), Bur. Code, Vol. I, but its application to hill-tribes in a hill tract is barred by the Kachin Hill Tribes Regulation (I of 1895), Bur. Code, Vol. I; and to Chins in the Chin Hills by the Chin Hills Regulation (V of 1896), Bur. Code, Vol. I. It has been applied to the Santhal Parganas, by the Santhal Parganas Settlement Regulation (III of 1872), S. 31, as amended by the Santhal Parganas Justice and Laws Regulation (III of 1899), B. and O. Code, Vol. I.

It has been declared, by notification under section 3 (a) of the Scheduled Districts Act (XIV of 1874), to be in force in the following Scheduled Districts, namely:—

Sindh. See Gazette of India, 1880, Pt. I, p. 672.

West Jalpaiguri, the Western Hills of Darjiling, the Darjiling Tarai and the Damson Sub-division of the Darjiling District. See Gazette of India 1881, Pt. I, p. 74.

It has been declared, by notification under section 3 (b) of the last-mentioned Act, not to be in force in the Scheduled District of Lahaul—see Gazette of India, 1886, Pt. I, p. 301.

It has been extended, by notification under section 5 of the same Act, to the following Scheduled Districts, namely:—

The Tarai of the Province of Agra. See Gazette of India, 1876, Pt. I, p. 505.

Ajmer and Merwara. See Gazette of India, 1877, Pt. I, p. 605.

It has been repealed as to carriers by rail by the Indian Railways Act (IV of 1879). For the Indian Railways Act now in force, see the Indian Railways Act (IX of 1890).

NOTES.

SEC. 1: ACT IS NOT EXHAUSTIVE—THE LIABILITY OF THE COMMON CARRIERS IS GOVERNED BY THE ENGLISH COMMON LAW AS MODIFIED BY THE CARRIERS ACT.—A common carrier is subject to two distinct classes of liability, the one as insurer, in which the element of default is absent, the other for losses, as he is under an obligation to carry safely, in which that element is present. The Carriers Act modifies this by providing that the liability as insurer for goods not mentioned in the schedule may be limited by

WHO ARE COMMON CARRIERS.—Owners of sea-going merchant ships (26 C. 562); owners of steamships plying periodically (3 M. 107); carrier by water generally (38 M. 941). See also 28 M. 400. The proprietor of a motor bus service, which is essentially intended for the carrying of passengers and their luggage or goods, if any, cannot be regarded as a common carrier so far as transport of goods is concerned. If the conductor of a bus belonging to such a service on his own responsibility, accepts a consignment of goods from a person other than a passenger undertaking to deliver it to a person who would call for the same at a specified place, and takes payment for such transport, issuing a ticket to the consignor in the same way as to a passenger who has luggage, and the consignment miscarries, the proprietor cannot be treated as a common carrier so as to make him liable for the act of the conductor in his employ. The matter is one between the consignor and the conductor, and the proprietor is not responsible on any such contract to which he is not a party. 17 Mys.L.J. 284.

As to duties of common carriers under the Act, see 51 I.A. 28=51 C. 304 (P.C.).

LIABILITY OF COMMON CARRIER.—A common carrier does not cease to fill that character if he enters into a special contract limiting his liability both under the Carriers Act and under the Indian Railways Act. 31 I.C. 474=11 N.L.R. 174. Carrier is ordinarily the agent of the buyer not only to take delivery but also to assent to appropriation. 12 I.C. 662. A common carrier in India is liable as an insurer. He is responsible for safety of goods entrusted to him except when loss or injury arises from act of God or King's enemies. But this liability may be varied by contract. 29 I.C. 260=21 C. L.J. 565. In India carriers by sea do not get the benefit of the Act. 40 B. 529=33 I.C. 536. Carriers by sea for hire are common carriers though the Carriers Act of 1865 does not apply to them. 38 M. 941. The duties and liabilities of a common carrier are governed in India by the principles of the English Common Law on the subject except where they have been departed from the Carriers Act, or by the Railways Act (Ibid.) Where the bill of lading contained the clause "At shipper's risk with option of carrying on deck," and the goods (betel leaves) went bad for want of ventilation, held, that the carrier was not liable in damages, being exempted by the special clause. 30 I.C. 939 (1). Stipulations exempting the carrier from liability will be held to limit his liability as insurer and not his liability Interpretation clause.

2. In this Act, unless there be something repugnant in the subject or context—

“common carrier” denotes a person, other than the Government, engaged in the business of transporting for hire property from place to place, by land or inland navigation, for all persons indiscriminately:

“Person”.

3. No common carrier shall be liable for the loss of or damage to property delivered to him to be carried exceeding in value one hundred rupees and of the description contained in the schedule to this Act, unless the person delivering such property to be carried, or some person duly authorized in that behalf, shall have expressly declared to such carrier or his agent the value and description thereof.<sup>3</sup>

Carriers not to be liable for loss of certain goods above one hundred rupees in value, unless delivered as such.

For carrying such property, payment may be required at rates fixed by carrier.

4. Every such carrier may require payment for the risk undertaken in carrying property exceeding in value one hundred rupees and of the description aforesaid, at such rate of charge as he may fix:

Provided that, to entitle such carrier to payment at a rate higher than his ordinary rate of charge, he shall have caused to be exhibited in the place where he carries on the business of receiving property to be carried, notice of the higher rate of charge required, printed or written in English and in the vernacular language of the country wherein he carries on such business.

mon carrier, a notice of claim under S. 10 must be given, even though the carrier came to know of the claim aliunde within six months' time and had no difficulty in tracing the goods. 41 I.C. 919=27 C.L.J. 294; 38 C. 50. The essential of a good notice under S. 10 is that it should reach the person who is liable to make good the loss. 54 Cal. 430 =31 C.W.N. 358=1927 C. 394.

PLEADING NOTICE.—In a suit against persons alleged to be common carriers within the meaning of the Carriers Act for the loss or injury to goods entrusted to them for carriage, it is not necessary for the plaintiff, as in the case of S. 80, C.P. Code, to expressly state in the plaint that he has issued a notice under S. 10, Carriers Act. Such an averment is implied under O. 6, R. 6, C.P. Code, and it is for the defendants to deny in their written statement according to O. 8, R. 2, that they are common carriers or to raise the plea of the absence of notice. Where they fail to do so, the onus is on them to prove and to show that they took good care in the carriage of the plaintiff's goods. Per Dunkley, J.—An averment in plaint that demands were made for the amount of damage claimed but to no avail, which is not denied by the defendants, is a sufficient compliance with the provisions of S. 10. Moreover failure to raise in the written statement the plea of the absence of notice amounts to waiver on the part of the defendants of the proof of notice. The notice under S. 10 is not a part of cause of action of the suit but is merely a condition which has to be performed before the suit could be brought and differs in that respect from a notice under S. 80, C.P. Code. A.I.R. 1938 Rang. 437.

PREFATORY NOTE.—"When Warren Hastings became the Governor of Bengal, one of his first acts was to lay down a plan for the administration of civil justice in the interior of Bengal. With respect to civil rights, Warren Hastings' plan of 1772 directed by his twenty-third rule, that "in all suits regarding marriage, inheritance and caste and other religious usage and institutions, the laws of the Koran with respect to Mahomedans, and those of Shaster with respect to Gentus (Hindus) shall be invariably adhered to". Moulvies or Brahmins were directed to attend the Courts for the purpose of expounding the law and giving assistance in framing the decrees. The principle laid down by the above rule of Warren Hastings was recognised and confirmed by the code of regulations issued by the Government of Bengal in 1780, as also by the British Parliament in 1881 by the provision contained in section 18 of 21 Geo. III, c. 70. Enactments to the same effect have been introduced into numerous subsequent English and Indian enactments. A Bengal Regulation of 1832 (VII of 1832), whilst re-enacting the rules of Warren Hastings which had been embodied in previous regulations qualified their application by a provision which attracted little attention at that time, but afterwards became the subject of considerable discussion. It declared that these rules are intended and shall be held to apply to such person as bona fide professes those religions at the time of the application of the law to the case, and were designed for the protection of the rights of such persons, not for the deprivation of the rights of others. Where, therefore, in any civil suit the parties to such suits may be of different persuasion, where one party shall be of the Hindu and the other of the Mahomedan persuasion, or where one or more of the parties to such suit shall not be either of the Mahomedan or Hindu persuasion the laws of those religions shall not be permitted to operate to deprive such party or parties of any property to which, but for the operation of such laws they would have been entitled. In all such cases the decision shall be governed by the principles of justice and equity, and this provision shall not be considered as justifying the introduction of the English or any foreign law or the application to such cases of any rules not sanctioned by those principles. In the year 1850 the Government of India passed the law (XXI of 1850) of which the object was to extend the principle of this regulation throughout the territories subject to the Government of the East India Company. This Act, which was at the time of its passing, known as the Lex Loci Act, excited considerable opposition among orthodox Hindus as unduly favouring converts and has been criticised from the Hindu point of view with respect to its operation on the guardianship of children in a case where one of two parents had been converted from Hinduism to Mahomedanism. It will have been observed that Warren Hastings' rule and the enactment based upon it apply to Hindus and Mahomedans. There are, of course, many natives of India who are neither Hindus nor Mahomedans, such as the Portuguese and Armenian Christians, the Parsis, the Sikhs, the Jains, the Buddhists of Burma and elsewhere and the Jews. The tendency of the Courts or the legislature has been to apply to these classes the spirit of Warren Hastings' rule and to leave them in the enjoyment of family law, except so far as they have shown a disposition to place themselves under English Law." (See Ilbert's Government of India, 2nd Ed., 1907, pp. 323, 329.) This Act was originally known as the Lex Loci Act, and is even now generally cited under the same designation. The title is, however, a misnomer. It was properly applied to the other provisions which were subsequently dropped. (See the evidence of Mr. Cameron before the Select Committee of the House of Lords in 1852; Ilbert's Government of India, 2nd Ed., 1907, p. 328 Note.)

cable to the Province of Oudh from the date of annexation at the earliest, that is the year 1856. 4 O.W.N. 1243=1928 Oudh 138.

OBJECT OF THE ACT.—19 W.R. 367 (406); construction of this Act (ibid.); conflict to be avoided in construing Act. 77 P.R. 1907; 11 A. 100.

APPLICATION OF ACT.—Act applies to all cases of ex-communication from caste—Cause of ex-communication being immaterial. 2 N.W.P. 446; ex-communication of Hindu widow for unchastity causes no forfeiture of rights. 1 B. 559; 32 C. 871; 19 W.R. 367 (379). Application of Act to heirs of convert. See 21 P.L.R. 1903; 32 C. 871; 11 A. 100; 57 I.A. 313=60 M.L.J. 275 (P.C.); 1935 Oudh 301. Change of religion—Effect on guardianship of minor children—Inapplicability of rule in Jammu and Kashmir. See 41 P.L.R. J. & K. 33.

Act applies only for the benefit of the person who changes his religion. In other words, when once a person has changed his religion and changed his personal law, that law will govern the rights of succession of his children. 160 I.C. 48=1936 A.L.J. 488=1936 A.W.R. 198=1936 All. 202.

EFFECT OF THE ACT.—Act XXI of 1850 secures after apostasy the same rights to individuals in property as they enjoyed before apostasy. 31 I.C. 476=98 P.R. 1915. Section 1 merely removes the personal disability of the person who has changed his religion from enforcing his rights which he possessed prior to the change. It does not lay down that if any ancestor of the propositus in any degree of ascent has changed his religion the Act would apply in determining the status of an heir to such a propositus. The removal of the penalty which the preamble bears out is clearly intended for the benefit of the party who has incurred the penalty and not for others. The Act has no application to a case where the claimant of rights either of one class or of the other has neither renounced nor has been excluded from the communion of any religion or been deprived of caste. 4 O.W.N. 1243=1928 O. 138. Degradation by apostasy does not dissolve marriage among Hindus. 9 M. 466 (470); 18 C. 264; 17 M. 235; 23 M. 171; 25 B. 644; 49 P.R. 1907; 4 B. 330; 4 M. 243; 8 M. 169; 2 N.W.P. 300; as to restitution of conjugal rights, see 8 A. 78. Hindu widow re-marrying after conversion—Effect on her rights of inheritance. 23 M.L.J. 81; 19 C. 289; 35 A. 466. Act does not affect usage of Hindu temple or other religious institution. 13 M. 293; 13 I.A. 105; 11 M.I.A. 405. Loss of caste does not involve loss beneficial to extend the principle of that enactment throughout the territories subject to the Government of the East India Company; It is enacted as follows:—

1. So much of any law or usage now in force within the territories subject to the Government of the East India Company as inflicts on any person forfeiture of rights or property, or may be held in any way to impair or affect any right of inheritance, by reason of his or her renouncing, or having been excluded from the communion of, any religion, or being deprived of caste, shall cease to be enforced as law in the Courts of the East India Company, and in the Courts established by Royal Charter within the said territories.

THE INDIAN CENSUS ACT (XXIV OF 1939).

[26th September, 1939.

An Act to provide for certain matters in connection with the taking of the census.

WHEREAS it has been determined to take a census of British India during the year 1941, and whereas it is expedient to provide for certain matters in connection with the taking of such census;

It is hereby enacted as follows:—

Short title and extent.

1. (1) This Act may be called THE INDIAN CENSUS ACT, 1939.

NOTES.

of right of guardianship. 167 P.L.R. 1901; 1 A. 549; 14 M.L.A. 309; 28 A. 233; or right to give Hindu son in adoption. 25 B. 551.

SEC. 1.—A convert or outcaste from Hindu religion retains his right of inheritance whether the right accrues before or after the conversion to another religion or exclusion from caste. 3 Pat. 152. Courts in India should refuse to interfere with the autonomy of caste, i.e., with the decisions of caste panchayats provided they are not opposed to natural justice. 23 I.C. 301=12 A.L.J. 552. Caste panchayats deal with families as units. 23 I.C. 301=12 A.L.J. 552. The effect of section 9 of the Bengal Regulation (VII of 1832) and of Act XXI of 1850 which extended the principles of the Regulation to the whole of British India is virtually to set aside the provisions of Hindu Law which penalise the renunciation of religion or exclusion from caste by enforcing forfeiture of the property of the converts. 33 A. 356=38 I.A. 87=15 C.W.N. 545=21 M.L.J. 845 (P.C.). A Hindu who was joint in estate with his son became a convert to Mahomedanism in 1845 and died in 1851, his son having predeceased him. Held, that the convert's son who remained Hindu did not acquire any enforceable right to his father's share in the joint family property which he could either assert in himself or transmit to his heirs for enforcement in a British Court of Justice. (Ibid.) Conversion by a Hindu wife to Mahomedanism—Right of succession. See 21 L.W. 415 at 431. A Hindu son is entitled to inherit the property of his father who was converted to Mahomedanism. See 27 I.C. 357=8 S.L.R. 155 (11 A. 100, Foll.); 38 I.A. 87; 23 M. 171; 21 C. 697, Ref.; 1927 M. 72. Conversion of one member of Hindu family—Coparcenary right of—Survivorship put an end to. 26 L.W. 361=1927 M. 883=105 I.C. 206. As to burden of proof, see 27 I.C. 357.

The Caste Disabilities Removal Act has abrogated the rule of Mahomedan Law by which a non-Muslim is excluded from succession to a Muslim. 1 Lah. 376. When a convert to Christianity leaves descendants behind him, they cannot, as reversioners claim the estate of a deceased Hindu, as the provision for removal of disabilities under the above Act applies only to the apostate and does not extend to his descendants. 40 M. 1118 (11 A. 100, diss. from). See also 98 I.C. 867=24 L.W. 675=1926 M.W.N. 952. A convert's son must be put in the position in which he would have been, if his father had not changed his religion. 27 I.C. 357=8 S.L.R. 155. The fact of the vendees being Christians did not deprive them of their rights of succession to the vendors who being Christians were converted to Islam. 1 Lah. 376. Apostasy from Hinduism does not entitle a member of a Malabar tarwad to claim partition of the property and delivery to him of his share, under the Removal of Caste Disabilities Act. The effect is not to enlarge the convert's interest in any property or to get rid of any condition or restriction to which it was originally subject. 44 M. 891=41 M.L.J. 243 (F.B.).

(2) It extends to the whole of British India.

2. (1) The Central Government may appoint a Census Commissioner to supervise the taking of the census throughout British India, and Superintendents of Census Operations to supervise the taking of the census within the several Provinces.

(2) The Provincial Government may appoint persons as census-officers to take, or aid in, or supervise the taking of, the census within any specified local area.

(3) A declaration in writing, signed by any authority authorised by the Provincial Government in this behalf, that any person has been duly appointed a census-officer for any local area shall be conclusive proof of such appointment.

(4) The Provincial Government may delegate to such authority as it thinks fit the power of appointing census-officers conferred by sub-section (2).

3. The Census Commissioner, all Superintendents of Census Operations and all census-officers shall be deemed to be public servants within the meaning of the Indian Penal Code.

4. (1) (a) Every officer in command of any body of men belonging to His Majesty's naval, military or air forces or of any vessel of war,

(b) every person (except a pilot or harbour-master) having charge or control of a vessel,

(c) every person in charge of a lunatic asylum, hospital, workhouse, prison, reformatory or lock-up or of any public, charitable, religious or educational institution,

(d) every keeper, secretary or manager of any sarai, hotel, boarding-house, lodging-house, emigration depot or club,

(e) every manager or officer of a railway or any commercial or industrial establishment, and

(f) every occupant of immovable property wherein at the time of the taking of the census persons are living,—

shall, if so required by the District Magistrate or by such authority as the Provincial Government may appoint in this behalf, perform such of the duties of a census-officer in relation to the persons who at the time of the taking of the census are under his command or charge, or are inmates of his house, or are present on or in such immovable property, or are employed under him, as such Magistrate or authority may, by written order, direct.

(2) All the provisions of this Act relating to census-officers shall apply, so far as may be, to all persons while performing such duties under this section, and any person refusing or neglecting to perform any duty which under this section he is directed to perform shall be deemed to have committed an offence under section 187 of the Indian Penal Code.

5. The District Magistrate, or such authority as the Provincial Government may appoint in this behalf for any local area, may, by written order which shall have effect throughout the extent of his district or of such local area, as the case may be, call upon—

(a) all owners and occupiers of land, tenure-holders, and farmers and assignees of land-revenue, or their agents, and

(b) all members of district, municipal, panchayat and other local authorities and officers and servants of such authorities, to give such assistance as shall be specified in the order towards the taking of a census of the persons who are, at the time of the taking of the census, on the lands of such owners, occupiers, tenure-holders, farmers and assignees, or within the areas for which such local authorities are established, as the case may be, and the persons to whom an order under this section is directed shall be bound to obey it and shall, while acting in pursuance of such order, be deemed to be public servants within the meaning of the Indian Penal Code.

6. (1) A census-officer may ask all such questions of all persons within the limits of the local area for which he is appointed as, by instructions issued in this behalf by the Provincial Government and published in the official Gazette, he may be directed to ask.

Asking of questions and obligation to answer.

(2) Every person of whom any question is asked under sub-section (1) shall be legally bound to answer such question to the best of his knowledge or belief :

Provided that no person shall be bound to state the name of any female member of his household, and no woman shall be bound to state the name of her husband or deceased husband or of any other person whose name she is forbidden by custom to mention.

7. Every person occupying any house, enclosure, vessel or other place shall allow census-officers such access thereto as they may require for the purposes of the census and as, having regard to the customs of the country, may be reasonable, and shall allow them to paint on, or affix to, the place such letters, marks, or numbers as may be necessary for the purposes of the census.

Occupier to permit access and affixing of numbers.

8. (1) Subject to such orders as the Provincial Government may issue in this behalf, a census-officer may, within the local area for which he is appointed, leave or cause to be left a schedule at any dwelling-house or with the manager or any officer of any commercial or industrial establishment, for the purpose of its being filled up by the occupier of such house or of any specified part thereof or by such manager or officer with such particulars as the Provincial Government may direct regarding the inmates of such house or part thereof, or the persons employed under such manager or officer, as the case may be, at the time of the taking of the census.

Occupier or manager to fill up schedule.

(2) When such schedule has been so left, the said occupier, manager or officer, as the case may be, shall fill it up or cause it to be filled up to the best of his knowledge or belief so far as regards the inmates of such house or part thereof or the persons employed under him, as the case may be, at the time aforesaid, and shall sign his name thereto and, when so required, shall deliver the schedule so filled up and signed to the census-officer or to such person as the census-officer may direct.

9. (a) Any census-officer or any person lawfully required to give assistance towards the taking of a census who refuses or neglects to use reasonable diligence in performing any duty imposed upon him or in obeying any order issued to him in accordance with this Act or any rule made thereunder, or any person who hinders or obstructs another person in performing any such duty or in obeying any such order, or

(b) any census-officer who intentionally puts any offensive or improper question or knowingly makes any false return or, without the previous sanction of the Central Government or the Provincial Government, discloses any information which he has received by means of, or for the purposes of, a census return, or

(c) any person who intentionally gives a false answer to, or refuses to answer to the best of his knowledge or belief, any question asked of him by a census-officer which he is legally bound by section 6 to answer, or

(d) any person occupying any house, enclosure, vessel or other place who refuses to allow a census-officer such reasonable access thereto as he is required by section 7 to allow, or

(e) any person who removes, obliterates, alters or damages before the 31st day of March, 1941, any letters, marks or numbers which have been painted or affixed for the purposes of the census, or

(f) any person who, having been required under section 8 to fill up a schedule, knowingly and without sufficient cause fails to comply with the provisions of that section, or makes any false return thereunder,— shall be punishable with fine which may extend to two hundred rupees.

10. No prosecution under this Act shall be instituted except with the previous sanction of the Provincial Government or of an authority authorised in this behalf by the Provincial Government.

11. Nothing in this Act shall be deemed to prevent any person from being prosecuted under any other law for any act or omission which constitutes an offence under this Act:

Provided that no such prosecution shall be instituted except with the previous sanction referred to in section 10.

12. No Court inferior to that of a Presidency Magistrate or a Magistrate of the second class shall try, whether under this Act or under any other law, anything which constitutes an offence under this Act.

13. No person shall have a right to inspect any book, register or record made by a census-officer in the discharge of his duty as such, or any schedule delivered under section 8, and notwithstanding anything to the contrary in the Indian Evidence Act, 1872, no entry in any such book, register, record or schedule shall be admissible as evidence in any civil proceeding whatsoever or in any criminal proceeding other than a prosecution under this Act or any other law for any act or omission which constitutes an offence under this Act.

14. Notwithstanding anything in any enactment or rule with respect to the mode in which a census is to be taken in any municipality, the municipal authority, in consultation with the Superintendent of Census Operations or with such other authority as the Provincial Government may authorise in this behalf, shall, at the time appointed for the taking of the census of British India during the year 1941, cause the census of the municipality to be taken wholly or in part by any method authorised by or under this Act.

15. Notwithstanding anything in any enactment or rule in regard to municipal, local, union or village funds, the Provincial Government may direct that the whole or any part of any expenses incurred for anything

NOTES.

SEC. 10.—Having regard to the proviso to section 11 of the Census Act (1929), a prosecution cannot be instituted under sections 193 and 417, I. P. Code, for giving a false done in accordance with this Act or the rules made thereunder may be charged to any municipal, local, union or village fund constituted for, and on behalf of, the area within which such expenses were incurred.

16. The Census Commissioner for British India or any Superintendent of Census Operations or such person as the Provincial Government may authorise in this behalf may, if he so thinks fit, at the request and cost (to be determined by him) of any local authority or person, cause abstracts to be prepared and supplied containing any such statistical information as can be derived from the census returns for British India or the Province, as the case may be, being information which is not contained in any published report and which in his opinion it is reasonable for that authority or person to require.

Grant of statistical abstracts.

Power to make rules.

17. (1) The Central Government may make rules for carrying out the purposes of this Act.

(2) In particular, and without prejudice to the generality of the foregoing power, the Central Government may make rules providing—

(a) for the appointment of census-officers and of persons to perform any of the duties of census-officers or to give assistance towards the taking of a census, and for the general instructions to be issued to such officers and persons;

(b) for the enumeration of persons employed on railways and their families and of other classes of the population for which it may be necessary or expedient to make special provision.

The Act has been declared in force in Upper Burma (except the Shan States) by the Burma Laws Act (XIII of 1892), Burma Code.

The Act has been declared in force in the Sonthal Parganas under section 3 of the Sonthal Parganas Settlement Regulation (III of 1872) as amended by the Sonthal Parganas Justice and Laws Regulation (III of 1899), Bengal Code, Vol. I.

<sup>3</sup> The words “Upper Burma, and” were repealed by the Fifth Schedule of the Burma Laws Act (XIII of 1898), Burma Code.

3. <sup>1</sup>[(1) The Central Government may appoint an officer of the Government by the name of his office to be treasurer of charitable endowments for India, and the Government of any Province may appoint an officer of the Government by the name of his office to be treasurer of charitable endowments for the Province.]

Appointment and incorporation of Treasurer of charitable endowments.

(2) Such Treasurer shall, for the purposes of taking, holding and transferring movable or immovable property under the authority of this Act, be a corporation sole by the name of the Treasurer of Charitable Endowments for <sup>1</sup>[India or, as the case may be, the Province] and, as such Treasurer, shall have perpetual succession and a corporate seal, and may sue and be sued in his corporate name.

<sup>2</sup>[3-A. In the subsequent provisions of this Act "the appropriate Government" means, as respects a charitable endowment, the objects of which do not extend beyond a single Province and are not objects to which the executive authority of the Central Government extends, the Government of the Province, and as respects any other charitable endowment the Central Government.]

Definition of "appropriate Government", etc.

4. (1) Where any property is held or is to be applied in trust for a charitable purpose, the <sup>1</sup>[appropriate Government], if it thinks fit, may, on application made as hereinafter mentioned, and subject to the other provisions of this section, order, by notification<sup>3</sup> in the official Gazette, that the property be vested in the Treasurer of Charitable Endowments on such terms as to the application of the property or the income thereof as may be agreed on between the <sup>1</sup>[appropriate Government] and the person or persons making the application, and the property shall thereupon so vest accordingly.

Orders vesting property in Treasurer.

(2) When any property has vested under this section in a Treasurer of Charitable Endowments, he is entitled to all documents of title relating thereto.

(3) [* * *]

(4) An order under this section vesting property in a Treasurer of Charitable Endowments shall not require or be deemed to require him to administer the property, or impose or be deemed to impose upon him the duty of a trustee with respect to the administration thereof.

5. (1) On application made as hereinafter mentioned, and with the concurrence of the person or persons making the application, the <sup>1</sup>[appropriate Government] if it thinks fit, may settle a scheme for the administration of any property which has been or is to be vested in the Treasurer of Charitable Endowments, and may in such scheme appoint, by name or office, a person or persons, not being or including such Treasurer, to administer the property.

Schemes for administration of property vested in the Treasurer.

(2) On application made as hereinafter mentioned, and with the concurrence of the person or persons making the application, the <sup>1</sup>[appropriate Government] may, if it thinks fit, modify any scheme settled under this section or substitute another scheme in its stead.

LEG. REF.

(3) A scheme settled, modified or substituted under this section shall, subject to the other provisions of this section, come into operation on a day to be appointed by the <sup>1</sup>[appropriate Government] in this behalf, and shall remain in force so long as the property to which it relates continues to be vested in the Treasurer of Charitable Endowments or until it has been modified or another such scheme has been substituted in its stead.

(4) Such a scheme, when it comes into operation, shall supersede any decree or direction relating to the subject-matter thereof in so far as such decree or direction is in any way repugnant thereto, and its validity shall not be questioned in any Court, nor shall any Court give, in contravention of the provisions of the scheme or in any way contrary or in addition thereto, a decree or direction regarding the administration of the property to which the scheme relates:

(5) In the settlement of such a scheme effect shall be given to the wishes of the author of the trust so far as they can be ascertained, and, in the opinion of the <sup>1</sup>[appropriate Government], effect can reasonably be given to them.

(6) Where a scheme has been settled under this section for the administration of property not already vested in the Treasurer of Charitable Endowments, it shall not come into operation until the property has become so vested.

- Mode of applying for vesting orders and schemes.

6. (1) The application referred to in the two last foregoing sections must be made,—

(a) if the property is already held in trust for a charitable purpose, then by the person acting in the administration of the trust, or, where there are more persons than one so acting, then by those persons or a majority of them; and

(b) if the property is to be applied in trust for such a purpose, then by the person or persons proposing so to apply it.

(2) For the purposes of this section the executor or administrator of a deceased trustee of property held in trust for a charitable purpose shall be deemed to be a person acting in the administration of the trust.

7. [Exercise by Governor-General in Council of powers of Local Government.] Repealed by A.O., 1937.

8. (1) Subject to the provisions of this Act, a Treasurer of Charitable Endowments shall not, as such Treasurer, act in the administration of any trust whereof any of the property is for the time being vested in him under this Act.

(2) Such Treasurer shall keep a separate account of each property for the time being so vested in so far as the property consists of securities for money, and shall apply the property or the income thereof in accordance with the provision made in that behalf in the vesting order under section 4 or in the scheme, if any, under section 5, or in both those documents.

(3) In the case of any property so vested other than securities for money, such treasurer shall, subject to any special order which he may receive from the authority by whose order the property became vested in him, permit the persons acting in the administration of the trust to have the possession, management and control of the property, and the application of the income thereof, as if the property had been vested in them.

9. A Treasurer of Charitable Endowments shall cause to be published annually in the Official Gazette, at such time as the <sup>1</sup>[appropriate Government] may direct, a list of all properties for the time being vested in him under this Act and an abstract of all accounts kept by him under sub-section (2) of the last foregoing section.

10. (1) A Treasurer of Charitable Endowments shall always be a sole trustee and shall not, as such Treasurer, take or hold any property otherwise than under the provisions of this Act, or subject to those provisions, transfer any property vested in him except in obedience to a decree divesting him of the property, or in compliance with a direction in that behalf issuing from the authority by whose order the property became vested in him.

(2) Such a direction may require the Treasurer to sell or otherwise dispose of any property vested in him, and, with the sanction of the authority issuing the direction, to invest the proceeds of the sale or other disposal of the property in any such security for money as is <sup>1</sup>[specified in the direction] or in the purchase of immovable property.

(3) When a Treasurer of Charitable Endowments is divested, by a direction of the <sup>1</sup>[appropriate Government] under this section, of any property, it shall vest in the person or persons acting in the administration thereof and be held by him or them on the same trusts as those on which it was held by such Treasurer.

11. If the office held by an officer of the Government who has been appointed to be a Treasurer of Charitable Endowments is abolished or its name is changed, the <sup>1</sup>[appropriate Government] may appoint the same or another officer of the Government by the name of his office to be such Treasurer, and thereupon the holder of the later office shall be deemed for the purposes of this Act to be the successor in office of the holder of the former office.

<sup>1</sup>[12. If by reason of any alteration of areas or by reason of the appointment of a treasurer of charitable endowments for India or for any Province for which such a treasurer has not previously been appointed or for any other reason it appears to the Central Government that and property vested in a treasurer of Charitable Endowments should be vested in another such treasurer, that Government may direct that the property shall be so vested and thereupon it shall vest in that other treasurer and his successors as fully and effectually for the purposes of this Act as if it had been originally vested in him under this Act.]

Short title and extent. 1. (1) This Act may be called THE CHARITABLE AND RELIGIOUS TRUSTS ACT, 1920.

(2) It extends to the whole of British India:

Provided that the <sup>1</sup>[Government of any Province] may, by notification in the <sup>1</sup>[Official Gazette], direct that this Act, or any specified part thereof, shall not extend to <sup>1</sup>[that Province or any specified area therein] or to any specified trust or class of trusts.

3. Save as hereinafter provided in this Act, any person having an interest in any express or constructive trust created or existing for a public purpose of a charitable or religious nature may apply by petition to the Court within the local limits of whose jurisdiction any substantial part of the subject-matter of the trust is situate to obtain an order embodying all or any of the following directions, namely:—

NOTES.

SECS. 1 AND 3.—The Act does not cease to apply to a case where the trustee has parted with the entire trust property. 78 I.C. 174. Persons who claim adversely to the trust and who are not liable under section 3 are not proper parties to an application for directing the trustee to produce the accounts. 78 I.C. 174. As to applicability of the Act to property on condition of holding so long as temple lasted—No direction as to appropriation of income—Public trust, if constituted. See 3 Luck. 392=1928 O. 241=5 O.W.N. 50. The Madras Hindu Religious Endowments Act (II of 1927) has not taken away the jurisdiction of the District Judge under section 5 of the Charitable and Religious Trusts Act. To a certain extent both the Acts cover the same ground. When the District Judge passes an order under section 5 of Act XIV of 1920, because the Madras Hindu Religious Endowment Board showed no inclination to exercise its powers under the Madras Act, it is a good reason for exercising his discretion; and the order cannot be revised by the High Court under section 115, C.P.Code. 152 I.C. 1052=1935 Mad. 56 (1)=68 M. L.J. 55.

SEC. 2.—Under this Act the District Court is a Court subordinate to the High Court. 27 A.L.J. 911=1929 All. 581=121 I.C. 267.

SEC. 3.—The Charitable and Religious Trusts Act of 1920 applies only to those cases where the entire benefit under the wakf or trust is allotted for public purposes. Also where a trust is of public nature any person having an interest in the said trust is entitled to make the application contemplated by section 3 of the Act of 1920 but he is not so entitled if the purpose of the trust is partly public and partly private. In the latter case his remedy is to make an application under section 4 of the Wakf Act of 1923. 4 Luck. 429=1929 Oudh 225 (F.B.). Section 3 applies to a mixed trust partly for a public and charitable purpose and partly for private purpose. 163 I.C. 234=1936 A.L.J. 546=1936 A. 411. See also 11 O.W.N. 1435=Oudh 96. Act XIV of 1920 is not inapplicable to a trust merely because a small sum is reserved for purposes which may not be strictly public purposes. Where under the same deed or will either a specified part of the property, for example, a defined share in the property, or a specified part of the income has been definitely set apart for public purposes, then the mere fact that any other part of the property or any other specified part of the income is for private purposes would not take the case out of the provisions of the Act. 1937 A.L.J. 1183=I.L.R. (1938) All. 1=1937 All. 786 See also 173 I.C. 453=1937 Cal. 313. Section 3 of the Act sets out what must be established in order to bring the matter within the purview of the Act. Put shortly there must be a trust. It must be either express or constructive. It must have been either created or it must be existing for a public purpose. And that public purpose must be of a charitable or a religious nature. Though the trust which arises in the case

(1) directing the trustee to furnish the petitioner through the Court with particulars as to the nature and objects of the trust, and of the value, condition, management and application of the subject-matter of the trust, and of the income belonging thereto, or as to any of these matters, and

(2) directing that the accounts of the trust shall be examined and audited:

Provided that no person shall apply for any such direction in respect of accounts relating to a period more than three years prior to the date of the petition.

Contents and verification of petition. 4. (1) The petition shall show in what way the petitioner claims to be interested in the trust, and shall specify, as far as may be, the particulars and the audit which he seeks to obtain.

(2) The petition shall be in writing and shall be signed and verified in the manner prescribed by the Code of Civil Procedure, 1908, for signing and verifying plaints.

of a dedication to an idol is not the exact kind of trust which the English law contemplates, nevertheless they are trusts, though of a special and particular kind and they are the sort which the Charitable and Religious Trusts Act is intended to cover. 1941 N.L.J. 396. The words "having an interest in a trust" must in each case depend on the nature of the trust. 50 A. 880 = 26 A.L.J. 1379 = 111 I.C. 129. See also 119 I.C. 365. A person who is a worshipper at Gurdwara is a person interested in a public trust for this Act. 36 P.L.R. 162 = 1934 Lah. 949. As to what is a public trust, see 11 O.W.N. 1435. Where the rules of an alleged trust provide for the carrying on a sort of banking business whereby loans are to be made at interest either on security or guarantee, the object of the trust is hardly consistent with its being of a religious or charitable nature. 62 I.A. 146 = 57 A. 330 = 39 C.W.N. 865 = 1935 P.C. 97 = 69 M.L.J. 1 (P.C.). There can be no doubt that on the wording of the statute that the Charitable and Religious Trusts Act applies only to those cases where the entire benefit under the wakf in trust is allotted to public purposes and not where the purpose of the trust is partly public and partly private. In every case, the real substance of the trust and the primary intention of the creator of the trust have to be looked at. If the intention of the creator was the creation of a trust for a public purpose, the dedication in favour of the poor relations of creator who are classed with the helpless widows in the neighbourhood will not destroy the public nature of the trust. 173 I.C. 453 = A.I.R. 1937 Cal. 313. See also 1937 All. 786.

"PUBLIC TRUST"—MOSQUE BUILT BY PUBLIC SUBSCRIPTION.—Where a mosque was built with public subscriptions and used by the Mahomedan public for offering prayers and further was admitted by the respondent to be a religious trust in a prior suit, held, that such a mosque was a public trust and that an application under section 3 calling upon the respondent to furnish certain information should be decided on merits. 17 Lah. 768 = 165 I.C. 664 (1) = 1936 Lah. 695. To constitute, a trust "created or existing for a public purpose of a charitable or religious nature" the author or authors of the trust must be ascertained and the intention to create a trust must be indicated by words or acts with reasonable certainty. Moreover the purpose of the trust, the trust property, and the beneficiaries must be indicated so as to enable the Court to administer the trust if required. (57 A. 330 = 62 I.A. 446, Rel. on). 65 I.A. 252 = 42 C.W.N. 1013 = I.L.R. (1938) Lah. 453 = A.I.R. 1938 P.C. 195 = (1938) 2 M.L.J. 228 (P.C.).

SEC. 3 (2).—Under cl. 2 to section 3, the Court is enabled to direct the examination and audit of the accounts in whosoever's hands the funds or the properties of the trust may be, quite apart from whether he is a trustee or not. 175 I.C. 636 = 19 Pat. L.T. 639 = A.I.R. 1938 Pat. 280.

REVISION.—The provisions of section 115, C.P.Code, and section 44, Punjab Courts Act, are very wide and an order of the District Judge under section 3, is revisable. 17 Lah. 768 = 165 I.C. 664 = 1936 Lah. 695. Where a Judge passes an order under section 3 of the Act directing a mutawalli to file accounts within a certain time, it cannot be said that in law no revision would lie from such order. 1938 O.W.N. 1054 = 1938 Oudh 262.

SECS. 3 AND 5: SCOPE OF.—The Act is intended to provide more effectual control over the administration of charitable and religious trust and provision is made therein for obtaining an order calling on the trustee to give particulars of the object of the trust and if the trust is denied to file a suit. No such provision is made in the Mussalman Wakf Act of 1923. 1927 Pat. 189. See also 1936 Lah. 695. Application under—No notice to all the trustees—Notice served on three trustees only—Legality of order. 1924 M.W.N. 515=32 I.C. 733=1925 M. 135. An application under section 3 of the Charitable and Religious Trusts Act does not cease to be maintainable simply because the opponents raise a question of title. Though under section 5 (6) of the Act, the Court has no jurisdiction to decide any question of title between the petitioner and any one claiming title adversely to the trust, it does not mean that the moment a claim adverse to the trust is advanced, the jurisdiction of the Court is ousted. When such a claim is put forward, it in effect amounts to a denial of the existence of the trust. It is open to the claimant to take advantage of section 5 (3) and to get the question determined in a regular suit. If he does not avail himself of this course, the Court must decide whether a trust exists. The opposing party has still his remedy by way of suit. 58 Bom. 623=36 Bom.L.R. 687=1934 Bom. 343.

5. (1) If the Court on receipt of a petition under section 3, after taking such evidence and making such inquiry, if any, as it may consider necessary, is of opinion that the trust to which the petition relates is a trust to which this Act applies, and that the petitioner has an interest therein, it shall fix a date for the hearing of the petition, and shall cause a copy thereof together with notice of the date so fixed, to be served on the trustee and upon any other person to whom in its opinion notice of the petition should be given.

NOTES.

SEC. 5.—In proceedings for examination of accounts of trust property under the Charitable and Religious Trusts Act (1920), the District Judge did not refer to the original grant at all, but based his order on certain statements which were wholly irrelevant and inadmissible for the purpose of construing the terms of the original grant. Held, the order was illegal and was vitiated by material irregularity and could be set aside in revision. The fact that the petitioner had the remedy of suit open to him is no bar to the order being set aside in revision. 58 Bom. 623=36 Bom.L.R. 687=1934 Bom. 343. On this section, see also 152 I.C. 1052=1935 Mad. 56=68 M.L.J. 55, cited under section 1. The District Judge has no jurisdiction under the Act to decide questions of title. The Act does not bar the questions of title being agitated and decided in a regular suit by a Court exercising ordinary original civil jurisdiction. The mere fact that the Act provides a summary remedy does not create a bar to the filing of a regular suit by the unsuccessful party. The party who seeks to oust the jurisdiction of the Civil Court must establish his contention. 152 I.C. 861=11 O.W.N. 1435=1935 Oudh 96.

SEC. 5 (3) AND (4).—Section 5 (4) in terms gives the Court of the District Judge jurisdiction to decide, under certain circumstances, the question whether a trust is one to which the Act applies. When either its existence or its being a trust to which the Act applies, is denied, and no undertaking as contemplated by sub-r. (3) is given, the District Judge is exercising a jurisdiction vested in him, if he decides as to the nature of the trust. 178 I.C. 167=1938 O.W.N. 1054=A.I.R. 1938 Oudh 262.

SECS. 5 AND 6.—On an application under the charitable and Religious Trusts Act praying that the respondents be directed to file accounts of their management of the property alleging that it is a religious endowment, the District Judge is no doubt authorised to decide the question whether the property is or is not devoted to public, religious or charitable purposes. But the proceedings of the District Judge are of a summary nature and do not fall within the definition of a suit and his decision cannot operate as res judicata. 36 P.L.R. 13=1934 Lah. 771. The decision of the District Judge under the Act—a decision from which by section 12 of the Act there is no appeal—is a decision in a summary proceeding which is not a suit nor of the same character as a suit which has not been made final by any provision of the Act, and in respect of which the doctrine of res judicata does not apply so as to bar a regular suit even in the case of a person who was a party to the proceedings under the Act. The terms of section 6 of the Act are intended to define the consequences of the failure to comply with any order that may be passed under section 5 (5) of the Act, but the words “if a trustee without reasonable excuse fails to comply” in the section cannot be read to exclude a contention in a regular suit that the plaintiff is not a trustee or to prevent a similar contention being raised by a defendant, to a suit under section 92, C.P.Code. 67 I.A. 1=I.L.R. (1940) Kar. (P.C.) 25=15 Luck. 1=A.I.R. 1940 P.C. 7= (1940) 1 M.L.J. 1 (P.C.). Per Niamatulla, J. The order of the District Judge under section 5 of Act XIV of 1920 is only an order passed in summary proceedings and it has not the force of a decree and has the effect merely of withdrawing certain restrictions imposed on the persons desirous of instituting suits under section 92, C.P.Code. The decision under section 5 on an application for examination of accounts of the alleged

(2) On the date fixed for hearing of the petition, or on any subsequent date to which the hearing may be adjourned, the Court shall proceed to hear the petitioner and the trustee, if he appears, and any other person who has appeared in consequence of the notice, or who it considers ought to be heard, and shall make such further inquiries, if any, as it thinks fit. The trustee may, and, if so required by the Court, shall at the time of the first hearing or within such time as the Court may permit present a written statement of his case. If he does present a written statement, the statement shall be signed and verified in the manner prescribed by the Code of Civil Procedure, 1908, for signing and verifying pleadings.

(3) If any person appears at the hearing of the petition and either denies the existence of the trust or denies that it is a trust to which this Act applies, and undertakes to institute within three months a suit for a declaration to that effect and for any other appropriate relief, the Court shall order a stay of the proceedings and, if such suit is so instituted, shall continue the stay until the suit is finally decided.

(4) If no such undertaking is given, or if after the expiry of the three months no such suit has been instituted, the Court shall itself decide the question.

(5) On completion of the inquiry provided for in sub-section (2), the Court shall either dismiss the petition or pass thereon such other order as it thinks fit:

Provided that, where a suit has been instituted in accordance with the provisions of sub-section (3), no order shall be passed by the Court which conflicts with the final decision therein.

(6) Save as provided in this section, the Court shall not try or determine any question of title between the petitioner and any person claiming title adversely to the trust.

6. If a trustee without reasonable excuse fails to comply with an order made under sub-section (5) of section 5, such trustee shall, without prejudice to any other penalty or liability which he may incur under any law for the time being in force, be deemed to have committed a breach of trust affording ground for a suit under the provisions of section 92 of the Code of Civil Procedure, 1908; and any such suit may, so far as it is based on such failure, be instituted without the previous consent of the Advocate-General.

NOTES.

trust property does not bar a suit for declaration that the property does not belong to the trust but is in the absolute ownership of the alleged trustee. 1929 All. 506. The maintenance of a suit so as to nullify the effect of section 6 of the Act is not permissible. 27 A.L.J. 653=118 I.C. 513=1929 A. 506.

Section 5 of the Charitable and Religious Trusts Act does not by itself contemplate the intervention of other persons for compelling the mutawalli to file his accounts except possibly as a mere reminder to the Judge that the accounts have not been filed with a view to induce the Judge to take proceedings under section 10. 118 I.C. 717.

Sec. 6.—Section 6 says that once a breach of trust has been committed, by the trustee by his refusal to produce the accounts, a suit so far as it is based on such failure may be instituted without the previous sanction of the Advocate-General. It nowhere says by whom such a suit should be instituted. Once an order has been passed under section 6 of the Act, a suit under section 92 of the C.P. Code may be continued by other persons, even though the original plaintiff who applied under sections 3 and 4 and secured the order from the District Court under section 6 of the Act has dropped out of the suit. 1933 Mad. 854=65 M.L.J. 690. A suit contemplated by section 6 of the Act does not become incompetent on the ground that one of the reliefs claimed therein cannot be said to be "based on such failure", i.e., the failure of the trustee to render accounts. The Court can entertain the suit so far as the other reliefs are concerned. 1933 M. 854=65 M.L.J. 690; see also 28 A.L.J. 1291.

7. (1) Save as hereinafter provided in this Act, any trustee of an express or constructive trust created or existing for public purpose of a charitable or religious nature may apply by petition to the Court, within the local limits of whose jurisdiction any substantial part of the subject-matter of the trust is situate, for the opinion, advice or direction of the Court on any question affecting the management or administration of the trust property, and the Court shall give its opinion, advice or direction, as the case may be, thereon:

Powers of trustee to apply for directions.

Provided that the Court shall not be bound to give such opinion, advice or direction on any question which it considers to be a question not proper for summary disposal.

(2) The Court, on a petition under sub-section (1), may either give its opinion, advice or direction thereon forthwith, or fix a date for the hearing of the petition, and may direct a copy thereof, together with notice of the date so fixed, to be served on such of the persons interested in the trust, or to be published for information in such manner, as it thinks fit.

(3) On any date fixed under sub-section (2) or on any subsequent date to which the hearing may be adjourned, the Court, before giving any opinion, advice or direction, shall afford a reasonable opportunity of being heard to all persons appearing in connection with the petition.

(4) A trustee stating in good faith the facts of any matter relating to the trust in a petition under sub-section (1), and acting upon the opinion, advice or direction of the Court given thereon, shall be deemed, as far as his own responsibility is concerned, to have discharged his duty as such trustee in the matter in respect of which the petition was made.

8. The costs, charges and expenses of and incidental to any petition, and all proceedings in connection therewith, under the foregoing provisions of this Act shall be in the discretion of the Court, which may direct the whole or any part of any such costs, charges and expenses to be met from the property or income of the trust in respect of which the petition is made, or to be borne and paid in such manner and by such persons as it thinks fit:

Costs of petition under this Act.

Provided that no such order shall be made against any person (other than the petitioner) who has not received notice of the petition and had a reasonable opportunity of being heard thereon.

9. No petition under the foregoing provisions of this Act in relation to any trust shall be entertained in any of the following circumstances, namely:

Savings.

(a) if a suit instituted in accordance with the provisions of section 92 of the Code of Civil Procedure, 1908, is pending in respect of the trust in question;

(b) if the trust property is vested in the Treasurer of Charitable Endowments, the Administrator-General, the Official Trustee or any society registered under the Societies Registration Act, 1860; or

(c) if a scheme for the administration of the trust property has been settled or approved by any Court of competent jurisdiction or by any other authority acting under the provisions of any enactment.

1929	XIX	The Child Marriage Restraint Act, 1929.	Amended by Act VIII of 1930. " Act VII of 1938. " Act XIX of 1938.

PREFATORY NOTE.—It is now recognized in all civilized countries that the regulation by legislative enactment of the marriageable age of girls and boys is not only within the competence but is also one of the chief duties of the state Legislature. Such a provi-

SEC. 10.—Under section 10 of the Charitable and Religious Trusts Act, the District Judge has the power to punish a mutawalli if, without any reasonable cause, the burden of proving which shall lie upon him, he fails to furnish statement of particulars of documents, of statement of accounts. This is purely a penal proceeding in the course of which the Judge may enquire as to whether a wakf is one to which the Act is applicable. But, till that stage arises, the Judge cannot hold any such enquiry and compel a mutawalli who is not admitting the applicability of the Act, to file accounts. 118 I.C. 717=1930 A. 81=52 A. 167.

SEC. 12.—See 67 I.A. 1=(1940) 1 M. L.J. 1 (P.C.).

sion is necessary to secure the health and happiness of the coming generations. In England, in several of her colonies, in most of the continental states of Europe and in the United States of America, statutes exist fixing the minimum age before which the marriages of boys and girls may not be lawfully solemnized. Even after the passing of this age, while the parties are minors, the consent of the parents is made a necessary condition for the validity of the marriage. In no other part of the world is the need for such a measure greater than in India, where custom and social sentiment, if not legal provisions, are strongly opposed to marriages of even virgin and child widows. One would think that it is an anomaly not easily understandable by strangers that a child who has not completed its first birthday should become a fixed widow for life. Such cases are not only possible but they actually exist in a fairly large number in this ancient land.

The necessity for the passing of this Act and the evils it was intended to remedy were explained as follows in the original Statement of Objects and Reasons:—

"The object of the Bill is twofold. The main object, by declaring invalid the marriages of girls below 12 (now made 14) years of age, is to put a stop to such girls becoming widows. The second object, by laying down the minimum marriageable ages of boys and girls, is to prevent, so far as may be, their physical and moral deterioration by removing a principal obstacle to their physical and mental development.

"According to the Census Report of 1921 A.D., there were in that year 612 Hindu widows who were less than one year old, 2,024 who were under 5 years, 97,857 who were under 10 years, and 3,32,024 who were under 15 years of age. The deplorable feature of the situation, however, is that the majority of these child widows are prevented by Hindu custom and usage from re-marrying. Such a lamentable state of affairs exists in no country, civilized or uncivilized, in the world. And it is high time, that the law came to the assistance of these helpless victims of social customs, which, whatever their origin or justification in olden days, are admittedly out of date and are the source of untold misery and harm at the present time.

"According to the Brahmanas, the most ancient and the most authoritative book containing the laws of the Hindus, the minimum marriageable age of a man is 24 and a woman 16. And if the welfare of the girl were the only consideration in fixing the age, the law should fix 16 as the minimum age for the valid marriage of a girl. But amongst the Hindus, there are people who hold the belief that a girl should not remain unmarried after she attains puberty. And as in this country, some girls attain puberty at an age as early as 12, the Bill fixes 12 (now made 14) as the minimum age for the valid marriage of a Hindu girl.

"In order, however, to make the Bill acceptable to the most conservative Hindu opinion, provision is made in the Bill that, for conscientious reasons, the marriage of a Hindu girl would be permissible even when she is 11 years old. No Hindu Sastra enjoins marriage of a girl before she attains puberty, and the time has arrived and public opinion sufficiently developed, when the first step towards the accomplishment of the social reform, so necessary for the removal of a great injustice to its helpless victims and so essential to the vital interests of a large part of humanity, should be taken, by enacting a law declaring invalid the marriages of girls below 11 years of age.

"With regard to boys, the Sastras do not enjoin marriage at a particular age. Thoughtful public opinion amongst the Hindus would fix 18 as the minimum marriageable age for a boy. But as some classes of the Hindus would regard such legislation as too drastic, the Bill takes the line of least resistance by providing 15 years (now made 18) as the age below which the marriage of a Hindu boy shall be invalid. Even in England, where child marriages are unknown and early marriages are exceptions, it has been found necessary to fix the ages below which boys and girls may not marry."

The Bill as originally introduced aimed at preventing child marriages among the Hindus only; and the mode by which it was attempted to be effected was by prescribing a minimum age of 12 years for a girl and of 15 years for a boy, and by declaring marriages within those ages invalid. There was no proposal to render the performance of such marriages penal, but only to create a civil disability. But the Bill, as it emerged from the Select Committee and discussion in the Council, increased the marriageable age of the girl to 14 years and that of the boy to 18 years. The Act was also made applicable to all persons and not only to Hindus. It further provided that marriages celebrated in contravention of the Act were not invalid but only punishable with fine or imprisonment or both.

The Act now applies to all persons, Hindus, Mahomedans, etc., and marriages celebrated in contravention of the Act are not visited with any civil disability but only with a particular punishment.

The Act did not receive any favourable reception from a large section of Hindu Sanathanists and Mahomedans, who have been always contending that the provisions of the Act were interfering with their religious injunctions; and various methods were resorted to for the purpose of evading the provisions of the Act.

One of the easiest methods by which it was found possible to evade the provisions of the Act was to have child marriages celebrated outside British India, for instance, in the French Territory or in a Native State, where such marriages were till recently not deemed to be offences.

The question was raised in several cases, whether marriages so performed outside British India were punishable under this Act; and different High Courts have given conflicting decisions. [Vide (1937) 1 M.L.J. 388=45 L.W. 210; 59 B. 745.]

The passing of the Act did not give satisfaction to either party. The progressive section has always contended that during the progress of the Bill in the Assembly, too much concession had been shown to the orthodox opposition and that, in several respects, it was very easy to evade its provisions with impunity; and the opposition, on the other hand, had uniformly and persistently contended that the Act had gone too far. Amending Bills had been proposed from time to time—both by the progressive party as well as by the members of the orthodox party.

But, as one may read from the tendency of the times, there is not the slightest chance of any Assembly going back on the principle of the Act. Bills to exempt one community or other from the operation of this enactment, and Bills to make the provisions of the Act less stringent have, no doubt, been introduced in the Assembly from time to time.

On the other hand, two important Acts have recently been passed which have to a large extent made the evasion of the Act almost impossible.

AMENDING ACT VII OF 1938.—A Bill was introduced in the Legislative Assembly in 1936 (Bill No. 21 of 1936) to prevent the evasion of the law by having recourse to the celebration of marriages of infants at places outside British India. The reasons for the introduction of the amending Act and the mischief it was intended to remedy were thus explained in the Statement of Objects and Reasons:

"There is no law making British subjects amenable to the provisions of the Child Marriage Restraint Act if they commit offences under the Act in the territories of any Native Prince or Chief in India. In practice it has been observed that the provisions of the Sarda Act are being evaded and abused by the British subjects by their hopping over the borders of the British territory and committing offences under this Act by performing child marriages in contravention of the Act in Native States and returning to British India to enjoy immunity from the punishment provided by the Act. If a provision such as that proposed by this Bill is not enacted, the provisions of the Child Marriage Restraint Act will be infructuous. Cases of such an abuse are not rare and it is high time that they should be provided against. Sections 3 and 4 of the Penal Code do not cover offences when committed under this Act out of British India, to be made punishable in British India.

"Section 4 applies the provisions of the Penal Code only to the offences committed by any Native Indian subject of His Majesty in any place without and beyond British India and there is no law passed by the Governor-General of India in Council, as required by section 3 of the Penal Code, for trying in British India an offence under the Child Marriage Restraint Act when committed beyond the limits of the British territories.

"Thus it is expedient and necessary to amend this Act as proposed by this Bill."

ACT XIX OF 1938.—Another Bill (No. 38 of 1935) was introduced in the Legislative Assembly on the 26th of September, 1935. The object of the Bill was thus explained in the Statement of Objects and Reasons:

"The object of this Bill is to amend the Act by two provisions aimed at facilitating the more effective enforcement of the Act:—

"First by putting it beyond question that the Courts empowered to take proceedings under the Act may at their discretion issue an injunction prohibiting a marriage arranged in contravention of the Act.

"Already Civil Courts in the Bombay Presidency are known in several cases to have issued injunction orders against marriages known to have been arranged in contravention of the Act. It is not known whether similar action has been taken in any other province. But since doubts have been thrown upon the legality or practicability of this method, it seems desirable to remove such doubts by providing for it directly through the proposed amendment. The draft Bill proposes to impose a higher maximum penalty for the breach of such an injunction than the penalty provided in the Act in the case of prosecution after the marriage has already taken place, on the ground that breach of a Court injunction involves contempt of Court.

"Secondly, by permitting the Court to take proceedings under the Act upon its own motion, without requiring the execution of a bond and to incur also the risk of losing the sum mentioned in the bond. The proposed amendment would enable the Court to proceed upon information obtained privately after taking such steps as it might think necessary to satisfy itself of the correctness of the information."

WHEREAS it is expedient to restrain the solemnisation of child marriages; It is hereby enacted as follows:—

Short title, extent and commencement.

1. (1) This Act may be called THE CHILD MARRIAGE RESTRAINT ACT, 1929.

(2) It extends to the whole of British India, including British Baluchistan and the Sonthal Parganas, <sup>1</sup> Added by Act VII of 1938.

NOTES.

SEC. 1: OBJECT OF THE AMENDMENT.—There was a conflict of decisions as to whether the Act, as it originally stood, was applicable to child marriages celebrated in places outside British India, e.g., in any place within the French territory or a Native State where such marriages were not declared offences. [Vide (1937) 1 M.L.J. 388=1937 M. 203; 59 B. 745; 175 I.C. 615=1938 Nag. 205.] But this amendment makes this Act applicable to all British subjects and servants of the Crown in any part of India and to all British subjects who are domiciled in any part of India wherever they may be. Thus, at present, this Act can pursue every British subject, although he may celebrate the marriage outside British India, and the Legislature by this amendment has adopted the view of the Madras High Court; so the decision in 59 B. 745 would no longer be correct under the Act as amended. In an administration suit an application was made for liberty to spend out of the estate certain sum to meet the marriage expenses of the plaintiff who was a minor and had not reached the age of 16. Both the bridegroom and the bride were domiciled in Bikanir and the marriage ceremony was to be performed in Bikanir. The source of income was however in Calcutta. Held, that the application could not be granted as the Court should not facilitate conduct which the legislature in British India had made penal even if such marriage was not punishable according to law of Bikanir. A.I.R. 1941 Cal. 244.

OBJECT OF ACT NOT TO DECLARE MARRIAGE INVALID, BUT TO INFLICT PUNISHMENT.—Although a marriage may have been celebrated in contravention of the provisions of this Act, the Act does not declare it to be an invalid marriage. The Act merely imposes certain penalties on the persons bringing about such marriages. 1936 A. 852=1936 A. L.J. 1097. The Child Marriage Restraint

Act aims at the restraint of solemnization of child marriages. It does not affect the validity of the marriages after they have been performed. There may no doubt be cases where the Court in the exercise of its discretion, may refuse to give a declaration in the case of a marriage performed in contravention of the Act. 182 I.C. 568=1939 A. L.J. 173=A.I.R. 1939 All. 340.

ACT, IF ULTRA VIRES.—The Act is not ultra vires at least so far as Hindus are concerned. It was contended that the previous sanction of the Governor-General in Council required by sec. 67 (2) (b) of the Government of India Act (5 & 6 Geo. V, ch. 61 and 9 & 10 Geo. V, ch. 101) was not given to the introduction of the measure which became Act XIX of 1929. The argument was that the original Bill, which was introduced and for which sanction was given, was so altered and shaped by the Select Committee, that the Bill as it came out of the Select Committee bore no resemblance at all to the original Bill, and that therefore a fresh sanction should have been obtained for this. It was held that so far as Hindus are concerned, the changes introduced in the Select Committee did not affect the object and purpose of the Bill; and that the difference introduced was only with reference to the methods of achieving the purpose, viz., that the Bill provided for achieving it by creating civil disability whereas the Act provides for achieving it by inflicting punishments, and that the changes were not such as to render inadequate the "previous sanction" accorded, and that the Act, therefore, was valid and not ultra vires. 14 Pat.L.T. 438=33 Cr.L.J. 20=1933 Pat. 471.

APPLICABILITY OF ACT—JURISDICTION OF COURTS.—The Act is a penal statute, and, under it whoever offends against its provisions commits a crime. It is applicable to all such crimes committed in British India, even though the persons accused are foreigners, i.e., subjects of a Native State. 39 C.W.N. 656. In the case of these persons,

- (a) all British subjects and servants of the Crown in any part of India; and
- (b) all British subjects who are domiciled in any part of India wherever they may be].
- (3) It shall come into force on the 1st day of April, 1930.

NOTES.

if the marriage takes place outside British India, it would not constitute an offence under this Act.

With reference to the question whether the celebration of child marriages by native British subjects outside British India can be punished under this Act, there was a conflict of opinion between the Bombay and Madras High Courts.

The Madras High Court held that this Act makes it an offence to celebrate a child marriage, and that the penal law, applies not only to the celebration of such marriages within British India by any one, but also to the celebration of such marriage even outside British India by native Indian subjects. (Vide sec. 3, I. P. C. and secs. 186 and 188, Criminal Procedure Code.) This Act is extra-territorial to this extent, viz., that if native Indian subjects commit offences punishable under this Act even outside British India, they are liable to be tried and punished when found in British India. The Act can pursue them even when they have broken it after going outside British India. (1937) 1 M.L.J. 388=1937 M. 273; see also 175 I.C. 615=A.I.R. 1938 Nag. 235. In this case the marriage was in Frenchpet, about which there was dispute at the time whether it was in British India or whether it formed a part of the French Territory. But the Court held that this circumstance was immaterial for the case as the jurisdiction of the Court did not depend on that question. (Ibid.) But the Bombay High Court has taken a different view, and has held that this Act is limited in its operation to British India and it only strikes at marriages contracted in British India. 59 B. 745=1935 B. 437. The accused in this case were charged under section 6 of this Act in that they permitted or failed to prevent the marriage of their son, who was under the age of 18 years. The marriage took place at Goa, outside British India, and the accused were tried by the District Magistrate of Kanara where the accused were residing at the time of the charge. It was held that marriage contracted outside British India was not an offence under the Act. See arguments of Counsel reported in 59 B. 745.

But now the amending Act VII of 1938 has set at rest this question. Under it the Act is made applicable to all British subjects wherever they may be in India. So now, the view of the Madras High Court would be the correct law on the point.

Court should not do anything in frustration of object of this Act, even in proceedings unconnected with this Act. The preamble to the Act states that it is "expedient to restrain the solemnization of child marriages", and therefore no Court would do anything which is calculated to facilitate the performance of any such act. So, where the Court was asked to sanction an amount for the marriage of a girl out of the funds in the hands of a Receiver appointed by the Court, the Court refused to do so, as the girl was below 14 years and as the legislature has expressed disapproval of such a marriage. It also repelled the suggestion that the marriage could be celebrated without any offence in a place outside British India and that the parties were domiciled in a Native State. 63 C. 1153. A charge in respect of an offence under the Child Marriage Restraint Act alleged to have been committed in French territory cannot be inquired into in British India except on the certificate of the Political Agent or the sanction of the Local Government, as required by the proviso to section 188, Cr. P. Code. There is nothing to the contrary in the Child Marriage Restraint Act. 1939 M.W.N. 742=49 L.W. 656=A.I.R. 1939 Mad. 577. See also 1940 N.L.J. 304 cited under section 9 infra; also 1939 A.M.L.J. 130.

In an administration suit an application was made for liberty to spend out of the estate certain sum to meet the marriage expenses of the plaintiff who was a minor and had not reached the age of 16. Both the bridegroom and the bride were domiciled in Bikanir and the marriage ceremony was to be performed in Bikanir. The source of income was however in Calcutta. Held, that the application could not be granted as the Court should not facilitate conduct which the legislature in British India had made penal even if such marriage was not punishable according to law of Bikanir. A.I.R. 1941 Cal. 244=194 I.C. 730.

The Child Marriage Restraint Act is intended to prohibit marriage of a Hindu male during his minority and it overrides to that extent the Hindu Law. Such a marriage prohibited by law, though not declared void, cannot be regarded as a necessary purpose. The first marriage of a Hindu is no doubt enjoined by the shastra but when the bridegroom is a minor whose marriage is restrained by statute, the Hindu Law cannot prevail. Hence such a marriage does not constitute a necessity to justify the mortgage of joint family property. 1941 N.L.J. 282.

INTENTION TO GIVE CHILD IN MARRIAGE—UNLAWFUL PURPOSE WITHIN EXCEPTION TO SEC. 361, I.P.C.—An intention to give a child in marriage in contravention of this Act is an "unlawful purpose" within the exception to section 361, I. P. Code, on the ground that, if the purpose is carried out, the person giving the child in marriage is liable to conviction and punishment. 11 R. 213=34 Cr.L.J. 696=1933 R. 98 (F.B.).

TRIAL UNDER ACT MAY BE SUMMARY.—A

Definitions.

2. In this Act, unless there is anything repugnant in the subject or context—

(a) "child" means a person who, if a male, is under eighteen years of age, and if a female, is under fourteen years of age;

(b) "child marriage" means a marriage to which either of the contracting parties is a child;

NOTES.

trial under this Act may be summary, as it is permitted by section 260 (1) (a), Criminal Procedure Code, as the offences under the Act come under the heading "offences not punishable with imprisonment for a term exceeding 6 months". Section 4 (1) (o), Criminal Procedure Code, states that "offence" means any act or omission made punishable by any law for the time being in force. Therefore, an offence against a law such as this Act will come under the provisions of section 260 (1) (a) of the Criminal Procedure Code. 35 Cr.L.J. 677=148 I.C. 351=1934 A. 331. Transfer of case under this Act by District Magistrate to sub-divisional Magistrate for disposal without making any enquiry (under section 202, Cr. P. Code) is not legal. 48 L.W. 774=1939 M. 294=(1939) 1 M.L.J. 111.

SETTING ASIDE OF ACQUITTAL IN REVISION—PRACTICE OF HIGH COURT.—It was held in 12 Pat.L.T. 629 that, though the acquittal of an accused would be set aside only in very exceptional cases, it would not be proper to apply that strict rule in cases under this Act, on the grounds that the Police can take no action and the legislature has made the members of the public litigants. But now the Act has been amended and the Police also can take action.

SENTENCE UNDER ACT TO BE DETERRENT.—The Courts are not at liberty to treat this enactment as a legislative imposture and manifestly, if it is to be effective, the sentence upon the priest and other celebrants, without whose aid ordinarily no infringement of the Act is possible, should be such as to deter other avaricious members of his caste from following his example. 14 Pat.L.T. 438=33 Cr.L.J. 20=1933 Pat. 471.

SEC. 2: EVIDENCE OF AGE.—Register of Births and Deaths is a relevant document under Sec. 35 of the Evidence Act, and further evidence may not be necessary to establish the date of birth. 16 Pat.L.T. 629. But opinion evidence from mere appearance is not sufficient to establish the age. I.L.R. (1937) Mad. 854=1937 M. 490; nor certificate from any incompetent medical officer when more competent officer is available. 35 Cr.L.J. 677=148 I.C. 351=1934 A. 331.

SEC. 2 (b): MARRIAGE.—The word 'marriage' has not been defined in this Act. "The meaning of the word differs in different countries. In Christendom, it means a monogamous marriage, being the voluntary union for life of one man and one woman to the exclusion of all others. In India a marriage has a different meaning, in that, in the case of Hindus, it need not be voluntary and it may be polygamous, and if custom permits polyandrous; while in the case of the Mahomedans there is a marriage called Mulah which need not be for life at all." (Gour's Hindu Law, 3rd Ed., p. 271.)

However, marriage may be defined as an alliance between a man and a woman recognised by law. Such alliance may be formed in a number of ways which vary from the most complicated form prescribed in the Hindus Sastras to the free love which under the name of Sambandam is taken for a marriage in Malabar. The question of legal recognition is all in all.

SOLEMNIZATION OF MARRIAGE AMONG HINDUS—ESSENTIALS.—Hindu lawyers prescribed various ceremonies for the solemnization of a marriage. But these ceremonies in their entirety are seldom, if ever, performed. According to them the Vivaha Homa and Saptapadi are essential. But it is notorious that marriages are performed in many castes without them, and it is now settled that, if by caste usage any other form is considered as constituting a marriage, then the adoption of that form under the conditions prescribed by the caste, with the intention of thereby completing the marriage union, is sufficient. It is consequently clear that the essential and binding part of the marriage ceremony must necessarily vary in different localities. 33 M. 342=5 I.C. 42.

TILAK CEREMONY, IF CONSTITUTES MARRIAGE.—Tilak ceremony may be regarded as a necessary preliminary to the marriage ceremony; but the actual marriage is a ceremony quite different and distinct from it. Nor can a marriage be properly called a 'consequence' of the tilak ceremony. 1934 A.L.J. 681=35 Cr.L.J. 1175=1934 A. 829.

MARRIAGE BETWEEN PARTIES OF SAME GOTRA IF NOT WITHIN THE ACT.—The Act aims at and deals with the restraint of the performance of the marriage, and it has nothing to do with the validity or invalidity of the marriage; so even when the parties to the marriage belonged to the same gotra, it will nonetheless be marriage for the purposes of this Act. 58 A. 402=36 Cr.L.J. 1483=1936 A. 11.

MARRIAGE WHEN COMPLETE—GAUNA CEREMONY IF NECESSARY.—The marriage becomes complete as soon as the marriage ceremony which depends on the law and religion of the parties is performed. The fact that the Gauna ceremony has not been performed as yet does not affect the performance of the marriage. Consummation is not a part of the marriage ceremony. 58 A. 402=36 Cr.L.J. 1483=1936 A. 11.

(c) ("contracting party" to a marriage means either of the parties whose marriage is <sup>1</sup>[or is about to be] thereby solemnised; and

(d) "minor" means a person of either sex who is under eighteen years of age.

Punishment for male adult below twenty-one years of age marrying a child.

3. Whoever, being a male above eighteen years of age and below twenty-one, contracts a child marriage shall be punishable with fine which may extend to one thousand rupees.

4. Whoever, being a male above twenty-one years of age, contracts a child marriage shall be punishable with simple imprisonment which may extend to one month, or with fine which may extend to one thousand rupees, or with both.

Punishment for male adult above twenty-one years of age marrying a child.

LEG. REF.

<sup>1</sup> Inserted by Act XIX of 1938.

NOTES.

SEC. 2 (c): CONTRACTING PARTY.—These words in this Act are defined to mean the parties whose marriage is or is about to be thereby celebrated. Generally in this country, child marriages are brought about by the parents or guardians of the children, and but for this definition, these words would naturally refer to the parents or guardians.

SEC. 2 (d): MINOR.—This Act fixes the age of minority at 18 years for the purposes of this Act. According to the Indian Majority Act, it is extended to 21 years when there is a certificated guardian appointed or declared by the Court under the Guardians and Wards Act, 1893.

SEC. 3: SCOPE OF.—This section fixes the penalty of a maximum fine of Rs. 1,000 on a male between the ages of 18 and 21, who contracts a child marriage. Note that no imprisonment can be awarded under this section. Imprisonment cannot be awarded under the provisions of section 25, General Clauses Act, 1897, or section 64 of the I. P. Code even in case of default in payment of the fine inflicted (see section 7, infra.)

CONTRACTUAL CAPACITY FOR MARRIAGE UNDER ENGLISH LAW—EFFECT OF CHILD MARRIAGE.—Under the English law, a binding marriage can be contracted by an infant of either sex at the age of 16 years. [Vide age of Marriage Act (1929), 19 & 20 Geo. V, ch. 36, section 1], and a marriage between persons either of whom is under that age is void. (Halsbury, 2nd Ed., Vol. XVII, p. 597.)

SECS. 3 AND 4: SCOPE OF.—Sections 3 and 4 prescribe penalties for the male who contracts a child marriage for himself and these differ according to his age. If he is below the age of 18 years, he is not at all punishable. If he is between the ages of 18 and 21, the punishment prescribed under section 3 is only a maximum fine of Rs. 1,000. According to section 7 of the Act, the Court is not competent to award imprisonment for default in payment of fine inflicted. If the male is above 21 years of age, it is open to the Court under section 4 not only to inflict a similar fine of Rs. 1,000 but also to award a month's simple imprisonment in addition, or in the alternative. Also, in this latter case it is open to the Court under section 25 of the General Clauses Act, 1897, or section 64 of the I. P. Code to award additional imprisonment on default of payment of the fine.

SEC. 3 OR 4 AND SEC. 12: DISTINCT OFFENCES.—A person may commit distinct offences both under section 3 or section 4 and section 12. Where a male has been restrained by means of an injunction order of the Court issued under section 12 from contracting a child marriage, and he has the same solemnized, then, he would be committing two offences, (i) the offence of contracting the child marriage under section 3 or section 4 as the case may be, and (ii) the offence of contempt of Court for disobeying the injunction, and would render himself liable to two sentences and punishments.

It is to be noted that section 7 disables the Court from awarding punishment of imprisonment for default of payment of the fine inflicted, only in respect of a sentence under section 3. Therefore, where the male between the ages of 18 and 21 contracts a child marriage in disobedience to an injunction order issued by the Court against it, and he is fined under section 12, it is open to the Court to award imprisonment as an alternative punishment on default of payment of the fine inflicted on him.

SEC. 4.—See notes under section 3 supra.

SECS. 4 AND 5: VALUE OF CERTIFICATE AS TO AGE OF BRIDE FROM INCOMPETENT MEDICAL OFFICER.—In a case under this Act against the bridegroom under section 4 and the priest who officiated at the marriage under section 5, it was contended by them that they were misled by a certificate granted by the woman medical officer in charge of a hospital to the effect that the girl was not less than 14 years of age. But according to the Civil Surgeon the girl was only about 12 years of age, and no evidence was produced to contradict the Civil Surgeon. It was held that they should have gone to the Civil Surgeon in order to obtain a certificate and that the fact of their having secured a certificate from the woman medical officer, was not sufficient. 35 Cr.L.J. 677=148 I.C. 351=1934 A. 331. But the production of the medical certificate may be taken into account in the matter of awarding punishment. (Ibid.)

5. Whoever performs, conducts or directs any child marriage shall be punishable with simple imprisonment which may extend to one month, or with fine which may extend to one thousand rupees, or with both, unless he proves that he had reason to believe that the marriage was not a child marriage.

NOTES.

JUSTIFICATION CAN BE PLEADED ONLY IF ACT DONE IN GOOD FAITH.—A party pleading justification and claiming exemption from punishment for any offence should have under section 79 of the Indian Penal Code, acted in good faith involving due care and caution. 35 Cr.L.J. 677=148 I.C. 351=1934 A. 331.

SEC. 5: 'PERFORMS, CONDUCTS OR DIRECTS'.—The words 'performing, conducting' etc., refer to the actual marriage ceremony itself, and not of any negotiation, preparation or any other preliminary acts; and these are not covered by the section. 175 I.C. 615=1938 Nag. 235. See also 42 Bom.L.R. 857=1940 Bom. 363. These words would include the Priests or Purohits who officiate at the marriage ceremony. See 14 Pat.L.T. 438=146 I.C. 298=1933 Pat. 471. Do these words include also persons such as those who accommodate the offending parties by giving them premises, etc., for the celebration of the marriage, and the servants and dependants of the parties who do several acts in connection with and in furtherance of the marriage? It has been held that merely applying to the Municipal Board for permission to hold nautch, music, and fireworks on the occasion of marriage does not amount to an offence under this section. 1936 O.W. N. 480. But it has been held, in 16 Pat.L.T. 639, that, though a person may not be directly guilty of an offence under this Act, the provisions of the Indian Penal Code regarding the abetment of offences may be applied to him, and he may be convicted and sentenced for abetment of offences under this Act. So, according to this section, it would be a question of fact in each case whether the acts alleged against any such person constitute an abetment of the offence under this Act read with the provisions of the Indian Penal Code. Section 5 of the Act is intended to punish the solemnizing a child marriage. The words "perform, conduct or direct" in section 5 bear the same import and mean working towards the end, that is completing the union, and are used to indicate solemnization of the marriage. They do not suggest the arranging of marriage merely or attending a marriage ceremony with view to assisting in the solemnization of the marriage. The words are used in relation to the ceremony. The performance of a marriage among Hindus means the solemnization thereof by conducting such ceremonies as would complete and validate the marriage that is, the performance of the sacramental or religious and not the secular ceremony. Mere participation in the latter ceremony would not offend against section 5. Section 5 is not intended to punish parents who arrange or assist in the performance of the marriage ceremony. The parents of a grown up bride who take part in the kanyadan ceremony cannot be made liable under section 5. I.L.R. (1940) Bom. 709=42 Bom.L.R. 857=1940 Bom. 363.

MARRIAGE.—[See also notes under section 2 (b) supra.] For the purposes of this section, it is only the marriage ceremony that has to be considered, and it is quite immaterial where and when or by whom the Tilak ceremony was performed. 1934 A.L.J. 681=35 Cr.L.J. 1175=1934 A. 829. Where the accused are not charged with the commission of an offence by reason of having performed the Tilak ceremony, but are charged for the offence of performing, conducting or directing the child marriage under section 5 of this Act, sections 179 and 182, Criminal Procedure Code, could not apply, as the marriage cannot be properly called a 'consequence' of the Tilak ceremony, and the case is, therefore, not triable in the place where the Tilak ceremony took place. 1934 A.L.J. 681=35 Cr.L.J. 1175=1934 A. 829. See also 175 I.C. 615=1938 Nag. 235.

'REASON TO BELIEVE'.—These words imply that there has been a bona fide inquiry and test as regards the age of the child concerned. It is a well-known fact in medical jurisprudence that the age of a person between the ages of 12 and 16 could not be ascertained satisfactorily by a mere personal inspection. So in a case where the husband and priest who were accused under this Act pleaded that they were satisfied by a personal inspection of the minor girl that she was above the age of 14 years while as a matter of fact she was below that age, it was held that the defence would not avail them. I.L.R. (1937) Mad. 854=45 L.W. 437. Further, mere production of a medical certificate as to the age would not be sufficient. It must have been issued by a competent medical officer. Where, therefore, a certificate as to the age of a girl was obtained from a subordinate woman medical officer while there was available in the station the District Civil Surgeon, and while the uncontradicted evidence of the Civil Surgeon showed that the girl was below the age of 14 years, it was held that the parties were guilty. 35 Cr.L.J. 677=148 I.C. 351=1934 A. 331. Production of the birth certificate of the boy or girl may be satisfactory evidence.

SECS. 5 AND 6: SCOPE OF—CONFLICT OF RULINGS.—As to the question whether the parents are liable under section 5 or under section 6, or under both these sections, there is a difference of opinion among the High Courts. It was held by the Allahabad High Court that sections 5 and 6 deal with different offences, section 5 deals with the persons who perform, conduct or direct any child marriage. Section 6 provides for the offence in cases where a minor himself conducts a child marriage. It is only in the case where

6. (1) Where a minor contracts a child marriage, any person having charge of the minor, whether as parent or guardian or in any other capacity, lawful or unlawful, who does any act to promote the marriage or permits it to be solemnised, or negligently fails to prevent it from being solemnised, shall be punishable with simple imprisonment which may a minor contracts a child marriage that any person having charge of the minor, whether as parent or guardian or in any other capacity, lawful or unlawful, who does any act to promote the marriage or permits it to be solemnised, or negligently fails to prevent it from being solemnised shall be punishable. Section 5 deals with cases in which the marriage is not contracted by the minor. It is not the intention of the legislature to punish a person both under sections 5 and 6 at the same time. 58 A. 402=36 Cr.L.J. 1483=A.I.R. 1936 A. 11.

The Madras High Court, on the other hand, holds that section 5 applies only to the solemnization of marriage by others than parents and that section 6 alone applies to parents who promote a child marriage or permit it or negligently fail to prevent it. I.L.R. (1937) Mad. 854=45 L.W. 437. The Nagpur Court also holds the same view as that of Madras. 1932 N. 174. In cases of complaints of offences under sections 5 and 6 and it is essential that trying Magistrate should find definitely that either or both of the contracting parties to the marriage were infants within the meaning of the Act, that is to say, that the bridegroom was under the age of 18 or that the bride was under the age of 14. 181 I.C. 916=40 Cr.L.J. 605=A.I.R. 1939 Cal. 288. Where it is alleged that the accused lived in British India and arranged for a marriage in contravention of the provisions of the Act, to take place out of British India, the offence is committed inside British India and hence no certificate under section 188, Cr. P. Code, is necessary. 1939 A.M. L.J. 130. See also 49 L.W. 656=A.I.R. 1939 M. 577.

SEC. 6: SCOPE AND OBJECT OF SECTION.—Unlike section 5 which constitutes only positive acts as an offence, this section constitutes not only certain acts but also certain omissions as offences under the Act. Further this section lays down a rule of presumption contrary to the ordinary rule of presumption under the criminal law, and throws on the accused the burden of proving that he did not negligently fail to prevent the child marriage. On this section, see 175 I.C. 615=A.I.R. 1938 Nag. 235.

PARENTS WHEN COMMIT OFFENCE UNDER THIS SECTION—FATHER AND MOTHER.—S. 6 is confined only to the person who had actual charge of the minor either as parent or guardian at the time of the marriage. I.L.R. (1937) Mad. 854=1937 M. 490. See also 16 Pat.L.T. 629=1935 Pat. 475. In the case of Hindu marriages, it cannot be said that the father of the bridegroom or the bride does not perform or direct the marriage. It is generally the father or the guardian who arranges for the marriage of the boy and takes the marriage party to the house of the bride. It is the father of the bride who takes part actually in the performance of the marriage ceremonies, as it is he who gives his daughter in marriage. Therefore it cannot be said of either of them that he did not perform or direct the marriage. 58 A. 402=36 Cr.L.J. 1483=A.I.R. 1936 A. 11. The mother has no authority, when the father of the bridegroom who is below 18 years promotes and brings about the marriage, to prevent the marriage; and her mere participation in the marriage cannot be regarded as constituting an offence punishable under this section. I.L.R. (1937) Mad. 854=45 L.W. 437. Where the bridegroom who was below 18 years was in charge of the father, who promoted the marriage and got it performed, the mother of the bridegroom cannot be convicted under this section. I.L.R. (1937) M. 854=1937 M. 490.

BRIDEGROOM AND BRIDE—ONE ONLY IS CHILD—WHETHER FATHER OF THE OTHER GUILTY UNDER THIS ACT—CONFLICT OF VIEWS—ABETMENT.—The Allahabad High Court holds that section 5 is wide enough to cover the case of the fathers of both the bridegroom and the bride. Even where one of them, i.e., the bride or the bridegroom is not of the age specified in the Act for her or him, the fathers of both of them would be liable under this section. 58 A. 402=36 Cr.L.J. 1483=A.I.R. 1936 A. 11. But a different view has been taken by the Madras High Court which holds that the parents of the bridegroom cannot be convicted under this section, merely because the bride was under 14 years, and they can be convicted, if at all under this section, only if the bridegroom, i.e., their own son who was in their charge, was under 18 years at the time of marriage. I.L.R. (1937) M. 854=1937 M. 490. But a reconciliation may be found in the decision of the Patna High Court which has held that although the Act makes no mention of abetting, yet under the provisions of the Indian Penal Code, it is possible for them to be prosecuted for abetting an offence although the accused is not the father of one of the parties who is under age so long as the other party is below the prescribed age. So, even if the bridegroom is not under age, his father would be guilty of abetting the offence under this Act if the bride is of under age. 16 Pat.L.T. 629=1935 P. 474.

NO IMPRISONMENT FOR WOMEN.—This provision in favour of woman offenders is due to the fact that very often they are not the principal offenders, but only happen to be a tool in the hands of some male relations. There is a similar exemption from imprisonment in the case of females, in respect of extend to one month, or with fine which may extend to one thousand rupees, or with both:

Provided that no woman shall be punishable with imprisonment.

(2) For the purposes of this section, it shall be presumed unless and until the contrary is proved, that, where a minor has contracted a child marriage, the person having charge of such minor has negligently failed to prevent the marriage from being solemnised.

7. Notwithstanding anything contained in section 25 of the General Clauses Act, 1897, or section 64 of the Indian Penal Code, a Court sentencing an offender under section 3 shall not be competent to direct that, in default of payment of the fine imposed, he shall undergo any term of imprisonment.

8. Notwithstanding anything contained in section 190 of the Code of Criminal Procedure, 1898, no Court other than that of a Presidency Magistrate or a <sup>1</sup>[Magistrate of the first class] shall take cognizance, of, or try, any offence under this Act.

9. <sup>2</sup>[No Court shall take cognizance of any offence under this Act after the expiry of one year from the date on which the offence is alleged to have been committed.]

offences under section 12 of this Act.

SEC. 7.—This section does not affect the power of the Court to inflict an alternative punishment of imprisonment in default of payment of the fine imposed, where the offence and sentence are under section 12 of this Act, even though the accused is the male husband between the ages of 18 and 21. This section applies only where the sentence is under section 3.

SEC. 8.—The reason for the amendment introduced in this section is to confer upon a large number of officers jurisdiction to take cognizance of offences and to entertain complaints, and try offences under the Act, so that cases may be disposed of with greater facility and quickness. In (1937) 1 M.L.J. 498=A.I.R. 1937 Mad. 637, it was held that an Additional District Magistrate who had been given all the powers of a District Magistrate was empowered to try cases under this Act. But in view of the amendment to the section which empowers every first class Magistrate to try them, there would not be any room for any such doubt arising. On this section, see also 1934 A. 331.

SEC. 9: OBJECT OF AMENDMENT.—The amendment of this section has been made with a view to permit the Court to take proceedings under the Act upon its own motion without the necessity of a formal complaint. The words "save upon a complaint made" have been deleted. The ruling in 1938 Rang. L.R. 150=A.I.R. 1938 Rang. 257 which held that a mere 'police report' did not constitute a 'complaint' as required by this section before it was amended, is no longer of any significance since the words relating to 'complaint' have been deleted in the amended section. The reason for this amendment has been stated as follows in the Statement of Objects and Reasons:—"It is known that one of the principal impediments to the enforcement of the Sarda Act at present lies in the obligation placed upon the complainant to incur the publicity of a formal complaint and, if required by the Court, to execute a bond, to incur also the risk of losing the sum mentioned in the bond. The proposed amendment would enable the Court to proceed upon information obtained privately after taking such steps as it might think necessary to satisfy itself of the correctness of the information"

ONE YEAR—LIMITATION, REASON FOR.—As a general rule, in the absence of statutory limitation a prosecution for an offence may be instituted at any time however long after the commission of the criminal act. But several special Acts have enacted a time limit for the commencement of criminal proceedings. The general rule underlying these provisions is that in respect of minor offences, it is desirable that after the lapse of a long period no prosecution should be entertained. Every act that is prohibited by law and for which a penalty is imposed is not to be deemed a criminal offence. Actions for the violation of several Municipal Ordinances are treated as civil in their nature, the imprisonment or fine imposed for non-compliance with the order being looked upon not as a punishment but as compelling a compliance with the order. It is the policy of this Act more to restrain and prevent the performance of child marriages than to punish the offenders. Hence a time limit of one year has been fixed for taking cognizance of an offence under this Act, with a view to avoid vexatious and stale prosecutions. Section 14 of the Limitation Act is in terms restricted to civil proceedings and cannot be availed of in respect of proceed-

10. The Court taking cognizance of an offence under this Act shall, unless it dismisses the complaint under section 203 of the Code of Criminal Procedure, 1898, either itself make an inquiry under section 202 of that Code, or direct a Magistrate of the first class subordinate to it to make such inquiry.

11. <sup>1</sup>[(1) When the Court takes cognizance of any offence under this Act upon a complaint made to it, it may for reasons to be recorded in writing, at any time after examining the complainant and before issuing process for compel-

ings under the Child Marriage Restraint Act. A complaint preferred beyond year of the solemnisation of the marriage cannot be taken cognizance of under section 7. The fact that another unsuccessful complaint had been made to another Magistrate within time would not help to make the second complaint filed beyond time a valid one. 49 L.W. 547 (1)=A.I.R. 1939 Mad. 512=(1939) 1 M.L.J. 775. Marriage in Native State—Complaint within one year but certificate obtained after one year—Trial would be legal. 1940 Nag. 245=1940 N.L.J. 304; see also 1939 A.M.L.J. 130; 1939 Mad. 577=47 L.W. 656.

SEC. 10: "TAKING COGNIZANCE".—Formerly the Court can take cognizance of an offence under the Act only on a complaint made to it, but now the Amending Act XIX of 1938 has removed the words "save upon a complaint" in section 9 with the result that the Court can take cognizance of the matter otherwise also.

PRELIMINARY INQUIRY NECESSARY BEFORE ISSUING SUMMONS.—Under this section, the Court taking cognizance of an offence under this Act is bound to hold a preliminary inquiry before taking further action unless it dismisses the complaint under section 203, Criminal Procedure Code. 12 Lah. 383=32 Cr.L.J. 616=1931 Lah. 56 (1); 15 Lah. 63=35 Cr.L.J. 1436=1934 Lah. 155; 20 N.L.J. 115. See also 48 L.W. 774. Section 10 is mandatory and clearly prohibits a Court from taking cognizance of an offence under the Act without a preliminary inquiry being held. A process issued without holding an inquiry as required by section 10, is therefore unauthorised and illegal. A.I.R. 1939 Mad. 530=(1939) 1 M.L.J. 900. Section 10 contains provisions which are mandatory, and omission to conform with the procedure prescribed by the section would vitiate all subsequent proceedings. I.L.R. (1940) Kar. 442=1940 Sind 213. Section 10 no doubt requires that a preliminary inquiry must be held. But where a Court finds that there is a prima facie case and also holds the offence established after a proper trial, it cannot be held that the conviction must be set aside for the technical reason that no preliminary inquiry was held as required by section 10. This does not mean that Magistrates are entitled to disregard the provisions of section 10. But where the accused does not object to the trial, he cannot benefit by an objection which is entirely technical in its nature. 20 Pat.L.T. 495=A.I.R. 1939 Pat. 525. Where in respect of an offence under the Child Marriage Restraint Act the accused are tried and convicted without a preliminary enquiry being held as required by section 10 of the Act, and no prejudice had thereby been caused to the accused, the trial and conviction is not on that ground in any way vitiated and the defect is cured by section 537, Cr. P. Code. I.L.R. (1940) Nag. 488=A.I.R. 1940 Nag. 375.

The mere fact that the security bond obtained from the complainant is defective, because the property offered by him did not belong to him, would not vitiate the trial of an offence under section 5, as it does not affect the merits of the case. 1936 O.W.N. 480=A.I.R. 1936 O. 311=37 Cr.L.J. 616.

PROCEDURE AT TRIAL.—Cases under this Act may be summarily tried. 36 Cr.L.J. 677=148 L.C. 351=1934 All. 331. Strictly speaking the accused should be re-examined after the prosecution witnesses are over. But omission to re-examine an accused after the prosecution evidence is completely recorded is not such an irregularity as vitiates the trial of an offence under this Act unless the irregularity is shown to have caused prejudice to the accused or a failure of justice. 1936 O.W.N. 480=A.I.R. 1936 O. 311=37 Cr.L.J. 616. Where, therefore in a case under section 6 of the Act, an accused is examined at length and given full opportunity to state his case, but is not examined again after some further prosecution witnesses are produced and no real prejudice or failure of justice has been caused, the omission to re-examine the accused was held not to have vitiated the trial. (Ibid.) But, where the Court merely asked the accused, whether he pleaded 'guilty' or 'not guilty', and there was nothing on the record to show that he was questioned at any time with a view to enabling him to explain the circumstances appearing in evidence against him, the failure to examine the accused person was held to be an irregularity which went to the root of a fair trial and it was not to be regarded as a mere technical error of procedure, and that it would, therefore, be necessary to set aside the conviction and sentence on him. 1936 O.W.N. 480=37 Cr.L.J. 616=A.I.R. 1936 O. 311; 11 Luck. 461=A.I.R. 1936 O. 16, Expl.

SEC. 11 (1).—This sub-section applies only to cases where the Court takes cognizance ling the attendance of the accused, require the complainant to execute a bond, with or without sureties, for a sum not exceeding one hundred rupees, as security for the payment of any compensation which the complainant may be directed to pay under section 250 of the Code of Criminal Procedure, 1898, and if such security is not furnished within such reasonable time as the Court may fix, the complaint shall be dismissed.]

(2) A bond taken under this section shall be deemed to be a bond taken under the Code of Criminal Procedure, 1898, and Chapter XLII of that Code shall apply accordingly.

12. (1) Notwithstanding anything to the contrary contained in this Act, the Court may, if satisfied from information laid before it through a complaint or otherwise that a child marriage in contravention of this Act has been arranged or is about to be solemnized, issue an injunction against any of the persons mentioned in sections 3, 4, 5 and 6 of this Act prohibiting such marriage.

(2) No injunction under sub-section (1) shall be issued against any person unless the Court has previously given notice to such person, and has afforded him an opportunity to show cause against the issue of the injunction.

(3) The Court may either on its own motion or on the application of any person aggrieved rescind or alter any order made under sub-section (1).

of an offence under this Act upon a complaint and not where it takes cognizance otherwise. Generally security would be demanded from the complainant only in cases where the Court entertains a doubt as to the truth of the complainant's allegation, or opines that the complaint has not been bona fide. [20 N.L.J. 115 is not now good law.]

OBJECT AND SCOPE OF AMENDMENT.—As regards taking security, it was obligatory on the Court to do so under the old sub-section (1); and the words used were "shall require". If the Court did not want to take any security it was required to state its reasons therefor. But under the present substituted sub-section (1), the words used are "may require" and also the Court has to state its reasons not for waiving security but for requiring security. Under the old sub-section (1), it was held that the failure of a Magistrate to record any reason for not requiring the complainant to execute a bond was a material irregularity which could not be cured by section 537, Criminal Procedure Code. 37 C.W.N. 626=34 Cr.L.J. 554=1933 Cal. 433 (1). But this would be no longer correct under the amended sub-section (1), under which reason has to be given only for 'taking' security and not for 'not taking'. On this section see also 20 N.L.J. 115; 162 I.C. 389=37 Cr.L.J. 616=A.I.R. 1936 Oudh 311.

SEC. 12: OBJECT.—The reason for the insertion of section 12 has been stated as follows in the Statement of Objects and Reasons:—"for facilitating the more effective enforcement of the Act," it is necessary to put "beyond question that the Courts empowered to take proceedings under the Act may at their discretion issue an injunction prohibiting a marriage arranged in contravention of the Act. Already Civil Courts in Bombay Presidency are known in several cases to have issued injunction orders against marriages known to have been arranged in contravention of the Act. It is not known whether similar action has been taken in any other province. But since doubts have been thrown upon the legality or practicability of this method, it seems desirable to remove such doubts by providing for it directly through the proposed amendment. The draft bill proposes to impose a higher maximum penalty for the breach of such an injunction than the penalty provided in the Act in the case of prosecutions after the marriage had already taken place, on the ground that breach of a Court injunction involves contempt of Court." As interference of the Court in the matter of contemplated marriages by way of injunction orders is a serious matter and is likely to lead sometimes to irreparable damages, several safeguards have been provided in sub-sections (2) to (4) of this section. Previous notice to be given and opportunity to be afforded to the party to show cause to the contrary before an injunction order can be issued; and further, power is reserved to the Court to dissolve the injunction order suo motu or on the application of any aggrieved party. Sub-section (4) also enjoins on the Court the duty of a speedy disposal of applications to dissolve the injunction orders passed by it, and the Court is required to state its reasons in writing if it happens to reject the application. This provision shows that the rejection of such an application is not a matter of mere discretion for the Court, but that it can be only for valid and sufficient grounds which have to be expressly stated so that the Court of revision may be in a position to judge about the sufficiency of the grounds.

PROVISO—NO IMPRISONMENT FOR WOMAN.—See notes under section 6 supra.

(4) Where such an application is received, the Court shall afford the applicant an early opportunity of appearing before it either in person or by pleader; and if the Court rejects the application wholly or in part, it shall record in writing its reasons for so doing.

(5) Whoever knowing that an injunction has been issued against him under sub-section (1) of this section disobeys such injunction shall be punished with imprisonment of either description for a term which may extend to three months, or with fine which may extend to one thousand rupees, or with both:

Provided that no woman shall be punishable with imprisonment.]

THE CHILDREN (PLEDGING OF LABOUR) ACT (II OF 1933).

PREFATORY NOTE: *Statement of Objects and Reasons.—"The Royal Commission on Labour found evidence in such widely separated areas as Amritsar, Ahmedabad and Madras of the practice of pledging child labour—that is, the taking of advances by parents or guardians on agreements, written or oral, pledging the labour of their children. In some cases, the children so pledged were subjected to particularly unsatisfactory working conditions. The Commission considered that the State would be justified in adopting strong measures to eradicate the evil and the Bill seeks to do so by imposing penalties on parties to agreements pledging the labour of children and on persons knowingly employing children whose labour has been pledged."

The following are extracts from the Report of the Royal Commission on Labour on which the provisions of this Act are based:—

CHILD LABOUR IN "BIDI" FACTORIES.—"The paramount matter for concern, in a number of areas, particularly in the Madras Presidency, is the question of child (i.e., boy) labour. In many cities, large numbers of young boys are employed for long hours and discipline is strict. Indeed there is reason to believe that corporal punishments and other disciplinary measures of a reprehensible kind are sometimes resorted to in the case of the smaller children. Workers as young as five years of age may be found in some of these places working without adequate meal intervals or weekly rest days, and often for 10 or 12 hours daily, for sums as low as 2 annas in the case of those of tenderest years. This recalls some of the worst features of child apprenticeship in England at the time of the agitation prior to the passing of the first Factory Act, particularly when it is realised that many of the parents of these child workers are in debt to the employer. As a result they are not in a position to enquire too closely into the treatment meted out to their children or to do other than return an absconding child. Although it is impossible to give even an approximate figure of the numbers of such child workers in the provinces where this type of labour is most prevalent, we are confident from the evidence submitted to us, as well as from our own personal observations, that it is sufficiently large in certain areas to constitute an evil which demands immediate remedy.

CHILDREN IN AMRITSAR CARPET FACTORIES.—"The main point to be observed in the carpet weaving industry is the employment of young children. In the Carpet Factories of Amritsar these children are employed not directly by the Factory owner but by the weaving masters, who are responsible both for engaging them and for paying their wages. The manager concerns himself solely with the master weaver who is paid on a contract basis, i.e., so much for each carpet, according to its size, quality and design. There is for the most part no limitation on the children's hours other than that imposed by the exigencies of daylight and the need of rest intervals, though holidays are generally obtained by taking advantage of both Hindu and Mussalman religious festivals. No girl labour is employed. For the most part boys start at 9 years of age, though in some cases it might be as low as six years. Although the method by which this boy labour is obtained varies in details in different parts of the district, its essential characteristics are the same throughout. Where the child is not the son or a near relative of the weaving master, he is normally the child of a man who, in return for a loan of money from the weaving master, contracts out the labour of his child at so many rupees (7, 9, etc., according to the age of the child) per month. The duration of the contract, which is sometimes set out in a formal document, would appear to be determined by the repayment of the loan. It is not without significance that one witness, who was Managing Director of a leading carpet manufacturing firm, declared, when shown such a document found by us on his own premises and drawn up only a few weeks previously, that that was the first time he had ever heard of the existence of the written contracts of the kind, excusing his ignorance on the ground that he had "nothing to do with the children" and dealt only with the master weavers. Yet, on his own admission, in this industry two of the four persons on the normal sized loom are generally children under 12 years, the remaining two being a boy of over 14 years and the master weaver himself. It was clear to us from the evidence that these children were in the position of being obliged to work any number of hours per day required of them by their masters. They were without the protection of the law as regards their physical fitness to labour, the number of hours they might be required to work without any interval or, indeed any other of the more elementary protections afforded by the Factories Act in respect of child workers, and they were subjected in some cases to corporal punishment. Yet the bulk of such children were two to five years below the statutory working age in respect of child workers employed in factories under the Act. We understand that the Local Government drew the attention of the industry to the position of these children as long ago as 1923, and that in 1927, after an enquiry which showed that conditions were unchanged, made suggestions for the regulation of child labour. These included the fixing of a minimum age of 9 years and a maximum day of 8 hours for children up to 12 years. The factory owners were prepared to accept a minimum age of 8 years and to provide educational facilities, but the opposition of the master weavers prevented any agreement by their unwillingness to accept, either then or subsequently, any reduction in the working hours. The matter of a voluntary trade agreement in respect of the working conditions of these children is believed still to be under consideration. We are convinced that here, as in the bidi factories, official regulation is required primarily in the interests of the child worker.

COMPULSION AND THE PARENT.—As far as the parents of the child workers typical of these industries are concerned, we realise that we are here dealing with a class wholly illiterate, exceedingly poor and only too often heavily indebted. It is inevitable that to these the child's right to its childhood and even to such education as may be available should make no appeal comparable to that of its earning capacity, however small. There would appear in their case, as in that of the employers, no course open but that of compulsion by means of legislation so framed and so applied as to achieve the necessary end with the minimum of dislocation and hardship. Yet we realise that far-reaching changes, which involve not only serious economic dislocation but also a radical alteration in social custom, cannot be achieved successfully, if imposed too drastically and rapidly. It is as essential to society as to industry to allow time for adjustment to new standards. If this is not done the true purpose of Governmental interference is defeated, resulting either in 'paper' legislation or in legislation the very reality of which results in oppression and dislocation. The recommendations that follow are designed to achieve the desired end whilst avoiding both these dangers. For this reason, while many reforms in these factories are desirable, we would concentrate in the first instance on the two most outstanding and urgent needs, namely, protection of the child and the elimination of the worst dangers to the health of the workers generally.

PLEDGING OF CHILD LABOUR.—Reference has been made to the existence in some of these factories of a system of mortgaging the labour of children. The system is indefensible; it is worse than the system of indentured labour, for the indentured labourer is, when he enters on the contract, a free agent while the child is not. The state would be justified in adopting strong measures to eradicate this evil. The giving of advances to secure the labour of children and the execution of bonds pledging such labour could both be made criminal offences. But, as there may be other questions of policy to be taken into account, we commend the proposal for examination by Government. In any case we recommend that a bond pledging the labour of any person under the age of 15 years, executed for, or on account of the receipt of any consideration should be void. This will not interfere with any honest system of apprenticeship, for in the cases where a bond is executed on behalf of an apprentice, any preliminary payment is made by and not to the parent or guardian of the apprentice. This recommendation is intended for application not merely to work in the factories mentioned in this chapter, but generally. Unfortunately there is evidence that similar abuses have occurred in connection with the employment of children in some of the Ahmedabad cotton mills."

The following are the lines on which legislation on the subject was recommended by the Royal Commission:

"The expediency of penalising the giving of advances to secure the labour of children and the execution of bonds pledging such labour shall be examined by Government. In any case a bond pledging the labour of a person under 15 years executed for or on account of any consideration should be void.

The above recommendation is general and not confined to factories mentioned in this chapter (Chap. VII). [See Whitley Commission Report, pp. 96-99 and 102.]

THE CHILDREN (PLEDGING OF LABOUR) ACT (II OF 1933).

[24th February, 1933.]

An Act to prohibit the pledging of the labour of children.

WHEREAS it is expedient to prohibit the making of agreements to pledge the labour of children, and the employment of children whose labour has been pledged; It is hereby enacted as follows:—

Short title and commencement.

1. (1) This Act may be called THE CHILDREN (PLEDGING OF LABOUR) ACT, 1933.

(2) It extends to the whole of British India, including British Baluchistan and the Sonthal Parganas.

(3) This section and sections 2 and 3 shall come into force at once, and the remaining sections of this Act shall come into force on the first day of July, 1933.

Definitions.

2. In this Act, unless there is anything repugnant in the subject or context—

“an agreement to pledge the labour of a child” means an agreement, written or oral, express or implied, whereby the parent or guardian of a child, in return for any payment or benefit received or to be received by him, undertakes to cause or allow the services of the child to be utilised in any employment:

Provided that an agreement made without detriment to a child, and not made in consideration of any benefit other than reasonable wages to be paid for the child's services, and terminable at not more than a week's notice, is not an agreement within the meaning of this definition;

“child” means a person who is under the age of fifteen years; and “guardian” includes any person having legal custody of or control over a child.

Agreements contrary to the Act to be void.

3. An agreement to pledge the labour of a child shall be void.

Penalty for parent or guardian making agreement to pledge the labour of a child.

4. Whoever, being the parent or guardian of a child, makes an agreement to pledge the labour of that child, shall be punished with fine which may extend to fifty rupees.

Penalty for making with a parent or guardian an agreement to pledge the labour of a child.

5. Whoever makes with the parent or guardian of a child an agreement whereby such parent or guardian pledges the labour of the child shall be punished with fine which may extend to two hundred rupees.

6. Whoever, knowing or having reason to believe that an agreement has been made to pledge the labour of a child, in furtherance of such agreement employs such child, or permits such child to be employed in any premises or place under his control, shall be punished with fine which may extend to two hundred rupees.

Penalty for employing a child whose labour has been pledged.

THE INDIAN CHRISTIAN MARRIAGE ACT (XV OF 1872).

EFFECT OF LEGISLATION.

Year.	No.	Short title.	Repealed or otherwise how affected by legislation.
1872	XV	The Indian Christian Marriage Act, 1872	Repealed in part by Act XVI of 1874. Repealed in part and amended by Act XII of 1891, Act I of 1938. Amended by Acts VI of 1886, S. 30, cls. (a), (b), (d), and II of 1891. Section 81 substituted by Act XIII of 1911. Section 82 and Sch. II amended by Act I of 1903. Section 86 amended by Acts X of 1914. and XXXVIII of 1920. Amended Act XVIII of 1928.

PREFATORY NOTE.—Mr. Ritchie, to whom the task of drafting the Christian Marriage Bill and getting it passed in the Legislative Council was entrusted, thus explained the object of the Bill:—The object of the Bill is to put an end to the state of uncertainty which now exists in regard to marriages in India of persons, one or both of whom are of the Christian religion, but which are solemnized in any of the modes expressly recognized by the law as valid. These modes are three in number, two of them being generally applicable to all persons of whatever denomination of the Christian religion, and one being applicable only to a particular class. The first consists in the performance of the marriage ceremony by a clergyman in Holy Orders, according to the sense in which the English Law understands that term, that is a clergyman who has been episcopally ordained. No particular rite or religious ceremony is legally requisite to this form of marriage, but the presence of a clergyman in Orders at the time of the mutual promise to become man and wife is essential. The clergyman need not be of the same religious denomination as either of the parties. But the clergyman of the denomination which does not recognise episcopacy, who has not been ordained by a Bishop confers no special privilege by his presence, and stands on the same footing in this respect as a layman. This was the only form of marriage recognised by the English Common Law as valid, as was decided in 1844 in the House of Lords in the well-known case of The Queen v. Mills. In 1848 it was provided by an Act of Parliament (58 Geo. III, c. 84) that marriages between persons one or both of whom were of the Church of Scotland solemnized by ordained ministers of that church as by law established or by a chaplain of the East India Company in India should be of the same force and effect as if they were solemnized by ordained clergyman of the Church of England according to the rites and ceremonies of the Church of England. The privilege was subsequently extended by the Legislative Council to ordained Ministers of the Church of Scotland other than Government Chaplains (see Act XXIV of 1860). Until the reign of Queen Victoria no other positive law regarding the solemnization of marriages existed in India. But there was a general impression in consequence of Lord Stowell's famous decision in Darlymple v. Darlymple, that the presence of a Clergyman in Orders required by the English Marriage Act was not essential to the validity of a marriage in any part of the British Dominions beyond the operation of these Acts; and that a simple contract of marriage in words showing that it was to take effect at once would suffice. The House of Lords in Mill's case decided upon the opinion of the English Judges, that the English Common Law of marriage as above stated obtained in Ireland, though the Marriage Act did not extend there, and that the presence of ordained Clergyman in Orders was thus essential. In consequence of the doubt thus thrown upon the validity of the marriages in India the absence of a Clergyman in Orders, the Statute 14 and 15 Vict. c. 40 commonly called the Indian Marriage Act, was passed. This was followed by Act V of 1852 which gave effect to the provisions of the Statute. Under these Acts, marriages in the presence of a Marriage Registrar were legalized. No religious ceremony was necessary, but it was optional to the parties to go through any religious ceremony they please. The Act of Parliament legalized all past marriages solemnized in India by persons not in Holy Orders, not being otherwise invalid, by declaring them valid in law to all intents and purposes. But the doubt which existed as to the validity of such marriages at Common Law was not cleared up in regard to marriages contracted after the Statute. For it was provided that "nothing in the Act shall invalidate any marriage which might be solemnized in India by any person in Holy Orders, or under the Statute of George III already cited, or any other marriage which under the law in force for the time being in India might have been there solemnized if the Act had not been passed, provided that the Governor-General in Council might provide by laws and regulations for the registration of such marriages." The doubt thus left open as to marriages contracted since 1851 still existed in 1872. On the one hand Sir Erskine Perry when Chief Justice of Bombay, and Doctor Lushington, as Dean of the Arches, had held that the principle laid down in Queen v. Mills could not be applied to a country such as India or Australia in which on the first introduction of English laws and institutions, there were clergymen in Holy Orders before whom marriage could be celebrated (see the case of Malcolm v. Cristall, Perry's Oriental Cases 75; Indian Decisions, Old Series, Vol. IV, p. 69) and the House of Lords by passing a Divorce Bill founded on Sir Erskine Perry's decision, has, to some extent though by no means conclusively, sanctioned that view. On the other hand the Court of Exchequer had held that the decision in question extended to invalidate a marriage performed between British subjects in Beyout solemnized before a British clergyman not in Orders. And the Statute of 1848, and the Act of 1860, in favour of marriages performed by Ministers of the Scotch Church, seemed to show that the legislatures both in England and in India considered that the English Common Law applied to Indian marriages. It was almost impossible to determine which of these views was correct though it might be the former was right in principle. But the result of the doubt was, that there was a distressing degree of uncertainty as to the validity of many marriages solemnized since 1857, and that a great deal of fraud with regard to the performance of a sham marriage ceremony by persons having no special qualifications but pretending to be qualified has passed unpunished. In 1854 it was brought to the notice of the Government, that a person who had once been a schoolmaster but had never been ordained to the ministry in any way, professed to have authority to marry, and did perform the ceremony of marriage between several couples of Native Christians in the Backergunge District. Similar practices had been found to have prevailed in other districts, but as the person officiating did not profess to be a Marriage Registrar but only to have authority to marry, and as according to the view of the law the marriages thus solemnized were legal, and the persons referred to therefore, as witnesses did assist in rendering the marriages effectual, it was found impossible to punish him for his imposition. It was felt by the Government of India to be time to put end to the uncertainty which then surrounded the question and which on so important a subject as the validity of marriages, ought not to be allowed to continue for a day longer than could be avoided. One ground upon which it was supposed that the Legislature in India left the question unsettled for some year prior to 1872, was that a law effectually dealing with the subject of Christian marriage must to some extent, effect, or interfere with the provisions of the English Statute of 1851, which it was then beyond the power of the Legislative Council as then constituted, to touch. The difficulty was removed as the Indian Councils Act contained no restriction upon the interference with the Act of Parliament passed in the year above mentioned, and the proposed change of law was quite within the competency of the Council as was constituted, after the Indian Councils Act. The only effectual mode of dealing with the question appeared to be to pass a law declaring that after the passing of the proposed Christian Marriage Act no marriage between persons, both or one of whom shall profess the Christian religion, shall be valid in law unless it be celebrated in one of the modes expressly declared and recognized by law (see sections 4 and 5 of the Act). There was then no hardship in thus declaring the law in 1872. For the Marriage Acts of 1851-52 had been previously for over 10 years in operation. Their provisions were generally well-known throughout India and the facilities for contracting marriage under those Acts had been rendered great by the appointment of Registrars at every place of any importance, both in the British Dominions and in those foreign States in alliance with Great Britain. In regard to past marriages it was proposed to declare that all marriages previously contracted in the presence of persons not in Holy Orders if not otherwise invalid, should be deemed good and valid. This was the course which had been adopted on occasions on which Parliament has prescribed a stricter rule for the future than that which had previously existed, or had been supposed to exist in regard to marriages. I, p. 44) included at this time in the Palamau District, which was separated in 1894.

NOTES.

SEC. 1.—There is nothing either in the Divorce Act or in Christian Marriage Act as regards the age of consent for a Christian marriage. Under section 7, Divorce Act, the Indian High Courts have to act according to the principles and rules of English Courts. Therefore in India the age of consent for a Christian marriage will be determined according to the law in England at the time of the marriage. 55 A. 243=144 I.C. 960=1933 A.L.J. 168=1933 All. 135 (2).

5. Marriages may be solemnized in India—

(1) by any person who has received episcopal ordination, provided that the marriage be solemnized according to the rules, rites, ceremonies and customs of the Church of which he is a Minister;

(2) by any Clergyman of the Church of Scotland, provided that such marriage be solemnized according to the rules, rites, ceremonies and customs of the Church of Scotland;

(3) by any minister of Religion licensed under this Act to solemnize marriages;

(4) by, or in the presence of, a marriage Registrar appointed under this Act;

(5) by any person licenced under this Act to grant certificates of marriage between Native Christians.

6. The [Provincial Government,] so far as regards the territories under its administration, and the [Central Government] so far as regards any [Indian State], may, by notification in the official Gazette <sup>1</sup>[* * *] grant licences<sup>2</sup> to Ministers of Religion to solemnize marriages within such territories and State, respectively, and may, by a like notification, revoke such licences.

7. The [Provincial Government] may appoint one or more Christians, either by name or as holding any office for the time being, to be the Marriage Registrar or Marriage Registrars<sup>3</sup> for any district subject to its administration.

Where there are more Marriage Registrars than one in any district, the Senior Marriage Registrar, Provincial Government shall appoint one of them to be the Senior Marriage Registrar.

When there is only one Marriage Registrar in a district, and such Registrar is absent from such district, or ill, or when his office is temporarily vacant, the Magistrate of the district shall act as, and be, Marriage Registrar thereof during such absence, illness or temporary vacancy.

JURISDICTION.—The various grounds on which the Court can give a decree of nullity under the Divorce Act refer to cases where there has been a marriage validly performed. Questions arise under sections 4 and 5, Christian Marriage Act, when the marriage has not been validly performed. There is a clear distinction between a decree of nullity of a valid marriage and a declaration that the marriage itself is illegal and void. There can therefore be no doubt that there is jurisdiction in the High Court to hear and decide questions under the Christian Marriage Act. [47 I.C. 544, Rel. on; 13 Beng. L.R. 109 and 12 Cal. 706 (F.B.), Ref.] 55 A. 185=144 I.C. 906=1933 All. 122.

SEC. 5: SCOPE.—Rules in section 5 refer to those things which must be done before the ceremony of marriage can be performed. The section deals only with the necessary preliminaries to the ceremony, the ceremony itself, and the person who performs it. It has nothing to do with Canon law. 55 A. 185=144 I.C. 906=1933 A. 122.

SEC. 6.—This section was substituted for the original section 6 by the Indian Christian Marriage Act (1872), Amendment Act (II of 1891), section 1 (1).

For notifications in the North-Western

8. The [Central Government] may, by notification in the [Official Gazette] appoint any Christian, either by name or as Marriage Registrars in holding any office for the time being to be a Marriage Registrar in respect of any district or place within Indian States. <sup>1</sup>[any Indian State.]

The [Central Government] may, by like notification, revoke any such appointment.

9. The [Provincial Government]<sup>6</sup> or (so far as regards any [Indian State] the [Central Government] may grant a licence<sup>2</sup> to any Christian, either by name or as holding any office for the time being, authorising him to grant certificate of marriage between Native Christians.

Any such licence may be revoked by the authority by which it was granted, and every such grant or revocation shall be notified in the official Gazette.

PART II.

TIME AND PLACE AT WHICH MARRIAGES MAY BE SOLEMNIZED.

10. Every marriage under this Act shall be solemnized between the hours of six in the morning and seven in the evening:

Exceptions.

Provided that nothing in this section shall apply to—

(1) a Clergyman of the Church of England solemnizing a marriage under a special licence permitting him to do so at any hour other than between six in the morning and seven in the evening, under the hand and seal of the Anglican Bishop of the Diocese or his Commissary, or

(2) a Clergyman of the Church of Rome solemnizing a marriage between the hours of seven in the evening and six in the morning, when he has received a general or special licence in that behalf from the Roman Catholic Bishop of the Diocese or Vicariate in which such marriage is so solemnized, or from such person as the same Bishop has authorized to grant such licence, <sup>3</sup>[or

(3) a Clergyman of the Church of Scotland solemnizing a marriage according to the rules, rites, ceremonies and customs of the Church of Scotland].

11. No Clergyman of the Church of England shall solemnize a marriage in any place other than a church <sup>4</sup>[where worship is generally held according to the forms of the Church of England], unless there is no <sup>5</sup>[such] church within five miles distance by the shortest road from such place, or unless he has received a special licence authorizing him to do so under the hand and seal of the Anglican Bishop of the Diocese or his Commissary.

For such special licence, the Registrar of the Diocese may charge such additional fee as the said Bishop from time to time authorizes.

PART III.

MARRIAGES SOLEMNIZED BY MINISTERS OF RELIGION LICENSED UNDER THIS ACT.

Notice of intended marriage.

12. Whenever a marriage is intended to be solemnized by a minister of Religion licensed to solemnize marriages under this Act—

one of the persons intending marriage shall give notice in writing, according to the form contained in the first schedule hereto annexed, or to the like effect, to the Minister of Religion whom he or she desires to solemnize the marriage, and shall state therein—

(a) the name and surname, and the profession or condition, of each of the persons intending marriage,

(b) the dwelling-place of each of them.

(c) the time during which each has dwelt there, and

(d) the church or private dwelling in which the marriage is to be solemnized:

Provided that, if either of such persons has dwelt in the place mentioned in the notice during more than one month, it may be stated therein that he or she has dwelt there one month and upwards.

13. If the persons intending marriage desire it to be solemnized in a particular church, and if the Minister of Religion to whom such notice has been delivered be entitled to officiate therein, he shall cause the notice to be affixed in some conspicuous part of such church.

But if he is not entitled to officiate as a Minister in such church, he shall, at his option, either return the notice to the person who delivered to him, or deliver it to some other Minister entitled to officiate therein, who shall thereupon cause the notice to be affixed as aforesaid.

14. If it be intended that the marriage shall be solemnized in a private dwelling, the Minister of Religion, on receiving the notice prescribed in section 12, shall forward it to the Marriage Registrar of the district, who shall affix the same to some conspicuous place in his own office.

15. When one of the persons intending marriage is a minor, every Minister receiving such notice shall, unless within twenty four hours after its receipt he returns the same under the provisions of section 13, send by the post or otherwise a copy of such notice to the Marriage Registrar of the district, or, if there be more than one Registrar of such district, to the Senior Marriage Registrar.

16. The Marriage Registrar or Senior Marriage Registrar, as the case may be, on receiving any such notice, shall affix it to some conspicuous place in his own office, and the latter shall further cause a copy of the said notice to be sent to each of the other Marriage Registrars in the same district, who shall likewise publish the same in the manner above directed.

17. Any Minister of Religion consenting or intending to solemnize any such marriage as aforesaid, shall, on being required so to do by or on behalf of the person by whom the notice was given, and upon one of the persons intending marriage making the declaration hereinafter dian of the person of such minor, and, in case there be no such guardian, then the mother of such minor, may give consent to the minor's marriage, and such consent is hereby required for the same marriage, unless no person authorized to give such consent be resident in India.

20. Every person whose consent to a marriage is required under section

Power to prohibit by notice issue of certificate.

19 is hereby authorized to prohibit the issue of the certificate by any Minister, at any time before the issue of the same, by notice in writing to such Minister, subscribed by the person so authorised with his or her name and place of abode and position with respect to either of the persons intending marriage, by reason of which he or she is so authorized as aforesaid.

21. If any such notice be received by such Minister, he shall not issue his certificate and shall not solemnize the said marriage until he has examined into the matter of the said prohibition, and is satisfied that the person prohibiting the marriage has no lawful authority for such prohibition, or until the said notice is withdrawn by the person who gave it.

Procedure on receipt of notice.

22. When either of the persons intending marriage is a minor, and the Issue of certificate in case of minority.

Minister is not satisfied that the consent of the person whose consent to such marriage is required by section 19 has been obtained, such Minister shall not issue such certificate until the expiration of fourteen days after the receipt by him of the notice of marriage.

marriage to a Minister of Religion, or applies for a certificate from such Minister under section 17, such Minister shall, before issuing the certificate, ascertain whether such Native Christian is cognizant of the purport and effect of the said notice or certificate, as the case may be, and, if not, shall translate or cause to be translated the notice or certificate to such Native Christian into some language which he understands.

NOTES.

SEC. 18.—See 16 All. 212.

21. The certificate to be issued by such Minister shall be in the form contained in the second schedule hereto annexed, or to the like effect.

Form of certificate.

25. After the issue of the certificate by the Minister, marriage may be solemnized between the persons therein described according to such form or ceremony as the Minister thinks fit to adopt:

Solemnization of marriage.

Provided that the marriage be solemnized in the presence of at least two witnesses beside the Minister.

26. Whenever a marriage is not solemnized within two months, after the date of the certificate issued by such Minister as aforesaid, such certificate and all proceedings (if any), thereon shall be void, Certificate void if marriage not solemnized within two months.

and no person shall proceed to solemnize the said marriage until new notice has been given and a certificate thereof issued in manner aforesaid.

PART IV.

REGISTRATION OF MARRIAGES SOLEMNISED BY MINISTERS OF RELIGION.

27. All marriages hereafter solemnized in India between persons one or both of whom professes or profess the Christian religion, except marriages solemnized under Part V or Part VI of this Act, shall be registered<sup>1</sup> in manner hereinafter prescribed.

Marriages when to be registered.

28. Every Clergyman of the Church of England shall keep a register of marriages and shall register therein according to the tabular form set forth in the third schedule hereto annexed, every marriage which he solemnizes under this Act.

Registration of marriages solemnized by Clergyman of Church of England.

29. Every Clergyman of the Church of England shall send four times in every year returns in duplicate, authenticated by his signature, of the entries in the register of marriages solemnized at any place where he has any spiritual charge, to the Registrar of the Archdeaconry to which he is subject, or within the limits of which such place is situate.

Quarterly returns to Archdeaconry.

Such quarterly returns shall contain all the entries of marriages contained in the said register from the first day of January to the thirty-first day of March, from the first day of April to the thirtieth day of June, from the first day of July to the thirtieth day of September, and from the first day of October to the thirty-first day of December, of each year respectively, and shall be sent by such Clergyman within two weeks from the expiration of each of the quarters above specified.

Contents of returns.

The said Registrar upon receiving the said returns shall send one copy thereof to the<sup>1</sup> [Registrar-General of Births, Deaths and Marriages].

30. Every marriage solemnized by a Clergyman of the Church of Rome shall be registered by the person and according to the form directed in that behalf by the Roman Catholic Bishop of the Diocese or Vicariate in which such marriage is solemnized, Registration and returns of marriages solemnized by Clergymen of Church of Rome.

and such person shall forward quarterly to the<sup>2</sup> [Registrar-General of Births, Deaths and Marriages] returns of the entries of all marriages registered by him during the three months next preceding.

Registration and returns of marriages solemnized by Clergymen of Church of Scotland.

31. Every Clergyman of the Church of Scotland shall keep a register of marriages, and shall register therein, according to the tabular form set forth in the third schedule hereto annexed, every marriage which he solemnizes under this Act, and shall forward quarterly to the <sup>1</sup>[Registrar-General of Births, Deaths and Marriages], through the Senior Chaplain of the Church of Scotland, returns, similar to those prescribed in section 29, of all such marriages.

32. Every marriage solemnized by any person who has received episcopal ordination, but who is not a Clergyman of the Church of England, or of the Church of Rome, or by any Minister of Religion licensed under this Act to solemnize marriages, shall, immediately after the solemnization thereof, be registered in duplicate by the person solemnizing the same; (that is to say) in a marriage register-book to be kept by him for that purpose according to the form contained in the fourth schedule hereto annexed, and also in a certificate attached to the marriage-register-book as a counterfoil.

33. The entry of such marriage in both the certificate and marriage-register-book shall be signed by the person solemnizing the marriage, and also by the persons married, and shall be attested by two credible witnesses, other than the person solemnizing the marriage, present at its solemnization.

Every such entry shall be made in order from the beginning to the end of the book, and the number of the certificate shall correspond with that of the entry in the marriage-register-book.

34. The person solemnizing the marriage shall forthwith separate the certificate from the marriage-register-book and send it, within one month from the time of the solemnization, to the Marriage Registrar of the district in which the marriage was solemnized, or, if there be more Marriage Registrars than one, to the Senior Marriage Registrar, who shall cause such certificate to be copied into a book to be kept by him for that purpose, and shall send all the certificates which he has received during the month, with such number and signature or initials added thereto as are hereinafter required, to the <sup>1</sup>[Registrar-General of Births, Deaths and Marriages].

35. Such copies shall be entered in order from the beginning to the end of the said book, and shall bear both the number of the certificate as copied, and also a number to be entered by the Marriage Registrar, indicating the number of the entry of the said copy in the said book, according to the order in which he receives each certificate.

36. The marriage Registrar shall also add such last-mentioned number of the entry of the copy in the book to the certificate, with his signature or initials, and shall, at the end of every month, send the same to the <sup>1</sup>[Registrar-General of Births, Deaths and Marriages].

LEG. REF.

by the Births, Deaths and Marriages Registration Act (VI of 1886), section 30. cl.(b).

37. When any marriage between Native Christians is solemnized <sup>1</sup>[by any such person, Clergyman or Minister of Religion as is referred to in clause (1), clause (2), or clause (3) of section 5], the person solemnizing the same shall, instead of proceeding in the manner provided by sections 28 to 36, both inclusive, register the marriage in a separate register-book, and shall keep it safely until it is filled, or, if he leave the district in which he solemnized the marriage before the said book is filled, shall make over the same to the person succeeding to his duties in the said district.

Whoever has the control of the book at the time when it is filled, shall send it to the Marriage Registrar of the district, or, if there be more Marriage Registrars than one, to the Senior Marriage Registrar, who shall send it to the <sup>2</sup>[Registrar-General of Births, Deaths and Marriages], to be kept by him with the records of his office.

PART V.

MARRIAGES SOLEMNIZED BY, OR IN THE PRESENCE OF, A MARRIAGE REGISTRAR.

38. When a marriage is intended to be solemnized by, or in the presence of, a Marriage Registrar, one of the parties to such marriage shall give notice in writing in the form contained in the first schedule hereto annexed, or to the like effect, to any Marriage Registrar of the District within which the parties have dwelt, or, if the parties dwell in different districts, shall give the like notice to a Marriage Registrar of each district and shall state therein the name and surname, and the profession or condition, of each of the parties intending marriage, the dwelling-place of each of them, the time during which each has dwelt therein, and the place at which the marriage is to be solemnized:

Provided that, if either party has dwelt in the place stated in the notice for more than one month, it may be stated therein that he or she has dwelt there one month and upwards.

39. Every Marriage Registrar shall, on receiving any such notice, cause a copy thereof to be affixed in some conspicuous place in his office.

When one of the parties intending marriage is a minor, every Marriage Registrar shall, within twenty-four hours after the receipt by him of the notice of such marriage, send, by post or otherwise, a copy of such notice to each of the other Marriage Registrars (if any) in the same district, who shall likewise affix the copy in some conspicuous place in his own office.

Notice to be filed and copy entered in Marriage Notice-Book.

40. The Marriage Registrar shall file all such notices and keep them with the records of his office, and shall also forthwith enter a true copy of all such notices in a book to be furnished to him for that purpose by the Provincial Government, and to be called the "Marriage Notice-Book";

NOTES.

SEC. 38: SCOPE—NOTICE—AGE—IF TO BE FILLED IN.—The section governs the schedule and the space left for age is not necessary to be filled with that particular, because no such provision is made in the section. (Dean v. Green, 8 P.D. 89, Foll.; In re Bains, 1 Cr. & P. 31, Diss. from.) 39 C.W.N. 1303=36 Cr.L.J. 1462=1935 C. 678.

and the Marriage Notice-Book shall be open at all reasonable times, without fee, to all persons desirous of inspecting the same.

41. If the party by whom the notice was given request the Marriage Registrar to issue the certificate next hereinafter mentioned, and if one of the parties intending marriage has made oath as hereinafter required, the Marriage Registrar shall issue under his hand a certificate of such notice having been given and of such oath having been made:

Certificate of notice given and oath made.

Proviso.

Provided—

that no lawful impediment be shown to his satisfaction why such certificate should not issue;

that the issue of such certificate has not been forbidden, in manner hereinafter mentioned, by any person authorized in that behalf by this Act;

that four days after the receipt of the notice have expired; and further, that where, by such oath, it appears that one of the parties intending marriage is a minor, fourteen days after the entry of such notice have expired.

42. The certificate mentioned in section 41 shall not be issued by any Marriage Registrar, until one of the parties intending marriage appears personally before such Marriage Registrar, and makes oath—

Oath before issue of certificate.

(a) that he or she believes that there is not any impediment of kindred or affinity, or other lawful hindrance, to the said marriage, and

(b) that both the parties have, or (where they have dwelt in the districts of different Marriage Registrars) that the party making such oath has, had their, his or her usual place of abode within the district of such Marriage Registrar, and, where either or each of the parties is a minor,—

(c) that the consent or consents to such marriage required by law has or have been obtained thereto, or that there is no person resident in India authorized to give such consent, as the case may be.

43. When one of the parties intending marriage is a minor, and both such parties are at the time resident in any of the towns of Calcutta, Madras and Bombay, and are desirous of being married in less than fourteen days after the entry of such notice as aforesaid, they may apply by petition to a Judge of the High Court, for an order upon the Marriage Registrar to whom the notice of marriage has been given, directing him to issue his certificate before the expiration of the said fourteen days required by section 41.

And, on sufficient cause being shown, the said Judge may, in his discretion, make an order upon such Marriage Registrar, directing him to issue his certificate at any time to be mentioned in the said order before the expiration of the fourteen days so required.

And the said Marriage Registrar, on receipt of the said order, shall issue his certificate in accordance therewith.

Consent of father or guardian.

44. The provisions of section 19 apply to every marriage under this Part, either of the parties to which is a minor; and any person whose consent to such marriage would be required there-

Protest against issue of certificate.

under may enter a protest against the issue of the Marriage Registrar's certificate, by writing, at any time before the issue of such certificate, the word

NOTES.

SECS. 41 AND 42.—As to the meaning of "oath," see the General Clauses Act (X of 1897), section 3, cl. (36) and section 4. See 16 C.W.N. 417 (Marriage between a Christian husband and a Jewess divorced according to Jewish Law).

"forbidden" opposite to the entry of the notice of such intended marriage in the Marriage Notice-Book, and by subscribing thereto his or her name and place of abode, and his or her position with respect to either of the parties, by reason of which he or she is so authorized.

When such protest has been entered, no certificate shall issue until the Marriage Registrar has examined into the matter of the protest, and is satisfied that it ought not to obstruct the issue of the certificate for the said marriage, or until the protest be withdrawn by the person who entered it.

Petition where person whose consent is necessary is insane, or unjustly withholds consent.

45. If any person whose consent is necessary to any marriage under this Part is of unsound mind, or if any such person (other than the father) without just cause withholds his consent to the marriage, the parties intending marriage may apply by petition, where the person whose consent is necessary is resident within any of the towns of Calcutta, Madras and Bombay, to a Judge of the High Court, or if he is not resident within any of the said towns, then to the District Judge.

Procedure on petition.

And the said Judge of the High Court, or District Judge, as the case may be, may examine the allegations of the petition in a summary way; and, if upon examination such marriage appears proper, such Judge of the High Court or District Judge, as the case may be shall declare the marriage to be a proper marriage.

Such declaration shall be as effectual as if the person whose consent was needed had consented to the marriage; and, if he has forbidden the issue of the Marriage Registrar's certificate, such certificate shall be issued and the like proceedings may be had under this Part in relation to the marriage as if the issue of such certificate had not been forbidden.

46. Whenever a Marriage Registrar refuses to issue a certificate under this Part, either of the parties intending marriage may apply by petition, where the district of such Registrar is within any of the towns of Calcutta, Madras and Bombay, to a Judge of the High Court, or if such district is not within any of the said towns, then to the District Judge.

The said Judge of the High Court, or District Judge, as the case may be, may examine the allegations of the petition in a summary way, and shall decide thereon.

The decision of such Judge of the High Court or District Judge, as the case may be, shall be final, and the Marriage Registrar to whom the application for the issue of a certificate was originally made shall proceed in accordance therewith.

Petition when Marriage Registrar in Indian State refuses certificate.

47. Whenever a Marriage Registrar resident in any <sup>1</sup>[Indian State] refuses to issue his certificate, either of the parties intending marriage may apply by petition to the Central Government, who shall decide thereon.

Such decision shall be final, and the Marriage Registrar to whom the application was originally made shall proceed in accordance therewith.

48. Whenever a Marriage Registrar, acting under the provisions of section 44, is not satisfied that the person forbidding the issue of the certificate is authorized by law so to do, the said Marriage Registrar shall apply by petition, where his district is within any of the towns of Calcutta, Madras and Bombay, to a Judge of the High Court, or, if such district be not within any of the said towns, then to the District Judge.

Petition when Registrar doubts authority of person forbidding. The said petition shall state all the circumstances of the case, and pray for the order and direction of the Court concerning the same, and the said Judge of the High Court or District Judge, as the case may be, shall examine into the allegations of the petition and the circumstances of the case;

and if, upon such examination, it appears, that the person forbidding the issue of such certificate is not authorized by law so to do, such Judge of the High Court or District Judge, as the case may be, shall declare that the person forbidding the issue of such certificate is not authorized as aforesaid, and thereupon such certificate shall be issued, and the like proceedings may be had in relation to such marriage as if the issue had not been forbidden.

Reference when Marriage Registrar in Indian State doubts authority of person forbidding. Whenever a Marriage Registrar appointed under section 8 to act within any <sup>1</sup>[Indian State] is not satisfied that the person forbidding the issue of the certificate is authorised by law so to do, the said Marriage Registrar shall send a statement of all the circumstances of the case, together with all documents relating thereto, to the #### Central Government.

If it appears to the Central Government that the person forbidding the issue of such certificate is not authorized by law so to do, the Central Government shall declare that the person forbidding the issue of such certificate is not authorized as aforesaid, and thereupon such certificate shall be issued, and the like proceedings may be had in relation to such marriage, as if the issue of the certificate had not been forbidden.

49. Every person entering a protest with the Marriage Registrar, under this Part, against the issue of any certificate, on grounds which such Marriage Registrar, under section 44, or a Judge of the High Court or the District Judge, under section 45 or 46, declares to be frivolous and such as ought not to obstruct the issue of the certificate, shall be liable for the costs of all proceedings in relation thereto and for damages, to be recovered by suit by the person against whose marriage such protest was entered.

50. The certificate to be issued by the Marriage Registrar under the provisions of section 41 shall be in the form contained in the second schedule to this Act annexed or to the like effect, and the Provincial Government shall furnish to every Marriage Registrar a sufficient number of forms of certificate.

Solemnization of marriage after issue of certificate. 51. After the issue of the certificate of the Marriage Registrar, or, where notice is required to be given under this Act to the Marriage Registrars for different districts, after the issue of the certificates of the Marriage Registrars for such districts, marriage may, if there be no lawful impediment to the marriage of the parties described in such certificate or certificates, be solemnized between them, according to such form and ceremony as they think fit to adopt.

But every such marriage shall be solemnized in the presence of some Marriage Registrar (to whom shall be delivered such certificate or certificates as aforesaid) and of two or more credible witnesses besides the Marriage Registrar.

And in some part of the ceremony each of the parties shall declare as follows, or to the like effect:—

"I do solemnly declare that I know not of any lawful impediment why I A.B., may not be joined in matrimony to C.D."

And each of the parties shall say to the other as follows or to the like effect:—"I call upon these persons here present to witness that I, A.B., do take thee, C.D., to be my lawful wedded wife [or husband]."

52. Whenever a marriage is not solemnized within two months after the copy of the notice has been entered by the Marriage Registrar, as required by section 40 the notice and the certificate, if any, issued thereupon, and all other proceedings thereupon, shall be void;

When marriage not had within two months after notice, new notice required.

and no person shall proceed to solemnize the marriage, nor shall any Marriage Registrar enter the same, until new notice has been given, and entry made, and certificate thereof given, at the time and in the manner aforesaid.

Marriage Registrar may ask for particulars to be registered.

53. A Marriage Registrar before whom any marriage is solemnized under this Part may ask of the persons to be married the several particulars required to be registered touching such marriage.

54. After the solemnization of any marriage under this Part, the Marriage Registrar present at such solemnization shall forthwith register the marriage in duplicate; that is to say, in a marriage register-book, according to the form of the fourth schedule hereto annexed, and also in a certificate attached to the marriage-register-book as a counterfoil.

The entry of such marriage in both the certificate and the marriage-register-book shall be signed by the person by or before whom the marriage has been solemnized, if there be any such person, and by the Marriage Registrar present at such marriage, whether or not it is solemnized by him, and also by the parties married, and attested by two credible witnesses other than the Marriage Registrar and person solemnizing the marriage.

Every such entry shall be made in order from the beginning to the end of the book and the number of the certificate shall correspond with that of the entry in the marriage-register-book.

Certificates to be sent monthly to Registrar-General.

55. The Marriage Registrar shall forthwith separate the certificate from the marriage-register-book and send it, at the end of every month, to the <sup>1</sup>[Registrar-General of Births, Deaths and Marriages].

The Marriage Registrar shall keep safely the said register-book until it is filled, and shall then send it to the <sup>1</sup>[Registrar-General of Births, Deaths and Marriages], to be kept by him with the records of his office.

Custody of register-book.

Officers to whom Registrars in Indian States shall send certificates.

56. The Marriage Registrars in <sup>2</sup>[Indian states] shall send the certificates mentioned in S. 54 to such officers as the Central Government from time to time, by notification in the official Gazette appoints in his behalf.<sup>3</sup> certain whether such Native Christian understands the English language, and if he does not, the person solemnizing the marriage shall, at the time of the solemnization, translate, or cause to be translated, to such Native Christian, into a language which he understands, the declarations made at such marriage in accordance with the provisions of this Act.

59. The registration of marriages between Native Christians under this Part shall be made in conformity with the rules laid down in section 37 (so far as they are applicable), and not otherwise.

Registration of marriages between Native Christians.

PART VI.<sup>1</sup>

MARRIAGE OF NATIVE CHRISTIANS.

On what conditions marriages of Native Christians may be certified.

60. Every marriage between Native Christians applying for a certificate shall, without the preliminary notice required under Part III, be certified under this Part, if the following conditions be fulfilled, and not otherwise:—

(1) the age of the man intending to be married shall exceed sixteen years, and the age of the woman intending to be married shall exceed thirteen years;

(2) neither of the persons intending to be married shall have a wife or husband still living;

(3) in the presence of a person licenced under section 9, and of at least two credible witnesses other than such person, each of the parties shall say to the other—

“I call upon these persons here present to witness that I, A.B., in the presence of Almighty God, and in the name of our Lord Jesus Christ, do take thee, C.D., to be my lawful wedded wife [or husband]” or words to the like effect:

Provided that no marriage shall be certified under this Part when either of the parties intending to be married has not completed his or her eighteenth year, unless such consent as is mentioned in section 19 has been given to the intended marriage, or unless it appears that there is no person living authorized to give such consent:

LEG. REF.

The Commissioner of Ajmer-Merwara has been appointed under this section for the Rajputana States, see Aj.R.O.; the Resident for the Central India States for States in Central India, see Brit. Enact., I.S., Vol. III; the Registrar-General of Births, Deaths and Marriages, Madras, for the Mysore State, see ibid., Vol. VI, p. 47; the First Assistant to the Resident for the Hyderabad State, see ibid., Vol. V, p. 26.

<sup>1</sup>As to the validation of past marriages solemnized under Part VI between persons of whom one only was a Native Christian, and penalty for solemnizing such marriages under Part VI in future, see the Marriages Validation Act (II of 1892).

61. When, in respect to any marriage solemnized under this Part, the conditions prescribed in section 60 have been fulfilled, the person licenced as aforesaid, in whose presence the said declaration has been made, shall, on the application of either of the parties to such marriage, and on the payment of a fee of four annas, grant a certificate of the marriage.

The certificate shall be signed by such licenced person, and shall be received in any suit touching the validity of such marriage as conclusive proof of its having been performed.

<sup>1</sup>[62. (1) Every person licenced under section 9 shall keep in English, or in the vernacular language in ordinary use in the district or State in which the marriage was solemnized, and in such form as the Provincial Government by which he was licenced may from time to time prescribe,<sup>2</sup> a register-book of all marriages solemnized under this Part in his presence, and shall deposit in the office of the Registrar-General of Births, Deaths and Marriages for the territories under the administration of the said Provincial Government in such form and at such intervals as that Government may prescribe, true and duly authenticated extracts from his register-book of all entries made therein since the last of those intervals.

(2) Where the person keeping the register-book was licenced as regards <sup>3</sup>[an Indian State] by the [Central Government], references in sub-section (1) to the Provincial Government therein mentioned shall be read as references to the Provincial Government to whose Registrar-General of Births, Deaths and Marriages certified copies of entries in registers of births and deaths are for the time being required to be sent under section 24, sub-section (2), of the Births, Deaths and Marriages Registration Act, 1886.]

63. Every person licenced under this Act to grant certificates of marriage, and keeping a marriage-register-book under section 62, shall, at all reasonable times, allow search to be made in such book, and shall, on payment of the proper fee, give a copy, certified under his hand, of an entry therein.

Books in which marriages of Native Christians under Part I or Part III are registered. 64. The provisions of sections 62 and 63, as to the form of the register-book, depositing extracts therefrom, allowing searches thereof, and giving copies of the entries therein, shall, mutatis mutandis apply to the books kept under section 37.

65. This Part of this Act, except so much of sections 62 and 63 as are referred to in section 64 shall not apply to marriages between Roman Catholics. But nothing herein contained shall invalidate any marriage celebrated between Roman Catholics under the provisions of Part V of Act No. XXV of 1864<sup>4</sup> previous to the twenty-third day of February, 1865.

PENALTIES.

False oath, declaration, notice or certificate for procuring marriage.

(a) where an oath or declaration is required by this Act, or by any rule or custom of a Church according to the rites and ceremonies of which a marriage is intended to be solemnized, such Church being the Church of England or of Scotland or of Rome, makes a false oath or declaration, or,

(b) where a notice or certificate is required by this Act, signs a false notice or certificate, shall be deemed to have committed the offence punishable under section 193 of the Indian Penal Code with imprisonment of either description for a term which may extend to three years and, at the discretion of the Court, with fine.]

67. Whoever forbids the issue, by a Marriage Registrar, of a certificate, by falsely representing himself to be a person whose consent to the marriage is required by law, knowing or believing such representation to be false, or not having reason to believe it to be true, shall be deemed guilty of the offence described in section 205 of the Indian Penal Code.

Forbidding, by false personation, issue of certificate
by Marriage Registrar.

<sup>2</sup>[68. Whoever, not being authorized by section 5 of this Act to solemnize marriages solemnizes or professes to solemnize in the absence of a Marriage Registrar of the district in which the ceremony takes place, a marriage between persons one or both of whom is or are a Christian or Christians, shall be punished with imprisonment which may extend to ten years, or (in lieu of a sentence of imprisonment for seven years or upwards) with transportation for a term of not less than seven years, and not exceeding ten years, or, if the offender is an European or American, with penal servitude according to the provisions of Act XXIV of 1855 (to substitute penal servitude for the punishment of transportation in respect of European and American convicts * * *), and shall also be liable to fine.]

69. Whoever knowingly and wilfully solemnizes a marriage between persons one or both of whom is or are a Christian or Christians, at any time other than between the hours of six in the morning and seven in the evening, or in the absence of at least two credible witnesses other than the person solemnizing the marriage, shall be punished with imprisonment for a term which may extend to three years, and shall also be liable to fine.

SECS. 66 AND 68.—See 16 A. 212; 40 A. 393; 14 M. 342; 17 M. 391; 18 M. 230; 19 M. 273; 20 M. 12; 6 Mad. H. C. Rep. Ap. 20. No one except a person who professes the Christian religion comes under section 68 of the Act. The mere fact that a person was baptized as an infant or that he is attending a Christian school or he is dressing as a Christian is not sufficient to treat him as such. There is no express prohibition preventing a person professing Christianity from doing violence to his faith and marrying a non-Christian, by a non-Christian ceremony. Section 68 does not make it penal for a Christian to marry by a ceremony which is void under section 4 of the Act, 40 A. 393. A Hindu by religion performing a marriage according to the Hindu mode between two persons one of whom is a Christian commits an offence under section 68. 40 M. 1030=33 M.L.J. 148.

This section does not apply to marriages solemnized under special licences granted by the Anglican Bishop of the Diocese or by his Commissary, nor to marriages performed between the hours of seven in the evening and six in the morning by a Clergyman of the Church of Rome, when he has received the general or special licence in that behalf mentioned in section 10.

<sup>1</sup>[Nor does this section apply to marriages solemnized by a Clergyman of the Church of Scotland according to the rules, rites, ceremonies and customs of the Church of Scotland.]

70. Any Minister of Religion licenced to solemnize marriages under this Act who, without a notice in writing, or, when one of the parties to the marriage is a minor, and the required consent of the parents or guardians to such marriage has not been obtained, within fourteen days after the receipt by him of notice of such marriage, knowingly and wilfully solemnizes a marriage under Part III, shall be punished with imprisonment for a term which may extend to three years, and shall also be liable to fine.

Issuing certificate, or marrying without publication of notice;

71. A Marriage Registrar under this Act, who commits any of the following offences:—

(1) knowingly and wilfully issues any certificate for marriage, or solemnizes any marriage, without publishing the notice of such marriage as directed by this Act;

(2) <sup>2</sup>[after the expiration of two months after the copy of the notice has been entered as required by section 40 in respect of any marriage, solemnizes such marriage;]

(3) solemnizes, without any order of a competent Court authorizing him to do so, any marriage, when one of the parties is a minor, before the expiration of fourteen days after the receipt of the notice of such marriage, or without sending, by the post or otherwise, a copy of such notice to the Senior Marriage Registrar of the district if there be more Marriage Registrars of the district than one, and if he himself be not the Senior Marriage Registrar;

(4) issues any certificate the issue of which has been prohibited, as in this Act provided, by any person authorized to prohibit the issue thereof, shall be punished with imprisonment for a term which may extend to five years, and shall also be liable to fine.

Issuing certificate after expiry of notice, or in case of minor, within fourteen days after notice, or against authorized prohibition.

72. Any Marriage Registrar knowingly and wilfully issuing any certificate for marriage after the expiration of <sup>3</sup>[two months] after the notice has been entered by him as aforesaid.

or knowingly and wilfully issuing, without the order of a competent Court authorizing him so to do, any certificate for marriage, where one of the parties intending marriage is a minor, before the expiration of fourteen days after the entry of such notice or any certificate the issue of which has been forbidden as aforesaid by any person authorized in this behalf.

shall be deemed to have committed an offence under section 166 of the Indian Penal Code.

PART VIII.

MISCELLANEOUS.

What matters need not be proved in respect of marriage in accordance with Act.

77. Whenever any marriage has been solemnized in accordance with the provisions of sections 4 and 5 it shall not be void merely on account of any irregularity in respect of any of the following matters, namely:—

(1) any statement made in regard to the dwelling of the persons married or to the consent of any person whose consent to such marriage is required by law:

(2) the notice of the marriage;

(3) the certificate or translation thereof:

(4) the time and place at which the marriage has been solemnized:

(5) The registration of the marriage.

78. Every person charged with the duty of registering any marriage, who discovers any error in the form or substance of any such entry may, within one month next after the discovery of such error, in the presence of the persons married, or, in case of their death or absence, in the presence of two other credible witnesses, correct the error, by entry in the margin, without any alteration of the original entry, and shall sign the marginal entry, and add thereto the date of such correction, and such person shall make the like marginal entry in the certificate thereof.

And every entry made under this section shall be attested by the witnesses in whose presence it was made.

And in case such certificate has been already sent to the <sup>1</sup>[Registrar-General of Births, Deaths and Marriages] such person shall make and send in like manner a separate certificate of the original erroneous entry and of the marginal correction therein made.

Searches and copies of entries.

79. Every person solemnizing a marriage under this Act, and hereby required to register the same,

THE CODE OF CIVIL PROCEDURE (V OF 1908).

[21st March, 1908.]

An Act to consolidate and amend the laws relating to the Procedure of the Courts of Civil Judicature.

WHEREAS it is expedient to consolidate and amend the laws relating to the procedure of the Courts of Civil Judicature ; It is hereby enacted as follows :—

PRELIMINARY.

Short title, commencement and extent.

1. <sup>1</sup>(1) This Act may be cited as THE CODE OF CIVIL PROCEDURE, 1908.

LEG. REF.

<sup>1</sup> For Statement of Objects and Reasons, see Gazette of India, 1907, Pt. V, p. 179 ; for Report of Select Committee, see ibid., 1908, Pt. V, p. 35 and for Proceedings in Council, see ibid., 1907, Pt. VI, p. 135 and ibid., 1908, pp. 8, 12 and 212.

For portion of the Civil Procedure Code extended to the Presidency Small Cause Court, Calcutta, see Calcutta Gazette, 1910, Pt. I, p. 814, Schedule A to Rules of Practice.

The Act has been extended by notification under Ss. 5 and 5-A of the Scheduled Districts Act, 1874, (XIV of 1874), to the following Scheduled Districts :—

(1) The Districts of Jalpaiguri, Cachar (excluding the North Cachar Hills), Sylhet, Goalpara (including the Eastern Duars), Kamrup, Darrang, Nowgong (excluding the Mikir Hill Tracts), Sibsagar (excluding the Mikir Hill

NOTES.

SEC. 1 : CODE.—The object of codification of any branch of law is that on any point specifically dealt with in that Code, the law should, thenceforward be ascertained by interpreting the language used therein, and not by a search among the authorities to discover as to what may be the law as laid down in prior decisions. 23 C. 563=6 M.L.J. 71=23 I.A. 18 (P.C.) ; 28 C. 517.

CONSOLIDATE.—The object of consolidation is to gather and bring up to date the statutory law relating to any particular subject, so that it may serve as a useful Code applicable to the circumstances existing at the time when the consolidating Act is passed. 22 C. 788=22 I.A. 107 (P.C.).

SCOPE.—This Code is intended mainly to regulate procedure in Civil Court ; it is not primarily intended to create new rights or

(2) It shall come into force on the first day of January, 1909.

(3) This section and sections 155 to 158 extend to the whole of British India : the rest of the Code extends to the whole of British India, except the Scheduled Districts.

take away existing ones. 13 L. 618=1932 L.

401 ; 1930 R. 317=128 I.C. 382. The Code is not exhaustive. An equitable set-off can be claimed independently of the specific provisions of this Code. 1930 A. 875=128 I.C. 763. There is no provision in this Code for making a counter-claim although a set-off is permitted to a defendant. 32 Bom.L.R. 212=1930 B. 216. But this Code is to be deemed exhaustive on points specifically dealt with therein. See 24 M.L.J. 235 ; 10 C.L.J. 527. Where there is no specific provision in the Code it is the duty of the Court to act according to justice, equity and good conscience and to decide the point upon general principles. 2 Pat.L.J. 306=39 I.C. 779 ; 33 C. 927 ; 2 P.L.T. 240=61 I.C. 922 ; 1 L. 339=58 I.C. 748 ; 36 C. 193=1 I.C. 913 ; 33 C. 1094=10 C.W.N. 719. A Court passing any order with jurisdiction to pass the same, has an inherent power to order that the same be carried into effect. 2 Pat.L.J. 361=39 I.C. 763.

OPERATION.—As the Code deals with procedure only it applies to all actions pending as well as future, in accordance with the general principle that alterations in procedure have always retrospective operation, unless there are good reasons for the contrary. 8 B. 511 ; 12 C. 583 ; 21 B. 822 ; 19 B. 204 ; 21 C. 940 ; 27 M. 538 ; 14 M.L.J. 340 ; 7 I.C. 11 ; 9 I.C. 815. See also 19 C.L.J. 545 ; 1931 A. 735 ; 1930 C. 34=56 C. 1117 ; 8 Luck. 504=1933 O. 274 ; 1930 A. 706. Where a suit was filed when the Code of 1882 was in force but the same was decreed after the new Code took effect and the question of substitution of heirs was raised, the procedure under the new Code was held applicable. 57 C. 148=1930 C. 422=124 I.C. 817. But change of law cannot annul decree already obtained under the old procedure. 34 B. 260 at p. 266 ; 1925 N. 377 ; 1930 L. 1044. Nor can an appellate Court reverse an order of the Court of first instance because a different rule has been enacted since then. 12 I.C. 553=(1911) 2 M.W.N. 386. See also 36 A. 350 (P.C.). The coming into force of this Code was deferred by Cl. (2), to a long period, with a view to enable persons who had rights under the old Code to have them enforced before this Code came into operation. 40 C. 704. Also S. 154 expressly preserves the right of appeal which shall have accrued to any party at the commencement of this Code.

APPLICATION.—The Code is inapplicable to Village Munsif's Courts. 29 M.L.J. 474 ; 1930 M. 795. The provisions of the Code do not apply en bloc to proceedings in Revenue Courts. 48 I.C. 119=21 O.C. 220. See 21 C. 428 ; 14 Bom.L.R. 947. As to applicability of the Code to proceedings under Agra Tenancy Act, see 1938 A.L.J. 63 ; to proceedings under Probate and Administration Act, see 20 I.C. 281=6 Bur.L.T. 87. A Municipal election tribunal should be guided wherever possible by the provisions of this Code. 91 I.C. 450=

Definitions.

2. In this Act, unless there is anything repugnant in the subject or context,—

(1) "Code" includes rules :

(2) "decree" means the formal expression of an adjudication which, so far as regards the Court expressing it, conclusively determines the rights of the

NOTES.

1926 M. 1043 (F.B.). In cases where the Cr. P. Code prescribes no procedure a magistrate may well follow procedure laid down in this Code (as in proceedings under S. 202, Cr. P. Code). 52 C. 670=29 C.W.N. 817=88 I.C. 862. The Code is not applicable to proceedings before the Controller of Accounts under the Patents and Designs Act. But the principles underlying the Code in so far as they are principles of natural justice must be followed by him, as they must be observed by all authorities exercising judicial or quasi-judicial functions. 61 C. 450=38 C.W.N. 729=1934 C. 725.

CONSTRUCTION.—What the law was prior to the Act being enacted, is immaterial for the purpose of construing the Act. 6 M.L.J. 71=23 C. 563=23 I.A. 18 (P.C.). It is not right to interpret the Code of 1908 with reference to the Codes of 1859 and 1882. 5 Luck. 552=1930 O. 148 (F.B.). See also 1931 A. 735; 19 I.C. 793. Where the intention of the legislature is apparent in the Act itself, and the language of the Act is sufficiently flexible, a construction favourable to that intention should be adopted in preference to a strictly literal construction of the words used in the Act. 21 A. 391. The following should not be made to prevail in the matter of construing an Act. (i) Proceedings in the legislature. 22 C. 788=22 I.A. 107 (P.C.); 18 B. 133; but see 33 M.L.J. 591 (593) and 2 C.L.J. 546 (553). (ii) Marginal notes. 26 A. 393=8 C.W.N. 699=31 I.A. 132 (P.C.); 23 C. 55; 25 C. 862=2 C.W.N. 577. (iii) illustrations to sections. 21 C.W.N. 257=39 I.C. 401=43 I.A. 256 (P.C.); 32 M.L.J. 347; 49 M. 728 (F.B.). (iv) Forms given in the Schedule. 21 C.W.N. 1147=40 I.C. 816; 22 I.C. 690. See also 29 M.L.J. 766. (v) As to by-laws and rules framed under an enactment, see 1921 O. 121.

DIVISION OF THE CODE INTO SECTIONS, RULES AND SCHEDULES—RULES OF CONSTRUCTION.—The body of the Code creates jurisdiction and the rules indicate the mode in which that jurisdiction is to be exercised and they must be read together. 44 C. 929 (F.B.); 41 C. 108. See also 43 C. 148. In case of conflict between the body of the Code and the schedules, the former should prevail. I.L.R. (1939) N. 250 (F.B.)=1939 N.L.J. 228=1939 N. 186. Provisions of this Code and of the Limitation Act are to be read and interpreted together. See 85 I.C. 29=6 Pat.L.T. 729; I.L.R. (1939) A. 647=182 I.C. 242=1939 A. 403.

JUDICIAL DISCRETION.—Where the Code leaves certain matters to the discretion of Courts, such discretion should be exercised in accordance with judicial principles and be guided by justice and equity and must not be exercised arbitrarily and in a vague or fanciful manner. 9 R. 281=1931 R. 194; 1924 B. 1=48 B. 87 (F.B.); 5 C. 259.

"BRITISH INDIA."—For definition of, see S. 3,

Cl. 17 of the General clauses Act. 'British India' includes also Cantonment of Wadhwan. 9 B. 244. The Code does not apply to Agency Tracts. 13 M.L.J. 15; nor to tributary mahals of Orissa. 29 C. 400. As to application of Code to Sonthal Parganas, see 18 C. 133; 42 C. 116 (P.C.). For a list of Scheduled Districts, see Schedule I to the Scheduled Districts Act (XIV of 1874). Under the powers conferred by S. 5 of the said Act, the Code has been extended to several Scheduled Districts, including Sind, Ajmer, Merwara and the Scheduled Districts of the Punjab.

FOREIGNERS.—Code extends to the whole of British India and foreigners are not excepted from the jurisdiction of British Indian Courts. 49 A. 669=25 A.L.J. 356, following 22 C. 222 (P.C.).

SEC. 2 : "UNLESS THERE BE SOMETHING REPUGNANT IN THE SUBJECT OR CONTEXT."—These words have been inserted with a view to enable anomalies being avoided in cases where a strict adherence to the definitions contained in the Code would involve such anomalies. 46 B. 990=24 Bom.L.R. 496=1923 B. 26.

SEC. 2 (2) : DECREE.—'FORMAL EXPRESSION OF AN ADJUDICATION.'—Unless and until a decree is formally drawn up in terms of the judgment there can be neither appeal nor execution. 15 I.C. 935=8 N.L.R. 22; 34 B. 182=4 I.C. 829; 37 B. 480=19 I.C. 894. See also 25 Bom.L.R. 826=76 I.C. 763 and 76 I.C. 1014=1924 B. 33. Misdescription of a decision as an order, while in fact it amounts to a decree, does not make the decision any the less a decree. 54 M. 337=1931 M. 471=60 M.L.J. 167. See also 62 I.C. 467; 26 N.L.R. 24=1930 N. 122.

"MATTERS IN CONTROVERSY IN THE SUIT."—The expression must not be understood as relating solely to the merits of the case. It would cover any question relating to the character and status of a party suing, to the jurisdiction of the Court, to the maintainability of a suit and to other preliminary matters which necessitate an adjudication before a suit is enquired into. It does not include proceedings preliminary to institution of a suit. (e.g.,) an application for leave to sue as a pauper and proceedings passed in execution as well as orders granting day costs. 2 L.W. 519=29 I.C. 393, nor an order of punishment for contempt. 27 A. 380. See also I.L.R. 1940 Mad. 3. Application after preliminary and before final decree in partition suit, asking for allotment of certain properties alienated pendenti lite by the respondent to his share is not one relating to "matters in controversy in suit." and hence its rejection is not a decree. 50 L.W. 541=1939 M. 897. The term 'suit' does not include an application under S. 72, C. P. Code, and an order under the section is not a decree. 1 Pat.L.T. 296=57 I.C. 421.

WHAT ARE DECREES.—The decision of a parties with regard to all or any of the matters in controversy in the suit and may be either preliminary or final. It shall be deemed to include the rejection of a plaint and the determination of any question within section 47 or section 144, but shall not include—

So also order that appeal or cross-objection has abated. 1938 N.L.J. 399. A formal order recognizing the abatement which is an accomplished fact, is not a decree. 38 M.L.J. 266 (abatement owing to the cause of action not surviving). Order rejecting plaint. 151 I.C. 696=59 C.L.J. 250=1934 C. 623. As to order dismissing appeal under O. 41, R. 11, see 30 C.W.N. 334=93 I.C. 909=1926 C. 638. Order refusing to admit appeal as time barred is decree. 30 C.W.N. 926=1926 C. 1105. See also 14 Pat.L.T. 609=1933 P. 498 (incidental decision as to limitation in an application for restitution under S. 144). Order rejecting memo of appeal for insufficiency in Court-fee without giving time to make it up. 17 Pat. 687=178 I.C. 150=1939 Pat. 83. Order rejecting application for leave to appeal in forma pauperis is decree. 42 L.W. 831=159 I.C. 718=69 M.L.J. 781. Finding in a remand judgment clearly adjudicating rights of parties is a decree. 105 I.C. 567. An order limiting the right of the decree-holder to recover mesne profits for a certain period. 1928 I.C. 804=115 I.C. 591. An order determining the period within which compensation shall be payable. 7 P. 491=1928 P. 565=113 I.C. 577. Finding on the question of liability in a suit for contribution. 148 I.C. 1052=11 O.W.N. 606=1934 O. 337. An order dismissing a suit on the ground that the right to sue had come to an end and that the suit had abated under O. 222, R. 1, C. P. Code. 3 Luck. 628. Order dismissing application by legal representative to be brought on record. 36 P.L.R. 359=1935 L. 47. The order for staying execution of a decree till the decision of the appeal as it conclusively determines the right of the decree-holder to reap the fruits of his decree. 1930 L. 187. But see 1931 A. 129 (2). Order striking off name of a party is a decree. 53 A. 466. So are orders, prescribing the mode of selling mortgaged properties, 53 A. 391, providing for payment of costs to solicitor of party, 1932 B. 378, dismissing application for final decree in mortgage suit, 1932 L. 214. Order refusing personal relief under O. 34, R. 6. 1933 A.L.J. 738=1933 A. 429. Order dismissing appeal as withdrawn. 56 M. 520=1933 M. 442=64 M.L.J. 695. Order dismissing cross-objections. 1933 L. 961. Order refusing interest pendente lite. 14 Pat.L.T. 133=1933 P. 207. Order passed under S. 144 is decree. 1935 A.L.J. 995=158 I.C. 908=1935 A. 873; 1936 C. 812=41 C.W.N. 182. Decree containing adjudications regarding several items—Each adjudication is a decree. 55 A. 672=1933 A.L.J. 1425=1933 A. 473.

WHAT ARE NOT DECREES.—An order granting leave to sue under S. 18 of the Religious Endowments Act is not a decree. 34 C. 584. Order passed by District Judge under S. 84 (2) of that Act 1935 M. 373=58 M.L.J. 423. See also 11 M. 26 (35)=14 I.A. 160. Order of District Judge setting aside rejection of plaint. 152 I.C. 241=1934 Pesh. 88; also an order rejecting an application for leave to sue as a pauper. 21 A. 133. Order passed on application for directions under S. 34, Trusts Act. 11 O.W.N. 1533=1935 O. 72; also an order under Trusts Act refusing to remove a trustee, 19 A. 131; also an order under S. 4 of the Bengal Regulation, V of 1799. 9 I.C. 994=18 C.L.J. 877. Order as to costs in application for transfer under S. 15 of the Upper Burma Civil Court Regulation, 44 I.C. 690=(1917) 3 U.B.R. 61; also an order raising attachment of a residential house of the insolvent in insolvency proceedings under the special provisions of the Punjab Laws Act, 67 I.C. 794=3 Lah.L.J. 338. So also order on a proceeding before the manager dealing with a claim under the Chota Nagpur Encumbered Estates Act. 16 Pat.L.T. 693=158 I.C. 324=1935 P. 515. An order overruling a plea against the maintainability of a suit. 33 I.C. 664=9 Bur.L.T. 195; also a decision in plaintiff's favour on an issue as to his locus standi to sue, 20 C.L.J. 476=27 I.C. 317=19 C.W.N. 755; order or remand, 7 Pat.L.T. 535=97 I.C. 105=1926 P. 457. See also 144 I.C. 129=1934 A. 261; 14 Pat.L.T. 735; 37 C.W.N. 1084. A decision on a preliminary issue such as limitation and res judicata merely enabling the plaintiff to go on with the suit is not a preliminary decree. 36 I.C. 431=9 Bur.L.T. 119; 21 I.C. 387=18 C.L.J. 48. See also 39 I.C. 100=7 P.R. 1917; 15 I.C. 566=10 A.L.J. 78; 39 B. 421; 15 I.C. 536=16 P.R. 1913. But see 97 I.C. 780=1926 Lah. 638. Order directing drawing up of final decree. 57 M. 437=1934 M. 193=66 M.L.J. 178. Order refusing to pass final decree in mortgage suit. 13 P. 379=149 I.C. 40=1934 P. 225. An order appointing a Commissioner to take accounts is not a decree. 38 B. 302=16 Bom.L.R. 206. Order referring a partnership suit to the Official Referee for determining shares is neither a decree nor a 'judgment.' 73 I.C. 903. An order granting leave to withdraw a suit with permission to sue again is not a decree. 65 C. 719=1922 L. 267; 51 M. 664=55 M.L.J. 345=1928 M. 416; 51 I.C. 766; 11 I.C. 830; 51 I.C. 69=6 O.L.J. 151 (order also directing payment of costs by plaintiff); 17 A. 97; 18 C. 322; 27 C. 362; 15 B. 370. But an order allowing a party to withdraw a partition suit after a preliminary decree affects the rights of the parties and is appealable as a decree. 1912 M.W.N. 494=14 I.C. 259. An order declaring that an appeal has abated is not a decree. 20 A.L.J. 214=65 I.C. 838 (14 A. 172, Foll.). Neither order of original Court returning plaint under O. 7, R. 10, nor decision of appellate Court on appeal from such order is decree. 33 A. 479; 1925 B. 431; 158 I.C. 252=1935 M. 574. Order of amendment of decree made under Ss. 151 and 152 of the Code. 41 Bom.L.R. 800=184 I.C. 775=1939 B. 389. A decision on an application to file a private award is not a decree. 66 P.R. 1915=31 I.C. 80. See also 9 L. 380=107 I.C. 756=1928 L. 137. Also an order overruling objections to an award. 1 P.L.R. 1911=9 I.C. 385. Also an order filing or refusing to file an award. 110 I.C. 302=1929 L. 367. An order of dismissal of suit as against minor defendants on the ground that the plaintiff had not taken steps to appoint a Court-guardian does not amount to a decree. 33 C.W.N. 742=1929 C. 669. So also order refusing to stay execution is not a decree. 122 I.C. 182=1930 A. 121 (1); 141 I.C. 841=29 N.L.R. 121=1933 N. 84; 40 Bom.L.R. 1198=1939 B. 65. Also order passed when the existence of the decree itself is denied is not a decree. 1931 A. 490=1931 A.L.J. 715 (F.B.). So are orders refusing to accept security (32 P.L.R. 806), orders in furtherance of scheme decree. (1931 A. 765). See also 73 C.L.J. 532; 11 O.W.N. 1533; orders rejecting appeal memo. for deficient Court-fee. 59 C. 388=163 I.C. 462; 1936 Pesh. 140. Order holding that Court-fee paid was correct is not decree. 63 C.L.J. 16=1936 C. 784. Opinion pronounced by a Judge on a reference by Registrar under Cl. 26, R. 50, Original Side Rules (Calcutta High Court) is not decree. 40 C.W.N. 1264. So also order directing an execution case to be dismissed for non-prosecution. 162 I. C. 777=1936 C. 267. Also order in execution giving leave to decree-holder to amend execution petition. 44 L.W. 99=1936 M. 623=71 M.L.J. 256.

"CONCLUSIVELY DETERMINES."—To constitute a decree, there must be final adjudication. No particular form is necessary. 16 I.C. 45=1912 M.W.N. 1122. See also 1940 N.L.J. 663. If a decision really determines the rights of the parties fully and finally, it is in the eye of the law a decree and as such appealable even though the Court giving the decision has not formally embodied its result in the form of a decree. 26 N.L.R. 24=1930 N. 122; 54 M. 337=33 L.W. 143=1931 M. 471=60 M.L.J. 167. A conditional decree in pre-emption suit ordering possession on payment of certain sum to vendee within a fixed time and providing for dismissal of suit on default, is a decree, and not subsequent order dismissing the suit for non-payment. 41 P.L.R. 381=1939 L. 376. Decree becomes final when there is no appeal and appeal time expires. 86 I.C. 957=47 A. 533=1925 A. 291. An order disposing of the defendant's claim to set-off is not a decree; the decision could be attacked in an appeal against the final order. 39 I.C. 508=62 P.R. 1917. Regarding decisions upon preliminary issues in a case, such as misjoinder, limitation and jurisdiction, see 39 B. 339 (F.B.). See also 1941 O.W.N. 957; 1941 Nag. 84. As to when a decision whether plaintiff is an agriculturist under the Dekkhan Agriculturists' Relief Act, 1879, amounts to a decree. See 12 Bom.L.R. 762; 39 B. 422. An interlocutory order accepting security for stay of execution proceedings is not a decree. 41 C. 160=20 I.C. 72=17 C.W.N. 1240; also an order directing assessment of mesne profits, 15 I.C. 573; Also order rejecting application under O. 20, R. 12, as to future mesne profits left open in the decree in the suit, 1939 M. 667=(1939) 2 M.L.J. 356. Also an order refusing leave to bid, to a decree-holder under O. 21, R. 72. 38 C. 717. Also an order under S. 148 extending time. 35 A. 582. Also an order directing partition in a particular manner passed after the confirmation in appeal of a preliminary decree for a partition and before the final decree. 35 A. 159. See also I.L.R. (1940) Mad. 394. Also an order giving directions to the commissioner appointed subsequent to the preliminary decree to take accounts in partnership suit. 107 I.C. 214=1928 Sind 100; 1929 L. 699=120 I.C. 429. Also an order extending time for payment of mortgage money under a decree. 39 M. 876=29 M.L.J. 708. But see 14 A. 520; 1940 Rang.L.R. 72; also an order disallowing interrogatories. 58 I.C. 721=14 S.L.R. 28.

"RIGHTS OF PARTIES."—The words mean rights of parties inter se in the subject-matter of the suit. 13 I.C. 800=82 P.R. 1911. It includes general rights, such as those relating to status, jurisdiction, limitation, frame of suits, accounts, etc., which if decided must have a general effect upon the proceedings in the suit. 38 B. 392=23 I.C. 889=16 Bom.L.R. 206; 2 L.W. 519; 29 I.C. 393. See also 1941 Pat. 108. The word "parties" includes only those that are joined as plaintiffs or defendants. 20 I.C. 898=16 O.C. 350. The determination of the right of one party to an account is a decree. 40 I.C. 579=3 Pat.L.J. 67 [23 A. 152 (P.C.), Foll.] Also an order striking out the name of a defendant and dismissing suit as against him. 42 M. 219=36 M.L.J. 169. Also an order finally deciding that a particular defendant is not liable for mesne profits. 1923 C. 308. Also an order dismissing an application for final decree for sale in a mortgage suit. 42 M. 52=35 M.L.J. 552=48 I.C. 298. See also 33 C.L.J. 115=59 I.C. 177=25 C.W.N. 595; 1932 L. 214. Also an order refusing to make a decree under O. 34, R. 6. 40 A. 553=47 I.C. 561=16 A.L.J. 488. But an order rejecting the application of one of two claimants not parties to suit is not a decree. 47 M.L.J. 3=1924 M. 813. An order rejecting an application to be added as a party to the suit is not a decree. 13 C. 100. Also order dismissing application to be brought on record as legal representative, 1 L. 493=57 I.C. 137; 20 I.C. 808=16 O.C. 350; 62 I.C. 303=17 N.L.R. 45 (a suit for declaration is not barred by the order). 38 I.C. 833=13 N.L.R. 32. But see 39 M.L.J. 218=58 I.C. 498=43 M. 812, where it has been held that such an order is an adjudication on the applicant's claim and hence is a decree.

NOTES.

(42 M. 219, Appl., 39 M. 488, Dist.). Where one of several applicants was brought on record as legal representative, there is no abatement within the meaning of O. 43, R. 1 (k) nor any decree within the meaning of S. 2, Cl. (2). 1924 M. 622=46 M.L.J. 129. An order directing a surety to pay the debt of a judgment-debtor is not a decree except for purposes of an appeal under S. 145. 2 Pat.L.J. 197=39 I.C. 648. Order passed on application by surety for cancellation of surety bond. 55 A. 548=1933 A. 382. Conditional order of remand. 144 I.C. 129=1933 A. 261. See also 37 C.W.N. 1084=1933 C. 416; 14 P.L.T. 735.

REJECTION OF PLAINT, ETC.—(a) What orders are decrees.—Order rejecting plaint for non-payment of Court-fee is a decree. 67 I.C. 901 1941 N.L.J. 240. Also dismissal of suit for deficient Court-fee. 54 I.C. 733=22 O.C. 289; 1941 N.L.J. 260. Also rejection of plaint before registration of suit for non-payment of deficient Court-fee ordered to be paid. 62 C. 61=156 I.C. 126=1935 C. 336 (2). As to rejection of plaint where appellate Court has extended time for payment of deficient Court-fee and the same was paid within that time, see 1937 A.L.J. 1346=1938 A. 150. An order dismissing an appeal for deficiency in Court-fee is a decree. 15 N.L.R. 15=1922 N. 62. See also 63 I.C. 99=6 P.L.J. 625; 51 I.C. 114; 98 I.C. 663=1927 N. 100. Also an order rejecting an appeal memorandum. 16 M. 285; 22 M. 157; 190 I.C. 671. But see 59 C. 388. Also an order rejecting an appeal as time barred. 98 I.C. 748; 13 M.L.J. 300; 19 I.C. 931=17 C.W.N. 807. Order rejecting appeal for non-payment of additional Court-fee demanded is not a decree, I.L.R. (1938) Nag. 106 (F...B.)=1938 Nag. 122. But dismissal of appeal after deficient fee has been paid after limitation but within time extended by the Court is a decree, (1938) N.L.J. 155=177 I.C. 505=1938 Nag. 322. Order dismissing suit under O. 17, R. 3. 101 I.C. 618=1927 R. 148. As to rejection of appeal for failure to amend as directed, see 17 Pat. 245=1938 Pat. 461; Rejection of an application for a final decree for sale in a mortgage suit, is a decree and not an order under S. 47. 42 M. 52=35 M.L.J. 552; 1932 L. 214. See also 1941 N.L.J. 260 (Order dismissing suit for plaintiff's failure to furnish certain particulars to Court). 1941 P.W.N. 25 (Order dismissing suit as against some defendants for want of sanction of Provincial Government). As to order directing defaulting bidder to make good loss on resale, see 23 N.L.R. 14.

(b) What orders are not decrees.—But an order returning plaint for amendment is not a decree. 96 P.R. 1911=11 I.C. 231=216 P.L.R. 1911. Also an order returning a memorandum of appeal for presentation to proper Court. 13 A. 320. As to order of remand, see 103 I.C. 864; 6 P. 380=103 I.C. 722.

ORDERS IN EXECUTION PROCEEDINGS.—(See also notes under S. 47.)—Every order in execution proceedings is not a decree. It must be an order determining the rights of the parties in the execution proceedings. An order for arrest without notice is not a final order. 1929 M. 718; 1935 R. 500. See also 1929 L. 815.

An order granting or refusing process for examination of a witness or determining a point of law arising incidentally and not granting or refusing any relief is not a decree. 115 P.L.R. 1920=55 I.C. 173; 1927 A. 208=99 I.C. 455. Also order dismissing for default the objection petition to an execution filed by the judgment-debtor. 26 A.L.J. 1395=112 I.C. 380=1929 A. 123. A decision under S. 47 is not a decree unless it determines the rights of the parties with regard to all or any of the matters in controversy. A decision on a question of the valuation to be inserted in a sale proclamation is not a decree. 5 Pat.L.J. 270=55 I.C. 452. Nor order in execution granting leave to decree-holder to amend execution petition. 1936 M. 623=71 M.L.J. 256. Nor order granting leave to execute a decree against any person on the ground that he is a partner made under O. 21, R. 50 (2) and (3). 53 B. 839. Also refusal to postpone a sale. 1929 A. 85. An order determining question of under valuation of property to be sold. 6 O.W.N. 1085. Order under O. 21, R. 66 (proclamation of sale). 59 I.C. 282=1 Pat.L.T. 647. Nor an order on application under O. 21, R. 90. 1936 A.L.J. 959=1936 A. 763. As to order under O. 21, R. 93, see 1940 Bom. 210. An order in proceedings for a recovery of the loss caused by re-sale owing to the default of the prior purchaser in depositing the purchase-money is a decree. 44 A. 266. An order that the decree-holder is liable for mesne profits by way of restitution is a decree. 56 C. 550. As to order for security to stay execution, see 5 R. 534=1927 R. 317. Order passed against judgment-debtor in fight between him and decree-holder auction-purchaser is a decree, 177 I.C. 643=1938 N. 212.

DISMISSAL FOR DEFAULT.—An order dismissing a suit for default is not a decree. 12 M.L.J. 473; 29 C. 60; 18 C.L.J. 128=20 I.C. 1=18 C.W.N. 604; also an order dismissing an appeal for default. 15 C.L.J. 334=14 I.C. 823 (1); 39 C. 241; 23 C. 115; 23 C. 827; 22 M.L.J. 284; 2 P. 739=75 I.C. 284; 101 I.C. 618=1927 R. 148. Also dismissal for default on an objection of a judgment-debtor in execution proceedings. 1 O.W.N. 854. See also 53 C. 679=96 I.C. 705=30 C.W.N. 570; 94 I.C. 1=1926 A. 401.

DECREE—PRELIMINARY AND FINAL.—The preliminary decree is not a dependent on the final one but the latter is dependent and subordinate to the former, and does not extinguish it but gives effect to it. 21 C.W.N. 1174=35 I.C. 873 (F. B.). Where in a suit for the recovery of money, the amount found due to the decree holder is declared and it is also laid down in the decree in what manner that amount should be paid and there is nothing more left to be done in the suit, such a decree is not a preliminary decree but a final decree capable of execution. 1941 O. W. N. 1138=1941 O. A. 865. A preliminary decree, ascertains what is to be done while the final decree states the result achieved by means of the preliminary decree. The cases where the legislature contemplates a preliminary decree are specified in O. 20, Rr. 12 to 18. 27 I.C. 317=19 C.W.N. 755. There should be only one preliminary decree in a suit to be followed

- (a) any adjudication from which an appeal lies as an appeal from an order, or
 (b) any order of dismissal for default.

Explanation.—A decree is preliminary when further proceedings have to be taken before the suit can be completely disposed of. It is final when such adjudication completely disposes of the suit. It may be partly preliminary and partly final :

(3) "decree-holder" means any person in whose favour a decree has been passed or an order capable of execution has been made :

(4) "district" means the local limits of the jurisdiction of a principal Civil Court of original jurisdiction (hereinafter called a "District Court"), and includes the local limits of the ordinary original civil jurisdiction of a High Court :

NOTES.

by one final decree, (ibid.) As to what amounts to 'preliminary decree' in partition suit, see 1938 O.W.N. 916=1938 O. 229. Second preliminary decree in a suit for partition is not impossible where there are facts or circumstances alleged to have come into existence after the passing of the first. 15 I.C. 372=11 A.L.J. 120. See also 1925 P. 433. 57 M. 437=66 M.L.J. 178. Failure to deposit commission fee after preliminary decree in partition suit—Dismissal of suit is not decree—No appeal lies, but only revision. 86 I.C. 785=1925 P. 433. In a partnership suit order granting directions to commissioner does not amount to a preliminary decree. 107 I.C. 214. Where, in a suit for accounts, the Court after passing a preliminary decree for accounts, passed a further order fixing the mode of taking accounts and the period for which it should be done, the latter is also preliminary decree. 27 C.W.N. 989=1924 C. 160. See also 1940 Rang.L.R. 72; 1941 O.W.N. 957=1941 A.W.R. (Rev.) 629 (Decision on a preliminary point holding pre-emption suit is maintainable, not a decree and no appeal lies). See also 1941 Nag. 84 (Decision on a preliminary issue in respect of one of two alternative claims). Mere omission to style an order a preliminary decree or to embody it as such does not negative the party's right to appeal. 27 I.C. 317=19 C.W.N. 755. A finding whether a party is an agriculturist under the Dekkhan Agriculturists' Relief Act is not a preliminary decree. 45 B. 627=60 I.C. 885=23 Bom.L.R. 92; 70 I.C. 728. But if the finding necessarily involves a direction for the taking of an account in the manner provided by S. 13 of the Dekkhan Agriculturists' Relief Act it amounts to a preliminary decree. 39 B. 422. A decree for accounts is not a mere direction to report but is one determining the rights of the party and is a final decree. 13 I.C. 374=14 C.L.J. 603. An adjudication cannot be partly a decree and partly an order not amounting to a decree. 42 C. 914=29 M.L.J. 70 (P.C.). An order in a suit for taking accounts of a partnership declaring the partnership as dissolved from a particular date and ordering an enquiry by the referee as to who were the partners is a decree in so far as it declares the rights of the parties. It does not cease to be so, because a part of it might have been separately made as an order. So the whole decree cannot be challenged in an appeal against the final decree, not being itself appealed against. 42 C. 914. The decree in appeal is decree in suit, C. C. M.—49 for appeal is a continuation of the suit. 30 M.L.J. 379. In a decree for possession and for mesne profits the decree for possession is final and the decree for mesne profits is only preliminary as the amount has to be found upon further enquiry. In such a suit although one decree is made it is partly preliminary and partly final. 1929 C. 383=118 I.C. 852. Amended decree is the final decree after modification in review. 34 C.W.N. 1002=1931 C. 323.

CONSENT DECREE.—'Decree' includes a compromise or a consent decree. 34 C.L.J. 96=66 I.C. 273 (2).

SEC. 2 (3) : 'DECREE-HOLDER.'—[See under DECREE.] "Decree-holder" is not confined only to plaintiff. A sub-mortgagee and a puisne or prior mortgagee sometimes become decree-holders as against the judgment-debtor in suits brought for foreclosure or sale of mortgaged property or for redemption thereof, as on the happening of certain contingencies they acquire the right to have property sold to discharge the amount declared to be due to them. 116 I.C. 212=1929 L. 492. Decree for specific performance can be executed by the defendants as well as by the plaintiff, and the defendants in such a case are "decree-holders" 46 B. 990=24 Bom.L.R. 496=1923 B. 26; 59 C. 501=36 C.W.N. 172=1932 C. 579. There is no difference between a decree-holder as defined in S. 2 (3) and holder of a decree referred to in O. 21, R. 10, 21 P.L.T. 146=1940 P. 472. An attaching creditor of the decree-holder is not a decree-holder. 80 I.C. 947=1925 A. 123. In R. 89 of O. 21, this word refers only to the person in satisfaction of whose decree the sale had been ordered, and it does not include any other person who may have a right to claim rateable distribution under S. 73 in the sale proceeds. 37 B. 387=15 Bom.L.R. 244=19 I.C. 475.

SEC. 2 (3) AND O. 1, R. 10.—Where some of the defendants are discharged on the ground of a want of cause of action against them and the suit is decreed as against the rest the correctness of the order of discharge could be questioned only in an appeal against that order inasmuch as it amounts to a decree. It could not be agitated in an appeal against the decree in the suit. 1941 N.L.J. 235.

SEC. 2 (4) : DISTRICT COURT.—Though the word "District" includes the local limits of a High Court in its Ordinary Original Civil Jurisdiction, still it is not legitimate to construe the words "District Court" wherever they appear to mean and include a High Court.

(5) "foreign Court" means a Court situate beyond the limits of British India which has no authority in British India and is not established or continued by <sup>1</sup>[the Central Government or the Crown Representative] :

(6) "foreign judgment" means the judgment of a foreign Court :

(7) "Government Pleader" includes any officer appointed by the [Provincial Government] to perform all or any of the functions expressly imposed by this Code on the Government Pleader and also any pleader acting under the directions of the Government Pleader :

(8) "Judge" means the presiding officer of a Civil Court :

(9) "Judgment" means the statement given by the Judge of the grounds of a decree or order :

(10) "judgment-debtor" means any person against whom a decree has been passed or an order capable of execution has been made :

(11) "legal representative" means a person who in law represents the estate of a deceased person, and includes any person who intermeddles with the estate of the deceased and where a party sues or is sued in a representative character the person on whom the estate devolves on the death of the party so suing or sued :

LEG. REF.

<sup>1</sup> Substituted for "the Governor-General in Council" by A.O., 1937.

NOTES.

45 C.L.J. 71=100 I.C. 331=1927 C. 290.

SEC. 2 (5) : FOREIGN COURT.—Privy Council is not within the definition. 8 B. 571 (574). All other Courts in England are foreign Courts. 8 B. 571 ; 31 C. 274. The Ceylon Court is a foreign Court. 32 M. 469 (471). And also Courts in Native States in India (1913) M.W.N. 605 ; 191 P.R. 1888. So also the District Court in Secunderabad Cantonment. 60 I.A. 167=56 M. 405=1933 P.C. 134=64 M.L.J. 562 (P.C.). Courts in Berar which have been established or continued by the authority of the Governor-General in Council are not "foreign Courts" within the meaning of the Code of Civil Procedure in British India and vice versa : I.L.R. (1941) Nag. 1=1941 Nag. 36 (F.B.). (Niyogi, J., dissenting.).

SEC. 2 (6) : FOREIGN JUDGMENT.—See notes under Cl. (5), supra. The decree of a foreign Court against a non-resident foreigner is a nullity. 22 C. 222=4 M.L.J. 267 (P.C.) ; 19 A. 450 ; 24 B. 86 ; 40 B. 551 ; 26 C. 931 ; 20 M. 112. The term has not the meaning as regards the word 'judgment' given by Cl. (9) infra. 35 L.W. 763=1932 M. 661=62 M.L.J. 566. A foreign judgment whether can form a cause of action in British India. 39 M. 773 (F.B.).

SEC. 2 (8) : JUDGE.—A Sub-Registrar is not a judge. 12 B. 36 ; nor a Registrar acting under Ss. 72, 75 of Registration Act, a Court. 15 A. 141 ; contra 15 M. 138 (F.B.). But this Full Bench decision has not been followed in later Madras cases. See 23 M.L.J. 50 ; 30 M. 326.

SEC. 2 (9) : JUDGMENT.—Order setting aside ex parte decree is a judgment. 10 O.W.N. 794=1933 O. 385. What is ordinarily called an "order" is, in fact, a "judgment," as defined in C. P. Code though a document may be so drawn up as to contain not only the reasons for the decision, so as to fulfil the requirements of a "judgment", but also the formal "expression" of the decision of the Court, so as to fulfil most of the requirements of an "order" as defined in S. 2 (14). 1933 A.L.J. 1301=1933 A. 762. Necessity for containing reasons—Applicability to Original Side of High Court. See 29 Bom.L.R. 126=51 B. 267. See also 15 O.C. 78=15 I.C. 212. As to a written order deciding one of several issues, see 14 I.C. 371. Diary note by judge ordering final decree to be drawn up in a mortgage suit is a judgment. 183 I.C. 894=1939 R. 294.

SEC. 2 (10) : JUDGMENT-DEBTOR.—Definition does not include assignee. 13 I.C. 659=1912 M.W.N. 176. See also (1940) 2 M.L.J. 749 (Subsequent alienation of part of mortgaged property). A person who has stood surety for costs and against whom a decree for costs has been made is a judgment-debtor. 58 B. 485=1934 B. 252. A plaintiff or defendant against whom no decree or order capable of being executed has been passed or who has been released from the decree, does not come under this term. 19 M. 331 ; 23 A. 346. But see 22 M. 131 ; 23 M. 361.

SEC. 2 (11) : LEGAL REPRESENTATIVE.—This definition is in conformity with the law prevailing in England. 87 I.C. 892=28 O.C. 177=1925 O. 330. Scope of this section and O. 22, R. 5, 1938 P.W.N. 803. The definition herein does not modify personal law. 1932 A. 591=54 A. 796=1932 A.L.J. 727. The expression does not necessarily denote the beneficial owner. 42 M. 76=35 M.L.J. 632. See also 79 I.C. 670=1925 L. 2 ; 1923 O. 330. Legal representative need not necessarily be in possession of any property of the deceased. All that is necessary is that he should be a person on whom the estate would devolve. 49 A. 645 ; 1931 Nag. 173. But see 178 I.C. 198=1939 Pat. 47. The expression means and includes one person as well as several persons according as they represent the whole interest of the deceased person. 14 L. 543=142 I.C. 649=1933 L. 356. The definition herein is very wide. 1934 L. 1, and it has been meant for the purposes of the Code only and not as a general statement of substantive rule of law. 150 I.C. 323=1934

NOTES.

A. 474. 'Legal representative' need not be legal heir. 1938 A. 163=174 I.C. 307. As to when and how far a person who is not the lawful heir can be deemed "legal representative" see 41 P.L.R. 814=1939 L. 321. As to mere intermeddler, see 177 I.C. 531=1938 N. 298. When a member of a Hindu joint family, who has been sued on a pro-note, dies and it is contended that his brothers can be impleaded as legal representatives, it must be shown, prima facie that the deceased has an estate before the first definition in S. 2 (11) can be applied. 1930 M. 675. Even when no executor is appointed under the will either expressly or by necessary implication, dispositions of the property and the legacies in the will have not the effect of making the legatees the legal representatives. 108 I.C. 409=1928 M. 243. The term includes a universal legatee. 157 I.C. 956=1936 O. 74 and also donees from deceased legatee. 136 I.C. 543=1932 C. 206=35 C.W.N. 1028. A person in possession is a representative of the estate. 31 M.L.J. 222=35 I.C. 124; 69 I.C. 179. See also 1924 C. 362; 9 N.L.J. 183=96 I.C. 963=1926 N. 476; 89 I.C. 534=1925 O. 515. Court of Wards, is, on the death of the ward in the position of a legal representative. 29 N.L.R. 118=1933 N. 85. (Muhammadan widow in possession in lieu of dower is legal representative.) An intermeddler is within the definition. 1924 A. 717. Although only with a part of the estate. 115 P.R. 1913=39 P.L.R. 1914=22 I.C. 242. See also 29 Bom.L.R. 900; 1934 R. 196. But the definition is only for purpose of procedure and an intermeddler is not the representative for purposes of succession. So the decree passed in a suit in which an intermeddler is impleaded, will not bind the real heir who is not party thereto. 1924 A. 717; 75 I.C. 114. See also 41 P.L.R. 814=1939 Lah. 321. The surviving members of a Hindu joint family are not legal representatives. 2 L. 114. But see 40 Bom.L.R. 964; 1938 A.L.J. 56=174 I.C. 307=1938 A. 163. There is no doubt that in a joint Hindu family the law of inheritance does not apply to the joint family property, and on the death of a coparcener the property passes to the remaining coparceners by right of survivorship; but even in a joint family a coparcener may be possessed of separate property which will be governed by the law of succession and in such a case a member of the joint Hindu family can be added as legal representative under S. 2 (11). I.L.R. (1940) A. 153=1940 A.L.J. 32=1940 A. 99 (F.B.). Succeeding manager of a joint Hindu family is legal representative of previous manager. 86 I.C. 178=1925 M. 456. Succeeding trustee is legal representative. 92 I.C. 520=1926 M. 540. Official Assignee or Receiver in Insolvency will not be a legal representative. 58 M. 403=1935 M. 151=68 M.L.J. 78; 7 A. 752; 21 B. 205; 29 C. 428; But see 28 C. 419=5 C.W.N. 761. Executor is legal representative. 1938 A.M.L.J. 91. As to executor de son tort, see 30 C.W.N. 565=96 I.C. 695=1926 C. 825. One of several legal representatives impleaded—Sufficiency of. 14 L. 543=142 I.C. 649=1933 L. 356. A widow, where there is an adopted son, is not legal representative of deceased. 11 M. 403. Hindu reversioners can continue a suit for possession brought by a Hindu widow as her legal representative after her death. 39 M. 382. See also 45 C.W.N. 105. In a suit for declaration of the invalidity of an adoption or alienation by a Hindu widow instituted by the presumptive reversioner the next presumptive reversioner can continue the suit as legal representative after the former's death. 38 M. 406=28 M. L.J. 535 (P.C.). In a later Madras case it has been held that he is not a 'legal representative' within the definition but can be added as a party in a representative action under O. 1, Rr. 1, 8 and 10. 9 L.W. 166=49 I.C. 268. Decree for injunction against Hindu father cannot be executed against his sons. 42 B. 504; 14 P. 732=16 Pat.L.T. 393=1935 P. 275 (F.B.); but see contra 55 B. 709=33 Bom.L.R. 1144=1931 B. 484; 38 Bom.L.R. 977=1936 B. 456. This definition of the term 'legal representative' in the Code is not exhaustive, and it should be qualified by Ss. 50 and 53, ibid. The son of a Hindu, where there has been no appointment of an executor or administrator in law represents the estate of his father and is therefore the legal representative within the meaning of S. 2 (11), and where there is an allegation that the estate of the deceased father is in the hands of the son, the son is liable to have a decree passed against him for the father's debt, to be recovered only out of any assets of the father which come to his hands and are not duly accounted for. 42 Bom.L.R. 1066=1941 B. 23. An auction-purchaser is not the representative of the original judgment-debtors in respect of a liability which had arisen subsequent to the mortgages on which the decree for sale was founded but is the representative of the judgment-debtor qua the rights and liabilities which stood on the date of the mortgage. 117 I.C. 452=1929 O. 353. A Zamindar, to whom the house and grove in possession of his tenant, escheat on the death of the latter, is not his legal representative. 23 I.C. 969=1 O.L.J. 86. See also 193 I.C. 598. Where a decree for compensation in lieu of specific performance is passed against a holder of an impartible estate and on his death the estate devolves on his son, he is a legal representative of the deceased judgment-debtor and the decree could be executed against the estate. 1940 N.L.J. 275=1940 N. 278=I.L.R. (1941) Nag. 632.

LEGAL REPRESENTATIVE—PLEAS OPEN TO.—A person who is added as a legal representative of a deceased defendant cannot and need not set up in defence pleas which are open to him only personally. 1925 M. 59. See also notes under S. 50. He is not at liberty to depart from or contradict the position taken up by the party in the suit whose legal representative he is so long as he is on record only as legal representative. If he has any independent right, then he is bound to apply to come in such right or capacity either with or without assuming the capacity of a legal representative. 1935 M. 52=40 L.W. 730.

DECREE AGAINST WRONG LEGAL REPRESENTATIVE—BINDING NATURE OF.—A true legal representative will be bound by a decree passed against the wrong legal representative if the following conditions are satisfied; (i) the plaintiff decree-holder must have acted bona

(12) "mesne profits" of property means those profits which the person in wrongful possession of such property actually received or might with ordinary diligence have received therefrom, together with interest on such profits but shall not include profits due to improvements made by the person in wrongful possession.

NOTES.

fide, (ii) the decree obtained must be free from fraud and collusion, (iii) the person wrongly impleaded must have been impleaded in a representative capacity, (iv) the decree or order must have been passed against him as representing the estate of the deceased, (v) the plaintiff must have been ignorant of facts which operate to displace the title of the supposed legal representative, and (vi) the person having the real title must not have intervened during the pendency of the suit. 30 L.W. 778=1929 M. 482. See also 34 P.L.R. 511=141 I.C. 580=1933 L. 380; 40 P.L.R. 25. It is open to the plaintiff or decree-holder to choose as the legal representative the one who appears to have the prima facie title. 30 L.W. 778=1929 M. 482; 63 M.L.J. 319. A compromise decree consented to by an alleged adopted son of a Hindu widow who died pending suit and as whose legal representative he was added, was held not binding on the proper legal representatives of the widow, and that mere failure to make more detailed inquiries would not necessarily lead to the conclusion that the plaintiff had not acted bona fide. 144 I.C. 663=29 N.L.R. 89=1933 N. 73.

SEC. 2 (12): MESNE PROFITS.—As to distinction in the meaning of the term between English and Indian Law, see 153 I.C. 232=1935 P. 80. As to meaning of "wrongful" in the definition, see 1939 N.L.J. 21=181 I.C. 106=1939 N. 23; 1939 A. 529. When a plaintiff succeeds in establishing that he was kept out of possession he is entitled to mesne profits. 53 I.C. 124. See also 47 M. 800; also a plaintiff who has obtained a decree under S. 9, Specific Relief Act. 1927 N. 9=97 I.C. 1028; 24 A. 501. As to co-sharers, see 94 I.C. 255=1926 C. 860; 29 N.L.R. 350=1933 N. 316. Where possession is not wrongful no mesne profits can be awarded. 150 I.C. 924=1934 L. 322. Parties in possession are liable for mesne profits although there may be no mala fides. 10 W.R. 486. See also 70 I.C. 6=34 C.L.J. 415; 8 W.R. 479; 1 A. 518; 21 C. 14; 1939 A.L.J. 433=1939 A. 529; or possession may have been obtained through the instrumentality of the Court as in the case of an auction-purchaser. 1939 N.L.J. 21=1939 N. 23. Plaintiff claiming mesne profits must be entitled to possession. 37 P.L.R. 50=157 I.C. 96=1935 L. 379. The only relevant consideration for the Court is whether the defendant's possession was wrongful or not; and not the degree of the misconduct or culpability. As to the extent of the liability of trespasser, see 94 I.C. 118=1926 C. 847. The defendant in wrongful possession is liable only for the time he was actually in possession. If he was excluded from possession, he cannot be said to have been in wrongful possession. 38 I.C. 660=26 C. L. J. 140; 35 C.W.N. 305=132 I.C. 685=1931 C. 663. See also 6 Pat.L.J. 166=61 I.C. 754; 51 C. 853; 24 C. 413; 10 C. 785; 55 I.C. 48. (Defendant would be liable if he has abetted the trespass by the person in actual possession.) As against a wrong doer, possession relates back to the time when the right to enter accrued. 21 I.C. 590=9 N.L.R. 145 (34 M. 269, Foll.) The possession of a vendee under a conveyance voidable for fraud and undue influence is wrongful ab initio, and not merely from the date when a suit is filed to set it aside. 59 I.A. 147=7 Luck. 64=62 M.L.J. 451 (P.C.). As to the maintainability of claim for mesne profits between date of decree for possession conditioned on payment of money and date of payment, see 1928 M.W.N. 51.

ASSESSMENT OF MESNE PROFITS.—See 45 C.W.N. 298. The rental value of the land would ordinarily be the proper basis of calculating mesne profits when the person charged had merely let the land out to others, unless there was evidence that a higher rent could "with ordinary diligence" have been obtained. But when the wrongdoers cultivated the land themselves, the definition of "mesne profits" makes the cultivation profits the primary consideration. The test set by the definition is not what the plaintiff has lost by his exclusion, but what the defendant has or might reasonably have made by his wrongful possession. Land, which was capable of producing more profitable crops, was, in fact, planted by the wrongdoers with indigo, an inferior crop, for their special purpose. The mesne profits can in such a case be calculated upon the basis of more profitable crops which the land was capable of producing. In all such cases the true test would be what the prudent agriculturist would have grown. 57 I.A. 105=58 M.L.J. 215 (P.C.); 59 C. 859=1932 C. 600; 62 C. 217=38 C.W.N. 1197=1935 C. 206. But see 16 I.C. 126=9 A.L.J. 774; where the basis was held to be what the plaintiff would have made out of the land but for the defendant's unlawful trespass and not what the defendant has done. See also 30 M.L.J. 326; 1923 N. 64 (1); 1930 C. 53; 35 C.W.N. 367=135 I.C. 876=1931 C. 802. Where the person dispossessed is himself a cultivator of the land in dispute, he is entitled to such profits as the trespasser might have obtained by actual cultivation with due diligence and not merely to what he has really obtained by sub-letting the land. 43 I.C. 53; 20 N.L.R. 112=1924 N. 427. show that he could not cultivate the land himself or that the land was in possession of tenants before he entered upon it as a trespasser he is bound to pay mesne profits on the basis as if he was in direct possession of the lands in suit. 1928 C. 474. The principles which would ordinarily guide a Court in determining the mesne profits are: (1) wrongful trespasser should not profit by it; (2) restoration of status before dispossession financially; and (3) use to which decree-holder would have put land if he was himself in possession. 39 I.C. 516. In order to assess the mesne profits of property in the wrongful possession of tenants, the Court should direct the Commissioner to ascertain (1) the gross profits which the tenants did obtain (or could reasonably have obtained) from his cultivation of the soil; (2) what ought, reasonably, to be deducted from that gross sum for (a) costs of cultivation, (b) on account of rent paid, and (c) the cost of maintenance of the cultivators. After deducting the cost of cultivation, and the rent paid and the cost of maintenance, the balance left is the 'profit' referred to in S. 2 (12). 151 I.C. 922=38 C.W.N. 384=1934 C. 503. As to mode of assessment of mesne profits in the case of a co-sharer's claim based on his exclusion, see 30 N.L.R. 71=147 I.C. 445=1933 N. 316. Assessment can be based by local inspection and crop-cutting experiments conducted by a Commissioner. 47 M. 800. Deduction should be made for cost of cultivation and seasonal fluctuations. 99 I.C. 923=44 C.L.J. 559. See also where lands are subject to floods, deductions ought to be made on that account. 101 I.C. 371=1927 R. 116. In a suit against several trespassers, manner of drawing up decree indicated. 59 C. 859=1932 C. 600. The general law about the liability of joint tort-feasors, if mesne profits are taken to be damages, has been modified by the special provisions of this Code. 35 C.W.N. 357=135 I.C. 876=1931 C. 802.

COMPENSATION FOR IMPROVEMENTS AND OTHER EXPENSES.—The person dispossessed is entitled to compensation for improvements effected. 26 C.W.N. 257=35 C.L.J. 121; 42 M.L.J. 243. He is also entitled to compensation for all sums spent by him in managing the property but not for infructuous litigation in connexion with the management. 22 M.L.J. 253. All such payments made by the defendant as the plaintiff would have been bound to make if he had been in possession towards rent, revenue or cesses should be deducted from the gross earnings. 17 B. 35; 21 C. 142; 20 N.L.R. 112=1924 N. 427. See also 33 I.C. 520. But the Court should not allow the expenses of collecting the profits unless the defendant entered on the property in the exercise of a bona fide claim of right. 20 N.L.R. 112=1924 N. 427; 70 I.C. 6=34 C.L.J. 415; 16 I.C. 866; 22 A. 262; 24 A. 376. But see 1931 M.W.N. 813. Where it was held that the definition of mesne profits takes no account of the culpability of the party liable, and so the expenses of management or collection should be allowed in the calculation of the mesne profits, even where the defendant has not proved his bona fides in taking possession of the property. Cultivation expenses incurred by the trespasser should be deducted, but not costs of collecting rents due from persons in occupation. 24 M.L.J. 30. Charity expenses charged on the property should be deducted. 1931 M.W.N. 813. See also 57 M. 49.

INTEREST ON MESNE PROFITS.—Interest should ordinarily be allowed on mesne profits, though the interest as well as the mesne profits are in the discretion of the Court. 70 I.C. 6=34 C.L.J. 415; 50 A. 857=1928 A. 532. See also 10 C. 785; 27 C. 951 (969) (P.C.); 1927 M.W.N. 661; 44 C.L.J. 182=1926 C. 1233=1931 M. 513. The proper rate of interest to be granted on mesne profits is 6 per cent. in the absence of special circumstances. 62 I.A. 53=62 C. 499=68 M.L.J. 580 (P.C.) (noted infra.) The words "together with interest on such profits" do not refer to interest due after the ascertainment of the amount of mesne profits due under the decree. They contemplate that interest should form a separate item in the calculation of that amount due as mesne profits. 30 C. 506. See also 25 A. 275; 1930 A. 525. Mesne profits include interest. Where a decree is silent as to interest on mesne profits, it must be deemed to carry interest at the Court rate of 6 per cent. and executed accordingly. 44 A. 579; 17 I.C. 915=10 A.L.J. 533. But see 53 I.C. 227=30 C.L.J. 205; 21 A. 425 (F.B.); 27 C. 951 (P.C.); 33 C. 329. Interest should not be allowed for more than three years from the decree or until possession within that time, 27 C. 951 (P.C.). The Court has a discretion whether to allow interest on mesne profits after three years or not. 31 I.C. 387=2 L.W. 1129; 1931 M. 513. Mesne profits carry interest from the date of the preliminary decree awarding the same. 46 A. 842; 33 C. 29. As to liability, of joint wrong doer for mesne profits. See 53 C. 992; 1931 C. 802.

BURDEN OF PROOF.—When mesne profits are claimed, the onus of proving what profits might with diligence have been received in any year lies upon the party claiming mesne profits. 62 I.A. 53=62 C. 499=1935 P.C. 49=68 M.L.J. 580 (P.C.). Profits always means the difference between the amount realised and the expenses incurred in realizing it. In the case of mesne profits, 10 per cent. is the customary allowance in India for the expenses of collection, and it is unnecessary for the person liable to pay mesne profits to adduce any evidence on the subject (ibid.) But the onus of proving what profits the person in wrongful possession actually received lies on the person in possession. 47 M.L.J. 730. See also 47 M. 800; 1933 M.W.N. 1182=1933 M. 825. Where it is shown that a portion of the suit land had been let out at a produce rent, the Court will be justified in presuming that the entire land was so let out. 53 C. 992. See also 99 I.C. 923=44 C.L.J. 559.

PRACTICE.—Mesne profits should be determined in the suit itself and not by way of execution for a fixed sum of money. 39 C. 220. Transfer to higher Court of protracted proceedings on account of the mesne profits accruing during the pendency of litigation swelling up to an amount beyond the pecuniary jurisdiction of the original Court is not an interruption so as to make the subsequent proceedings in the higher Court a different suit. 58 I.C. 179=

 (16) "prescribed" means prescribed by rules :

NOTES.

24 C.W.N. 342. Plaintiff filed a suit for loss of crops on 15th October, 1930, alleging that defendants had dispossessed him on 1st June, 1930. It was not shown that defendants had or should have received any profits before that time. It was held that no cause of action as to the claim brought existed on the date of suit. 147 I.C. 709=1933 N. 222 (55 I.A. 299 and 34 M. 502, Dist.).

SEC. 2 (13).—This definition has set at rest the conflicting decisions that existed previously among the different High Courts. Under the General Clauses Act, S. 3 (25) "standing crops" are immovable property. But it is otherwise under this definition. This definition must be taken to be confined to the limited purposes of this Code. 27 I.C. 935.

SEC. 2 (14).—See also notes under S. 2, Cl. (2) and S. 2, Cl. (9). As to nature of order for alimony pending suit for divorce, see 32 C.W.N. 179. An order made on a notice of motion for contempt of Court would be an order within the meaning of S. 2 (14), and be executable under S. 36, C. P. Code. 36 Bom. L.R. 992=1934 B. 452.

SEC. 2 (15).—As to construction of this definition, see 8 B. 105. As to whether vakils of Indian High Courts can practice before the Judicial Committee of Privy Council, see 16 C. 636. Pleader, vakil or attorney duly appointed to act for a party, has authority to do all acts incidental to that general authority, and they will be binding on the party. 9 S.L.R. 218=34 I.C. 928. But the acts must be bona fide neither due to fraud or mistake, nor against the express instructions of his client. 34 I.C. 928; 29 I.A. 76=25 M. 367=6 C.W.N. 641 (P.C.). He may withdraw the suit as to frame or withdraw any plea. 21 M. 274=8 M.L.J. 40; may get a witness summoned, dispense with his evidence. 25 M. 367 (P.C.) (noted supra); may abandon an issue, 25 M. 367; 38 I.C. 800. But unless specially authorized, he cannot consent to the settlement of a case by oath being taken by the opposite party. 14 B. 455; or give up a portion of the claim. 12 W.R. 279; 3 B.L.R. (App.) 15; or transfer a decree. 2 N.W.P.H.C.R. 695; or consent to a decree in respect of property not in suit. 2 M. (A.C.) 420.

ADMISSION BY PLEADER.—Admissions of fact by pleader made during the actual progress of a suit and not in mere conversation are binding on the party. 9 W.R. 375; 485; 10 W.R. 322; 21 W.R. 332; 21 M. 274; 15 I.C. 156; 20 C.W.N. 995; 7 C.W.N. 351; 86 P.L.R. 1916=35 I.C. 870. It is not necessary that the client must be present when the admission is made. 2 M.I.A. 253; and the party who wants to repudiate the admission as being against his instructions should do so at the earliest opportunity. 38 I.C. 800. The admission should, however, be within the scope of the pleader's authority. 18 W.R. 436. He may admit liability and a decree may be passed thereon against the client. 21 W.R. 332. Verbal admissions by pleader must be taken as a whole and should not be unduly stretched. 6 A. 406. Court is not to act upon admissions by pleader, where the evidence of the records shows that they were wrongly made. 104 P.L.R. 1916=36 I.C. 212; nor upon mere opinion expressed by pleader adverse to his client's claim. 18 M. 72. Nor upon an erroneous admission as to a point of law. 24 B. 360=2 Bom.L.R. 467; 45 I.C. 983; 52 I.C. 178; 8 S.L.R. 156=27 I.C. 357. See also 27 C. 156. Mere allegation of party to the contrary is not sufficient to contradict his pleader in respect of a statement of fact made on his behalf by the pleader. 136 I.C. 622=1931 A. 415.

AUTHORITY TO COMPROMISE.—A pleader employed to conduct a case has no implied authority to compromise it, and there must be express authority in the Vakalatnama if the compromise is to bind the client. 21 M. 274; 41 M. 233=41 I.C. 429; 4 C.W.N. 169. But it is otherwise in the case of Counsel. 13 A. 272; and also in the case of attorney or solicitor. 7 Bom.H.C.O.C. 79. In any event, the compromise should not be against client's express instructions. 41 C.L.J. 213=88 I.C. 369=1925 C. 866; 32 C.W.N. 44=106 I.C. 309=1928 C. 378. Nor with reference to matters outside the scope of the particular case. 27 C. 428. A pleader should have special Vakalatnama to enter into any particular compromise. 9 S.L.R. 218=34 I.C. 928. But see contra. 23 M.L.J. 381. Compromise entered into outside the Court, would be binding only when sanctioned by the Court. 52 C. 386=1925 C. 696; 55 C. 113=1927 C. 714. Compromise may be set aside at the instance of party, if pleader, counsel or solicitor had consented under misrepresentation or mistake. 6 C. 687; 3 R. 261=1925 R. 314. But the application should be made before the judgment is pronounced. 13 A. 272; 13 C. 115.

REFERENCE TO ARBITRATION BY PLEADER.—A pleader duly appointed to act for a party has authority to apply for a reference to arbitration and the same would be binding on his client even if it is against the wishes of his client. 9 S.L.R. 183=34 I.C. 845. The Code of 1908 has effected a change of the law in this respect. 34 I.C. 845; 6 N.W.P. 210 and 14 B. 455, which held otherwise were under the old Code.

WITHDRAWAL OF SUIT BY PLEADER.—Pleader holding Vakalatnama to do all acts necessary in connection with the suit, has prima facie power to apply to withdraw the suit, provided there is nothing to show that the same is contrary to the client's instructions, or due to misconduct of the pleader. 5 W.R. 80.

3. For the purposes of this Code, the District Court is subordinate to the High Court, and every Civil Court of a grade inferior to that of a District Court and every Court of Small Causes is subordinate to the High Court and District Court.

4. (1) In the absence of any specific provision to the contrary, nothing in this Code shall be deemed to limit or otherwise affect any special or local law now in force or any special jurisdiction or power conferred, or any special form of procedure prescribed, by or under any other law for the time being in force.

(2) In particular and without prejudice to the generality of the proposition contained in sub-section (1), nothing in this Code shall be deemed to limit or otherwise affect any remedy which a landholder or landlord may have under any law for the time being in force for the recovery of rent of agricultural land from the produce of such land.

5. (1) Where any Revenue Courts are governed by the provisions of this Code in those matters of procedure upon which any special enactment applicable to them is silent, the [Provincial Government] <sup>1</sup>* * * may, by notification in the [Official Gazette] declare that any portions of those provisions which are not expressly made applicable by this Code shall not apply to those Courts, or shall only apply to them with such modifications as the Provincial Government <sup>1</sup>[* * *] may prescribe.

(2) "Revenue Court" in sub-section (1) means a Court having jurisdiction under any local law to entertain suits or other proceedings relating to the rent, of a public company. 'Debenture stock' is borrowed capital consolidated into one mass for the sake of convenience. Instead of each lender having a separate bond or mortgage, he has a certificate entitling him to a certain sum, being a portion of one large loan (Lindley, p. 346).

SEC. 2 (20).—Cf. the definition of the term 'signed' in the General Clauses Act, where it is given a restricted meaning. That a person should be unable to write or sign his name is not a condition precedent to the use of a stamp. 3 A. 575. As to whether signing includes initialling, see 8 A. 293; <sup>1</sup>185 P.R. 1889 (F.B.).

SEC. 3.—The list of Subordinate Courts in the section is not exhaustive and does not exclude all other Courts from being subordinate to the High Court. 37 B. 114=17 I.C. 676. So a Collector exercising judicial functions under the Bombay Mamlatdars' Act, is subordinate to the Bombay High Court. 37 B. 114. Judge should follow the rulings of the High Court to which he is subject. 17 B. 555; 10 C. 82; 15 B. 419; 6 M. 424; 19 C.W.N. 841=4 Pat.L.J. 565; 29 M.L.J. 63=42 I.A. 155=37 A. 359 (P.C.). A decision of the Privy Council is binding on Courts in India though delivered in an appeal not coming from an Indian Court. 38 M. 941=25 M.L.J. 162 (P.C.). The original side of High Court sitting in insolvency is not a Court subordinate to the High Court in its appellate jurisdiction. 55 M.L.J. 671=1928 M. 1091.

SEC. 4.—This section cannot be construed as making inapplicable the Code in respect of proceedings under Special or Local Laws, unless there is an inconsistency. 3 C. 221. The law applicable to soldiers is the Army Act and it overrides S. 60. 43 B. 368=28 Bom.L.R. 137. S. 40, gives validity to a local Act and a Court to which a decree is sent for execution outside the local sphere may be bound by the local Act but no local legislature can prescribe the procedure for any Court beyond its territorial jurisdiction. As far as the latter Court is concerned the Act is in the same position as the legislation of a foreign country. Hence the U. P. Court of Wards Act could not be invoked in a proceeding in Bengal. 56 C. 704. It is the section of the Oudh Laws Act that applies to the recording of evidence in criminal cases relating to a proceeding before the Chief Court and not O. XVIII, R. 6. 8 O.W.N. 635=132 I.C. 270=1931 O. 385. So also in case of application for leave to appeal to Privy Council, S. 12 (1) of Oudh Courts Act and not S. 109 of the Code, will apply. 8 O.W.N. 1207=134 I.C. 1017=1932 O. 163. Procedure under Co-operative Societies Act excludes that under C. P. Code, 142 I.C. 487=1933 N. 211. The parties to a suit can validly agree, even apart from the Oaths Act, that they will abide by the statement of a witness, including one who is a party to the suit; and they can leave the decision of all points including costs arising in the case to be made according to the statement. 1933 A.L.J. 1127=1933 A. 861 (F.B.). No declaratory suit lies in Civil Court as to money attached by order of a Criminal Court for enforcing a maintenance order passed by it under S. 488, Cr. P. Code. 39 P.L.R. 100=169 I.C. 100=1937 L. 367.

revenue or profits of land used for agricultural purposes, but does not include a Civil Court having original jurisdiction under this Code to try such suits or proceedings as being suits for proceedings of a civil nature.

6. Save in so far as is otherwise expressly provided, nothing herein contained shall operate to give any Court jurisdiction over suits Pecuniary jurisdiction. the amount or value of the subject-matter of which exceeds the pecuniary limits (if any) of its ordinary jurisdiction.

7. The following provisions shall not extend to Courts constituted under the Provincial Small Cause Courts Act, 1887, or to Courts exercising the jurisdiction of a Court of Small Causes under that Act, that is to say,—

(a) so much of the body of the Code as relates to—

(i) suits excepted from the cognizance of a Court of Small Causes ;

(ii) the execution of decrees in such suits ;

(iii) the execution of decrees against immovable property ; and

(b) the following sections, that is to say,— section 9, sections 91 and 92, sections 94 and 95 <sup>2</sup>[so far as they authorise or relate to—

(i) orders for the attachment of immovable property,

(ii) injunctions,

(iii) the appointment of a receiver of immovable property, or

(iv) the interlocutory orders referred to in clause (c) of section 94] and sections 96 to 112 and 115.

8. Save as provided in sections 24, 38 to 41, 75, clauses (a), (b) and (c), 76, 77 and 155 to 158, and by the Presidency Small Cause Courts Act, 1882, the provisions in the body of this Code shall not extend to any suit or proceeding in any Court of Small Causes established in the towns of Calcutta, Madras and Bombay :

NOTES.

SEC. 6.—A Court cannot execute a decree sent to it for execution, where the decree has been passed in a suit, the value of which exceeds the pecuniary limits of its jurisdiction. 16 C. 457 ; 17 C. 465 ; 37 C. 574 ; 12 B. 155. But see 7 M. 397 ; 17 M. 309 (contra). S. 6 governs the whole Code, that is to say, the word 'suits' means not only all proceedings up to the stage of decree, but includes, proceedings in execution. Its position, appearing as it does under the part headed 'preliminary' indicates that it is designed to govern the whole Code. 1940 N.L.J. 244. In suits for possession of land and mesne profits, both past and future, the pecuniary limits of the jurisdiction of the Court is to be determined only with reference to the past profits claimed and the value of the land. Although when the actual decree is passed for past and future profits, the sum is found to exceed the pecuniary limit of the Court's jurisdiction it does not matter, and the decree will not be one passed without jurisdiction. 40 M. 1=39 I.C. 439 ; 25 M. 543 ; 33 A. 97=7 I.C. 385 ; 16 A. 286 ; 53 C. 14=89 I.C. 726=1926 C. 1076 ; 6 Pat.L.J. 54=60 I.C. 346 ; C. <sup>2</sup> Pat.L.J. 394=41 I.C. 231. Court is not precluded from trying incidentally an issue as to property the value of which is beyond its jurisdiction. 169 I.C. 933=1937 R. 219. As to applicability of section to proceedings before the Calcutta Improvement Tribunal, see 31 C.W.N. 142=94 I.C. 170=1926 C. 853.

SEC. 7 : POWERS OF SMALL CAUSE COURT IN EXECUTION.—A Small Cause Court acting as such cannot attach immovable properties in execution, even though the Small Cause Court is also an ordinary Court, unless the decree has been formally transferred to the ordinary side. 132 I.C. 208. See 44 I.C. 252 (can attach and sell a preliminary decree for foreclosure). 16 I.C. 816 (can attach a mortgage debt). 132 I.C. 208 ; 10 N.L.R. 17 (cannot attach a share of joint family property).

ATTACHMENT BEFORE JUDGMENT.—A Small Cause Court can order attachment before judgment of movable property. 46 C. 717=53 I.C. 814 ; but not of immovable property. (See O. XXXVIII, R. 13, infra). The earlier rulings to the contrary in 52 C. 275=82 I.C. 109=1925 C. 1 (F.B.), being prior to insertion of R. 13, are no longer good law.

SEC. 8.—Decree of Madras Small Cause Court transferred to mofussal District Munsiff for execution—District Judge can hear appeal from order in execution proceedings. 49 M.L.J. 104. When S. 8 says that "the provision in the body of this Code shall not extend to any suit," it means that the provisions shall not also extend to any decree passed in any such suit. 7 Cut.L.T. 45.

SEC. 9 : SCOPE OF THE SECTION.—The Civil Courts are prima facie entitled to determine all civil matters ; legislation that ousts their jurisdiction must be very carefully examined, and unless the Courts are satisfied that the conditions upon which they are ousted are fulfilled to their own satisfaction, they will not hold that they are debarred from inquiring into any matter before them. They will not take the mere ipse dixit of the authority which ousts them, unless the law definitely states that they are bound to do so. 11 R. 125=1933 R. 124. See also 67 M.L.J. 1=61 I.A. 177=57 M. 443=1934 P.C. 84 (P.C.). The burden of proof is on the party who seeks to oust the jurisdiction of Civil Courts. 1928 L. 121 (F.B.) When the Statute which creates the right also prescribes a special remedy, the person aggrieved is limited to the remedy so prescribed. If, however, a legal right is recognised, to exist apart from and independently of the statute and no special remedy is provided, the Civil Courts would continue to exercise their jurisdiction under S. 9. 143 I.C. 514=29 N.L.R. 278=1933 N. 193 (F.B.). See also 43 L.W. 262=160 I.C. 209=1936 M. 421. But see 157 I.C. 270=1935 A.L.J. 1111. S. 9 itself postulates the barring of jurisdiction of Civil Courts by a competent legislature with respect to particular class of suits of a civil nature. It is, therefore, open to a Provincial Legislature to bar the jurisdiction of Civil Courts with respect to particular class of suits, provided in doing so, it keeps itself within the field of legislation confided to its charge and does not contravene any provision of the Constitution Act. I.L.R. (1940) A. 455=1940 A.L.J. 274=1940 A. 272 (F.B.). It is a well-recognised principle of law that the nature, and not the merits, of the claim determines the question of jurisdiction. 1940 N.L.J. 582=1940 N. 402.

SPECIAL TRIBUNAL.—The grant of jurisdiction to a Special Tribunal to deal finally or exclusively with the cases arising out of the lawful administration of a particular statute cannot take away the jurisdiction of the Civil Courts to afford relief against any illegality committed under colour of that statute. If the special tribunal arbitrarily refuses to exercise its jurisdiction or if the rules which create the Special Tribunal and lay down the procedure are themselves impeached as being ultra vires, then the Civil Courts have jurisdiction to correct the illegality and give proper relief to the aggrieved person. 143 I.C. 514=29 N.L.R. 278=1933 N. 193 (F.B.). Where a right and liability has been created by statute and where the legislature has left to another authority the appointment of a tribunal to try such liability and the framing of the procedure under which the tribunal so to be appointed is to carry out its duties, but the tribunal so contemplated by the legislature has never been brought into existence, the subject has the right to proceed in the ordinary Civil Courts with corresponding rights of appeal, unless and until the legislature carries out its duty of appointment a special tribunal. 14 P. 24=15 Pat.L.T. 623=1934 P. 670 (2) (F.B.). Per Courtney Terrell, C.J.,—When a special tribunal has been appointed and its procedure framed, then the subject cannot proceed to a civil suit in the event of the special tribunal refusing or neglecting to carry out its duties in a proper manner, in other words, refusing or neglecting to exercise its jurisdiction. 14 P. 24. Suit for declaration that certain debts shown in application to Debt Conciliation Board are fictitious and to restrain the alleged creditors from proving them before the Board, if barred in Civil Court, 1938 L. 14. Whatever the doubts about the District Courts may be, the C. P. Debt Relief Courts are not Civil Courts. They are special tribunals created for the purpose of the Act. 1941 N.L.J. 485.

JURISDICTION OF CIVIL COURTS IN GENERAL.—Every presumption should be made in favour of the jurisdiction of a Civil Court, which can be taken away only by express words or by necessary implication. 17 C.W.N. 408=17

Explanation.—A suit in which the right to property or to an office is contested is a suit of a civil nature, notwithstanding that such right may depend entirely on the decision of questions as to religious rites or ceremonies.

NOTES.

G.L.J. 239; 33 M. 208; 10 Pat.L.T. 167; 1932 O. 199 (F.B.). Jurisdiction depends upon allegations made in the plaint and not upon those which may be ultimately found to be true. 1922 N. 10=18 N.L.R. 121. After annexation of Burmah the Thathanabaing or the Burmese Buddhist hierarchy ceased to have jurisdiction to decide civil disputes between members of the Burmese Buddhist priesthood. It is only Civil Courts established by law that could do so. 13 R. 648=158 I.C. 865=1935 R. 376 (F.B.). (6 R. 783=114 I.C. 540=1929 77, Overr.) Courts have power in any matter of spiritual and temporal character to enquire into the laws or rules of the tribunal or authority which has inflicted the alleged injury. 39 M. 1056=30 M.L.J. 423. A Court will interfere in a case of dismissal of an officer of a Trust Corporation where the relationship between the officer and the corporation is one of trust and cestui que trust but will not, where the relationship is a contractual one. 41 C. 19. The question of propriety of any fine inflicted by the Dharma-kartha on an inferior spiritual dignitary is within the competence of the Civil Court. 21 N.L.J. 730. Civil Court can question the appointment of a trustee by Devasthanam Committee if it is not made reasonably and in good faith. 42 M. 668. Where certain Jagir money is attached by a Magistrate for realization of arrears of maintenance due under order passed under S. 488, Cr. P. Code, Civil Court has no jurisdiction to entertain suit for declaration that the amount is not liable to attachment. 169 I.C. 100=1937 L. 367. No civil suit lies for a mere declaration that a decree of a Revenue Court was without jurisdiction. 1939 A.L.J. 382=182 I.C. 911=1939 A. 446. Nor for mere declaration that plaintiff is heir of a person. 41 P.L.R. 615=1939 L. 158; 1938 L. 831.

'EXPRESSLY OR IMPLIEDLY BARRED.'—The jurisdiction of Civil Court is expressly barred when there is some enactment or rule of law precluding it from taking cognizance of a suit. 14 C. 644. See also 11 O.W.N. 1435=1935 O. 96. As to suits expressly barred by statutes, see 26 A. 594; 42 M. 647=37 M.L.J. 23 (custody of minor under the Guardian and Wards Act). 30 M. 126 (suit for land, as emolument of office under the Hereditary Village Officers Act, 1895) and other cases dealt with by special enactments. See also 36 Bom.L.R. 1245=1935 B. 91=154 I.C. 583 (suit to set aside award made under Co-operative Societies Act); 43 B. 211=21 Bom.L.R. 27 (suit to recover the value of silver confiscated by the order of Collector under the Sea Customs Act). In this case, however, it was held that if there had been no legal adjudication of the matter by the Collector of Customs in accordance with the provisions of the Sea Customs Act, the jurisdiction of the Civil Court to take cognizance of the suit was not ousted. (Ibid.) No Court in British India has jurisdiction to grant a declaratory decree that a decree passed by the Privy Council is illegal and void; as the bar under S. 23 of Act 3 and 4 Will. IV, Cl. 31 (1833) is not confined to execution proceedings. 158 I.C. 338=11 Luck. 486=1936 O. 67. Where a special tribunal out of ordinary course is appointed by an Act to determine questions as to rights which are the creation of that Act, then except so far as otherwise expressly provided or necessarily implied, that tribunal's jurisdiction to determine those questions is exclusive. 157 I.C. 270=1935 A.L.J. 1111; 1938 R. 392 (F.B.). Civil Courts have no jurisdiction, if the tribunal comes to a conclusion after due enquiry. But if the conclusion is arrived at without any sort of enquiry and without an opportunity being given to the parties to be heard, the jurisdiction of the ordinary Civil Courts is not taken away. 43 B. 221; 115 I.C. 650=26 A.L.J. 673=1928 A. 511. The jurisdiction of the Civil Courts is not barred by S. 287 of the Madras City Municipal Act as the Standing Committee of the Madras Corporation cannot be treated as a special tribunal constituted to decide claims between the house-owners and the Corporation. 38 M. 41=23 M.L.J. 531. See also 1939 A.W.R.H.C. 230 (suit against municipality for tax illegally recovered). Cognizance may also be impliedly barred by general principles of law such as suits relating to acts of State and public policy. Suit to declare title to decree not barred by S. 47 or by S. 9, C. P. Code. 1931 R. 24. Suit re order in partition proceedings lies. 54 A. 646=138 I.C. 465=1932 A. 293 (F.B.). Suit for profits by one co-sharer of an occupancy holding against another can be tried by the Civil Court, and its jurisdiction is not ousted by S. 230 or the Fourth Schedule of the Agra Tenancy Act (1926). 57 A. 852=1935 A.L.J. 112=155 I.C. 37=1935 A. 271. See also 1940 A.L.J. 906=1941 All. 61 (F.B.). Ss. 26-J and 188 of B. T. Act do not oust jurisdiction of Civil Court to entertain suit by landlord for recovery of the balance of the transfer fee. 63 G.L.J. 105=1936 C. 786. Suit by a statutory body (District Board) for damages for unauthorized use of public street is not barred. (1938) 1 M.L.J. 391=A.I.R. 1938 M. 227.

SUITS RELATING TO ACTS OF STATE BARRED.—A suit for damages against Government for acts done in the exercise of sovereign powers does not lie in a Civil Court. 1 C. 11. But where the act complained of is professedly done under the sanction of Municipal law, and in the exercise of powers conferred by that law, the fact that it is done by the sovereign power does not oust the jurisdiction of Civil Court. 4 M. 344; 5 M. 273. Publication in the Government Gazette, respecting the conduct of a public servant is an act of State in respect of which no action for libel lies. 27 B. 189. A resumption of an inam by Government is an act of State. 28 I.C. 934. But see 6 M. 361. So also presumption by Government of certain functions entrusted to non-feudatory Zamindars in Central Provinces. 39 C. 615 = 39 I.A. 31 (P.C.) ; 10 L. 338. Also appointment to the office of Ghatwal or Digwar. 23 I.C. 849 = 18 C.W.N. 1036.

SUITS AGAINST MUNICIPALITIES.—A suit lies for a declaration that plaintiff has a right to vote and to stand as a candidate at a Municipal election. 24 C. 107. See also 48 C. 378. As to power of Criminal Court to question action taken by Municipality, see 93 I.C. 827 = 1926 L. 461. A Municipality has direction to issue such orders as it thinks proper with reference to a proposed building. Civil Courts cannot interfere with that discretion unless it is exercised in a capricious, wanton and oppressive manner. 12 B. 490 = 1937 L. 252 = 39 P.L.R. 380. Where powers are given to a public body of acquiring property for purposes of an Act, misuse of the powers is actionable in a Civil Court. 47 C. 500 = 47 I.A. 45 = 38 M.L.J. 511 (P.C.). [Affirming 44 C.L.J. 219]. Civil Court has jurisdiction to entertain a suit for declaration that the owner of certain land sought to be acquired by the corporation is entitled to compensation. 44 C. 87 = 43 I.A. 243 = 32 M.L.J. 631 (P.C.). Refusal of licence by Municipality is not justified and a Civil Court can interfere. 20 Cr.L.J. 705 = 17 A.L.J. 976 = 52 I.C. 785. As to jurisdiction of a Civil Court to decide questions of franchise, see 52 C. 943. A suit for declaration that assessment of town-tax by a Panchayat is illegal and ultra vires, is one between a subject and a branch of the local Self-Government not dealing with rights but with a question of taxation, and as such is not of a civil nature, and Civil Court has no jurisdiction to entertain it. 1936 A.L.J. 33 = 159 I.C. 897 = 1936 A. 917.

SUITS BARRED ON GROUNDS OF PUBLIC POLICY.—Suit against a witness for defamatory statements, contained in the evidence given by him. 30 M. 222 ; 17 B. 172 ; 15 C. 264. See also 10 M. 87 ; 11 M. 477. Suit by a witness to recover money agreed to be paid to him in consideration of his giving evidence. 4 M.H.C.R. 7. (But when he acts illegally, without due care and attention, and beyond the limits of his jurisdiction, an action lies. 9 C. 341 ; 6 M.H.C.R. 423). Suits on agreements void on grounds of public policy, e.g., suit for rent of lodgings knowingly let to a prostitute. 18 W.R. 445. Suit to enforce an agreement to suppress a criminal prosecution. 8 C. 24.

CASTE QUESTION.—This term may be defined generally to be a question which relates to matters affecting the internal autonomy of the caste and its social relations. 56 B. 242 = 34 Bom.L.R. 343 = 1932 B. 122 (F.B.) ; 23 B. 122 ; 34 B. 467 = 4 I.C. 108. In the matter of caste customs over which the ecclesiastical chief has jurisdiction Civil Court cannot interfere. 17 M. 222. See also 157 I.C. 302 = 1935 N. 156. See also 1939 M. 757 (dispute as to placing jewel with particular Namam on the deity). Refusal to invite a member of caste on auspicious occasions does not give rise to a cause of action in a Civil Court. 17 I.C. 527 = 1912 M.W.N. 1220. See also 15 B. 599 ; 10 B. 661 ; 18 B. 115. "Neota" is not a legal but social obligation and is therefore not recoverable by means of a suit. 34 P.L.R. 218 = 1933 L. 317 (1). See also 20 B. 190 which relates to a sum of money which, by a resolution of the caste, every casteman was to pay on the occasion of any marriage in his family. The power of a Civil Court to decide questions relating to caste disputes is fully considered by Chandavarkar, J., in 26 B. 174. See also 27 Bom.L.R. 1503. The right of conscience, i.e., the right of individual members of a community to hold certain religious beliefs and opinions is not a matter within the cognizance of Civil Court. But the right to remain in the community or to exercise the rights and privileges of the members of the community is a civil one and must be decided by the Civil Court when called in question. 157 I.C. 302 = 1935 N. 156. Temporary exclusion of some members of a caste from social intercourse with other families on account of infringement of caste rules at the instance of the panchayat is not for the Civil Court. 23 I.C. 801 = 12 A.L.J. 522. See also 15 B. 599 ; 18 B. 115. But where plaintiff is expelled from the caste, suit will lie to determine whether plaintiff's expulsion is valid or not because it is not a matter of social privilege but of legal right which forms part of his status. 15 B. 599 ; 10 M. 133. See also 21 C. 463 ; 23 B. 122 ; 24 B. 13 ; 12 M. 495 ; 17 M. 222. A properly assembled caste Panchayat or meeting have jurisdiction to outcaste members of its community who have committed caste offences ; and when the Panchayats' proceedings are in order and in consonance with natural justice Civil Courts cannot interfere. 37 Bom.L.R. 417 = 158 I.C. 414 = 1935 B. 361. The general principles applicable to expulsion of members from a club apply to cases of expulsion from caste, while it is open to doubt whether there is an inherent power in the caste not dependent on proof of usage within the caste. 37 Bom.L.R. 603 = 159 I.C. 650 = 1935 B. 367. In order to justify such expulsion, there must be a caste offence, the rules of procedure of the caste, if any, must be complied with, and notice of the charge and of the meeting should be given to the accused and other members of the caste. (Ibid.) Where the requirements of natural justice are complied with, the Civil Court will not act as a Court of appeal in reference to the decision of the domestic tribunal. 37 Bom.L.R. 261 = 157 I.C. 127 = 1935 B. 268. Nor is it necessary that there should be before the domestic tribunal evidence of the character which would be required in a Court of law. (Ibid.) Civil Courts may deal with a caste question where the character of a member has been unjustly injured. 28 M.L.J. 58 = 2 L.W. 446 as to whether suits in respect of caste property are maintainable in Civil Courts. So also suits for inspection of accounts of caste property. 5 B. 83 ; 34 B. 467. See also 50 B. 124 = 1926 B. 69 ; 19 B. 507. Suit by caste members to inspect caste documents is maintainable. 56 B. 242. A claim by five of the members of a caste to use the Wadi and the vessels is one of a civil nature. 1924 B. 522. Where membership of a caste involves rights to property, Court has jurisdiction to entertain a suit by a member in respect of expulsion of caste which has been carried out in complete disregard of the rules of the caste. If a caste chooses to make a rule as to the procedure and methods to be adopted in respect of a caste offence, the caste must comply with the rule; and when that rule is disregarded by the caste, Civil Court will interfere and give relief to the aggrieved member. 36 Bom.L.R. 901=1934 B. 431.

RIGHT TO RELIGIOUS HONOUR.—A right to religious honour is not cognizable, unless it is an emolument attached to an office. 45 I.C. 959=7 L.W. 614; 12 L.W. 480=53 I.C. 483; 10 I.C. 110=(1911) 1 M.W.N. 353; 16 I.C. 338=14 Bom.L.R. 543; 156 I.C. 460=8 R.M. 3=1935 M.W.N. 615=41 L.W. 384=1935 M. 621=69 M.L.J. 14. See also 32 M. 291. A suit does not lie for a mere honour or dignity unconnected with fees, profits or emoluments. 2 B. 476; 51 I.C. 905; 7 M. 91; 10 B. 233; 19 M. 62; 41 M.L.J. 287; 44 L.W. 752=158 I.C. 375=1935 M.W.N. 520=1935 M. 679. So also in case of right to obtain theertham or honours in a particular order of precedence in a temple. 44 L.W. 539=1936 M.W.N. 954=1936 M. 973=71 M.L.J. 588. See also 1939 M. 102=(1939) 1 M.L.J. 124; 173 I.C. 986=1938 M. 334=(1938) 1 M.L.J. 174. Suit for declaration and injunction in respect of a right to be carried in a palanquin on certain days through public streets is not maintainable. 45 B. 590. See also 3 M.I.A. 198. Courts will not decide disputes as to precedence or privilege between purely religious functionaries. 45 B. 590; 1933 M. 264=143 I.C. 104.

RIGHT TO WORSHIP, ETC.—A suit to establish the right to worship in a temple according to the worshipper's belief is a suit of a civil nature. 44 B. 410. See also 145 I.C. 1014=38 L.W. 333=1933 M. 726; 76 I.C. 629; 1939 M.W.N. 418=1939 M. 757. A right to worship in a particular manner and with particular incidents attached to it is a civil right. The right of a person to exclusively conduct a mandahappadi on the first day of a festival, paying all the expenses himself and receiving all honours and emoluments of that right, is a civil right. 31 M.L.J. 758. See also 35 I.C. 88=3 L.W. 512. A suit to establish a person's right to enter a religious place is entertainable. 21 C. 463. Also a suit to restrain the defendant from entering a place of worship. 7 B. 323; 23 B. 122; 13 M. 293. See also 44 C.W.N. 177 (P.C.). (Removal of Mahant from religious duty).

SUITS IN RESPECT OF TEMPLE PROPERTY.—Hindu idols being property, the right to deal with them is cognizable in a Civil Court. 4 M. 315. See also 3 C. 390. Removal or alteration of namams or sacred marks in a temple amounts to an interference with property and will afford a ground of action in a Civil Court. 30 M. 158=17 M.L.J. 1. Dispute as to mode of placing jewel with a particular mark (namam) on the deity, is trivial and not of civil nature. 1939 M.W.N. 418=1939 M. 757. A suit between two Buddhist priests to recover possession of certain lands and religious manuscripts is one of a civil nature. 8 Bur.L.T. 62=27 I.C. 112. A worshipper who is not prevented from worshipping an idol cannot sue its custodians to locate in a particular temple instead of another. 32 C. 1072.

SUITS TO RECOVER FEES AND EMOLUMENTS ATTACHED TO OFFICES.—Payments made to a vatandar barber for officiating at some ceremonies are customary fees and therefore can be recovered from another who, without any right, performs them. 22 Bom.L.R. 410=44 B. 733. Where, however, a donor makes a gift personally to the defendant Maha Brahmin on a day which belonged to the turn of the plaintiff, the plaintiff could not recover the same, as it was made to the defendant in his individual capacity. 35 A. 412. See also 26 C. 356.

SUITS FOR A SHARE IN OFFERINGS.—Right to share in temple offerings is a civil right. 45 A. 437=1923 A. 426; 17 C. 906; 27 C. 30; 13 B. 548. A suit for definite amount due to a plaintiff as a co-sharer of the voluntary offerings in a temple realised by the defendant is maintainable in Civil Court. 26 P.R. 1919=51 I.C. 236 (26 C. 356, Dist.); 17 M.L.J. 493. But see 1931 B. 297=33 Bom.L.R. 490.

RIGHT TO OFFICE (SECULAR).—The existence of an office involves the existence of some duties to be performed by the holder of the office. 28 I.C. 459. Where the plaintiff's services are voluntary and gratuitous, and there is no question of any contract Civil Court has no jurisdiction. 37 A. 313. Though an honorary lecturership in a University is an office of consequence, yet there is no injury to the personal right of the lecturer on account of no arrangements being made by the University for the delivery of lectures. 41 C. 518. A suit by one director against the other directors of a limited company to restrain the latter from preventing him from acting as such, is maintainable. 51 C. 916.

RIGHT TO OFFICE (RELIGIOUS).—Suit by a body of Brahmins that they have a right to recite vedas, etc., in a temple is maintainable. 98 I.C. 229=1927 M. 131. See also 54 C. 614; 1939 M.W.N. 418=1939 M. 757. Right to the office of hereditary priest to which fees are attached is property and a suit is maintainable in respect thereof. 36 B. 94. See also 22 Bom.L.R. 1202=45 B. 234; 54 C. 614. Also a suit for exclusive right to officiate as a purohit to pilgrims to Rameswaram. 9 M.I.A. 348. It is not necessary that any emoluments should attach to the office. 15 C. 159 (162); 45 L.W. 384=171 I.C. 684=1937 M. 403. A suit lies for the enforcement of a right to officiate as priest at a certain sacred spot though no fixed fees are attached to it. 27 C. 30. See also 13 B. 429; 13 B. 548; 16 B. 281. Where claim is confined to rights in religious ceremonies as a right to recite sacred texts, the same is not cognizable. 28 M. 23; 19 M. 62. See also 32 A. 527 (right to perform Ramlila). 49 L.W. 295=1939 M. 494=(1939) 1 M.L.J. 199 (Claim relating to certain ritual observances by members of a community in a communal festival). The right to hold a certain office in a certain place at a certain season of the year confers upon the holder thereof a legal character so as to enable him to bring a suit to maintain such right. 1 Pat.L.J. 381=35 I.C. 345. The gains made by officiating as priest at the bath, etc., to the pilgrims at chaukis on the banks of a sacred river are property in law and a suit for a share in such business is one of a civil nature. 27 O.C. 114=1924 O. 252 (43 A.

10. No Court shall proceed with the trial of any suit in which the matter in issue is also directly and substantially in issue in a previously instituted suit between the same parties, or between parties under whom they or any of them claim litigating under the Stay of suit.

NOTES.

581, Ref.). A Gayawal priest can sue for declaration and possession in respect of his gaddi whether it is an office or a business. 42 I.C. 478=2 Pat.L.J. 705. Where there is a specific duty of being present at the performance of religious ceremonies, with emoluments attached to it, it must be regarded as an office, in respect of which suit will lie in a Civil Court. 1928 M. 397. Test of right to office is whether there is a compellable duty on the part of the claimant. 50 L.W. 206=1939 M. 886=(1939) 2 M.L.J. 420.

OTHER RIGHTS OF A CIVIL NATURE.—Right to go in procession in a public street is a civil right. 29 M.L.J. 91=29 I.C. 248; 44 B. 410=22 Bom.L.R. 307. See also 24 C. 524; 18 B. 693. A Mahomedan's right to slaughter cattle is a common law right. 17 O.C. 354=25 I.C. 908. So also a suit to establish a claim to perform urus ceremony and to manage the offerings thereat. 50 B. 148. Suit to declare the election of a candidate as void being contrary to law is one of a civil nature. 39 A. 308. See also 52 C. 943. Suit to set aside award is maintainable. 3 L. 296. Suit for recovery of carcases of dead animals by Mahars is not maintainable in a Civil Court. 47 B. 95. See also 15 I.C. 108. Suit for declaration of validity of election as municipal commissioner is maintainable. 37 C.W.N. 122. So also a suit by minor plaintiff re order of Revenue Court in partition proceedings. 1932 A. 293=54 A. 646 (F.B.).

FRANCHISE AND ELECTION.—Question relating to. See 1926 C. 279. A suit for a declaration that plaintiff's election as commissioner of the Municipality is valid, is one of civil nature and cognizable by Civil Courts. 60 C. 438=37 C.W.N. 122=1933 C. 492.

RITUAL.—Where questions of ritual are involved in the civil rights of persons they ought not to be investigated by the Court. 1926 M.W.N. 226; 1929 M. 520.

ELECTRICITY ACT.—Suit against licensee for damages for failure to supply electrical energy. 97 I.C. 537=1926 L. 349.

INSOLVENCY.—Suit on debt incurred after adjudication not barred. 22 N.L.R. 118.

SEC. 10: SCOPE OF THE SECTION.—Section is mandatory, and no discretion is left to the Courts. 36 C.W.N. 667=1932 C. 751=140 I.C. 155. See also 61 C. 670. S. 10 does not bar the institution of a suit but only the trial of it under certain circumstances. A Court cannot dismiss a suit under the section but only postpone its trial. 27 M.L.J. 405; 11 A. 148

(154) (F.B.). This section lays down only a rule of procedure, and hence the provision may be waived with the consent of the parties. 1937 N. 132=I.L.R. (1937) N. 6. There is no necessity for stay where there is no possibility of conflict of decrees. 106 I.C. 661. See also on this section. 1925 P. 201; 23 A.L.J. 529=1925 A. 615. Nor does the section dispense with the institution of a suit within the proper time when the law expressly requires such institution. 22 B. 640; 77 I.C. 157; 1925 P. 201. Notwithstanding stay of suit, interlocutory orders such as orders for receiver, for an injunction or for attachment before judgment could be passed. 46 B. 431. Under S. 10 a Court has no jurisdiction to decide the question of res judicata. It can only stay the new suit if it finds sufficient reasons. 42 C. 926. See also 47 A. 904; 1926 P. 171. Failure of Court to apply section and to stay suit—Effect of. 7 Lah.L.T. 4.

OBJECT OF THE SECTION.—The object of S. 10 is to prevent Courts of concurrent jurisdiction from trying two parallel suits in respect of same matter in issue. 36 I.C. 641=24 C.L.J. 514. See also 75 I.C. 231; 48 M.L.J. 251; 23 A.L.J. 585; 1925 A. 677; 157 I.C. 796. And avoid conflict of decisions. 29 Bom.L.R. 382=1927 B. 245; 1935 S. 225; 1935 L. 76.

OPERATION OF THE SECTION.—An appeal is a continuation of the suit for the purposes of the section. 82 I.C. 539; 24 C.L.J. 514; 30 I.C. 753=1915 M.W.N. 844; 36 C.W.N. 1=61 M.L.J. 420 (P.C.); 1931 C. 779 (1); 1932 C. 751; 1939 Sind 329; I.L.R. (1940) Kar. 15. Pendency of an appeal before Privy Council is a bar to the trial of a subsequent suit where the same issue is raised, though the relief claimed is different. 23 O.C. 214=58 I.C. 629; 1939 Sind 329. The pendency of an application for leave to appeal to the Privy Council is no bar. 21 M. 18; 1931 L. 50. A proceeding under S. 47 is not a suit within the meaning of the section. 22 M. 256. So also are proceedings under S. 295, Succession Act, 1640 O.W.N. 1=1940 O. 113. Interlocutory orders under S. 10 occur in suits and not in execution proceedings. The section is not exhaustive and its application has been extended only to proceedings under certain Acts and miscellaneous proceedings by virtue of S. 141 and this latter section does not cover proceedings in execution of a decree. 119 I.C. 488=1929 L. 694. Where in the absence of a prayer in the plaint the Courts give a direction in the preliminary decree for ascertainment of future mesne profits, a subsequent suit for the same future mesne profits is not barred by S. 10. 57 M.L.J. 515.

APPLICABILITY OF SECTION.—One test of applicability of section to a particular case is whether on the final decisions being reached in the previous suit, such judgment would operate as res judicata in the subsequent suit.

same title where such suit is pending in the same or any other Court in British India having jurisdiction to grant the relief claimed, or in any Court beyond the limits of British India established or continued by <sup>1</sup>[the Central Government or the Crown Representative] and having like jurisdiction, or before His Majesty in Council.

Explanation.—The pendency of a suit in a foreign Court does not preclude the Courts in British India from trying a suit founded on the same cause of action.

LEG. REF.

<sup>1</sup>Substituted for "the Governor-General in Council" by para. 3 and Sch. I of A.O., 1937.

NOTES.

61 C. 670=38 C.W.N. 818=1935 C. 1; 36 C.W.N. 667=140 I.C. 155=1932 C. 751; 1941 O.A. (Supp.) 605=1941 R.D. 688. It is not necessary for applicability of the section that the subject-matter and the causes of action should be the same. 61 C. 670. Where the matters in issue in one are directly and substantially in issue in another, the mere addition in the second suit of a prayer for declaration of illegality of an interim order of attachment in the first suit, and of a prayer for an injunction against the first suit being proceeded with, will not affect the identity of the two suits. 61 C. 670. (noted supra). The three essential conditions that are necessary to bring in operation S. 10 are (1) that the matter in issue in the second suit is directly and substantially in issue in the previously instituted suit, (2) that the parties in the two suits are the same, and (3) that the Court in which the first suit is instituted is a Court of competent jurisdiction to grant the relief claimed in the subsequently instituted suit. Where the Court deciding the earlier suit based on title was shown to have no jurisdiction to grant relief as to valuation and apportionment which formed the subject-matter of the later suit, held, that the later suit could not be stayed. 60 C. 1096=1933 C. 887. See also 47 L.W. 525=177 I.C. 102=1938 M. 603=(1938) 1 M.L.J. 873; 1940 O.W.N. 802=1940 O. 440. S. 10 is not applicable to the stay of a suit connected with a pending appeal. But the Court has inherent jurisdiction to stay the suit if that is in the interest of both parties. 144 I.C. 107=1933 L. 50. It is mandatory upon the Court, under S. 10, not to proceed with the trial of any suit in which the matter raised is also raised in a previously instituted suit. But it is discretionary with the Court to stop the proceedings at an earlier stage. As a matter of common sense and convenience, if the second suit is parallel to the first, then the best course for everybody concerned is to put a stay upon or arrest altogether the second suit at the earliest possible moment; and in a proper case the Court has power to stay a suit generally at any stage it thinks expedient to do so. 61 C. 670=38 C.W.N. 818. It is hardly open to a party to blow hot and cold and ask the Court not to inquire into an application filed by such party until a previous suit in respect of the same subject-matter filed by him is decided by another Court. 149 I.C. 1169=1934 S. 38. As to effect of Government of Burma Adaptation of Indian Laws Order, 1937, on suits pending on same cause of action in British India, see 175 I.C. 275=1938 R. 130 (F.B.).

A suit was referred to arbitration and the arbitrators submitted an award. The Court directed that the award would be made part of the decree. No decree, however, was drawn up as the necessary stamps were not filed. Held, that the suit was still pending. 71 C.L.J. 190.

CONDITIONS FOR OPERATION OF THE SECTION.

—There must be substantial identity between the matters in dispute and parties in the earlier and later suits. 44 B. 283; 9 I.C. 929=13 Bom.L.R. 109; 48 M.L.J. 251=88 I.C. 421. An application under S. 20, Sch. II, is not a plaint and the hearing of such an application is not a suit though under sub-Cl. (2), S. 20, it has to be numbered and registered as a suit. S. 10 is applicable only to suits. 1929 L. 533. Where objections to an award are preferred in a Court no application under S. 10 for stay of proceedings lies on the ground that a suit in respect of the same subject-matter has been instituted in another Court by the applicant. (1928 S. 169 and 1934 S. 38, Rel. on.) 1935 S. 228.

EFFECT OF CONTRAVENTION OF SECTION.—A decree passed in contravention of S. 10 is not a nullity and cannot be disregarded in execution proceedings. 22 P.R. 1919=46 I.C. 419. See also 7 Lah.L.T. 4.

'THE MATTER IN ISSUE.'—The expression denotes the entire subject in controversy, and the section is not applicable when there is only 'a matter in issue' common to both the suits. 40 L.W. 715=1935 M. 24=67 M.L.J. 748; 41 L.W. 449=155 I.C. 1002=1935 M. 112; 160 I.C. 805=1935 L. 816; 1929 A. 805; 82 I.C. 539; 36 I.C. 641=24 C.L.J. 514; 4 Pat.L.J. 557; 48 M.L.J. 251; 103 I.C. 274=26 L.W. 241; 26 P.L.R. 185=1926 L. 304; 47 A. 915; 51 A. 1017; 6 R. 775; 1929 O. 341; 1927 B. 245; 1935 M. 112; 15 L.W. 646=1922 M. 304; 1925 M. 574; 1929 A. 805; 4 Luck. 573; 1931 O. 313. See also 61 C. 670=38 C.W.N. 818; 1932 C. 751; 1938 L. 502; 50 L.W. 334=(1939) 2 M.L.J. 290.

"PREVIOUSLY INSTITUTED SUIT."—The date of presentation of plaint and not date of admission is the date of institution for the purpose of this section. 62 C. 1115. Suit first instituted in wrong Court and subsequently in proper Court—Suit instituted by opponent in another Court in the meantime—Which suit is previous. See 144 I.C. 56=1933 Sind 177. A plaint in a suit in forma pauperis should be deemed to have been filed when the application for leave to sue as a pauper was presented and not when the Court-fee on rejection of the application was paid. Same considerations would apply in deciding the question of priority for purposes of S. 10, C. P. Code, as between two suits, one of which is filed in forma pauperis. 1940 O.W.N. 784=1940 O. 441. In order to arrive at a correct decision as to whether a subsequent suit is "parallel" to a previous suit, so as to attract the application of S. 10, regard must be had to the position of affairs at the time when each of the suits is respectively instituted and what would be the position of affairs when both the suits have been tried and finally determined. The real criterion to apply is, supposing the first suit was determined, would the position then be that when the second suit was instituted, the matters raised in the second suit were res judicata by reason of the decision in the prior suit. 61 C. 670 = 38 C.W.N. 818. Where stay of prior criminal proceedings was asked because of the institution of a civil suit subsequently, held, that the principle of S. 10 might be applied and stay refused. 151 I.C. 897 = 1934 A.L.J. 342 = 1934 A. 131. Where in respect of the same will two applications for probate were made by different persons to different Courts on different dates and caveats were also filed in both Courts on different dates and an application was made by one of the applicants for probate to one of the Courts for stay of the proceedings in that Court. Under S. 10, C. P. Code, it was held that S. 10, C. P. Code, was not in terms applicable to proceedings under S. 295, Succession Act, for they were not 'suits' and that even assuming it applied in principle, it would not be possible as between rival applications for probate, to treat as the date of the institution, the date on which the caveat might have chosen to allow the proceedings to become contentious. It was further held that the only date which could be regarded as the date of institution for the purpose of deciding which of the two rival 'suits' was 'previously instituted' must be the date on which the petition was filed. The principle governing such cases was stated by his Lordship to be that any application which is subsequently converted into a plaint or is to be treated as a plaint and the foundation of a suit must be considered to date back as a plaint to the date on which it was filed as an application. 15 Luck. 290 = 1940 O. 113.

11. No Court shall try any suit or issue in which the matter directly and substantially in issue has been directly and substantially in issue in a former suit between the same parties, or between parties under whom they or any of them claim, litigating under the same Res judicata.

NOTES.

SUIT IN NATIVE STATE.—High Court can order party before it not to proceed with suit in Native State. 1927 B. 135 = 29 Bom.L.R. 138.

SAME PARTIES, ETC.—See 15 L.W. 667 = 68 I.C. 167; 31 I.C. 25; 1939 A.W.R. (B.R.) 60. See also notes under S. 11.

LITIGATING UNDER THE SAME TITLE.—See also notes under S. 11.

INHERENT POWERS.—Stay of suit under inherent powers. See S. 151, C. P. Code. 123 I.C. 50 = 1930 L. 527; 1933 L. 50; 141 I.C. 186 = 1933 L. 605.

POWERS OF THE HIGH COURT.—High Court on its Original Side can order a party to a suit before it not to proceed with a suit instituted by him in a mufassil Court in such a way as to delay or embarrass the trial of the suit in the High Court. 44 B. 283. The power of the High Court on its original side to issue an injunction restraining the defendant in a suit before it from proceeding with a suit in another Court, is not restricted by the provisions of C. P. Code. It has jurisdiction to restrain a defendant from litigating in another Court on the ground of convenience. I.L.R. (1941) 1 Cal. 373. The High Court in its original jurisdiction has inherent power to grant an injunction restraining the defendant in a suit before it from proceeding with a previously instituted suit in another Court on grounds of convenience alone and in spite of the provision of S. 10. I.L.R. (1941) 1 C. 490. An application under S. 10, C. P. Code, asking the Court not to proceed with the trial of a suit should normally be made to the Court which is actually seized of the case. An application for stay of a suit pending on the Original Side of the High Court until the decision of a previously instituted suit in a mofussil Court has to be made on the Original Side to the Judge trying the suit and not on the Appellate Side of the High Court. 43 Bom.L.R. 236.

BURDEN OF PROOF.—The onus is on the defendant to show that the case comes under S. 10. 39 I.C. 908 = 3 Pat.L.W. 327.

APPEAL.—An order by a single Judge of the High Court refusing to stay a suit under S. 10 is a judgment within Cl. 15 of the Letters Patent and is appealable. 61 C. 670 = 38 C.W.N. 818 = 1935 C. 1.

REVISION.—High Court can entertain an application for revision from an order under this section, if suitable grounds are disclosed. 33 P.L.R. 787 = 139 I.C. 48 = 1933 L. 34. An order under S. 10 is not a decision of a case within S. 115 and not liable to revision. 67 I.C. 870 = 1922 L. 54. But see 139 I.C. 48. See also 141 I.C. 177 = 34 P.L.R. 86 = 1933 L. 191. An order staying a second suit under the inherent jurisdiction of the Court to avoid the risk of conflicting rulings may, if the risk be groundless, be revised under S. 107 of the Government of India Act, 141 I.C. 186 = 1933 L. 605.

title, in a Court competent to try such subsequent suit or the suit in which such issue has been subsequently raised, and has been heard and finally decided by such Court.

Explanation I.—The expression “former suit” shall denote a suit which has been decided prior to the suit in question whether or not it was instituted prior thereto.

Explanation II.—For the purposes of this section, the competence of a Court shall be determined irrespective of any provisions as to a right of appeal from the decision of such Court.

Explanation III.—The matter above referred to must in the former suit have been alleged by one party and either denied or admitted, expressly or impliedly, by the other.

NOTES.

551. or where the application of doctrine is expressly forbidden by S. 11. 1934 N. 178. The principle of res judicata is mutual; and even a successful party may in some cases be bound by an adverse finding. 38 Bom.L.R. 853=165 I.C. 987=1936 B. 402. Where several issues have been framed, the decision on each issue which supports the ultimate decision in the case must be regarded as res judicata between the parties to the suit. But if a decision on an issue does not support the ultimate decree, such decision can not operate as res judicata. 73 C.L.J. 475. See also 45 C.W.N. 854. Per Bhide, J.—S. 11, C. P. Code, applies not only to the final decision but also to issues. 40 P.L.R. 319=1938 L. 369 (F.B.). A judgment against which a party has no right of appeal because the decree was in his favour though some of the findings were against him, cannot operate against him as res judicata. 1940 R.D. 355=1940 A.W.R. (B.R.) 170. See also 1938 A.L.J. 739=1938 A. 497. Where an adverse finding is expressly challenged in appeal by the defendant, but the appellate Court allows the appeal on another ground and dismisses the suit in consequence, that finding will not stand as the dismissal of the suit involves a reversal of the judgment in which it is contained. But if it could be shown that in disposing of the appeal, the Court, while dismissing the suit on another ground still intended to maintain the finding of the lower Court against the defendant, the finding may operate as res judicata, notwithstanding the dismissal of the suit, as being embodied in a judgment which is subsisting and in force. 45 C.W.N. 220. Foundation of rule is there should be an end to litigation as to any issue which has been determined between the parties by a Court of competent jurisdiction. 1 P. 174. See also 36 B. 283; 1929 M. 404; 61 C. 1=1934 C. 430; 1935 C. 256. S. 11 is not exhaustive and the bar of res judicata operates as much on general principles as on the wording of the section. The raison d'être of the rule is to confer finality on decisions arrived at by competent Courts between interested parties after genuine contest and to allow persons who had deliberately chosen a position to reprobate it and to blow hot now when they were blowing cold before would be completely to ignore the whole foundation of the rule. 40 P.L.R. 591=1938 L. 571. S. 11 does not, no doubt, codify or crystallize the entire law regarding the doctrine of res judicata and where circumstances other than those provided for in that section exist, the principle underlying the rule of res judicata may be invoked in a proper case without recourse to the provisions of that section. But where the section is applicable, its provisions cannot be overridden by reference to general principles of res judicata. Such principles cannot, therefore, be invoked in a case where the Court which tried the first suit had not the jurisdiction to try the second suit. 44 C.W.N. 1099=1941 C. 104=72 C.L.J. 99. There can be no doubt that S. 11 is not exhaustive regarding the principle of res judicata and that the plea of res judicata may successfully be raised in circumstances which do not fall within the purview of the section. Such a plea can be supported on the general principle of law that there must be an end to litigation. But an elemental essential to the success of such a plea is that the matter must have been in controversy between the same parties or between parties under which the present parties claim. 1940 C. 225. S. 11 is not exhaustive of the principle of res judicata. When an issue in a proceeding has been made the subject of a final order by a Court, that order cannot be impugned by a succeeding judge, nor has the Court jurisdiction to alter its decision except on grounds which would justify a review. 52 L.W. 462=1940 M. 957=(1940) 2 M.L.J. 499. See also 1940 C. 225. A Court which declines jurisdiction cannot bind the parties by its reasons for declining jurisdiction. Such reasons are not decisions and are certainly not decisions by a Court of competent jurisdiction. It would indeed be strange if on a dispute as to the jurisdiction of a Civil Court to try an issue, that Court by its reasons for holding that it had no jurisdiction, could, upon the principle of res judicata, decide and bind the parties upon the very issue which it was incompetent to try. 21 P.L.T. 935=45 C.W.N. 204=43 Bom.L.R. 381=I.L.R. (1940) Kar. 460 (P.C.). If the circumstances of the earlier litigation entitle the defendant to raise the plea of res judicata, the observations contained in the judgment of the Court in that litigation that the defendant was prevented from raising any plea of res judicata in any subsequent suit would not preclude another Court from considering that plea and examining the circumstances upon which it rests. 42 C.W.N. 560. Where the decision of the Court in a previous suit determined that S. 12-A, Chota Nagpur Encumbered Estates Act, did not apply to a transaction, a Court, in a new suit between the same parties with regard to the same transaction, cannot try anew the issue as to its applicability. 63 I.A. 53=15 P. 203=

So also a judgment of a Court not competent to decide it. 28 M. 42; 1930 A. 681; or an order without jurisdiction for the execution of a decree, 1928 M. 746=114 I.C. 545; or decision on an issue which

Court was not competent to decide. 107 I.C. 895=1928 O. 298. It is open to any party to show that the judgment was obtained by fraud or collusion or that there was want of jurisdiction. 1936 A. L.J. 1162=1937 A. 28.

ERRONEOUS DECISIONS.—A Court empowered by law to try a suit has power to try it either rightly or wrongly. A judgment of a Court having jurisdiction, however erroneous, cannot be a nullity and will operate as res judicata. 157 I.C. 917=1935 M. 835=69 M.L.J. 196. A wrong decision operates as res judicata. 60 I.C. 404; 1918 M.W.N. 580=49 I.C. 369; 10 P.L.T. 630; I.L.R. (1904) Nag. 181; 43 P.L.R. 479; 18 P. 378=1939 P. 230; 1930 R. 294; 1931 A. 425; 1932 B. 257; 1 R. 1933 M. 46; 18 R.D. 414; 1933 R. 383; 16 P.L.T. 448=158 I.C. 734=1935 P. 526. As to wrong decision on question of law, see 38 Bom.L.R. 853=165 I.C. 987=1936 B. 402; 162 I.C. 709=40 C.W.N. 627=1936 C. 200; 42 L.W. 446=1935 M. 835=69 M.L.J. 196; 14 P. 633=159 I.C. 173=16 P.L.T. 819. Even an issue of law wrongly decided does operate as res judicata as S. 11 makes no distinction between an issue of fact and an issue of law, specially when there is identity of the matter in issue and also the identity of the causes of action. 14 L. 442=1933 L. 325. As to wrong decision on mixed questions of law and fact, see 1926 O. 417; 65 M.L.J. 684=1933 M. 925. The principle of res judicata on a question of law should, however, be confined to matters which actually existed at the time of the former decision, and therefore areas and trees to which it was not applied at the time of the former decision would be governed by the correct principle of law as laid down in later decisions. I.L.R. 1937 M. 364=1937 M. 254=(1937) 1 M.L.J. 233 (F.B.). Though the construction of a document may for certain purposes be regarded as involving a question of law, a construction once placed on a document by a competent Court before which the question was directly and substantially in issue is conclusive between the parties, and it is immaterial that the property involved in the subsequent suit is not the same as that which formed the subject-matter of the first suit. This principle of finality of construction is equally applicable to decrees, and the interpretation placed by a Court on a decree is conclusive between the parties in a subsequent litigation even if that interpretation be erroneous in law. 1937 M.W.N. 465 (2). An erroneous decision on the question of the construction of a deed of transfer operates as a bar. 29 B. 339 (347) (P.C.); 10 C. 697; 41 C. 778; 31 M.L.J. 97; 59 I.A. 74=54 A. 93=62 M.L.J. 371 (P.C.); 1932 B. 257. An erroneous decision as to when the cause of action for a particular claim arises would be res judicata. 38 Bom.L.R. 853=165 I.C. 987=1936 B. 402. So also where a decision between the parties was considered by the Court and declared not to be res judicata the latter decision, even if erroneous in law, operates as res judicata. 39 P.L.R. 117. When a Court trying a rent suit decides a question of title, if the decision is necessary for the purposes of that suit and the question is directly and substantially in issue between the parties, the decision, though erroneous, must be treated as constituting res judicata. 16 P.L.T. 448=1935 P. 526; 71 C.L.J. 232=1940 C. 347. The doctrine of res judicata is only a form of estoppel and there can be no estoppel against a statute. If a law prohibits the levy of a sum by a landlord from his tenant, a previous judgment entitling him to recover the same cannot stand in the way of the defence of the defendant denying liability. 20 P.L.T. 671=1939 P. 633. Whether distinction can be made between decisions on abstract questions of law and concrete questions such as construction of a particular document; see 45 B. 1260 in which 18 B. 525 is considered. Apparently no distinction can be made. 2 P. 771. A Court, before whom a cause is brought has always jurisdiction to decide for itself whether it has jurisdiction to try the suit and its decision thereon is as much res judicata in a subsequent suit relating to the same subject-matter as on any other point. 39 P.L.R. 117=1937 L. 649. See also 1937 A. 251; 1937 O. 322. Under certain circumstances a decision on an issue which mainly depends on an interpretation of law should be open to reconsideration on the question of law in a subsequent suit between the same parties. The question whether the cause of action is the same or different makes no difference in considering whether the previous decision on a point of law operates as res judicata or not. A reconsideration should be permissible in cases for instance where the law on the subject itself is changed by statute or what is almost equivalent to it, the authoritative interpretation of the section concerned as given by the binding rulings of the highest tribunal is changed. The question whether a plaintiff was entitled to sue alone or not is a mixed question of law and fact and a decision in respect of it must operate as res judicata in a subsequent suit between the same parties, if there has been no change in the relevant statutory law or in its authoritative interpretation. 1940 R.D. 535=1940 A.W.R. (B.R.) 256.

CHANGE IN LAW WHETHER AFFECTS res judicata.—A change in the law or a different interpretation of it by the appellate Court cannot operate to reopen matters which had previously become res judicata. 21 M. 18; 56 C. 728 (F.B.). See also 26 M. 104. But see 65 M.L.J. 305=1933 M. 745 (Decision on procedure). Similarly what is not res judicata, at the time a suit is filed cannot have that effect by the change in the law. 85 I.C. 574=1925 M. 1107.

DECISION ON QUESTIONS OF LAW.—An erroneous decision on a point of law may be res judicata. 24 A. 138; 29 M. 225; 28 C. 318; 19 I.C. 244; 21 I.C. 979=19 C.L.J. 34; 15 I.C. 911=15 C.L.J. 684; 45 I.C. 252; 39 C. 848; 9 N.L.J. 183=96 I.C. 963=1926 N. 476; 46 B. 1260; 28 Bom.L.R. 876=1925 B. 481; 99 I.C. 528=1927 A. 206. But see 5 O.W.N. 50. The correctness or otherwise of a judicial decision has no bearing upon the question whether it does or does not operate as res judicata. A party taking the plea of res judicata has to show that the matter directly and substantially in issue has also been directly and substantially in issue in a previous suit and has been heard and decided. The principle of res judicata is not to be ignored merely on the ground that the reasoning whether in law or otherwise of the previous decision can be attacked on a particular point. It is not correct to say that a previous decision on a ques-

Where in a prior suit for rent, the defendants did not contend that the suit must be dismissed as the plaintiff had failed to comply with S. 194 of the Agra Tenancy Act, they are not debarred from raising the plea in the subsequent suit. 49 A. 918. The existence of a custom is a question of fact and an erroneous decision on the point operates as res judicata even though the subsequent suit relates to different properties. 47 I.C. 373. See also 94 I.C. 463=1926 A. 410; 119 I.C. 768=1929 L. 769 (1). But see 22 I.C. 138. As to question whether a custom is or is not opposed to public policy, see 144 I.C. 669=1933 L. 606. A decision may be wrong and a decision may be on a pure point of law, but if the matter has been put into issue, then the decision will bind the parties and their privies in a representative suit. Where a suit as framed under Mahomedan law is barred by O. 22, R. 9 (1), the question whether the subsequent suit, which is based on customary law is barred, cannot be held to be res judicata by reason of the previous decision, whether that decision was right or wrong and whether it was on a pure point of law or on a mixed question of fact and law; for, in those circumstances, the question of customary law was neither heard nor decided and therefore there could not be any res judicata in the matter. 1941 L. 169. An issue of mixed law and fact stands on the same footing as an issue of fact for purposes of res judicata. 28 C. 318; 65 M.L.J. 684=1933 M. 925; 87 I.C. 811=1926 C. 80; 29 M. 225; 92 I.C. 769=1926 L. 251; 56 C. 728 (F.B.); 1932 P. 337 (construction of document); 14 L. 31=1933 L. 274 (question whether a document was an award or not); 14 L. 409=1933 L. 594 (question of executability of a decree). As to decision on a question of procedure, see 65 M.L.J. 305=145 I.C. 397=1933 M. 745. A decision of Court that it has no jurisdiction to deal with the case without deciding anything regarding the rights of the parties, is not res judicata. 73 C.L.J. 410. Section does not apply where the decree is a nullity for want of jurisdiction. 1935 N. 28. The rule that res judicata does not apply to a question of law has no force in the case of consent decree. 35 M. 75=21 M.L.J. 709. Decision based on an admission made by a legal practitioner on an erroneous conception of law is not res judicata. 6 R. 691.

RES JUDICATA IN SUITS FOR REDEMPTION.—If a decree in a redemption suit does not extinguish the right to redeem, it does not operate as res judicata against a subsequent suit for redemption. 56 A. 561=61 I.A. 362=1934 P.C. 205=67 M.L.J. 813 (P.C.). The right of redemption could not be extinguished by the preliminary decree but only by a final decree. 75 I.C. 919=1923 L. 680; 18 I.C. 326 (All.); 24 A. 44. See also 44 A. 730; 1937 M.W.N. 759=1937 M. 213; 69 I.C. 167; 48 A. 17; 27 A.L.J. 761; 32 A. 215; 43 B. 334 (F.B.); 25 Bom.L.R. 211; 47 B. 692; 5 L. 371. As to cases in which the right of redemption was held to have been extinguished under the previous decree, see 46 B. 348; 39 M. 896=30 M.L.J. 13 following 25 M. 300 and 31 M. 354; 49 M. 691=50 M.L.J. 612; 18 C. 139; 85 I.C. 480=1925 A. 484. In the case of decree for sale obtained by a mortgagee who does not take further proceedings and bring the property to sale, the mortgagor can file a fresh suit for redemption though he fails to redeem under the original decree. 39 B. 41; 1930 B. 401. But in 39 M. 896=30 M.L.J. 13, it was held that whether the decree be in a suit for foreclosure or in a suit for sale or in a suit for redemption, there is in each case a conditional decree for redemption in favour of the mortgagor and a subsequent suit for redemption is barred. See also 49 M. 691=50 M.L.J. 612 reversing the decision cited in 1925 M. 1191. Where a decree provided payment of the mortgage-money in instalments, in default of which the mortgagee was to remain in possession and also reserved the right to redeem a subsequent suit to redeem not barred. 45 B. 1335. APPLICATION OF THE PRINCIPLE TO EXECUTION PROCEEDINGS.—The principle of res judicata applies to proceedings in execution of a decree. 31 C. 22; 24 A. 138; 2 P. 772; 11 I.A. 181 (P.C.); 47 C. 446; 92 I.C. 254=1925 L. 640; 1926 N. 476; 102 I.C. 94=1926 O. 216; (1940) 1 M.L.J. 143=1940 M. 59; 43 C.W.N. 940; 5 Cut.L.T. 39; 1939 P. 19; 1938 P. 427; 1937 L. 772; (1937) 1 M.L.J. 296; 1937 A. 446; 1938 N. 273; 38 P.W.N. 776; 1939 M.W.N. 1145=50 L.W. 677; 100 I.C. 23=9 L.L.J. 173; 99 I.C. 1006=1927 L. 179; 1929 R. 182; 51 A. 346; 110 I.C. 337; 1930 O. 65=5 Luck. 456; 1930 O. 305; 123 I.C. 881; 10 P. 607; 33 Bom.L.R. 781; ibid., 797; 36 C.W.N. 367; 15 L. 869=1934 L. 316;

NOTES.

1934 R. 231; 64 M.L.J. 629=1933 M. 466; 1935 L. 949. It is not every order passed in execution, but only certain description of orders that have operation as res judicata, 17 C. 57. Apart from the general principle of res judicata, the special rules laid down in explanations to S. 11 ought not to be applied to execution cases. 3 P.L.T. 403=67 I.C. 656=1922 P. 289; 37 A. 589; 24 M. 681; 70 I.C. 530=1923 R. 119 (2). See also 64 M.L.J. 629; 1933 N. 287. If there is a previous order of the Court operating as res judicata which holds that the application under consideration was not made in accordance with law, then clearly that matter cannot be re-agitated at a subsequent stage of the execution. But before an order can operate as res judicata, it must clearly decide that the application in question was not in accordance with law. If it merely rejects or dismisses the application on some other ground then there is no decision on the merits and when there is no decision on the merits, there is of course no res judicata. If it is ambiguous, whether an order is on merits, then the ambiguity must be construed in favour of the person against whom the order is made. 1941 N. 152. Finding on an unnecessary point in previous execution application will not bar the same being questioned in subsequent application. 39 P.L.R. 189. Expl. 4, should not be extended to execution proceedings and the order made in execution proceedings would not be res judicata unless the point raised in subsequent proceedings was actually raised in former proceedings and decided. 1933 N. 287. See also 1937 L. 211; 144 I.C. 365=1933 M. 595. See also 43 C.W.N. 940. Either expressly or impliedly and on the merits. 1937 L. 211. Principles of constructive res judicata apply in execution proceedings. If a man with eyes open undertakes not to raise any objection of any kind to a certain position on the score of which he has secured a substantial advantage, he should not be allowed to reprobate it in the course of the same proceedings and to re-agitate the matter. 186 I.C. 881=1940 L. 7. See also 43 C.W.N. 374. The rule of constructive res judicata applies to execution proceedings. The circumstances that the omission to take the objection was not in a previous application for execution but only at an earlier stage of the same execution application makes no difference. 42 P.L.R. 189=1940 L. 161. The doctrine of constructive res judicata is applicable to execution proceedings to this extent, that where a judgment-debtor fails to raise all his objections to the application in execution made by the decree-holder which he might and ought to have raised and the application is ordered to proceed, all such objections will be deemed to have been impliedly decided against him and he will be precluded from raising the same objections in a later execution of the same decree. 188 I.C. 672=1940 Pat. 251; See also 52 L.W. 416=(1940) 2 M.L.J. 487; 42 P.L.R. 404=1940 L. 394; 42 P.L.R. 374. In the course of the same execution proceedings a different objection can be raised at a different stage thereof. 186 I.C. 653=1940 L. 27. Where execution application is dismissed as not maintainable in the form in which it was brought, and the liability of the judgment debtor, was not considered, it was not res judicata as regards the liability of the judgment-debtor. 1937 C. 226; see also 44 C.W.N. 749. But it would be otherwise if the liability had been considered and decided. (Ibid.) A decision in one stage of an application is not res judicata in another stage of the same application. 40 M. 1016. As to the extent to which the rule applies to successive applications in execution, see 45 A. 735; 95 I.C. 31; 3 O.W.N. 241=1926 O. 291 and cases referred to therein; 1926 P. 478; 1926 N. 164; 48 A. 245; 48 A. 201; 1926 M. 177; 44 C.W.N. 749; 7 P.L.T. 353=1924 P. 628; 1926 M.W.N. 33=1926 M. 177; 1926 N. 164; 33 Bom.L.R. 797; 36 C.W.N. 367. An order ultra vires does not operate as res judicata. 4 P. 440=1925 P. 807. A decision in a previous application to execute a maintenance decree to the effect that the application is barred is no bar to a subsequent application to recover maintenance for a different period. 18 M. 482; 30 M. 504; 46 B. 467 (limitation); 34 A. 518 (where the order was made ex parte). But see 6 B. 54; 9 C. 65. When the decision on the prior application was one on a question of procedure as it then stood, it does not operate as res judicata when that procedure itself is changed by the statute law. 39 M. 923=30 M.L.J. 460. The decision as to whether the execution of a decree is time-barred or not, though erroneous, will operate as res judicata in a subsequent application for execution. 24 A. 282; 24 M. 669. See also 42 P.L.R. 404=1940 L. 394; 1939 P. 230; 1937 C. 581; 1927 O. 216; 102 I.C. 94; 1 Luck. 171. But it has been held that an order that a particular application for the recovery of mesne profits awarded by a decree is not barred by the 12 years' rule under S. 48, C. P. Code, is no bar to a plea by the judgment-debtor that a subsequent application for the same purpose is barred by that rule. 53 M.L.J. 440. Where a plea of limitation was raised by the judgment-debtor in a previous stage of an execution application, but was rejected, the same plea could not be raised again in a subsequent stage of the execution proceedings. 48 I.A. 45=40 M.L.J. 197 (P.C.); 191 I.C. 612. The judgment-debtor would be precluded from raising the contention, though the decision is arrived at ex parte, after notice to the judgment-debtor. 66 I.C. 751; 1927 M. 813; 45 B. 453; 44 B. 227; 1927 M. 149; 113 I.C. 92; 10 P. 607; 159 I.C. 641=1935 L. 844. But where attachment order was made ex parte, and there was no personal service nor declaration by Court that there was sufficient service of notice, the question of limitation can be raised in respect of a later execution petition. 1937 M. 84. In some extreme cases even when there is declaration as to sufficiency of service made by Court, judgment-debtor may be permitted to raise question of limitation 58 A. 313=1936 A. 21 (F.B.). Where the Court after examining the decree-holder and holding that the application for execution was in time ordered notice to the defendant and the latter though served did not appear, but the decree-holder also being absent and not taking steps the execution was dismissed, the judgment-debtor can in a subsequent application for execution raise the plea that the prior application was beyond the period of limitation, as there was no decision on the question of limitation in the prior execution case. 38 C.W.N. 1144-40 C.W.N. 510. But where the judgment debtor appeared and allowed an order of attachment to become final, he could not subsequently contend that the decree was barred by time. 151 I.C. 1015=30 C.W.N. 163=1934 C. 465. The ex parte order need not be written in extenso covering all objections raisable by judgment-debtor. The subsequent dismissal of execution petition for non-prosecution or other cause does not affect the bar of res judicata. 1928 M. 1052. Where notice is not served the rule has no application. 30 Bom.L.R. 38; 1929 L. 334; 36 Bom.L.R. 115=150 I.C. 866=1934 B. 113; 146 I.C. 317=1933 N. 844. But want of notice to the judgment-debtors will not make the dismissal of the execution petition put in by the judgment-creditor any the less res judicata against the latter. 145 I.C. 397=1933 M. 745=65 M.L.J. 305. Even in an application for transfer of a decree, it is open to the judgment-debtor to plead limitation and he ought to do so. 47 M. 641=47 M.L.J. 4. But see 131 I.C. 702=157 I.C. 971=1935 P. 485. If a judgment-debtor after receiving notice to show cause why the decree should not be transferred to another Court for execution does not raise all his objections to execution such as limitation, discharge, etc., it will not be open to him to raise such pleas in a later execution petition on the ground of constructive res judicata. 1929 M. 199. See also 92 I.C. 47=1926 N. 200; 1 Luck. 171; 1928 M.W.N. 152. But not where no notice on judgment-debtor was personally served and no declaration of due service was made by the Court. 44 L.W. 460=1936 M. 812=71 M.L.J. 317. An order for execution made after notice to the judgment-debtor who does not appear and offer any objection precludes him from raising the plea of limitation in subsequent proceedings even though the application on which the order is made does not fructify and is eventually struck off or dismissed. But the sons of the judgment-debtor who are proceeded against in execution under the doctrine of pious obligation of a Hindu son to pay his father's debts, are not precluded from pleading limitation as a bar to execution. 53 L.W. 181=(1941) 1 M.L.J. 270. A question of the liability of a judgment-debtor may be treated as res judicata in subsequent proceedings in execution of the same decree when it has been dealt with and disposed of at an earlier stage of those proceedings even by a necessary implication. 35 P.L.R. 692=1934 L. 637 (2). The non-appearance in a petition to transfer a decree with which defendant 4 had no connexion cannot create any constructive res judicata that the property of the testator in the hands of that defendant was liable to be proceeded against in execution. 144 I.C. 30=1933 M. 508. It cannot be said that the principle of constructive res judicata has no application to execution proceedings. Where the effect of the prior decision is that the application for execution is held as maintainable it has the effect of deciding that the person at whose instance the application is held maintainable has a right to maintain it. 151 I.C. 913 (2)=38 C.W.N. 141=1934 C. 472. See also 1933 L. 3=144 I.C. 259 (Objection as to the power of an agent to file execution not raised in previous application). But the principle is not applicable to application for restitution or to application for execution of portion of a decree. 38 P.L.R. 723=1936 L. 246. An order in execution to the effect that the decree is not executable is res judicata in subsequent execution proceedings. 4 P.L.J. 330=47 I.C. 154. An objection that a decree could not be executed not raised at the first execution application, could not be raised in a subsequent stage. 44 A. 350; 4 Pat.L.J. 213; 80 I.C. 905. See also 31 C. 22; 99 I.C. 870; 1934 Pesh. 64=151 I.C. 235; 38 P.L.R. 580; 22 Pat. L. T. 809; 160 I.C. 448=1936 Pesh. 9. The principles of res judicata as laid down in S. 11, C. P. Code, constructively apply to execution proceedings. Where on the judgment-debtor failing to avail himself of an opportunity allowed to show cause why he is not liable to be arrested, an ex parte decision adverse to him is given by the executing Court, the matter of the liability of arrest is "heard and finally decided" within the meaning of S. 11, and a subsequent objection by the judgment-debtor is barred. 42 P.L.R. 374. But where notice of execution petition was affixed on the outer door of the defendant's house when he was absent and there was no declaration by Court that the notice was duly served, it was not due service for the purpose of constructive res judicata and the defendant can in subsequent proceedings show that the application was out of time. 142 I.C. 765=64 M.L.J. 637=1933 M. 406. See also 64 M.L.J. 629=1933 M. 466; 1937 M. 84. A decision as to limitation in an execution application filed by the attaching creditor is not res judicata in a subsequent execution proceedings between the decree-holder and the judgment-debtor. 143 I.C. 542=1933 P. 210. The fact that the subsequent application for execution relates to different items of property does not take the case out of the rule. 45 M.L.J. 71. Judgment-debtor not objecting to addition as supplemental judgment-debtor of purchaser of equity of redemption during pendency of execution of mortgage decree is precluded from objecting later on that the purchase was only benami for the decree-holder. 1929 M. 404. But an omission to raise the objection to a wrong claim in execution, is not res judicata in a later execution application. 44 A. 159; 1933 A. 922. But see 1934 C. 472 cited supra. Failure to raise a plea of payment or to dispute correctness of amount claimed in execution, will not bar judgment-debtor from raising the same at a later stage or in subsequent proceedings. 45 L.W. 291=(1937) 1 N.L.J. 296. Finding as to the value of property in an application to set aside execution sale is not binding on auction purchaser at a subsequent sale. 105 I.C. 153. Where a judgment-debtor omits to raise the objection that an application in execution is not made to the proper Court having jurisdiction, he is not precluded from contending that subsequent applications of which he has had no notice, are also not made to the proper Court. 42 L.W. 856=1935 M. 935=69 M.L.J. 466. See also (1941) 2 M.L.J. 792. The principle of constructive res judicata should not be applied to execution proceedings unless the decision of the question subsequently sought to be agitated was given expressly or by necessary implication or must be deemed to have been implied in the previous decision. 40 M. 780. See also 144 I.C. 365=1933 M. 595. Even if a point is decided by necessary implication, it operates as res judicata in subsequent proceedings in the course of the same execution. Where a declaratory decree for maintenance was executed from time to time, without protest by the judgment-debtor, he cannot be allowed subsequently to object on the ground that the decree, being merely declaratory, was not executable. 14 L. 409=141 I.C. 577=1933 L. 594. See contra 157 I.C. 865=1935 Pesh. 119. A judgment-debtor who does not object to the validity of an execution application as being not in accordance with law, is not precluded from raising the objection afterwards on discovery of the defect on the principle of constructive res judicata. There is no duty cast on the judgment-debtor, nor upon any party to the proceeding to ascertain by an examination of the records, or otherwise, whether the application is in proper form. It is the duty of the Court to see that it is made according to law. The judgment-debtor is entitled to assume that the Court has done its duty. 1937 M.W.N. 355=1937 M. 760. The question whether the decree is declaratory in nature and cannot be executed cannot be governed by the principle of res judicata as it involves a question of jurisdiction. 169 I.C. 942=1937 Pesh. 62. It was held by (F.B.) that (1) Where there has been an express adjudication by the Court in the presence of parties, then the question must be considered to have been finally decided, no matter whether it is raised again at a subsequent stage of the same proceeding, or in a subsequent execution proceeding. (2) Where an objection is taken but is dismissed or struck off, even though not on the merits, and the application for execution becomes fructuous, the judgment-debtor is debarred from raising the question of the invalidity of that application. (3) Where an objection to execution is taken, but it is not dismissed on the merits or is dismissed for default and the application for execution does not become fructuous, the judgment-debtor is not debarred from subsequently raising the question that that application was not within limitation. (4) Where no objection to the execution is taken but the application becomes partly or wholly fructuous and such fructification necessarily involves, the assumption that the application was made within limitation, then after such fructification the judgment-debtor is debarred by the principle of res judicata from raising the question that that application was not within limitation. (5) Where no objection is taken but the application for execution does not fructify, the judgment-debtor is not debarred by the principle of res judicata from raising the question of limitation later. Per Sulaiman, C.J. in 58 A. 313=1936 A. 21 (F.B.). See also 41 C.W.N. 887; 1937 L. 21; 68 C.L.J. 105; 1938 Pesh. 77; 1938 A. 89; Where the judgment-debtor in answer to a notice of sale proclamation objects to the proposed sale of a particular item of property on the ground that the property is not included in the decree under execution, but fails to substantiate his objection, he cannot afterwards raise the same plea in another stage of the execution, although no sale was held under the prior proclamation and a fresh proclamation is taken out for a sale. The matter in issue, being res judicata, cannot be re-agitated. (1941) 2 M.L.J. 792. See also (1941) 1 M.L.J. 270. It is well established that the principle of constructive res judicata applies to execution proceedings. The failure of the judgment-debtor to object at the proper time to the proceedings for attachment and sale of his properties other than those mortgaged on the ground of the absence of a personal decree under O. 34, R. 6, C. P. Code, estops him from taking the objection at a later stage. 43 P.L.R. 60. Where no objection is taken, but the application for execution does not fructify being dismissed for default, the judgment-debtor is not debarred by the principle of res judicata from raising the objection in a later application. 1939 Rang.L.R. 152=1939 R. 245. See also 1939 R. 296. S. 11, Expl. IV does not extend to execution proceedings. An issue not raised in a claim proceeding can be subsequently raised in an application under O. 21, R. 50 (2). 44 A. 130. See also 90 I.C. 276; 1925 P. 588. But see 15 L. 869=1935 L. 200; 1936 L. 167., holding that the principle of constructive res judicata as embodied in Expl. IV applies to execution proceedings. While raising his objections in answer to a notice under O. 21, r. 12, the judgment-debtor is not bound to raise all other points than the maintainability of execution application. The dismissal of that objection does not operate as res judicata so as to preclude a subsequent objection by him as to the mode of execution. 146 I.C. 1024=1933 L. 826. See also 41 P.L.R. 821 (objection under O. 21, R. 58); 1939 R. 384 (Order under O. 21, R. 48). See also 1928 M. 203; 70 C.L.J. 11 (Order under O. 21, R. 100, C. P. Code; 44 C.W.N. 251=1940 C. 16. An objection of a judgment-debtor in execution proceedings which is dismissed for default does not operate as res judicata against the judgment-debtor to prevent him from making the same objection again. 1935 A.L.J. 403=1935 A. 502; 1935 A.L.J. 278=1935 A. 238. But see 1935 C. 816. Nor where the original decree-holder had ceased to prosecute his application and the assignees did not present a fresh execution application under O. 21, R. 16. 1935 L. 966. Where after the execution application has been registered a notice is issued to the judgment-debtor under O. 21, R. 22, but he is absent and fails to object to the execution on the ground of limitation, and the execution petition itself is dismissed for default, the judgment-debtor is not barred by constructive res judicata from raising the question of limitation in a subsequent application. 159 I.C. 637=39 C.W.N. 1206=1935 C. 664. See also 1939 L. 540 : (1939) 2 M.L.J. 782=1940 M. 54 ; an order of attachment before judgment maintained in spite of objections does not act as res judicata in execution proceedings as to attachability of property attached. 150 I.C. 213=1934 L. 153. See also 1939 A. 202 ; 1939 A.M.L.J. 51. Omission by judgment-debtor to object to the execution being taken out for an excessive amount does not bar the same objection in later petitions. 1929 M. 903. See also 1929 R. 172 ; 143 I.C. 783=1933 N. 182. But a decree-holder having recovered by execution from judgment-debtor the amount stated in his execution petition as being due under the decree is precluded from putting fresh execution petition for further sums as being due under decree. 119 I.C. 223 (2)=1929 R. 182. But an erroneous order recording adjustment passed without notice to parties does not bar a subsequent application for recovery of a larger sum as due. 142 I.C. 579=1933 S. 112. See also 1939 P.W.N. 716. A plea that an application for setting aside an execution sale is barred cannot be set up by the auction-purchaser at a late stage of the proceeding. 48 B. 638. Where no finding is given by a Court on an issue as to the jurisdiction of a Court to pass certain order which forms the basis of the execution proceedings, the question of the application of the doctrine of res judicata cannot arise in such a case. 159 I.C. 739=1935 N. 250 (F.B.). Where an objection petition in an execution proceeding is dismissed for non-prosecution, there is no adjudication on the merits and it cannot be res judicata. 67 I.C. 663=1923 C. 287. Also dismissal for default of an execution application. 1929 B. 217 ; 160 I.C. 835=44 L.W. 565=71 M.L.J. 490. But see 144 I.C. 488=1933 L. 697, where the controversy was between the legal representatives of the decree-holder and an alleged assignee of a portion of the decree regarding the right to execute the decree and where the previous application by the legal representatives was dismissed for default of appearance. See also 163 I.C. 38=1936 P. 616. An order passed by the Court ex parte after notice duly served, binds the defendant on general principle of res judicata as much as a contested order. 37 M. 462=26 M.L.J. 189 ; 26 M.L.J. 83. But see 1935 A.L.J. 642=155 I.C. 673=1935 A. 727. An order overruling the objections raised by one judgment-debtor whose property is sought to be sold in execution does not operate as res judicata so as to preclude the other judgment-debtors from raising a similar objection in a subsequent execution application as against their property. 1939 Pat. 41=1938 P.W.N. 710. An order overruling the objections raised by one judgment-debtor whose property is sought to be sold in execution does not operate as res judicata so as to preclude the other judgment-debtors from raising a similar objection in a subsequent execution application as against their property. 1938 P.W.N. 710. A decision by the Executing Court that a certain house belonging to the judgment-debtor is exempt from attachment under S. 60 (1) proviso Cl. (c), C. P. Code, operates as res judicata in a subsequent application by the decree holder for the attachment of that house in the hands of the legal representatives of the deceased judgment-debtor. 40 P.L.R. 409=1938 Lah. 608. Omission to object to assignment of decree by judgment-debtor after due notice and recognition of assignment by Court bars judgment-debtor from questioning assignment at later stage. 1937 C. 4=40 C.W.N. 1393. Even where judgment-debtor objects and Court proceeds with execution with intervening assignee substituted as decree-holder, the assignment, by implication, operates as res judicata. 1935 R. 174. The dismissal of an execution petition bars a fresh execution petition for a different relief if based on the same question of fact. 122 I.C. 579=1929 M. 404. As to effect of dismissal of an application for delivery after an order for delivery had been passed once, see 65 M.L.J. 305=145 I.C. 397=1933 M. 745. The issue of notice to legal representatives of deceased judgment-debtor under O. 21, R. 22 does not involve the question whether a particular property belongs or not to the deceased judgment-debtor and that question is not barred by res judicata in later proceedings. 1928 M. 746=114 I.C. 545 ; 60 M.L.J. 628=1931 M. 303. Where an application is made in a pending execution to bring on record a person as the legal representative of the judgment-debtor and such person's objection for his being impleaded is dismissed, he can subsequently raise the plea that the execution is barred by limitation as he is not bound to take this objection when he was sought to be impleaded. 150 I.C. 947=11 O.W.N. 814=1934 O. 289. Where an objection to sale on the ground that the land was service inam and was not liable to be sold was dismissed, the same objection cannot be raised in subsequent execution proceedings against some other items of the same survey number, even though a decision of the Collector, was obtained in the meantime under the Madras Hereditary Village Officers Act that the land was service inam land. 140 I.C. 779=1933 M. 130 ; 1938 N.L.J. 171 (Proceedings in respect of appointment of village Patel). Order in execution proceeding regarding nature of land to be sold is not final and cannot operate as res judicata to a later suit. 7 O.W.N. 1162=1931 O. 62. Where however judgment-debtor with full knowledge allows settlement of proclamation, and the sale, he cannot afterwards impeach the sale on the ground that the mortgagee has caused to be sold in execution proceedings properties which were not comprised in the suit mortgage and which could not therefore be lawfully sold. 40 C.W.N. 428 ; 41 P.L.R. 524=1939 L. 556 (Sameness of subject-matter not necessary.) See also 1938 R.D. 883. An order allowing claim to rateable distribution becomes final when not appealed against or set aside otherwise, and principles of res judicata would apply to it. 1936 L. 891. The principle of res judicata must be applied wherever it is relevant, and a decision between the parties in execution proceedings operates as res judicata in a subsequent suit between them. 158 I.C. 1059=37 Bom.L.R. 123=1935 B. 174. judgment-debtor's omission to oppose the substitution of the assignee of a decree in place of the original decree-holder does not preclude the judgment-debtor from questioning the rights of such assignee to proceed to execution of the decree by reason of any bar imposed by law. 1939 R. 245=1939 Rang.L.R. 152; 60 C. 1181.

NOTES.

APPLICATION OF PRINCIPLE TO OTHER MISCELLANEOUS PROCEEDINGS.—Dismissal of an application to set aside an ex parte decree (not a suit within the meaning of the section) on the ground of non-service of summons would bar a subsequent suit to set aside the decree on the same ground. 1 R. 500; 14 P. 439; 16 Pat.L.T. 647=1935 P. 458. Where an application for setting aside an ex parte decree is withdrawn as being defective in certain formalities, a second application for the same purpose is not barred by res judicata by reason of the prior application having been dismissed. 152 I.C. 974=11 O.W.N. 1639=1935 O. 35. Where an application to amend a decree has once been refused on the merits, the decision is conclusive between the parties, and no further applications would lie. 27 I.C. 300; 39 C. 265. See also 107 I.C. 390=1928 L. 244. It has however been held that a suit lies. 40 C. 541. Where in a proceeding under O. 22, R. 5, a certain person is (or is not) held to be the legal representative of a deceased party the same question can be reagitated in a separate suit and is not barred by the rule of res judicata. 1924 L. 465; 1939 L. 580=186 I.C. 145; 43 P.L.R. 16; 1939 L. 580; 1937 O.W.N. 782; 1936 A.L.J. 622=163 I.C. 283=1936 A. 412 (28 A. 109, Foll. and 24 A.L.J. 546, Diss.). See also 1939 N.L.J. 577=1940 N. 99. A construction placed on particulars of decree by the trial Court is not res judicata in execution of the decree of appellate Court which confirmed the decree of the trial Court but did not discuss or refer to the meaning of those words. 14 L. 591=142 I.C. 408=1933 L. 352. Where an application under S. 151, to set aside a compromise decree was summarily dismissed on the ground that such relief could not be given under S. 151, a suit for setting aside the decree on the ground of fraud is not barred. So also the rejection of an application for review. 1930 O. 112; 5 P. 276. A question at issue between the parties once heard and finally decided, binds the parties at subsequent stages of the same suit, under general principles of law, though not under S. 11. 48 C. 499=40 M.L.J. 423; 94 I.C. 313=1926 O. 420; 122 I.C. 724; 1930 P. 260; 1930 O. 378 (F.B.). Dismissal of a petition owing to failure of petitioner to produce evidence in support of the facts alleged in the petition is a dismissal on the merits and so is binding on the Court as well as the parties. 1929 M. 404. Rejection of application for a rule does not bar Court from granting a rule on a subsequent occasion in interest of justice. 161 I.C. 26=1936 P. 119. A dismissal of an application, on the ground that it was not accompanied with a vakalatnama does not operate as res judicata in a subsequent application in respect of the same subject-matter. 152 I.C. 110=11 O.W.N. 1373=1934 O. 491. See also 152 I.C. 974 (Application withdrawn as defective

The Income-tax Officer is not a Court, and therefore the doctrine has no application. His assessments are, however, final unless they can be re-opened under some provision of the Income-tax Act. I.L.R. 1938 M. 183=1938 M. 148=(1938) 1 M.L.J. 130 (S.B.). Question of title to property decided by Civil Court cannot be raised again under S. 4, Provincial Insolvency Act. 38 P. Where an application under S. 22 of the Insolvency Act is dismissed on the merits, the same issue cannot be once again raised in the ordinary Civil Courts. 39 A. 626; 41 A. 378; 63 M.L.J. 778 (under Ss. 4 and 54 of the Provincial Insolvency Act). 39 A. 626; 41 A. 378; 1933 N. 373. Insolvency proceedings are not suits within the meaning of S. 11. Where in an application in insolvency the Court decided that certain persons were not partners a subsequent suit for determining that those persons were partners, is not barred by res judicata. 37 C.W.N. 390=1933 C. 673. See also 190 I.C. 537=1940 C. 225. A finding of the Insolvency Court that a certain person is not a partner of the insolvent firm does not operate as res judicata against a creditor of that firm, when the decision was neither sought for nor opposed by him or by any one under whom he claims. The fact that the decision is binding upon the Official Assignee does not make it binding upon each and every creditor. The Official Assignee does not represent the creditors for all purposes in insolvency proceedings. In many respects his interest and that of a creditor may be in conflict. 1940 C. 225. But wherein a proceeding between Official Assignee and third person it was found by insolvency Court that a certain firm was a branch of the insolvent firm, and the decision was necessary for the question before it and was upheld by High Court on appeal, it was held that the decision operated as res judicata between the parties. 14 R. 652. But in a petition for adjudication, questions as to title to property as between the debtor and others cannot *propert*y arise for determination, and a decision at that stage cannot be regarded as a final determination. 156 I.C. 537=42 L.W. 7=1935 M. 634. As to partition proceedings in revenue Courts, see 130 I.C. 382. Where a revenue suit is instituted for ejecting the tenants and this is the only jurisdiction exclusively vested in the Revenue Courts, that Court cannot determine the question of title in that case and its decision therefore cannot operate so as to prevent the Civil Courts from entertaining the subsequent suit, which involves the question of title. 1935 L. 739. The decision in qabiz ghair qabiz proceedings cannot operate as res judicata, when the parties are not present and no issues are struck. 1936 R.D. 44. An order by the Assistant Record Officer passed in the course of revision of records declaring a particular person as an occupancy tenant, does not operate as res judicata in a subsequent suit to eject that person as a non-occupancy tenant. 1935 R.D. 407. In proceedings for demarcation of areas and fixing rent in the course of mutation, defendant claimed exproprietary rights, but they were disallowed. Subsequently when the landholder sued to eject him, held, that the disallowance of his claim in prior mutation proceedings did not operate as res judicata but that it was a distinctively relevant fact. 18 R.D. 580=15 L.R. 681 (Rev.). Where application for mutation has been dismissed, fresh application under S. 34, U. P. Land Revenue Act, on same grounds and in respect of same succession or transfer is not maintainable. 18 R.D. 711 (1)=16 L.R. 104 (Rev.). The decision on a question of title, in proceedings under the Land Acquisition Act, to apportion compensation payable, does not operate as res judicata. 20 M. 269. An order in a claim case, on the validity of a wakf is not res judicata in a suit between the same parties, in which the property in dispute is not the same as that in the claim case though both were included in the wakf. 44 C. 698=37 I.C. 887. A decision in a previous proceeding for letters of administration, negating the claim of A as heir of the deceased, arrived at after hearing full evidence, bars a subsequent suit by A for declaration that she is the heir of the deceased. 1 R. 258; 36 C.W.N. 583=164 I.C. 743=1936 R. 401. The finding of a Court under the Succession Act with regard to the genuineness or otherwise of a will is conclusive and operates as res judicata against the parties affected. Pesh. 39. See also (1937) 1 C. 400 (decision on construction of will). An order passed after contest in a probate proceeding is res judicata in any subsequent proceeding of any sort against the caveators who contested it as also those who had an opportunity of putting forward their objection. 46 M.L.J. 383. See also 57 I.A. 24=58 M.L.J. 171 (P.C.); 36 C.W.N. 583=1932 C. 634. But an order passed on compromise in such proceeding cannot operate as a bar to an application for probate of the same will. 51 C. 745. An order dismissing the application of a party to revoke the grant of probate is conclusive and operates as res judicata in subsequent proceedings. The unsuccessful party cannot therefore re-agitate the matter by entering caveat in a subsequent application for a fresh grant. The fact that the grant had been revoked in the meanwhile at the instance of another person does not remove the bar. The revocation of a grant is not a revocation for all persons, and the parties who have once unsuccessfully attempted to get it revoked cannot come in again., 39 C.W.N. 1071. A decision given in a case under S. 37 of the Agra Tenancy Act that certain land is ancestral land bars a subsequent suit by the defeated party for declaration that the land was separately acquired by his branch. 14 L.R. 141 (Rev.)=17 R.D. 239. See also 1936 R.D. 568; 1936 R.D. 457; 1937 R.D. 357. Proceedings taken under S. 77 of the Registration Act cannot operate as res judicata so as to bar a suit for specific performance. 54 A. 68. Word 'suit' in S. 11 includes also arbitration proceedings. 41 C.W.N. 193=I.L.R. (1937) 1 C. 193; 1937 L. 649. See also 42 P.L.R. 77 (effect of decree on award). 31 S.L.R. 55=1937 Sind 140; 1937 A. 289; 1937 N. 132. Objection raised before arbitration tribunal may also be res judicata in subsequent suit. 1932 L. 378; 1926 S. 42; 1928 S. 20; 1930 S. 195; 1936 L. 865. See also 21 P.L.T. 343 (Award under Co-operative Societies Act in respect of a debt due to it.) It is difficult to see why an award filed under the Arbitration Act should not have the same force with regard to the question of res judicata as a decree based on award under Sch. II, C. P. Code. 42 C.W.N. 367.

"FORMER SUIT."—For meaning of "suit," see 1930 P. 588; 13 P.L.T. 793. A decision in proceedings for dispaupering will not act as res judicata in the case when the issue is before the Court as an issue in the suit, as the proceedings for dispaupering is not a "former suit" within the meaning of S. 11. 149 I.C. 1004=1934 A. 323. An application to file an award under para. 20 of C. P. Code does not bar a subsequent suit for recovery of the properties covered by that award. 147 I.C. 684=1934 M. 68. The expression denotes a previously decided suit under Expl. I, and the same rule applies to appeals. 37 C.L.J. 184=74 I.C. 591; See also 1937 M.W.N. 299=1937 M. 544. 12 A. 678; 12 P. 139=141 I.C. 762=1933 P. 78; 32 A. 67; 8 P. 107. Judgments coming into existence during the pendency of proceedings by way of appeal or revision are not excluded from the operation of the rule of res judicata if such judgments are allowed to become final. 59 M. 777=43 L.W. 189=1936 M. 190=70 M.L.J. 223. Therefore if a suit is decided between the same parties by a Court establishing the title of one of them to the property in dispute and such decision has become final, the decision constitutes the question of title res judicata, even for the purpose of an appeal or revision, from a decree in another suit between the same parties in another Court, though the decision relied on as res judicata has been given only after the decision appealed against or sought to be revised. 70 M.L.J. 223=59 M. 777.

A finding based on evidence in appeal on a ground different from that given by the lower Court would operate as res judicata. 58 B. 544=36 Bom.L.R. 612=1934 B. 313. Where there were two suits in the primary Court, decided by a common judgment but concluded by separate decrees and an appeal is preferred only in the first suit, while none is preferred from the decree in the second suit, the decree made in the latter becomes final and operates as res judicata so as to bar the appeal. 37 C.L.J. 184=74 J.C. 591; 1924 P. 823; 74 I.C. 583. So also in two cross suits for damages involving the same issue and ending in two separate judgments, decreeing the one and dismissing the other. 34 C.L.J. 281=64 I.C. 574; 74 I.C. 583; 35 A. 187; 19 I.C. 76; 11 A.L.J. 214 (where one appeal abates by reason of the death of the appellant); 2 R. 623 (where appeal from one decree dismissed). But if there is nothing prejudicial to the appellant in the decree from which no appeal has been brought which is not raised and cannot be set right if the appeal which he has brought succeeds the right of appeal is not barred by res judicata. 45 A. 506 (F.B.); 87 I.C. 804=1925 A. 488.

"MATTER DIRECTLY AND SUBSTANTIALLY IN ISSUE."—The decision of an issue is res judicata only when the issue arises directly and not incidentally having regard to the subject-matter of the particular suit or proceeding. 14 P. 70=157 I.C. 433=1935 P. 306. See also 65 C.L.J. 90=1937 C. 237. The expression "matter in issue" is distinct from the subject-matter and the object of the suit as well as from the relief that may be asked for in it, and the cause of action on which it is based and the rule of res judicata requiring the identity of the matter in issue will apply even when the subject-matter, the object, the relief and the cause of action are different. 33 C.W.N. 876. See also 1933 O. 535; 37 Bom.L.R. 62=1935 B. 131; 1937 M. 709; 45 C.W.N. 854. S. 11, does not say that the entire subject matter of both the suits, should be identical. It deals with suits as well as with particular issues in the suits. If the particular issue raised in both the suits concerns the same parties then the bar provided in S. 11 would apply to that particular issue even though there may be other issues raised in the subsequent suit and other parties, involved in those issues. Accordingly, an issue raised and decided in a previous suit between the plaintiff and some of the defendants would operate as res judicata in the subsequent suit so far as those defendants are concerned, although that issue is raised with respect to the other defendants as well. 45 C.W.N. 420. An earlier decision that a particular Hindu family was not joint at a particular point of time, could not operate as res judicata in a later suit where the question is as to the jointness or otherwise of the same family, but at a point of time earlier than that to which the prior decision referred. 1941 A.W.R. (C.C.) 139=1941 O. W.N. 577. Before a matter can be said to operate as res judicata it is necessary, inter alia, to establish that the matter was directly and substantially in issue in the earlier suit, and that it was heard and finally disposed of by the Court in the earlier suit. It is, of course, not necessary that before a matter can be said to be res judicata, it should form the subject-matter of a definite issue. If the Court can gather from the materials before it namely, the pleadings, the judgment and the decree, that that matter was directly and substantially in issue, and formed the basis of the judgment arrived at in the earlier suit, either expressly or by necessary implication, then the principle of res judicata would apply. It is difficult to lay down a hard and fast rule as to what matters can be said to be arising directly and substantially. The Court can only look at the manner in which that particular matter is dealt with by the parties themselves, having regard to the course of the litigation, the conduct of the parties and the manner in which the Court itself has dealt with it. Where it is impossible to show for want of proper materials as to whether an issue was raised and heard and finally disposed of, or whether it formed the basis of the decree in the suit or that it was necessary for the Court to decide it, the plea of res judicata must fail. 40 Bom.L.R. 359=1938 B. 291. See also I.L.R. (1938) Nag. 496=1938 N. 401; 1938 O.W.N. 126=1938 O. 54; 17 P. 451=1938 P. 306 (S.B.); (1938) 2 M.L.J. 934. A matter constitutes a ground of defence only when it can be used for the purpose of resisting a claim. There must, therefore be a claim and a matter must be such as would defeat the claim either wholly or in part. A bare assertion in a plaint is not a claim. It becomes a claim when the plaintiff prays expressly or impliedly for the Court's decision upon it, or if the defendant treats it as such by denying it and inviting the Court's decision thereon. A.I.R. 1941 Cal. 574. The matter in dispute should have been put in issue and then decided. 62 M.L.J. 221=1932 P.C. 50=36 C.W.N. 365 (P.C.). See also 56 C.L.J. 369. It should have been put directly in issue. 60 C.L.J. 324=1935 C. 256. The word "directly" seems to be used in contradistinction to the words "incidentally" and "collaterally." The words "substantially" means "in effect though not in express terms." 25 C. 136; 1939 P. 519; 17 P. 180=1938 P. 444; 1937 C. 237; 45 L.W. 531=1937 M. 114 (Adverse finding on unnecessary issue); 39 P.L.R. 189. In a rent suit by a landlord against a tenant, there being no dispute as to the relationship of landlord and tenant, or as to the rate of rent or of the period in arrears, an issue as to whether the landlord has included in the suit all the plots of land covered by the jamas in question, is only an incidental or collateral issue. 62 C.L.J. 517=1936 C. 772. But the relationship of landlord and tenant is the very foundation of a decree in a suit for rent and therefore when such a suit has been decreed the Courts must proceed on the footing that it was a matter necessary to be determined and in fact determined in the earlier rent suit. 165 I.C. 623=17 P.L.T. 633=1936 P. 556. But where all issues framed in former suit were decided against plaintiff, yet eventually decision of suit was based on one issue only the bar of res judicata will not apply, as to other issues. 161 I.C. 63=1936 Pesh. 61. For a matter to be in issue under S. 11, it is not necessary that an express issue should be framed on it, but it is sufficient if a decision about it is necessary for the decree. 9 L.W. 84=52 I.C. 258; 53 C. 837=58 C.L.J. 196; 159 I.C. 45=1935 R. 118. The decision in a previous case on an issue which did not arise at all cannot operate as res judicata in any subsequent suit. 43 I.C. 754; 13 L. 524. Matter in issue in suit need not be in issue in appeal. 4 A.W.R. 1484=153 I.C. 497=1935 A. 268. A suit relating to a  $\frac{2}{3}$  share in property covered by a deed of gift is not barred by res judicata by reason of a previous litigation relating to  $\frac{1}{3}$  share retained by the donor, when the cause of action is distinctly different and the questions involved in the suit were not substantially and directly in issue in the previous suit. 1936 R.D. 275=1936 O.W.N. 582. Where the question whether a particular sale-deed was a valid document was directly and substantially in issue in the previous suit, the decision of the issue is res judicata though the property involved in the subsequent suit is different from the one which was the subject of the prior suit. 45 A. 515; 4 R. 8; 106 I.C. 861 (2)=1928 N. 112. See also (1939) 2 M.L.J. 292 (Application under S. 20-A Madras Estates Land Act). HEARD AND FINALLY DECIDED.—Where a question is already decided by a Judge, and the same Judge subsequently arrives at a contrary decision on the same question in the same proceeding, the reopening of the question is barred by res judicata. 17 P.L.T. 756=164 I.C. 282=1936 P. 447. Dismissal of suit filed under O. 21, R. 63 (which was really unnecessary as the attachment was withdrawn) on the ground that the matter came under S. 47, and without considering the merits, will not be res judicata. 160 I.C. 835=1936 Pesh. 41. A subsequent suit for the same relief and on the same cause of action and between the same parties as a former suit is barred, being affected by the prohibition contained in Ss. 11 and 47. 41 Bom.L.R. 497=1939 B. 261. In cases where a will is in question, no decree or decision in proceedings to which the executors are not parties can be binding on any question or can obliterate the will. 1936 C. 585.

Explanation V.—The legal effect of this explanation is that of treating the omission to grant the relief asked for in the plaint as equivalent to an express refusal and the claim thereto in a fresh suit as res judicata. 14 M. 328; 21 C. 265; 21 A. 425. Expl. V to S. 11, C. P. Code, can be invoked only in respect of any adjudication, made by the Court. The fact that the plaintiff who, in the first instance, asks for a decree against the joint family property so far as the interests of the minor sons therein are concerned, subsequently withdraws his claim as against them, can only bring the case under O. 23, R. 1, C. P. Code. The result of such a withdrawal is not to bring in the operation of the rule of res judicata embodied in S. 11 but only to entail the statutory penalty enacted in O. 23, R. 1, itself, viz., that no fresh suit can be instituted against those defendants on the same cause of action. 1937 M. 718. Relief claimed but not expressly granted—Decree in prior suit substantially in favour of plaintiffs but the findings being against them—Appeal not preferred—Effect in subsequent suit; see 38 M.L.J. 374; 1927 M.W.N. 116=101 I.C. 648. The granting of future mesne profits which the Court has a right to give or refuse is not such a relief. 15 M.L.J. 462; 32 C. 118; 21 A. 425 (F.B.); 25 B. 115; 24 M. 681; 80 I.C. 710. and in default of payment for sale of the mortgaged property, but is content to take a money decree, only, he could not sue again to have the amount paid by sale of the mortgaged property. 33 C. 849. See also 145 I.C. 373 = 1933 R. 158; 1939 Sind 367; 1938 B. 231.

ILLUSTRATIVE CASES.—The words "relief claimed" refer to a relief which the Court is bound to grant and not one which it is discretionary with the Court to grant. (21 A. 425; 41 M. 188, Ref.) 1931 P. 1. Previous suit for certain properties—Statement by plaintiff that he would pay additional Court-fee if it was found that he was entitled to further properties—Subsequent suit for further properties not barred. 1926 M.W.N. 94=93 I.C. 1=23 L.W. 415. Mortgage suit—Personal remedy asked for in plaint—Decree silent regarding same—Effect—Party not barred from subsequently asking for the same. 53 M.L.J. 489; 157 I.C. 533=1935 A.L.J. 279 = 1935 A. 411. But where a definite application under O. 34, R. 6 was made and not granted, it would operate as res judicata. 38 P.L.R. 700=163 I.C. 119=1936 L. 388.

EX PARTE DECREE.—An ex parte decree can operate as res judicata. 16 C. 300; 40 C.L.J. 507; 26 A.L.J. 185; 85 I.C. 562=1925 M. 1025; 50 A. 394; 116 I.C. 567=1929 A. 346; 1937 A. 251; 1929 A. 761 (2); 144 I.C. 669=1933 L. 606. But the only matter that can be res judicata is matter in respect of which relief has been claimed by the plaintiff in the plaint. 16 C. 300; 27 I.C. 999; 9 L.R. 345 (1) (Rev.). On this point, see also 6 Bur.L.J. 148. Where a previous suit for arrears of rent was decreed ex parte, the defendant cannot contend in a later suit for arrears of rent that the relationship of landlord and tenant did not exist. 49 A. 658. CONSENT AND COMPROMISE DECREES.—S. 11 is not strictly applicable to consent or compromise decrees as it applies in terms only to what has been heard and finally decided by Court. 35 M. 75=21 M.L.J. 709; 14 Luck. 763; 1938 R.D. 917; 41 C.W.N. 298. 1935 P. 59=16 P.L.T. 12; 153 I.C. 515=1935 O. 121; 30 B. 395; 116 I.C. 116=1929 M. 96; 1933 S. 53. It cannot be said that a consent decree can never operate as res judicata in a subsequent suit. It is binding upon the parties and would operate as res judicata in a subsequent suit unless there are some special reasons for holding that the compromise and decree were void. 1939 O.W.N. 809=1939 O. 269. Where a suit ultimately ends in a compromise, a party to the suit who is not a party to such compromise is not bound by it, and the decree passed thereon, based as it is on the compromise cannot operate as res judicata against him in a subsequent suit. 1939 P.W.N. 41=20 P.L.T. 346=1939 P. 225. Where a suit was brought by two daughters of a Hindu father in their personal capacity and for a personal relief, any compromise of that suit cannot operate as res judicata against reversioners. 1939 A.L.J. 199=1939 A. 197. Expl. V has reference to what has been adjudicated by the Court and not to the result arrived at by a compromise, in which the parties may have omitted to settle a part of their dispute, even though a decree may have been passed in accordance therewith. 149 I.C. 244=11 O.W.N. 528=1934 O. 293. The plea of estoppel by res judicata may prevail even when the result of giving effect to it will be to sanction what is illegal in the sense of being prohibited by statute. If the legality of an act is a point substantially in dispute, it may be a fair subject of compromise in Court like any other disputed matter; and a decree passed on such compromise is valid and binding until it is set aside, and will operate as res judicata. 164 I.C. 703 (2)=38 Bom.L.R. 593=1936 B. 301. But not in case where the legality of transaction was not in dispute and it depended on facts not disclosed in the case. 153 I.C. 585=11 O.W.N. 1571=1935 O. 121. A compromise decree cannot be taken to decide every point that ought to have been pleaded, as a decree on the merits must. 51 A. 575. A consent decree however raises an estoppel. 24 C. 216; 24 B. 77; 43 C.L.J. 116=94 I.C. 844=1926 C. 672; 4 Luck. 181. See also 1938 R.D. 917. A consent decree operates as res judicata if the question agitated between the parties in the subsequent suit had been put in issue in the prior proceedings though ultimately it was decided against the contesting party by his consent. 1929 M. 694=117 I.C. 295; 111 I.C. 1=1928 C. 852; 121 I.C. 164=1930 S. 195. A consent decree cannot, merely because it is a consent decree, prevent the application of the doctrine of res judicata. If, as is very often the case, the parties in consenting to the decree do not really intend that the decree should be the final decision of their disputes, it would not operate as res judicata. Where the plaintiff in the prior suit asserted a right to recover certain taxes from the defendant, but the latter did not deny it and did not put the matter in issue, and consented to a decree being passed against him, the defendant must be taken to have admitted the claim of the plaintiff, and it would not be said that he did not intend the decree to decide that dispute once for all in favour of the plaintiff. The admission of a fact fundamental to the decision arrived at cannot be withdrawn, and the defendant in a subsequent suit cannot be permitted to plead his non-liability to pay the taxes. Such a plea is barred by res judicata by reason of the prior decision and by virtue of his pleading in the prior suit. 1937 M.W.N. 1281=1938 M. 225. The Court, if the matter is in any way challenged, should be careful to see that the decree, if by consent, is not vitiated by fraud or otherwise. 63 C. 454. A consent decree or order is as effective as a decree or order passed on contest, not only with reference to the conclusions arrived at in the suit in which it is passed, but with regard to every step in the process of reasoning on which the conclusion is founded, i.e., the findings on the essential facts on which the judgment on the ultimate conclusion is founded. 63 C. 550. A consent decree passed between the predecessor-in-interest of the parties, touching matters now substantially and directly in issue, between them, is res judicata. 36 B. 283; 46 A. 820. See also 145 I.C. 352 = 1933 O. 322. But see 148 I.C. 548 = 1934 L. 758. To have such effect, the consent decree should have the effect of deciding finally the question raised. 151 I.C. 964 = 1934 M. 454 = 67 M.L.J. 198. A consent decree relating to matters outside suit does not operate as res judicata. 48 C. 1059. The decision by oath of any matter in issue in a former suit between the parties is res judicata in a subsequent litigation between them. 36 M. 287 = 24 M.L.J. 321; 24 M. 444. A decree or order passed on a razinamah would constitute the matters contained in it res judicata between the parties to suit. 36 M. 46 = 21 M.L.J. 820; 21 B. 465; 36 L.W. 414. But a compromise in a suit between the predecessors of the parties in which the issue in question in the later suit was neither raised nor decided, does not operate as res judicata in a later suit between the parties. 150 I.C. 1005 = 1934 A. 1038. A deed of compromise entered into in the course of a revenue proceeding and making a purely temporary arrangement for the purpose of the Revenue Courts does not operate as res judicata in subsequent suit in a Civil Court. 147 I.C. 715 = 1934 A. 75. Where parties fail to present to the Court a compromise arrived at between them but proceed with the suit, they are debarred from pleading the compromise in a subsequent suit in view of Expl. (iv) to S. 11, C. P. Code. The compromise must be held to be superseded by the decree in that suit. 18 L. 209 = 39 P.L.R. 29 = 1937 L. 537.

THE DECISION MUST BE NECESSARY FOR THE DETERMINATION OF THE SUIT.—Matter which was not necessary for the decree passed in the suit is not matter directly and substantially in issue in the suit which was heard and finally decided. 5 C.W.N. 445; 26 M. 104. See also 101 I.C. 522 = 4 O.W.N. 307; 102 I.C. 22 (1); 30 Bom.L.R. 902 = 1928 B. 349; 31 Punj.L.R. 406; 1930 A.L.J. 1309. If in the mortgage suit it is necessary for the Court to decide whether the trees were included in the mortgaged property, and, on the pleadings the Court does decide that the trees were not in the mortgaged property, the decision must operate as res judicata between the parties if the issue is raised again between them in a subsequent suit. 9 Luck. 291 = 147 I.C. 984 = 1934 O. 50. If a finding arrived at on a certain issue is sufficient to completely dispose of the case other findings on other issues not necessary for the disposal of the case are not a final decision of the matter covered by them and do not operate as res judicata. 36 I.C. 643; 70 I.C. 666; 44 B. 321; 7 I.C. 317 = 1923 L. 523; 73 I.C. 854 = 1923 L. 248; 43 C.L.J. 501 = 95 I.C. 1011 = 1926 C. 1003. See also 1934 R. 375; 41 Bom.L.R. 422 = 1939 B. 303; 1937 M. 804 (Impossibility of raising issue in prior suit) 1937 S. 155. Where there are two findings, either of which would in law be sufficient to dispose of the case that one which in the logical sequence should have been first found rendering the determination of the other issue unnecessary, is the finding which operates as res judicata. 9 I.C. 983 = 8 A.L.J. 409; 28 I.C. 580 = 21 C.L.J. 296; 17 A. 174. But it has been held by the Madras High Court that the decision on both the issues would be res judicata and the rule of logical priority is inapplicable. 38 M. 158. See also 113 I.C. 155. If a decision is based on two grounds, both of them operate as res judicata. 31 M.L.J. 97. Where a judgment is based on findings on more than one issue but it is doubtful as to on which issue the final conclusion is based, the decision on all issues is res judicata. 34 M.L.J. 431. A question raised at the instance of a party and decided by the Court as necessary operates as res judicata, even though the issue in the previous suit was in fact not necessary. 63 I.C. 161 = 33 C.L.J. 317; 10 P.L.T. 630; 118 I.C. 168; 57 C. 672. When a Court decides a case upon a preliminary point as well as on merits, it cannot be said that the decision on the merits does not operate as res judicata. 1930 L. 487; 1930 A. 619; 24 C. 900. But see 40 C. 29. Where an ejectment suit is dismissed on the ground of absence of notice, a finding recorded, that the permanent tenancy alleged by the defendant, is not proved, cannot operate as res judicata. 47 M. 453 = 46 M.L.J. 198; 43 B. 568; see also 18 C. 647. But where first Court decreed the suit for ejectment negating the claim of permanent occupancy, but the appellate Court reversed it for want of proper notice to quit, though upholding the finding as to the nature of the tenancy, the decision on the point is res judicata. 46 M.L.J. 515. But see 40 B. 662 (a suit of a declaratory nature); 1929 C. 449. Where an appellate Court confirms the decision of the trial Court by deciding on one point only without giving its decision on another point which was also decided by the trial Court, the decision on this point is not res judicata in subsequent suit. 42 C.L.J. 560 = 92 I.C. 981 = 1926 C. 163; 4 Luck. 404; 37 C.W.N. 892. An obiter dictum not necessary for the decision of the case is not a decision on a point directly and substantially in issue and does not constitute res judicata. 45 A. 466; 4 P.L.J. 682 = 52 I.C. 338 = 1919 P.H.C.C. 343; 142 I.C. 606 = 1933 L. 412; 1933 L. 404; 14 L.R. 457 (Rev.) = 17 R.D. 591. Where a suit was dismissed on grounds of limitation, but a finding was also recorded against the plaintiff to avoid a remand in case the appellate Court took a different view, the finding will not operate as res judicata. 47 M.L.J. 532. Where a suit is decided in favour of the defendants, but there is a finding adverse to them that finding is not res judicata against them. 48 C. 460; 47 M.L.J. 487; 11 C. 301; 18 B. 597; 17 A. 174; 18 C. 647; 55 M. 483; 18 R.D. 509; 141 I.C. 399 = 34 P.L.R. 225 = 1933 L. 218. See also 146 I.C. 710 = 1933 O. 439. Finding on an issue adverse to the plaintiffs successful in the earlier suit will not operate as res judicata against them in a later suit. 56 C. 639; 27 A.L.J. 1100 = 1929 A. 910; 1930 L. 149; 1933 M. 770. It is not the law that where a plaintiff's suit is dismissed, there is generally no res judicata on the findings in his favour. 34 M.L.J. 641; 12 L.W. 277; 1 C.

Explanation IV.—Any matter which might and ought to have been made ground of defence or attack in such former suit shall be deemed to have been a matter directly and substantially in issue in such suit.

144; 10 M. 102. The defendant is entitled to appeal against such findings. 47 M. 633; 47 M.L.J. 487. When a decree was based on independent grounds and the adverse finding was not implied in the decree, it would not operate as res judicata. 37 M. 25=21 M.L.J. 947. But where the decision on an issue is necessary but the party against whom the finding is made could not appeal, as the final decree is in his favour the decision on that issue is res judicata. 34 M.L.J. 431; 24 C. 900; 36 L.W. 388. Such a finding may be appealed against and constitutes res judicata. 40 I.C. 771. The fact that a party against whom an issue is found has no right of appeal does not affect the rule of res judicata. 34 M.L.J. 431=29 M.L.J. 535. Ejectment suit—Decree for rent in—Question of title need not be decided. 30 Bom.L.R. 1602=1929 B. 32.

SEC. 11, EXPL. IV: (See also notes under heading 'Constructive Res Judicata'.)—The correct principle as to constructive res judicata is that if the decree made in the earlier suit is such that it would be inconsistent with the plea which might and ought to have been raised, but not actually raised, it must be taken that there has been, for the purpose of res judicata, a final decision by necessary implication. 157 I.C. 381=39 C.W.N. 692=61 C.L.J. 301. The 'matters that ought to be taken' referred to in the Expl. IV, to S. 11, must be matters connected with the cause of action and the issues in issue between the parties at the time. 1941 R.D. 678. S. 11, Expl. IV, relates to any matter which might and ought to have been made a ground of attack in a former suit. The words are not "might or ought" but "might and ought". The mere fact that the plaintiff might have included his claim in the previous suit is no ground for saying that he ought to have done so. 43 P.L.R. 44. If litigants desire to win by such a technical plea as constructive res judicata they must found their plea firmly by proving the facts from which a Court can infer that at the critical time the person, sought to be barred, might and ought to have raised the plea. 1940 N.L.J. 562. Pre-decree compromise not presented to court in previous suit and a decree was passed on merits, the compromise cannot be pleaded in subsequent suit. 39 P.L.R. 29. Expl. IV can be applied only if it could be shown that the Court had passed an order in the earlier proceedings adverse to such party. 158 I.C. 891=1935 M. 786. Also the parties should be litigating under the same title. 156 I.C. 543=1935 L. 753. Expl. IV, embodying the rule of constructive res judicata applies to execution proceedings as well. I.L.R. 1936 N. 30=165 I.C. 948=19 N.L.J. 129=1936 N. 123; 163 I.C. 671=1936 R. 218; 1938 P.W.N. 400=1938 P. 427. As regards application of this Explanation, there is no distinction between consent decree and decree on contest. 37 P.L.R. 65=157 I.C. 749=1935 L. 487. See also 1937 R.D. 917. The rule will apply even with reference to questions of law, e.g., the legality of any particular act forming the subject of a compromise decree. 29 S.L.R. 455=164 I.C. 43=1936 S. 99. Omission to raise plea of res judicata in earlier stages will not entitle party to raise it after appellate Court remanded the case to be tried on merits. 1936 C. 454. So also as to plea of want of jurisdiction, see 161 I.C. 324=1936 S. 34. Where a decree is a nullity for want of jurisdiction, Expl. IV to S. 11 would not apply. 157 I.C. 90=1935 N. 28. Adverse finding against successful party cannot operate as res judicata. 1935 M.W.N. 871=1935 M. 701. See also 1940 A.W.R. (B.R.) 170=1940 R.D. 355; 185 I.C. 232. This explanation does not apply to the case of an application for restitution under S. 144; 153 I.C. 572=1935 A. 195. A defendant who has applied under O. 9, R. 13, C. P. Code, for setting aside a decree on the ground that proper service has not been carried out and has failed, is barred from agitating the same point later on in an appeal from that decree or in a petition for revision against the order passing the decree. The order of the Court will stand in his way. Conversely a defendant who has failed in an appeal or revision on that point cannot subsequently have recourse to proceedings under O. 9, R. 13, C. P. Code, for decision on it. 160 I.C. 462=1936 Pesh. 1. A Court is empowered to entertain an objection to attachment under S. 60 (1) (c) at any time, and decide it on the merits even though it was not raised at a preliminary stage. It would not be barred by principle of res judicata (1930 N. 11 and 1930 A. 727, Foll.) 1935 L. 942. So also where it was raised but not decided. 38 P.L.R. 691=1936 L. 930. A holder of two separate mortgages is not prevented from suing separately on each of such mortgages either by O. 2, R. 1, or by S. 11. See now T. P. Act, S. 67. The two separate mortgages give rise to two independent causes of action; hence O. 2, R. 1, does not bar the second suit. (1921 C. 321; 20 A. 322 (F.B.); 1924 P. 77, Foll.; 1915 B. 54, Not Foll.) 159 I.C. 758=1935 N. 226 (F.B.); 63 C.L.J. 110=1936 C. 698. The question whether an alternative plea ought to have been made a ground of attack depends on the facts of each case. If the alternative plea is inconsistent with the main plea and would thus create confusion it cannot be said that the alternative plea ought to have been raised in the previous suit or application. 1940 L. 27. Successive suits for redemption would not be barred when no final decree had been passed in the former suits and the mortgage was extinguished. 15 P. 607=163 I.C. 908=17 P.L.T. 564=1936 P. 420. Where in execution of a decree the decree-holder gets declaration that only half interest in certain property is liable to attachment, he cannot in execution of another decree against same judgment-debtor claim to attach the whole interest in the same property. 159 I.C. 465=1935 R. 399. A suit was brought on the basis of a mortgage deed impleading therein besides the Hindu mortgagor, his sons and grandsons also, who are the appellants. The Court dismissed the claim against the appellants and gave the plaintiff a money-decree only against the mortgagor. In execution plaintiff could not be allowed to attach and sell the entire joint family property. 1936 O. 139=11 Luck. 523. Where in a previous suit decided on an award, the entire property including the house in dispute was treated as jointly owned by the brothers, and neither before the Court nor before the arbitrator did the plaintiff set up the plea that he was the exclusive owner of this house under his father's will, he is barred from relying on the will under Expl. IV, in a subsequent suit by him for a declaration that the house was his exclusive property. 157 I.C. 368 (Lah.). Where a person who had a subsequent mortgage over a property had also in addition to this redeemed a prior mortgage and a puisne mortgagee sued on his mortgage impleading the former only as a subsequent mortgagee but not as an assignee of the prior mortgagee and in execution of the decree so obtained by which it was ordered that the claim of the plaintiff puisne mortgagee was to be satisfied first, the subsequent mortgagee claimed that he was entitled to be paid first his money due as assignee of prior mortgagee. Held, that the rule of res judicata did not apply and that to make the rule applicable it was necessary for the plaintiff puisne mortgagee to attack his rights as assignee of the prior mortgage. 1935 L. 218. See also 1936 A.W.R. 653=1936 A.L.J. 774=165 I.C. 7=1936 A. 578 (F.B.); 43 C.W.N. 1126=1939 C. 692; 1937 M.W.N. 60; 1937 A. 251; 19 N.L.J. 290. But see 18 N.L.J. 274. Plaintiff who was prior mortgagee in his suit for sale failed to claim benefit of S. 101, T. P. Act, as against puisne mortgagee in respect of portions of mortgaged property already purchased by him. It was held that he would not be debarred by res judicata from making the claim in defence to suit by puisne mortgagee on his mortgage. 43 L.W. 478=1936 M. 473=70 M.L.J. 506. It cannot be said that a person petitioning the Court for a divorce as a husband or wife ought to add an alternative plea asking for a declaration that he or she is not a husband or wife at all, because the marriage has long ago ceased to exist. These matters are so dissimilar that their union not only might but must certainly lead to confusion. Hence the failure of a wife in earlier suit for divorce to raise alternative plea for a declaration that her marriage has ceased to exist will not bar a subsequent suit for such declaration. 1941 R. 118. In a previous suit as regards a claim to the Mahantship of an Asthal, the defendant had to defend himself against that claim, but he was not put forward any claim of his own to the Mahantship. Hence a later suit by the defendant for declaration of his own title to the office of Mahant and for possession of the properties of the Asthal was not barred by res judicata. 62 C.L.J. 153. See also 1941 P.W.N. 75=22 P.L.T. 239. A mortgage decree passed against a former Mahanth does not operate as res judicata against a succeeding Mahanth when there is nothing to show that the former Mahanth was impleaded in the suit as representing the deity, and no issue on the question of legal necessity was raised or decided in that suit. 192 I.C. 789. A woman defended a certain suit under the plea that she was heir to certain property in dispute under the customary law. The suit was decided against her. Subsequently she filed a declaratory suit basing her title to same property as heir under Mahomedan law. Held, her suit was barred by res judicata. 158 I.C. 995=1935 Pesh. 150. See also 1940 N.L.J. 499=1940 N. 396. In a pre-emption suit, the minor sons of the vendor were impleaded and were represented by their step-brother as their guardian ad litem. The pre-emptor paid the amount and got possession; subsequently the minor sued to set aside the sale by his father as not being valid. It was contended that this plea ought to have been raised in the pre-emption suit and as such the doctrine of constructive res judicata applied. This contention was held not tenable. 159 I.C. 693=1935 L. 489. A suit against two defendants was decreed as against defendant 2 and plaintiff was asked to pay costs of defendant 1. In an appeal by the plaintiff against costs, defendant 2 was impleaded but he made no contest and he was asked to pay costs of defendant 1. Subsequently defendant 2 filed an appeal against the main decree passed against him. It was contended by the plaintiff that the points in dispute in the appeal ought to have been raised in the appeal as to costs by plaintiff and hence this appeal was barred by res judicata. Held, that these points were not such as ought to have been raised (though they might have been raised) in the appeal by the plaintiff and that the present appeal was not barred by the constructive rule of res judicata. 1935 L. 825.

CONSTRUCTIVE RES JUDICATA.—Expl. IV.—As to the application of the principle of constructive res judicata, see 49 A. 592; 59 C. 636; 50 M.L.J. 1 (P.C.); 1929 A. 400; 107 I.C. 110; 1930 M. 539; 1930 L. 487; 1930 C. 588; 15 L. 869=1934 L. 316; 68 C.L.J. 305; 1937 L. 404. The rule of constructive res judicata can only apply to matters actually decided and to all matters which are necessarily deemed to have been decided by the judgment. But where the relief prayed for is not dependant on the adjudication of a particular matter in issue, by no conceivable reason can it be said that the matter must be deemed to have been also decided by the judgment. 1941 Mad. 573. There is no difference in this matter between consent decree and decree passed per invitum. 29 S.L.R. 455=164 I.C. 43=1936 S. 99. As to applicability of doctrine to land acquisition proceedings see 160 I.C. 1010=1936 Pesh. 29. In order successfully to establish a plea of res judicata or estoppel by record it is necessary to show that in a previous case a Court having jurisdiction to try the question came to a decision necessarily and substantially involving the determination of the matter in issue in the later case. Where a dispute as to the title to receive the compensation under the Land Acquisition Act has been referred to a Court, and it has been determined, the matter is res judicata and binds the parties in any later suit involving that issue. 66 I.A. 145=I.L.R. (1939) A. 460=(1939) 2 M.L.J. 98=1939 P.C. 133. The rejection of a plea as having been raised too late operates as res judicata. 91 I.C. 683=1926 C. 511. Question of jurisdiction wrongly Omission by judgment-debtor to challenge liability where it does not affect decree-holder's position creates no estoppel. 71 I.C. 772. Where a suit by the widow of the last male-holder against the purchasers in execution sale on the ground that the properties had been gifted to her by her husband was dismissed, she cannot in a subsequent suit by the daughter of the last male-holder in which she was added as a party, claim a right to share in the properties as the new claim ought to have been made a ground of attack in the former suit itself. 67 M.L.J. 709=152 I.C. 1049. Suit by adopted son to set aside alienations—Decree in respect of one item against one defendant—Failure to include all reliefs—Subsequent suit in respect of same item against the other defendants—Barred by S. 11, Expl. Ejectment suit—Dismissal of —Redemption—Subsequent suit for—Not barred by res judicata. 120 I.C. 420=1929 L. 833. In all litigation there are innumerable matters that might be made ground of defence or attack but whether they ought to be so made would depend largely upon the circumstances of each case. The question whether a party had at the time of the previous suit knowledge of the matter relied on in the subsequent suit is of great importance. If he had at the date of the former suit neither knowledge nor means of knowledge of the right relied on in the second suit, the second suit is not barred by the rule of constructive res judicata embodied in S. 11, Expl. IV, C. P. Code. 42 C.W.N. 560.

PRINCIPLE OF CONSTRUCTIVE RES JUDICATA APPLIES TO SUITS ON MORTGAGES.—See 1937 A. 251; 1937 A.W.R. 648. In a mortgage suit, all claims relating to the mortgage right up to the end of the proceedings, must be determined and a defendant who omits to put forward a counter-claim cannot bring a subsequent suit for recovery thereof. 12 L.W. 173; 26 B. 661. In a suit for redemption of usufructuary mortgage must be included the entire accounts between the parties in relation to the mortgage; the claim of the mortgagor for overpayments to the mortgagee or excess profits received by the latter must also be included, and if they are not included, a subsequent suit in respect of such claims would be barred by reason of S. 11, Expl. IV, and O. 2, R. 2, C. P. Code. 162 I.C. 709=40 C.W.N. 627=1936 C. 200. The mortgagor obtaining possession in a redemption suit by him cannot subsequently sue for profits realised by the mortgagee for a period prior to the date of delivery of possession. 30 A. 36. Where mortgagee has failed in a suit for redemption to obtain an order for sale of a mortgaged property on failure of payment by the mortgagor of the mortgage amount within the time fixed for payment, he cannot afterwards bring a separate suit for sale upon his mortgage. 13 B. 567. See also 7 L. 40; 1940 M. 950.

Where in a suit by a prior mortgagee the puisne mortgagee is also impleaded as a party and a decree is passed directing the sale of the property, the persons claiming under the parties to a previously puisne mortgagee is not debarred from enforcing his mortgage in a subsequent suit. 41 M. 90 = 35 M.L.J. 639. See also 1 Luck. 25. A prior mortgagee who is impleaded in a suit on a subsequent mortgage, but whose mortgage is not impugned has a paramount title outside the controversy of the suit and is not bound to set up his mortgage as a defence. 47 C. 662 = 38 M.L.J. 424 (P.C.); 35 A. 111; 18 C.W.N. 1013; 58 I.C. 33; 1930 A. 163; 36 C.W.N. 1138; 144 I.C. 716 = 1933 N. 190. But where it is sought to displace his prior title and to postpone it to the title of the plaintiff, it is the duty of the prior mortgagee to prove his title and if he fails to do so, the decision in the suit will operate as res judicata against him. 2 P. 435 = 4 P.L.T. 108. Where in consequence of the failure of the prior mortgagee to claim priority under his mortgage, a decree for sale follows, in pursuance of which the properties are sold, he could not thereafter enforce the claim under his prior mortgage. 39 C. 527; 34 A. 599 = 19 C.W.N. 947; 4 Luck. 25 = 115 I.C. 833 = 1929 O. 463. But see 10 P. 234. Where the issue in respect of prior mortgage was struck off on the prior mortgagee not desiring to press for an enquiry in respect of his mortgage his claims are not barred by res judicata. 110 I.C. 79 = 5 O.W.N. 210 = 1929 O. 88. Where in a suit on a mortgage executed by two brothers, a third brother also was impleaded as a pro forma defendant, and there was no assessment in the plaint that the mortgage had been in respect of the share of the third brother as well, the question that this share was not liable to the mortgage would have been a question of title paramount outside the scope of the suit, and his sons are not precluded by the rule of res judicata from bringing another suit after his death, that the previous decree is not binding so far as it related to their share. 150 I.C. 529 = 58 C.L.J. 294 = 1934 C. 384. See also 61 C. 294 = 150 I.C. 321 = 38 C.W.N. 492 = 1934 C. 552 (Where the prior mortgagee who had purchased the property in execution of his decree was impleaded in a suit by a subsequent mortgagee). Suit to redeem invalid mortgage dismissed—Suit for redeeming a different mortgage not barred. 1930 M. 264. Suit for redemption—Sub-mortgagee made a party—Decision of his rights in his absence—No res judicata. 6 O.W.N. 851 = 1929 O. 455. If being a party to a suit on a mortgage prior to his own, he omits to claim his right to redeem such prior mortgage, he cannot afterwards sue for that purpose on the mortgage he has omitted to plead. 24 A. 429 (P.C.). See also 20 A. 110 (F.B.); 26 M. 776; I.L.R. (1940) 1 C. 544. A subsequent mortgagee claiming title as owner of a portion in a prior mortgage suit may set up his title in a separate suit as the question cannot be raised in the former suit. 16 A.L.J. 639 = 40 A. 584. On this point, see also 52 M.L.J. 52. Redemption suit by part owner or equity of redemption—Omission to pray for possession of other mortgage items does not bar suit for contribution. 27 A.L.J. 1162 = 1929 A. 696. Mortgage suit—Defendant impleaded as person interested in equity of redemption—Plea as to paramount title can be raised in later suit. 1929 C. 672; I.L.R. Usufructuary mortgagee purchasing entire property from one of the heirs—Omitting to plead the mortgage in defence to a suit for possession of their shares by other heirs—Is debarred from suing on his mortgage, if he fails in former suit. 50 A. 306 = 1928 A. 714. See also 1937 A. 251.

SUIT ON MORTGAGE.—Preliminary and final decrees passed without any objection by mortgagors—Sale of properties—Suit by mortgagors for declaration that preliminary and final decrees were void for want of jurisdiction, dismissed—Application for personal decree against mortgagors—Question as to jurisdiction. Held, that the effect of the dismissal of the mortgagor's suit was that the question of jurisdiction became res judicata between the parties. 14 R. 94 = 161 I.C. 989 = 1936 R. 87 (S.B.). Mortgage suit—Preliminary decree—Omission to reserve and provide for personal liability—Subsequent application for personal decree not barred by res judicata. 48 L.W. 758 = (1938) 2 M.L.J. 999. "SAME PARTIES, ETC."—A judgment not inter partes or in rem is not res judicata in a subsequent suit though it may be received as evidence. 8 P. 122. See also 1934 O. 449; 1935 All. 255; 18 R.D. 700; 11 O.W.N. 1608. The matter decided in a previous suit is res judicata only as against those who had been parties to the previous suit. 33 A. 493; 26 C. 428; 54 C. 770 = 53 M.L.J. 123 (P.C.). Person party to suit but omitted in formal order by oversight is affected. 57 I.A. 24 = 1930 P.C. 22 = 58 M.L.J. 171 (P.C.). When different people are interested in the decision of an issue, and only some care to come forward to contest, the decision when once given is binding on the others interested, as well, who merely watched the result of the litigation. Such persons cannot come forward again to reagitate the whole matter. 1938 A.W.R. (B.R.) 332 = 1938 R.D. 615. Where some of the defendants in a previous suit do not appear and are exempted from plaintiff's claim the decision in it does not operate as res judicata. 1 A.L.J. 363; 12 C. 580. S. 11 does not apply when the plaintiffs in the later suit were not parties to the previous suit, and only the defendants were parties. The decision in the prior suit does not therefore operate as res judicata, and the defendants who were parties to the previous proceedings are also not in any way bound by the decision in the prior proceedings. 59 C.L.J. 320 = 1934 C. 788. See also 18 R.D. 339. Appeal by several parties—Death of one pending appeal—Legal representative not brought on record—Common decision—Binding nature of on legal representative. 53 M.L.J. 226 = 103 I.C. 618. Where in a previous appeal in which the issue was decided the plaintiff and the defendant were arranged on the same side as respondents, it was held, that the decision was res judicata in a subsequent suit. 151 I.C. 70 = 1934 P. 270. A decision arrived at in a prior suit is not res judicata against a person who was merely a nominal defendant in the previous suit. 35 I.C. 543; 12 C. 580; 25 B. 589; 27 A. 59; 1938 L. 842. Res judicata operates against a person who took an active part in the litigation in contesting the claim of the plaintiff notwithstanding the fact that he was described as a pro forma defendant. 21 C.L.J. 157=27 I.C. 954=19 C.W.N. 1280 (14 B. 176; 14 B. 408, Dist.); 85 I.C. 953=1925 C. 985. But see 40 C.W.N. 1205=165 I.C. 662. As to the application of the principle to pro forma defendants, see 23 I.C. 381; 45 I.C. 318; 73 C.L.J. 475; 1939 Mad. 830=(1939) 2 M.L.J. 236. A pro forma defendant in a suit would be as much bound by the decision therein as any other defendant. 1917 M.W.N. 336=38 I.C. 184; 44 I.C. 546. But see 39 B. 29. But where in the former suit, no relief was claimed against the pro forma defendants and the nature of the two suits is wholly dissimilar and the cause of action arose only in consequence of the decision in the first suit, the second suit is not barred. 14 L. 380=141 I.C. 435=1933 L. 109. See also 40 C.W.N. 1208=64 C.L.J. 3; 1935 L. 942; 62 C. 642=39 C.W.N. 938=61 C.L.J. 193; 40 C.W.N. 1205=165 I.C. 662. A party unnecessarily impleaded in the previous suit is not bound by a decree therein. 44 A. 428. See also 5 O.W.N. 510. See also 1935 N. 61. Where a suit for declaration of title to an office is dismissed, a subsequent suit against another party for recovery of money alleged to be due to the person entitled to the office is not barred by res judicata. 44 M. 778=41 M.L.J. 223. A decree for partition in a suit instituted by one member of a joint family impleading the others as parties is res judicata between all the sharers who are parties to the suit. 27 M.L.J. 76=24 I.C. 294. See also 1939 A. 203. As to res judicata in the case of minors, see 1935 L. 44. The bar of res judicata cannot be evaded by addition of unnecessary and non-contesting parties in the subsequent suit. 1929 A. 500. Decision in a prior suit between B and A that certain wakf is void is res judicata in later suit by B against A and C for declaration that the property was wakf. 1928 L. 888=113 I.C. 120. See also 45 C.W.N. 854. A decision against a mortgagor is not binding on a mortgagee whose title under the mortgage arose prior to the suit against mortgagor. 40 B. 679; 10 P. 234; 140 I.C. 796. See also 150 I.C. 868=1934 A.L.J. 597; 140 I.C. 796=1933 L. 66; 41 L.W. 600=1935 M. 414. The same rule holds good in the case of purchaser, lessee or donee also. See 1933 L. 66; 35 B. 297. A lessor cannot be considered as a party claiming under his own lessee and the dismissal of the latter's suit for ejectment does not bar the present suit for ejectment by the lessor. 1927 B. 270; 1935 O.W.N. 674=155 I.C. 1087=1935 O. 394. So also in the case of creditor and debtor. 105 I.C. 647=32 C.W.N. 248. As to whether attaching decree-holder and auction-purchaser are representatives of judgment-debtor, see 1935 A.L.J. 1001=156

I.C. 387=1935 A. 888; 1936 A.L.J. 295=163 I.C. 239=1936 A. 722. In a suit under O. 21, R. 63, the decree-holder claims under his judgment-debtor within S. 11, and a decision in previous litigation between the claimant and the judgment-debtor recognizing the latter's title to the property is res judicata in a subsequent suit by the claimant under O. 21, R. 63, impleading the attaching decree-holder and judgment-debtor as parties. 151 I.C. 417=1934 R. 206. An auction-purchaser is a representative of the judgment-debtor for the purpose of S. 11, though he may not be one under S. 47, C. P. Code. 141 I.C. 448=1933 L. 171. A pre-emptor only stands in the shoes of the original vendee, a decision in whose favour operates as res judicata in a subsequent suit by the vendor for setting aside the sale. 143 I.C. 883=1933 L. 529. Party who is privy to a decree is bound by the decree whether he has notice thereof or not. 1929 R. 183. Decision against a reversioner is not res judicata against another. 43 A. 558. As to how far, the decision in a suit by one reversioner for a declaration that an adoption or alienation by a Hindu widow is invalid, is binding on other reversioners see 29 M. 390 (F.B.); 27 M. 588; 27 A.L.J. 741=121 I.C. 387. The dismissal of a suit by a Hindu father to set aside an alienation of a joint family properties on the ground of undue influence and fraud is no bar to a suit by the sons to set aside the alienation on the ground, that it is not for a binding family purpose. 35 M.L.J. 451. See also 34 L.W. 598=1931 M. 559; 1933 N. 44 (2); (1940) 1 M.L.J. 363; 1937 A.L.J. 1095=1937 A. 731. When both parties to a subsequent litigation claim through the same part in the prior suit, there is no bar of res judicata. 78 I.C. 65; 30 C. 556; 55 M. 40. A decree for ejectment by the landlord against one of several joint tenants of a holding does not bind the other tenants. 16 I.C. 698=24 M.L.J. 79. Decision in a suit, in substance on behalf of a trust though in form between private parties is res judicata between the trust and the defendants therein. 116 I.C. 142=1929 M. 687. Decision between the insolvent and creditor that the debt is time barred is not res judicata between the insolvent and the surety, when the latter was no party to the prior proceedings. 1932 A. 610. Suit on mortgage by five brothers. Plea by another brother that the mortgage amount belonged to others on record. Finding that amount belonged to joint family is not res judicata. 55 M. 483. Land acquisition proceedings with Collector as party. Subsequent suit by Secretary of State. No bar of res judicata. 56 B. 501. Where a Municipality has been delegated by Government with an authority to manage certain tanks, a decision in a former suit against the Municipality cannot bind the Government as the Municipality were not the owner of the tanks; and the Government cannot be said to claim under the same title as the Municipality nor the Municipality were litigating under the same title. 1935 N. 61 (2).

Explanation VI.—Where persons litigate bona fide in respect of a public right or of a private right claimed in common for themselves and others, all persons interested in such right shall, for the purposes of this section, be deemed to claim under the persons so litigating.

SEC. 11, EXPL. VI.—See 28 M. 457 (F.B.) ; 13 C. 352 ; 33 A. 493. For cases where the explanation cannot apply, see 30 M. 185 ; 33 A. 493. As to applicability of the explanation, see 14 L. 442=143 I.C. 90=1933 L. 325 ; 52 M.L.J. 641. Explanation VI applies to those suits only which are instituted in a representative capacity. 157 I.C. 1006=1935 L. 537. See also 1939 M.L.R. 1 ; 192 I.C. 789. Where the parties are different in two suits, the findings in the previous suit cannot be res judicata in the subsequent suit unless it is shown that the plaintiffs in the subsequent suit are claiming under the plaintiffs in the previous suit and the plaintiffs in the previous suit had claimed the right in common for themselves and for the plaintiffs in the subsequent suit. 1935 L. 391. The expression "private right claimed in common" in Explanation VI, extends also to village communal rights. 31 M.L.J. 26 ; 6 C. 49. But see contra 52 M.L.J. 641 ; 1937 L. 70. To attract the operation of Expl. VI, the former suit need not have been instituted with leave of Court. 31 M.L.J. 26 ; 54 M.L.J. 8 (F.B.) ; but see 43 M. 427=38 M.L.J. 493 ; 49 I.C. 796 ; 8 M. 496. Where the litigation is bona fide and the non-compliance with the conditions of O. 1, R. 8 has been inadvertent and no injury has been caused the prior decision may come within the explanation but the onus is on the party relying on the plea to prove the exception. Held, on the facts that the non-compliance with the conditions of O. 1, R. 8, rendered the prior adjudication of no effect against non-parties and that the doctrine of res judicata was inapplicable. 60 I.A. 278=56 M. 657=1933 P.C. 183=65 M.L.J. 87 (P.C.) ; 163 I.C. 817=1936 L. 965. There is no bar if the prior suit is compromised. 55 I.A. 96=54 M.L.J. 609=55 C. 519=1928 P. C. 16 (P.C.). Or withdrawn. 14 L.R. 64 (Rev.)=17 R.D. 60. In a representative suit under O. 1, R. 8, the representees are not parties to the suit unless they apply to be made and are made parties. Where a representor plaintiff abandons the suit and it is dismissed without a decision on the merits, it cannot operate as res judicata to prevent a representee who is not made a party to the suit from re-agitating the matter by a separate suit. Although the representee is bound by a final decision, it is only by the result of litigation that he becomes bound, and, 'the decision' means a decision by a Judge who is trying the case and not a decision by one of the parties to pursue the matter no further. 1941 Rang.L.R. 643=1941 R. 24. Decree against Municipality in respect of Government land transferred in trust and vested in it under S. 74, Punjab Municipal Act, 1884, operates as res judicata in subsequent suit by Government. 1936 L. 998. Prior suit by joint family manager acting on behalf of minor members—Decree therein bind members. See 54 I.A. 122=51 B. 450=52 M.L.J. 472 (P.C.) ; 89 I.C. 120=1926 A. 201. Where the father omitted to take part in the previous suit, and declined to redeem doing thereby a great injury to the family property, the right of the son to bring a suit for redemption is not barred. 144 I.C. 521=1933 N. 44. Where the interests of a member of joint Hindu family in respect of the matters raised in the suit are represented by the manager of his branch, the decision in the suit would be binding on that member. 189 I.C. 770=1940 L. 120. Where the effect of a compromise entered into by a karta of a family is to the advantage of the family and major members have assented to it either expressly or impliedly these majors should not be allowed to litigate the same point again. 1934 P. 617 (1). A decree obtained by a trustee on behalf of the trust is binding also on all persons interested in the trust. 46 A. 657. A suit for setting the amount of Kattubadi from an Agraharam is one in which all the agraharamdars are necessarily interested and the decision is binding on all agraharamdars. 43 M. 427=38 M.L.J. 493. Where a suit instituted bona fide in respect of a public right claimed in common was dismissed, a subsequent suit by two others in respect of the same right is barred. 36 A. 424. Where a collateral files a suit for a declaration of title and for possession claiming the whole property for himself thereby excluding the title of any other collateral, it cannot be said that he must be deemed to have been litigating on behalf of any other reversioner or collateral. The decision in that suit does not operate as res judicata, but it is of great evidentiary value. 1935 L. 505. Where a suit by a reversioner brought in a representative capacity that an alienation made by a Hindu widow in possession is without legal necessity is decided after a fair contest in the absence of fraud and collusion the decree will be binding on the whole body of the reversioners. 44 A. 19. See also 103 I.C. 454=28 Punj.L.R. 369 ; 145 I.C. 352=1933 O. 322. 42 P.L.R. 14=1940 L. 172. But see 95 I.C. 178=1926 A. 573, which holds that one reversioner does not represent the whole reversionary body and so a finding against one does not bind another. 51 I.A. 381, Ref. Where in a previous suit against the adoptive mother, a decision is given that she possessed no authority to adopt, it is binding on the adopted son, though he may have been adopted by her subsequent to the decision and could have been no party to the previous litigation. 108 I.C. 817 (855).

REPRESENTATIVE SUIT.—As to what is a representative suit and how to decide whether it is one or not, see 54 M.L.J. 587=109 I.C. 199. The expression "claimed in common for themselves and others" in Expl. VI to S. 11 does not also govern a claim in respect of a public right. A public right always implies that it is enjoyed by the plaintiff in common with others. With regard to such public right if the litigation is bona fide on the part of the plaintiff the decision would be res judicata against others who claim to be entitled to the right. 171 I.C. 866=1937

A decision in a former suit, which affects the interests of a pro forma defendant against whom no relief had been claimed, can operate as res judicata in a subsequent suit between the same parties. It is immaterial that no express issue was framed in that suit with regard to his rights, when it is clear from the pleadings that his interest was identical with that of the plaintiff. The onus would lie on the party who asserts to show that he was colluding with the plaintiff. 73 C.L.J. 475. An action by or on behalf of a family may result in res judicata as against absent or future members of the family, only when the action was so constituted according to the local rules of procedure or by a representative order or in some other way that all such members can be regarded as represented before the Court. 44 L.W. 73=162 I.C. 461=1936 P.C. 147 (P.C.). A creditor is bound by an adjudication against his debtor on his title to property in the absence of fraud, collusion, etc. 38 M.L.J. 266. But not so a debtor by dismissal of the creditor's suit under O. 21, R. 63. 55 C. 448. Decision against Official Liquidator in the winding up is conclusive on all parties represented by him. 43 M. 550=32 M.L.J. 444. A decree fairly and properly obtained against a Hindu widow (limited owner) in the absence of fraud or collusion, is binding on the reversionary heir. 40 A. 593; 36 M.L.J. 597; 43 B. 249; 49 C. 45; 1929 L. 586; 27 A.L.J. 518=119 I.C. 446; 108 I.C. 817. A suit brought by a reversioner is for the benefit of all the reversioners entitled to sue and just as any finding given in favour of a reversioner benefits all members of the reversionary body, a finding arrived at against him injures everybody concerned. 40 P.L.R. 591=1938 L. 571. The principle does not apply to compromise or an award decree. 45 C. 590; 34 M.L.J. 298=43 B. 249 (365); 38 C. 369; 29 A. 239. Where the compromise is due to collusion on the part of the widow a suit by the reversioner is not barred. 21 I.C. 605=11 A.L.J. 574. Where an alienee, from a widow of the last owner, gets a declaration of the validity of his alienation against the mother who is the next reversioner, the decision is binding on the male reversioners. 34 M.L.J. 319. Adjudication about B's title subsequent to A's deriving title from B does not bind A as res judicata. 110 I.C. 548=1928 M. 635. In order that the decision obtained against a Hindu widow might operate as res judicata, the widow must represent the estate so that there is trial of the rights of the reversioners and a decree fairly and properly obtained. 14 P. 518=155 I.C. 213=16 P.L.T. 713. See also 1938 N. 401; (1937) 1 M.L.J. 575=1937 M. 651. The mere fact that the widow has been impleaded as a party in a suit by rival claimants to the property is not sufficient to confer on her the representative capacity so as to bar a fresh claim by reversioners. 144 I.C. 442=35 Bom. L.R. 118=1933 B. 126. A Hindu widow cannot be deemed to represent her husband's estate so as to bind the reversionary heirs of her husband in relation to anything which she may have done herself to the prejudice of these reversionary heirs. 23 I.C. 761. But the decision in a suit by a widow or a limited owner, in respect of and for the protection of her own rights in certain property, bars a subsequent suit by reversioners in respect of that property even though such a suit may not be of a representative character. (42 I.A. 125 and 1924 P.C. 247, Foll.) 1936 A. 422. A decree given against a Hindu widow on a ground personal to herself and on her admission in the prior litigation is not binding on the reversioner. 21 Bom.L.R. 837=43 B. 869. In a litigation which is personal to a widow, the widow does not represent the estate fully so as to bind reversioners. 42 B. 69. As to when a litigation can be said personal to the widow, see 73 I.C. 284=18 L.W. 491. Successor of shebait when bound by decree against predecessor in shebaitship barred. 42 C. 244=27 M.L.J. 100 (P.C.). Under Mahomedan Law one heir does not represent his co-heirs, and so decree against one heir does not bind the rest. 11 O.W.N. 1608=153 I.C. 42=1935 O.W.N. 62. A decision against a Municipality operates against the chairman suing subsequently for the same relief. 36 L.W. 664. A decision in a representative suit binds all persons other than the plaintiffs expressly named in the plaint only when (a) if the suit relates to a private right, the formalities as laid down in O. 1, R. 8 are observed, and (b) if the suit relates to a public right, the formalities laid down in S. 91, C. P. Code, are observed. 1933 P.C. 183, Rel. on. 18 L. 629=1937 L. 425. See also 1937 B. 238. Where the procedure prescribed by O. 1, R. 8, C. P. Code, has not been taken in a suit, the decision therein cannot be binding on persons who are not actually parties thereto, and cannot therefore operate as res judicata, in a suit claiming a similar relief. 1937 A.L.J. 293=1937 A. 289. See also 18 L. 629=1937 L. 425. Suit may still be a representative suit within the meaning of S. 11, Expl. VI, though it need not come under O. 1, R. 8. The decree in such a suit will bind not only the plaintiff, but those persons who are absent but are held by the Court to be represented by the person or persons on record. Where a plaintiff allows the defendant to proceed with the suit on the footing that he is suing in a representative capacity, assuming that position and taking the chance of a decree in his favour, clear estoppel arises against the plaintiff to prevent him from afterwards contending in a later suit that he was not suing in a representative capacity in the former litigation. There can be no stronger case of an absolute waiver, or election or conduct rendering it wholly inequitable to permit him to resile from the position adopted by him. I.L.R. 1937 B. 326=39 Bom.L.R. 130=1937 B. 238. The fact that the relief claimed by a body of persons in the subsequent suit is similar to the relief claimed in a former suit cannot make the former suit a representative suit for purposes of res judicata. It is only if the relief claimed in the prior suit as so comprehensive that, if granted, it will confer a benefit on a class of persons, including the parties in the subsequent suit that the decision in the former can operate as res judicata in the later suit against those not actually impleaded in the former suit. 1937 A.L.J. 293=1937 A. 289. Where certain persons brought a representative suit on behalf of a community for establishing their rights connected with a temple and where it was contended that the suit was barred by reason of the decision in an earlier suit brought by certain persons of the same community with reference to similar rights in the same temple it was held that the mere fact that the persons who filed the prior suit belonged to the same community, could not make it a representative suit, and they were only asserting their personal claim and the omission to follow the provisions of S. 30 of the old Code, deprived the decision in that suit of all binding force, so far as people who were not parties to that were concerned. 1938 A.L.J. 680=1938 A. 523. The provisions of S. 11 of the Code are mandatory and the ordinary litigant, who claims under one of the parties to the former suit, can only avoid its provisions by taking advantage of S. 44, Evidence Act, which defines with precision the grounds of such avoidance as fraud or collusion. It is not for the Court to treat negligence, or gross negligence, as fraud or collusion, unless fraud or collusion is the proper inference from facts. Other factors in Expl. VI to S. 11 being present, the section lays down a condition that the persons must be litigating bona fide and the fulfilment of this condition is necessary for the applicability of the section. 64 I.A. 17=1937 P.C. 1=(1937) 1 M.L.J. 113 (P.C.).

NOTES.

DECREES AGAINST MINORS.—S. 11 does not bar a suit if plaintiffs who were minors were not adequately represented in a prior suit. 39 B. 29. See also 6 P. 388; 16 P.L.T. 484. A compromise involving a minor without the Court's sanction does not operate as res judicata. 36 B. 53. Compromise by minor's guardian set aside—No bar to fresh suit on the same allegations. 110 I.C. 550. Where the guardian ad litem is guilty of negligence, the decree will not operate as res judicata against the minor. 53 I.C. 412; 27 M.L.J. 486; 25 M.L.J. 379; 19 B. 571; 22 C. 8; 65 M.L.J. 548=1933 M. 806. An omission to rely upon a judgment in support of a plea of res judicata is not such negligence as would get rid of the bar of res judicata. 47 M.L.J. 700. Nor an omission to produce some evidence which existed and which might have been produced. 4 O.W.N. 748=105 I.C. 59=1927 O. 354. An omission on the part of the guardian to produce the document supporting the minor's title to the property in dispute, which it was plainly her duty to do, is gross negligence and the decree in the prior suit would be of no effect and would not operate as res judicata so as to bar a subsequent suit by the minor to enforce his rights. 67 M.L.J. 927=40 L.W. 823. A guardian is not bound to contest a suit to which there is no good defence. 47 M. 476=46 M.L.J. 291. Where guardian is not guilty of fraud nor his interests adverse. 9 L.W. 479=51 I.C. 724. The minority of the defendants at the time of prior decision does not preclude the operation of res judicata against them provided that some of the defendants had identical interests with theirs. [25 A.L.J. 319 (P.C.), Rel. on.] 119 I.C. 567=1929 A. 346. Where on an alienation by the minor's father, a pre-emption suit is filed and the minor's step-brother on his own behalf and as guardian of the minor defends the suit and admits the validity of the sale, the minor cannot subsequently reopen the matter and challenge the validity of sale. 157 I.C. 801=1935 L. 44.

RES JUDICATA AS BETWEEN CO-DEFENDANTS.—The doctrine should be applied to co-defendants with great caution. 25 C.L.J. 322=21 C.W.N. 639; 51 I.C. 997. To constitute res judicata between co-defendants it is necessary there should be (1) conflict of interest, (2) adjudication should be necessary to give appropriate relief to plaintiff, and (3) the question must have been finally decided between the defendants. 164 I.C. 468=1936 R. 308; 159 I.C. 340=37 P.L.R. 89=1935 L. 605; 33 M.L.J. 740; 17 A.L.J. 225; 1938 L. 227=40 P.L.R. 600; I.L.R. 1938 L. 75=40 P.L.R. 1030; 190 I.C. 609=1940 R. 136; 19 P. 669; 1941 P. 83; 50 L.W. 166=(1939) 2 M.L.J. 236; 1939 Pesh. 1; 43 C.W.N. 1214; 1937 P. 27; 20 N.L.J. 159; 7 L.W. 104; 4 Bur.L.J. 250=1926 R. 75; 97 I.C. 205=1926 P. 478; 96 I.C. 406=1926 S. 282; 30 C.W.N. 415=94 I.C. 235=1926 C. 568; 1927 A. 365; 103 I.C. 701; 1927 M. 50; 119 I.C. 167=1929 M. 638; 117 I.C. 100; 13 R.D. 831; 6 R. 575; 110 I.C. 596=1928 M.

Where in a civil suit the co-defendants were all members of one family and they had conflicting interests a decision as to the relationship of one of them is res judicata in subsequent revenue proceedings as between the members of that family in regard to that question of relationship. 1939 A.W.R. (B.R.) 9=1939 R.D. 82. Where in a suit by the mortgagee the question as to whether there was a partition between the two defendants in that suit was specifically raised and decided and it was not necessary for the adjudication of the claim of the mortgagee. Held, that the decision did not operate as res judicata in a subsequent suit between the defendants. 157 I.C. 1047=1935 M.W.N. 801=1935 M. 649. Where an adjudication between the defendants is necessary to give the appropriate relief to the plaintiff, the adjudication will be res judicata as between the defendants, if there is a conflict of interest amongst them, and a judgment defining the real rights and obligations of the defendants inter se. 11 B. 216; 26 A. at p. 442 (F.B.); 22 B. 245; 25 B. 74; 18 A. 65; 22 A. 386; 47 B. 534; 46 A. 220; 38 B. 438; 14 L. 442=1933 L. 325; 1933 A. 206; 1933 R. 255; 14 L. 31=1933 L. 274; 1933 P. 146. See also 2 L. 88; 1941 P. 211; 1927 L. 112; 1935 L. 57=37 P.L.R. 89. If the conditions above-mentioned are satisfied, it is immaterial that no distinct issue on the point was struck for trial or that there was no active contest between the co-defendants. 14 L. 31=142 I.C. 724=1933 L. 274. [21 C. 430; 61 M.L.J. 196 and 63 M.L.J. 64 (P.C.), Foll.] In order to see whether the doctrine of res judicata may be invoked in a subsequent suit by persons whose predecessors had been impleaded as co-defendants in a previous suit or who were themselves co-defendants in such previous suit, it is necessary to consider the following points:—(1) What was the relief claimed by the plaintiff in the previous suit? (2) Were the co-defendants proper parties to the suit? (3) Was there a conflict of interest between them? (4) Was it necessary to decide that conflict in order to give the plaintiff the relief that he claimed? (5) Was the question in issue between the co-defendants actually decided? 73 C.L.J. 475. It is open to co-defendants putting up a joint defence to resist the claim of a rival on any ground which they may be able to prove; and it is open to them to raise alternative and even inconsistent pleas in defence to the suit of the rival claimant. And when there is no point in controversy between the co-defendants inter se, and no difference between them on any point, a finding by the Court on a point in favour of one of them and adverse to the other, cannot operate as res judicata in a subsequent suit between them. If all that the co-defendants in the prior suit are anxious about is to defeat the claim of the plaintiff, it does not matter to them whether the claim of any one of them is defeated on any ground. The decree which in any way non-suits the plaintiff is for the benefit of both of them, and the mere mention in the judgment that the claim of one of them is dismissed, does not affect his rights as against the other, and cannot operate as res judicata. 1937 A.L.J. 1141. Where in a suit brought against A and B and another on the footing that A was principal or B was surety, the question as to which of the defendants was the principal and who was the surety was neither agitated between A and B nor decided, a plea by A in a subsequent suit, brought by B against him for contribution, that he (A) was not the principal, is not barred by res judicata. 1941 P. 211. One of two mortgagees brought a suit for his half share of the mortgage money to which he had become entitled by partition. Besides the mortgagor he also impleaded the other mortgagee as a party defendant and alleged that the latter's share of the mortgage money had been paid off. The mortgagor defendant pleaded that he had discharged the whole debt by payment to the other defendant-mortgagee. The latter remained ex parte. The Court found that the mortgage had not been discharged so far as the plaintiff was concerned and gave him a decree. The other mortgagee then brought a suit for his share of the amount impleading also the plaintiff in the former suit as a party defendant. Held, the claim was barred by res judicata by reason of the decision in the prior suit. 42 L.W. 298=1935 M. 821=69 M.L.J. 527. Where in a previous suit there had been a conflict of interests between the defendants inter se, which it was necessary for the Court to decide in order to dismiss the suit, and the Court did in fact decide that conflict against the plaintiff in that suit, the decision would operate as res judicata in a subsequent suit by one of the defendants. 40 L.W. 823=67 M.L.J. 927. See also 58 B. 544=36 Bom.L.R. 612=1934 B. 313. Even if the plea of the plaintiff and one of the defendants be identical, a decision between the co-defendants would be res judicata. 1935 L. 102=157 I.C. 771. See also 157 I.C. 776=1935 L. 544. Where there is no finding or only a vague finding there is no res judicata. 1929 M. 291; 7 R. 80. Where in a suit brought against the mortgagor and mortgagee by a third party, a finding is given that the mortgagee is entitled to add the amount spent by him in defending his title, to his mortgage money and recover it when the mortgagor seeks to redeem the property, the finding constitutes res judicata in a subsequent suit for redemption. 1 Luck. 367. A finding against a defendant who is not a necessary party is not res judicata. 25 B. 589. Where a defendant is ex parte, it cannot be said that there has been an active contest between him and another defendant who is not ex parte. 14 M. 324; 57 I.C. 252. See also 157 I.C. 511=1935 A. 678. Where in a partition suit none of the parties claimed or resisted partition except the plaintiff, any questions regarding partition which might thereafter arise between defendants remains open to be decided. 47 B. 534. See also 96 I.C. 406=1926 S. 282; 146 I.C. 131=1933 O. 415; 1938 M. 959=(1938) 2 M.L.J. 775; 47 L.W. 374=1938 M.W.N.

NOTES.

224. In partition suits decision of issues between co-defendants inter se is res judicata. 27 A.L.J. 883=118 I.C. 175; 4 Luck. 713=1929 O. 275. Where in a previous partition suit, the plaintiffs in the subsequent suit were not mere pro forma defendants, but actively supported the plaintiffs in the former suit, and claimed their share, the decision in that suit would be res judicata. 58 B. 544=36 Bom.L.R. 612=1934 B. 312. A sued B, B-1 and C for partition of joint family estate held by B. The estate was in the name of B-1 who was the son of B. B at first denied any joint estate but later on entered into a compromise with A admitting the jointness of the estate. The compromise was admitted to Court and a decree was passed on it. In a suit by C against B and B-1 to get his share of property, held, that the former decision was res judicata as to the jointness of the property. 1936 M. 252. In a former suit it was necessary to decide the dispute between the plaintiffs and defendants as to the validity of certain sale for the purpose of giving the plaintiff appropriate relief. In the subsequent suit, the same question as to the validity of the sale was again in issue between the same defendant, who were ranged as plaintiff and defendant 1, though the subject-matter of this suit was different. Held, the decision in the former suit was binding upon them and that issue was res judicata. 62 I. A. 224=14 P. 611=39 C.W.N. 1124=1935 P.C. 139 (P.C.).

RES JUDICATA AS BETWEEN THE CO-PLAINTIFFS.—A finding to become res judicata as between co-plaintiffs must have been essential for giving relief against the defendant. 36 B. 207. It must be also on points actively contested between co-plaintiffs. 38 I.C. 213; 1917 M.W.N. 14. There must also be conflict of interest between persons ranged as co-plaintiffs. 70 I.C. 232=1921 P. 369. Where no rights of the plaintiffs inter se were decided in a former suit which was compromised, no question of res judicata arises by virtue of the compromise in a subsequent suit between them. 1937 O.W.N. 423. See also 1937 R.D. 256. An issue may be res judicata between co-plaintiffs as well as co-defendants, and for an issue to be res judicata between co-plaintiffs it is not necessary that there must be a real contest between them. When the interests of various plaintiffs are common, and no question of adopting two conflicting positions as between themselves arises, the decision arrived at by the united efforts of all will bind them for ever, especially when the only person concerned in holding the opposite position has had a full right. 40 P.L.R. 591=1938 L. 571. On the point, see also 17 I.C. 205=14 Bom.L.R. 854; 21 M. 8; 36 B. 207; 31 M.L.J. 77; 1933 L. 569. Where in the prior suit it was not necessary to decide the rights of the plaintiffs inter se for granting relief as against the defendants and the later suit related to the individual right of one of the original plaintiffs, the prior decision did not operate as res judicata. 57 B. 488=35 Bom.L.R. 418=1933 B. 287.

Dismissal of a suit by the members of a community to assert their personal rights is no bar to a subsequent suit by them as representatives of the community to establish the right of the community. 18

NOTES.

A.L.J. 150. See also 1 Luck. 489. A suit by the plaintiff as owner is not barred because of a previous suit by him as expectant reversionary heir, as he cannot be said to be litigating under the same title. 117 I.C. 68. Where, in the former suit, the grandfather of the present plaintiff only claimed the property in dispute as reversioner, the second suit by the plaintiff for partition of the property on the footing of its being joint family property is not barred by res judicata. 149 I.C. 244=1934 O. 293. A decision against a Municipality regarding a tank the management of which is delegated to it by the Government cannot bind the Government, which cannot be said to claim under the same title as the Municipality. 31 N.L.R. 165=156 I.C. 180=1935 N. 61. There is no question of res judicata where the judgment has been delivered by a Court not competent to deliver it affecting the subject-matter of the suit. 37 B. 563, Rel. on; 1935 R. 517; 156 I.C. 1031 (L.).

COURT MUST BE COMPETENT TO TRY THE SUBSEQUENT SUIT.—The section applies only when the Court whose decision is cited as res judicata is competent to try the second case. 1 A.L.J. 503. See also 1925 M. 1270; 91 I.C. 1026=1926 C. 603; 43 C.L.J. 606=1926 C. 1053; 56 M.L.J. 52=110 I.C. 554=1928 M. 840; 108 I.C. 623; 1931 A. 454=53 A. 560; 12 P.L.T. 582; 1937 L. 346; 21 P.L.T. 894; 1940 O.A. 1293=1940 O.W.N. 1344; 1941 A. 18; 73 C.L.J. 475; 1939 S. 329; 18 P. 342=1939 P. 375; 1938 A. 82; 1938 A.W.R. (B.R.) 105. In order that a decision in a former suit may operate as res judicata in subsequent suit, it is necessary that the Court which tried the former suit was a Court competent to try the subsequent suit. Mere competency to try the issue raised in the subsequent suit is not enough. Further, it is the competency of the original Court which decided the former suit that must be looked to and not that of the appellate Court in which that suit was ultimately decided on appeal. Again, regard must be had to the jurisdiction of that Court at the date of the former suit and not to its jurisdiction at the date of the subsequent suit. 1936 A.L.J. 1313=1937 A. 20; 151 I.C. 70=1934 P. 270; 57 B. 456=35 Bom.L.R. 630=1933 B. 398; 14 L. 437=1933 L. 646; 1933 L. 614; 14 L.R. 248 (Rev.)=17 R.D. 314. In determining the competency of a Court for purposes of res judicata, a distinction has to be drawn between an inherent want of jurisdiction and want of jurisdiction on grounds to be determined by the Court itself. The first makes the decree a nullity which can be ignored, and which will not be res judicata. The second does not make the decree a nullity but only voidable. 1935 M. 835=69 M.L.J. 196. The "competent" Court is the trial Court and it does not affect the question whether the decision is that of an appellate Court. 44 A. 712; 5 C. 832; 30 B. 220; 23 C. 415; 35 C. 356; 9 L.R. 264 (Rev.)=12 R.D. 547; 58 C.L.J. 120. The fact that in the two suits appeals may lie in different Courts does not affect the application of the rule. 32 A. 67. See also 99 I.C. 299=1927 A. 189. Court which decided the former suit must have been competent to try and decide not only the particular matter in issue in the later suit but also the latter suit itself in which the issue is subsequently raised. 45 B. 805; 29 C. 707 (P.C.); 14 L. 369=141 I.C. 454=1933 L. 551. See also 1937 A.L.J. 1339=1938 A. 82; 35 C. 553; 25 A. 138; 25 C. 571; 35 C. 356; 1932 A. 483. In determining the jurisdiction of the Court which decided the former suit regard should be had to the jurisdiction on the date, not of the subsequent suit, but of the former suit. 19 C.W.N. 128; 27 I.C. 954; 10 C. 697; 11 C. 153; 15 M. 494; 10 L. 528; 1928 L. 929; 1932 C. 271=59 C. 636; 37 C.W.N. 810=1933 C. 879. Where property in two suits is identical, the mere fact that its value has arisen in the interval between the two suits and the subsequent suit is, therefore, beyond the pecuniary jurisdiction of the former Court, cannot affect the question of res judicata. 1936 L. 998=44 L.W. 530=1936 M. 951=71 M.L.J. 619. The words 'competent to try such subsequent suit' occurring in S. 11 refer to the jurisdiction of the Court that decided the earlier suit at the time when the first suit was brought and that if at that time such Court would have been competent to try the subsequent suit, had it been brought, the decision of such Court would operate as res judicata, although on a subsequent date, by a rise in the value of the property, that Court had ceased to be a proper Court, having regard to its pecuniary jurisdiction, to take cognizance of a suit relating to that very property. S. 11 is silent as to the point of time with reference to which the competency of the Court, that decided the earlier suit to try the subsequent suit, is to be determined. It is, however, clear that the question of the competency is to be judged either by reference to the date on which the earlier suit was filed or by reference to the date on which the subsequent suit was filed. To hold that the competency is to be judged by reference to the date of the institution of the subsequent suit would lead to anomalous and startling results. 1940 A.L.J. 679. Even if S. 11 itself cannot be applied, according to its terms to a case of difference in the pecuniary value of the two suits, at any rate the principle can be applied. It was held that the principle underlying the section could be applied where the first suit was for dissolution of a partnership on a tentative value of Rs. 5,500 and the second was for a claim valued at two lakhs itself to start with. 1941 N.L.J. 508. A decree in a previous suit cannot be treated as res judicata in a subsequent suit unless the Judge by whom it was made had jurisdiction to try and decide not only the particular matter in issue but also the subsequent suit itself in which the issue is subsequently raised. In spite of a large valuation in the subsequent suit, there would be res judicata at least with regard to so much of the property as was dealt with in the previous suit. 67 C.L.J. 223. Court which at date of the institution of the first suit had jurisdiction to try the subsequent suit but was deprived of such jurisdiction before it pronounced judgment in the first suit, is a "Court of jurisdiction competent to try such subsequent suit."

NOTES.

42 M. 702=37 M.L.J. 248. If the Court which passed the decree in the first suit is competent to try the subsequent suit, it is immaterial that it is prevented from entertaining the subsequent suit by reason of the existence of another Court with preferential jurisdiction. 28 B. 338; 27 M. 63; 29 M. 65. See also 54 C. 114; 54 A. 824=1932 A. 660. Where the previous suit relates to only a portion of the property which is the subject-matter in the subsequent suit, if the other conditions under S. 11 are satisfied, the finding in the previous suit that the property therein is ancestral will be res judicata as regards that portion of the property which is the subject-matter in the subsequent suit notwithstanding the fact that the subsequent suit is beyond the limit of the pecuniary jurisdiction of the previous Court. 1935 L. 391. A plaintiff cannot evade the provisions of the section by joining several causes of action against the same defendant in the subsequent suit and instituting it in a Court of superior jurisdiction. 28 C. 72; 22 A.L.J. 745=1924 A. 849; 50 A. 306=1928 A. 714=113 I.C. 745. Or by including new properties in the claim so as to make the entire claim beyond the jurisdiction of the Court which tried the first suit. 148 I.C. 926=1934 Pesh. 7. Or by intentionally inflating the claim. See 51 M.L.J. 630; 28 Bom.L.R. 879=1926 B. 481; 1928 A. 127=25 A.L.J. 1035=108 I.C. 462. But it would be different if cause of action in subsequent suit was not available or did not exist at time of former suit. 1935 C. 792=40 C.W.N. 174. If any specific question be within the jurisdiction of the Court which decided it in the previous suit, the trial of it is barred though the whole suit is beyond the jurisdiction of the former Court. 25 M.L.J. 379. But see 117 I.C. 83=1929 L. 781; 29 L.W. 760=119 I.C. 377=1929 M. 529; 1935 C. 792=40 C.W.N. 174. Nor can the plaintiff deliberately overvalue the subsequent suit to get rid of the bar. 39 I.C. 551. The expression "competent to try the subsequent suit" in S. 11 means "competent to try the subsequent suit if brought at the time the first suit was brought." Where the later suit was valued at a figure beyond the pecuniary jurisdiction of the Court trying the first but it was shown that the subject-matter of the prior suit was really undervalued, held, that the Court may be deemed to be competent to try the subsequent suit. 37 C.W.N. 810=1933 C. 879=147 I.C. 719. Dismissal of a suit for possession filed in a Munsiff's Court is not res judicata in a subsequent suit for redemption of mortgage and possession the value of which is beyond the jurisdiction of the Munsiff's Court. 65 M.L.J. 761=1933 M. 913. See also 1941 O.A. 422=1941 O.W.N. 648; 1938 M. 257=(1938) 1 M.L.J. 193. Judgment of a Court of British India in respect of property situated in a Native State could not operate as res judicata in the Court of the Native State, as it is not competent Court. 20 C.W.N. 1213=36 I.C. 710; 37 A. 1=12 A.L.J. 1074. Then the British Indian Court to which the decree of the Court of the Native State is sent for execution refuses execution holding that the decree is a nullity as having not been passed by a Court of competent jurisdiction, such decision is final between the parties and operates as res judicata so as to bar a suit on the foreign judgment under S. 13, C. P. Code. 63 C. 1033=63 C.L.J. 175=40 C.W.N. 591. The term "competent jurisdiction" has regard to the subject-matter as well as the pecuniary limit. 17 M. 273; 13 B. 224; 29 M. 65; 24 M. 444; 1930 L. 501=126 I.C. 591; 1930 A. 430=124 I.C. 714; 1930 A.L.J. 1254=130 I.C. 31. Judgment of a Court on issues which it is not competent to try could not operate as res judicata in a subsequent suit involving the same issue. 37 B. 563; 20 I.C. 557. Question regarding title to property decided under S. 4, Provincial Insolvency Act, at instance of person submitting to it, operates as res judicata in a subsequent suit by him for declaration of title. I.L.R. 1936 N. 28=164 I.C. 694=1936 N. 112. A decision of a Court of Small Causes on a question of title is not res judicata. 3 M. 192 (F.B.); 80 I.C. 724; 11 C. 301; 12 I.A. 123; 150 I.C. 17=1934 L. 324. The decision of a Small Cause Court in a suit for rent that tenant was permanent does not operate as res judicata in a subsequent suit on the regular side, even though the Small Cause Judge had jurisdiction to decide the latter suit. 48 B. 541. Where a suit of the nature cognizable by a Court of Small Causes is tried as a regular suit, the decision operates as res judicata though it is not appealable. 41 A. 54=47 I.C. 837. But see also 1927 M. 96=98 I.C. 176; 44 C.W.N. 1099=72 C.L.J. 99; 1941 C. 104; 41 C.W.N. 1019. A Small Cause suit transferred to a Munsiff retains its character as such and his decision does not bar subsequent suits not cognizable by the Small Cause Court. 26 I.C. 56=12 A.L.J. 853. See also 1934 N. 178. Where a Small Cause suit and an original suit as between the parties and involving a common question is decided by separate judgments by the same Judge exercising separate jurisdictions and an appeal is preferred against the decision in the original suit, as the Small Causes Court is not competent to try the matters involved in the original suit, there is no res judicata. 1939 N.L.J. 87=1939 N. 130. There is one apparent exception to the rule that the first Court must be a Court competent to try the subsequent suit, and that is where the first Court is a Court of exclusive jurisdiction, its decision on any matter on which it has exclusive jurisdiction is binding on the other Court. An instance of this is a decision by a Revenue Court on a matter on which it has exclusive jurisdiction. Similarly, if a Small Cause Court decides a matter on which it has exclusive jurisdiction, then that decision is binding on subsequent Courts. In a suit for rent, the Small Cause Court has no exclusive jurisdiction to decide the question of title. Hence the decision of Small Cause Court on title in suit for rent cannot be res judicata in the subsequent suit for rent and for ejectment, because the prayer for ejectment takes the suit away from the jurisdiction of the Court of Small Causes. 1938 L. 811. A Probate Court is not competent to try an ordinary suit for title and its decision is no bar to a suit in the Civil Court. 15 C.W.N. 1021=10 I.C. 434=13 C.L.J. 547; 20 C. 888; 34 B. 589. But

But see contra 29 M. 333=16 M.L.J. 63; 1926 M. 378=92 I.C. 352; 29 M.L.J. 551; 67 M.L.J. 364; 8 L. 384=104 I.C. 849 (F.B.); 105 I.C. 850; 1927 L. 98; 93 I.C. 1014; 16 C. 233; 33 C. 1101; 14 L.R. 41 (Rev.)=17 R.D. 32. Per Harper, S.M.—Where four cases were heard together and disposed of by a single judgment and an appeal was preferred in one only, it was held that though the reasons given by the lower Court were not very strong, as the matter had been given judicial discretion there was no sufficient reason to differentiate in one case which came upon appeal from the rest. 1941 R.D. 586=1941 A.W.R. (Rev.) 579. See also 1941 O.A. (Supp.) 403=1941 A.W.R. (Rev.) 562. Where two suits were governed by identical evidence, identical issues and a common judgment and though two appeals were preferred, one of them is dismissed for insufficiency of court-fee, it would operate as res judicata as regards the other appeal which cannot be thereafter heard. 1940 A.L.J. (Supp.) 24. Where a common judgment disposes of a suit by a creditor on a pronote and a suit by the debtor under S. 33 of the U. P. Agriculturists' Relief Act and the debtor is made liable for the same sum of money in both the suits, the debtor in the absence of an appeal in his own suit, cannot maintain an appeal against the judgment in the creditor's suit in which he was the defendant. 1941 O.W.N. 502=1941 A.W.R. (H.C.) 128.

CROSS SUITS.—One decided after the other—Decision in the former is res judicata in the latter. 96 I.C. 694. See also 8 L. 384 (F.B.); 1927 L. 821; 14 R.D. 324; 34 C.W.N. 839. Where cross suits between the same parties on the same facts are tried together and disposed of by one judgment but separate decrees are passed and an appeal is preferred against one of the decrees alone, the decree unappealed does not operate as a bar under S. 11, C. P. Code, so as to preclude the appellate Court from dealing with the decrees appealed against. The doctrine of res judicata has no application when the very object of the appeal, in substance if not in form, is to get rid of the decision which is pleaded in bar. 152 I.C. 114 (2)=67 M.L.J. 364 [29 M. 333 (F.B.), Foll.] Cross-appeals from the same decree decided by appellate Court allowing one appeal and dismissing the other—Second appeal preferred against decree of dismissal only—No bar of res judicata. 50 A. 517. See also 1940 O. 45=15 Luck. 126.

CONFLICTING DECREES.—Where there are two conflicting decrees inter partes the later decree must, for purposes of res judicata, be taken to prevail. 19 P.L.T. 456=1938 P. 359. When there are two conflicting decisions upon the rights of parties to a litigation, the later decision must prevail particularly when that decision is that of a superior Court. It is the later decision and not the earlier one of the inferior Court which would operate as res judicata. I.L.R. 1937 A. 628=1937 A.L.J. 979=1937 A. 481. See also 1938 A.W.R. (B.R.) 81.

"CAUSE OF ACTION."—See 16 C. 98 (P.C.) and 34 M. 97.

RENT SUITS.—In a suit for recovery of rent under the Bengal Cess Act (1880), the decision as to amount of cess cannot be res judicata. 1927 P. 58. See also 21 P.L.T. 277.

PROOF AND PRACTICE.—The judgment pleaded in bar of the suit must be strictly proved. 31 M.L.J. 311. The original pleadings should be filed to sustain a plea of res judicata. 47 C. 662=47 I.A. 11=38 M.L.J. 424 (P.C.). Judgments which do not operate as res judicata may be used as evidence. See 22 I.A. 60; 24 I.A. 10; 12 A. 1; 25 M. 300 (F.B.); 28 C. 109. Per Bhide, J.—Where the previous suit was tried according to the procedure then in force, the mere fact that the procedure then in force was of summary character is immaterial for the purposes of S. 11. 40 P.L.R. 319=1938 L. 369 (F.B.). Plea of res judicata cannot be allowed to be taken for first time in second appeal when not already taken in written statement and not discussed in lower Courts. 1929 M. 775. The plea of res judicata can be raised for the first time in appeal or even in second appeal provided it can be clearly maintained from the undisputed facts on the record. 190 I.C. 609=1940 R. 136.

A DECREE is not sufficient evidence to support a plea of res judicata for it does not afford any information as to the matters which were in issue or have been decided. 43 L.W. 676=161 I.C. 748=1936 M. 469. Where the judgment of appellate Court was not filed even though it was a confirming judgment, the grounds for decision could not be ascertained and the decision of any particular point by the trial Court could not be treated as res judicata. 1935 C. 792.

12. Where a plaintiff is precluded by rules from instituting a further suit in respect of any particular cause of action, he shall not be entitled to institute a suit in respect of such cause of action in any Court to which this Code applies.

13. A foreign judgment shall be conclusive as to any matter thereby directly adjudicated upon between the same parties or between parties under whom they or any of them claim litigating under the same title except—

(a) where it has not been pronounced by a Court of competent jurisdiction ;

NOTES.

SEC. 12.—As to rules which preclude the institution of further suit in respect of same cause of action, see O. 2, R. 2 (suit in respect of part of claim omitted or relinquished); O. 9, R. 9, (where decree was passed against plaintiff by default); O. 22, R. 9 (abatement of suit); O. 23, R. 1 (withdrawal of suit without leave of Court). Dismissal of suit for non-prosecution under Ch. X, R. 36, of Calcutta High Court Rules (Original Side) does not bar fresh suit. 62 C. 15=38 C.W.N. 1132=1935 C. 212. Where a person obtains a decree to the extent of the assets against a supposed legal representative of a deceased debtor, who is subsequently found not to be so, a fresh suit on the same cause of action against the right legal representative is barred. 9 P.L.T. 807=108 I.C. 558=1928 P. 362.

SEC. 13.: SCOPE AND APPLICATION.—As to conditions of validity in British India of a Foreign Judgment, see I.L.R. (1938) B. 16=174 I.C. 615=1938 B. 173; 187 I.C. 57; Per Chatterji, J.—S. 13 simply says that a foreign judgment shall be conclusive evidence. But where a foreign judgment is made the sole foundation of a suit, the relief asked for in the suit must be such as is awarded by the foreign judgment. 1941 P. 109=1940 P.W.N. 758. This section enacts a rule of res judicata in the case of foreign judgments, except in the six circumstances specified in this section. It follows that in order to so operate, two other conditions of S. 11 should be fulfilled. 2 L. 107=63 I.C. 387. See also 158 I.C. 547=1935 R. 284. A Court which entertains a suit on a foreign judgment cannot enquire into the merits of the original action or the propriety of the decision. 46 A. 119. See also 28 C. 641; 107 I.C. 352=47 C.L.J. 263=1928 P.C. 83 (P.C.); 36 Bom.L.R. 844=155 I.C. 711=1934 B. 390. Where a judgment falls under any of the exceptions no judgment on them can be passed in a British Indian Court. 50 M. 261=52 M.L.J. 240 (F.B.). Every issue decided by the foreign Court is not binding on the British Indian Court. The expression "matter directly adjudicated upon" in the section should be held to include the right set up by the plaintiff limited only to the particular relief granted or refused. 51 M. 720=54 M.L.J. 479; 1929 L. 627=139 I.C. 482. Section is not confined in its application to plaintiffs. A defendant is equally entitled to non-suit the plaintiff on the basis of a foreign judgment. 54 M.L.J. 479=51 M. 720; 6 R. 552=1928 R. 319. A foreign judgment has no force or authority as such in British India, but may give a cause of action for a suit to obtain the same relief in British India. 31 M.L.J. 563=43 I.A. 249=44 C. 186 (P.C.). The judgment of a foreign Court obtained on a decree of a Court in British India is no bar to the execution of the original decree. 7 C. 82. A foreign judgment may, in certain specified cases, be enforced by proceedings in execution, instead of by a suit. (See S. 44). But S. 44 does not override this section. 53 A. 747=1931 A.L.J. 653=136 I.C. 353=1931 A. 689. Hence a British executing Court can enter into the question whether the foreign Court had jurisdiction to pass the decree. 37 P.L.R. 240=158 I.C. 232=1935 L. 551; 63 C. 1033=53 C.L.J. 175=40 C.W.N. 591. Foreign judgments in respect of immovable property in British India do not bar the trial of the same question in British Courts. 119 I.C. 482=1929 L. 627. But a suit upon it lies in a British Indian Court, 6 M. 273; 7 M. 164; 24 B. 86; 22 C. 222=21 I.A. 171 (P.C.). See also 13 B. 224. A foreign judgment cannot directly affect land situated in British India. 19 M. 527. As to the effect of adjudication of insolvency in a foreign Court, see 23 M. 458. British Indian Courts are not bound in all cases to take cognizance of a suit based on a foreign judgment, and they may refuse to entertain it on grounds of expediency 23 M. 458.

SEC. 13 (a) : JURISDICTION OF FOREIGN COURT.—A British executing Court has jurisdiction to see whether the foreign Court had jurisdiction to pass the decree in question. Scope of Ss. 13 and 14 considered. 39 M. 24=27 M. L.J. 535 (F.B.); (1941) 2 M.L.J. 68; 40 B. 551; 53 A. 747=1931 A.L.J. 653=136 I.C. 353=1931 A. 689. Competency of jurisdiction of foreign Court is to be determined with reference to principles of international law. I.L.R. (1938) B. 16=174 I.C. 615=1938 B. 173. See also (1941) 2 M.L.J. 68. The defendant must either be a subject of the foreign State or reside in it, at the date of suit where the claim against him is of a personal nature. 37 M. 163=24 M.L.J. 619; 22 C. 222 (P.C.); 26 C. 931; 24 B. 77; 20 M. 112; 32 M. 469; 158 I.C. 24; 63 C. 1033=63 C.L.J. 175=40 C.W.N. 591; 59 M. 918=43 L.W. 607=1936 M. 552=71 M.L.J. 93. A service on the agent of a firm within jurisdiction cannot create jurisdiction against non-resident partners and the judgment against the firm does not amount to personal decree against them. 37 M. 163=24 M.L.J. 619. See also 20 M. 112; 24 B. 77; 63 M.L.J. 761=140 I.C. 588. But where there has been submission to the forum by the partners for many years, a decree against them can be personally enforced against them. Service of suit notice on agent of partnership whose members reside outside jurisdiction does not create jurisdiction on the ground of residence. 37 M. 163 = 24 M.L.J. 619. Irregularities which do not affect the jurisdiction of the Court do not vitiate a foreign judgment. 30 M. 292; 36 Bom.L.R. 844 = 155 I.C. 711 = 1934 B. 390.

SUBMISSION TO JURISDICTION.—Where there has been consent to submit to the jurisdiction of the foreign Court, the decision is binding. 37 M. 163 = 24 M.L.J. 619. The question whether a party has so submitted is one of fact. Such submission must be before judgment is pronounced. Submission afterwards, unless supporting an inference that there was submission before, is only effective as creating a sort of estoppel. 57 M. 824 = 1934 M. 434 = 67 M.L.J. 187. See also 39 M. 733 = 30 M.L.J. 148; 64 M.L.J. 531; 37 M. 163 = 24 M.L.J. 619; 15 M. 82; 30 M. 292. Though a defendant who remains ex parte does not, by that mere fact, submit to the jurisdiction of foreign Court, his conduct both before and after the decree is passed may afford evidence of his submission to jurisdiction and his intention in remaining ex parte. 59 M. 918 = 1936 M. 552 = 71 M.L.J. 93. See also 53 A. 747 = 1931 A.L.J. 653 = 136 I.C. 353 = 1931 A. 689; 57 M. 824. The action of a defendant in filing a written statement in a suit against him in a foreign Court and attacking the jurisdiction of that Court amounts to submission to its jurisdiction, as by such a course he is asking the Court to decide a point in controversy between himself and the plaintiff; even a mere submission of the issue of jurisdiction to the decision of the Court amounts to acceptance of that Court's jurisdiction. S. 13 (a) does not apply to such a case, and the decree passed cannot be said to be one not pronounced by a Court of competent jurisdiction. 53 L.W. 89 = (1941) 1 M.L.J. 140. See also 20 P. 144 = 1941 P. 109. The protest against jurisdiction must be made at an early stage of the proceedings. 7 M. 105. Where defendant appeared before foreign Court in the suit, thus recognizing its jurisdiction but failed to appear at a later stage and a decree was passed against him ex parte, he cannot afterwards in proceedings in execution of the decree, taken in British India, contest that the foreign Court had no jurisdiction. 44 L.W. 752 = 1937 M. 97 = 71 M.L.J. 838; 63 C. 1033 = 63 C.L.J. 175 = 40 C.W.N. 591; 53 L.W. 89 = (1941) 1 M.L.J. 140. The mere fact that a party has once appeared before a foreign Court in the character of plaintiff, is not sufficient to regard him for ever afterwards as having submitted to its jurisdiction in any suit instituted against him later on in that Court, in which he never appeared at all. 71 M.L.J. 93 = 1936 M. 552 = 59 M. 918 (noted supra). Nor does the fact that a British subject has entered into a partnership in the foreign country, and that the suit relates to a transaction entered into in the course of the business of the partnership, lead to the inference that he has agreed to be bound by the decision of the foreign Court. 36 L.W. 756 = 1933 M. 112 = 63 M.L.J. 761. If the decree at the time when it was passed was an absolute nullity, it cannot be subsequently and retrospectively clothed with jurisdiction by an application by the judgment-debtor to the foreign Court to set aside the ex parte decree. 37 L.W. 410 = 1933 M. 393 = 64 M.L.J. 531. But see 8 L. 54 = 1927 L. 200, where it was held that there was voluntary submission to jurisdiction when a party applied for review of an order passed against him. Execution of power of attorney whether submission. 92 I.C. 491 = 1926 M. 259. The mere engagement of a pleader to defend a suit, does not amount to submission to jurisdiction, where the pleader reports no instructions at the time of trial. 18 M. 327. But see also 40 M. 112 (P.C.) and 39 M. 95 = 27 M.L.J. 670. Where defendant appears not voluntarily but under duress or coercive process, the decree cannot be binding. 39 M. 733 = 30 M.L.J. 148; 64 M.L.J. 531 = 144 I.C. 557. A submission to jurisdiction for saving property is not a voluntary submission. 39 M. 24 = 27 M.L.J. 535 (F.B.). What amounts to submission. See 22 N.L.R. 82 = 1926 N. 77; 1931 A. 689; 41 Bom.L.R. 818 = 1939 B. 374.

PERSONAL ACTIONS.—So far as personal actions are concerned, competency of jurisdiction must be determined, not by territorial law of the foreign state but by the rules of Private International Law. 63 C. 1033 = 63 C.L.J. 175 = 40 C.W.N. 591. A foreign Court has jurisdiction in an international sense in personal actions in the following cases, viz., (1) where defendant is subject of the foreign country in which judgment is obtained, (2) where he is such subject when action is commenced, (3) where he, in the character of plaintiff, has selected the foreign Court in which he is afterwards sued; (4) where he has voluntarily appeared in that Court and submitted to its jurisdiction; (5) where he had contracted to submit himself to the foreign forum in which the judgment is obtained. 63 C. 1033. But the case may be otherwise where the non-resident foreigner is a subject of the same sovereign power which legislates, although even in such a case there must be an express power of territorial legislation conferred by statute to give rise to jurisdiction over him. 63 C. 1033. Therefore where the judgment is that of a Court in England and the defendant resides in British India, the decree is not a nullity. 28 C. 641; 40 M. 112 = 44 I.A. 6 = 38 L.C. 683 = 32 M.L.J. 35 (P.C.).

SUIT RELATING TO IMMOVABLE PROPERTY.—Where a suit relates to immovable property foreign Court will have jurisdiction where defendant has such property within the foreign jurisdiction in respect of which cause of action has arisen during his stay within that jurisdiction. 63 C. 1033 = 63 C.L.J. 175 = 40 C.W.N. 591. But the claim must be with reference to the property itself, and it will have no jurisdiction in personam, over the possessor, even in regard to obligations connected with that property. 63 C. 1033. [Emanuel v. Symon, (1908) 1 K.B. 302.] A personal decree in mortgage suit against legal representative of mortgagor limited to assets of the mortgagor cannot be passed so far as such assets are not situate within its jurisdiction—Invalidity of such decree by a foreign Court. 41 Bom.L.R. 818 = 1939 B. 374.

SUIT RELATING TO WILL.—Grant of probate of a will or revocation thereof by a foreign Court cannot be treated as a judgment in rem so as to make it incumbent on a Court in British

(b) where it has not been given on the merits of the case ;

(c) where it appears on the face of the proceedings to be founded on an incorrect view of international law or a refusal to recognize the law of British India in cases in which such law is applicable ;

NOTES.

India to hold that the deceased left a will or died intestate. 43 L.W. 75=160 I.C. 733=1936 M. 197. The Court in British India can, in spite of the revocation by a foreign Court, hold that the will is true, valid and binding in respect of properties left by the deceased in British India, the devolution of which is governed by the law in British India and not by the law of the place where the owner of the properties resided and died. 1936 M. 197. See also 40 Bom.L.R. 571.

SUIT RELATING TO TRUST.—In actions relating to the recovery of the office of trusteeship the Court of competent jurisdiction is the Court of what may be called the domicile of the trust. 54 M.L.J. 479.

SUIT FOR DIVORCE AND MAINTENANCE.—Where a decree for divorce was passed by a foreign Court under which husband was to pay a monthly sum for maintenance of wife and children, and a suit was filed in British India based on that decree in respect of instalments which had already become due, it is final and conclusive. But she would not be entitled to obtain except by means of a fresh suit for the instalments accruing after the institution of the suit. 158 I.C. 547=1935 R. 284.

SEC. 13 (b).—The law laid down in this clause is wider and more elastic than that in England. I.L.R. (1938) B. 16=174 I.C. 615=1938 B. 173. This clause refers to cases where, for one reason or another, the controversy raised in the action has not, in fact, been the subject of direct adjudication by the Court. 40 M. 112=44 I.A. 6=21 C.W.N. 358=32 M.L.J. 35 (P.C.). Where the defendant raised a defence in the suit but refused to answer interrogatories submitted to him, and his defence was consequently struck out without investigation under the English Supreme Court Rules, and judgment was given to plaintiff, held, it was no judgment on merits. 40 M. 112 (P.C.). Judgment cannot be said to be on merits, when it has only followed as a penalty upon defendant not complying with orders of Court and the facts and circumstances of the case were never gone into at all. 41 A. 521=50 I.C. 780=17 A.L.J. 501 ; 50 A. 270=25 A.L.J. 877=1927 A. 510. See also 41 Bom.L.R. 818=1939 B. 374. Where a defendant, after getting an order setting him ex parte set aside, files his written statement raising various issues in the foreign Court and then withdraws, and a decree is given against him by that Court after the plaintiff has actually been examined in the witness-box, it cannot be held that the decision is an ex parte decision and not given on the merits of the case within the meaning of S. 13 (b). 53 L.W. 89=(1941) 1 M.L.J. 140. As to the true test of deciding whether a judgment has been given on the merits, see 14 L. 58=34 P.L.R. 311=1932 L. 649. Decree passed on admission of defendant is one on merits. 16 L. 768=158 I.C. 113=1935 L. 396 ; (1941) 1 M.L.J. 140.

EX PARTE DECREES.—Where defendant does not appear, his default and failure to contest after due service of summons tantamounts to an admission of the claim, and judgment given in favour of plaintiff is one on merits. 41 A. 521=50 I.C. 780=17 A.L.J. 501 ; 50 A. 270=25 A.L.J. 877=1927 A. 510. But see contra, 50 M. 261=1927 M. 265=52 M.L.J. 240 (F.B.). Where it was held that a foreign judgment passed on default of appearance of defendant duly served with summons, merely on the plaint allegations without any trial or evidence is not one passed on merits. (This overrules 47 M. 877=82 I.C. 425=1925 M. 155=47 M.L.J. 356 ; 22 L.W. 820=92 I.C. 491=1926 M. 259.). See also 62 C. 682=39 C.W.N. 557=61 C.L.J. 29. An ex parte decision may or may not be on the merits. The mere fact of its being ex parte will not justify a finding that the decision was not on the merits. The real test is whether it was merely formally passed, as a matter of course or by way of penalty, or whether it was based upon a consideration of the truth or otherwise of the plaintiff's claim. 20 P. 144=1940 P.W.N. 758=1941 P. 109. Decrees passed under Ceylon C. P. Code Ss. 85 86, on plaintiff's affidavit in the absence of defendant, are not decisions on merits but are a penalty for default of appearance. 30 L.W. 349=1930 M. 149=57 M.L.J. 459. See also 38 L.W. 232=144 I.C. 22=1933 M. 544. Where pleader holding power does not receive instructions to defend the case on the merits, and appears in it, the mere fact of his being without such instructions, does not prevent the decision from being one on the merits. 32 Bom.L.R. 1178=128 I.C. 609=1930 B. 511. See also 41 A. 521. Judgment for plaintiff in defendant's absence based on agreement between the parties is one on merits. 158 I.C. 547=1935 R. 284 ; 52 M. 503=1929 M. 469=56 M.L.J. 547. A foreign judgment cannot be said to be not on the merits merely because it happens to be erroneous on the merits. 13 B. 244 ; 24 B. 86 ; or because it has proceeded on a wrong view as to burden of proof or as to the legal liability of a party. 41 M. 205=45 I.C. 703. See also 36 Bom.L.R. 844=155 I.C. 711=1934 B. 390. Absence of notice to defendant before a foreign judgment is passed renders it void. 13 M. 496 ; 11 B. 241. But not mere irregular service of notice. 47 M. 877 (noted supra). As to invalidity of an ex parte order when de jure or de facto guardian has not expressed his unwillingness to act as guardian ad litem of minor party, see 41 Bom.L.R. 818=1939 B. 374.

SEC. 13 (c) : MISTAKE OF LAW.—A mistake of law in a foreign judgment is no ground for vacating it. A wrong view as to burden of proof will not make a foreign judgment erroneous on the face of it. 41 M. 205=34 M.L.J. 295. In a suit by a Mahomedan widow for the administration of her husband's estate against the executors, the Supreme Court of Straits Settlements gave her a decree for a third share, including

(d) where the proceedings in which the judgment was obtained are opposed to natural justice ;

(e) where it has been obtained by fraud ;

(f) where it sustains a claim founded on a breach of any law in force in British India.

14. The Court shall presume, upon the production of any document purporting to be a certified copy of a foreign judgment, that such judgment was pronounced by a Court of competent jurisdiction, unless the contrary appears on the record ; but such presumption may be displaced by proving want of jurisdiction.

NOTES.

certain properties in British India, even though the probate granted by the Court in respect of the will left by the deceased had been explicitly confined to the property at Penang. In a suit brought in British India on that foreign judgment, held, that the judgment was not one on which a suit in British India could be successfully maintained for two reasons : (i) the foreign Court had no jurisdiction to bind, dispose of, or distribute immovable property outside the Crown Colony ; so the judgment was founded "on an incorrect view of international law." (ii) Under the Mohammadan Law relating to the Sunnis of the Hanafi School as applied in British India, the widow, who has a child, is only entitled to one-eighth share in the property of her husband. As the foreign Court, however, awarded the widow a third share in her husband's property part of which was situate in British India, the judgment was founded "on a refusal to recognise the law of British India in a case in which such law was applicable." 39 L.W. 58=1934 M. 145=66 M.L.J. 209. See also 191 P.R. 1888 ; 4 M. 359.

SEC. 13 (d).—There must be something in the procedure anterior to the judgment which is repugnant to natural justice. 41 M. 205=45 I.C. 703=34 M.L.J. 295. "Natural Justice" in S. 13 (d) does not mean British justice as opposed to the justice of any particular foreign country. The fact that the foreign Court follows its own rules of procedure and does not follow the procedure of British Courts and observe British Indian rules as to evidence cannot afford ground for finding that the proceedings are opposed to natural justice. 20 Pat. 144=1941 P. 109. A decree pronounced in absence of a party in personal action by a Court of a foreign State is null and void. 22 C. 222=21 I.A. 171 (P.C.) ; 40 B. 551 ; 64 M.L.J. 531=144 I.C. 557. A judgment without notice of suit to the party is contrary to natural justice. 28 C. 641 ; 29 C. 509 ; 5 B. 223 ; 9 B. 346 ; 11 B. 241 ; 13 M. 496. Where in a foreign judgment no guardian ad litem of a minor was appointed, where legal representative of a deceased defendant were not brought on record and where after a decree a third application for review was allowed such a judgment falls under Cl. (d). 8 L. 54=102 I.C. 523=1927 L. 200. See also 36 Bom.L.R. 844=1934 B. 390=155 I.C. 711 (Case where a foreign Court appointed as guardian ad litem a person having adverse interest. A procedure opposed to rules of natural justice). Where a judgment is passed by a Court composed of persons who have an interest in the judgment and its result, it would be contrary to natural justice. 191 P.R. 1888. Where a foreign Court has held service of notice of suit sufficient it must be presumed to be correct in the absence of evidence to the contrary. 47 M. 877=1925 M. 155=47 M.L.J. 356.

SEC. 13 (e) : FRAUD.—Where a decision is obtained by fraud, it is not binding on the parties. 1922 L. 175. See also 15 B. 216 ; 7 M. 164 ; 191 P.R. 1888. In the case of a domestic judgment, the fraud must be extrinsic to the matter tried in the cause, and not merely that consisting in false evidence or forged documents submitted to the Court, and the truth of which was contested before and passed by it. 26 C. 891. A foreign judgment cannot be rendered ineffective merely by reason of frauds perpetrated on the Court by witnesses other than the plaintiff ; the only way in which it can be rendered ineffective on the ground of fraud is by proving that it was obtained by fraud of the plaintiff who relies on it. 36 Bom. L.R. 844=1934 B. 390=155 I.C. 711. See also 144 I.C. 557=1933 M. 393=64 M.L.J. 531. It cannot be said that merely because a plaintiff obtains a decree upon evidence which is believed by the Court, but which in fact is not true, the decree has been obtained by fraud so as to attract the operation of S. 13 (e), C. P. Code. In order to attract S. 13 (e) there must be fraud connected with the procedure in the suit itself. 53 L.W. 89=(1941) 1 M.L.J. 140.

SEC. 13 (f).—Where limitation only prohibits the remedy but does not destroy the right itself, a foreign judgment cannot be impeached on the ground that the suit could not have been brought in British India under the law of limitation. 2 M. 400 ; 4 M. 14. Where a foreign Court passed a judgment according to the law of limitation in force in that foreign country, although it is not in accordance with the law of limitation in force in this country, it may operate as conclusive in a suit in a British Indian Court based on that judgment. 46 A. 119=21 A.L.J. 890=1924 A. 161 ; 9 Bur.L.T. 106=35 I.C. 741. Claim in foreign Court to recover money spent on marriage of minor members of joint family—Defendants over 18 years but minors under British Indian Law being wards under guardian—Decree not unenforceable in British India. 53 L.W. 89=(1941) 1 M.L.J. 140.

SEC. 14 : BURDEN OF PROOF.—In a suit on a foreign judgment, the onus is on the defendant to prove want of jurisdiction. 24 M.L.T. 244

SEC. 15: SCOPE AND OBJECT OF SECTION.—This and the following sections under the head 'place of suing' regulate the name in British India and apply only to those places where the Code is in force. They deal with matters of domestic concern and prescribe rules for the assumption of territorial jurisdiction by British Indian Courts in matters within their cognizance, and do not govern claims against persons or things wholly outside their jurisdiction. 9 L. 455=109 I.C. 28=1928 L. 297. This section merely lays down a rule of procedure so as to prevent the Courts of higher grades from being overcrowded and it is not meant to oust the jurisdiction of the Courts of higher grades. 7 A. 230 (F.B.). See also 17 C. 155; 25 C. 46; 31 C. 849; 14 M. 183; 14 C.W.N. 322. Exercise of jurisdiction by a Court of higher grade than is competent to try it is a mere irregularity. 7 A. 230; 13 M. 145; 17 C. 155; 1925 R. 278. But see 112 I.C. 187. But exercise of jurisdiction by a Court of lower grade than is competent to try it is a nullity and the decree will be set aside. 17 C. 155; 38 C. 639. Effect of Punjab Courts Act, S. 35, on S. 15. 1928 L. 484. The Court of the lowest grade in S. 15 refers to Courts subject to the Code and not to a Village Munsiff's Court. I.L.R. (1940) M. 684=1940 M. 495=(1940) 1 M.L.J. 220.

JURISDICTION—PRINCIPLES REGULATING.—To determine the jurisdiction of the Court the plaint and not the written statement should be looked into. 13 P. 65=145 I.C. 294=1933 P. 246. Nor does it depend upon the amount found and decreed by the Court. 8 B. 31; 13 A. 320; 16 A. 286. The plaintiff's valuation determines jurisdiction not only of the first Court, but of the Appellate Court. 13 A. 320; 16 A. 286; 58 C. 829; 1935 M. 723. (But see 38 C. 639=12 I.C. 464); unless plaintiff knowingly makes false statements. 45 A. 193=71 I.C. 411. Consent of parties cannot confer jurisdiction. 9 A. 191=13 I.A. 134 (P.C.). See also 38 C. 639=12 I.C. 464; 24 C.W.N. 633; 89 I.C. 353. See however, 14 C.L.J. 337; 43 C.L.J. 116; 73 I.C. 903. Where the plaint is amended so as to render the claim beyond the pecuniary jurisdiction of the Court in which it is instituted, the suit cannot be tried by that Court. 9 M. 208.

OVER-VALUATION OR UNDER-VALUATION OF SUIT.—Though jurisdiction is determined prima facie by valuation given by plaintiff, he is not quite free to give any arbitrary valuation and thus institute the suit in the Court of his choice. 31 B. 73; 40 C. 245=17 I.C. 162; 17 C. 680. Where it is patent on the face of the plaintiff that suit is over or under valued, the Court will return the same to be presented to proper Court under O. 7, r. 10. Where it is not so patent, even then, the plaintiff may be called upon to prove proper valuation, when objection is raised to it by the defendant. 24 C. 661; 24 M. 158; 21 M. 271. Where in the course of preliminary inquiry it becomes clear to the Court that there has been gross undervaluation, it is the duty of the Court on the motion of either party or ex proprio motu to order that the plaint be returned for presentation in the proper Court if the value be held to be not higher than the figure up to which that Court has jurisdiction. 1935 A. 157. As to validity of decree passed in suit instituted in Court of lower grade, see S. 11 of Suits Valuation Act, 1887. See however, 38 C. 639=12 I.C. 464.

WHERE SUBJECT-MATTER OF SUIT IS INCAPABLE OF VALUATION.—See S. 9 of Suits Valuation Act, 1887. Suits for restitution of conjugal rights are incapable of proper valuation, and plaintiff's valuation must hold good. 28 A. 545; 34 C. 352. But the same cannot be said in the case of suits affecting property, e.g., suit to compel registration of document, suit for removal of karnavan, suit to set aside adoption. In such cases the Madras High Court has held that the proper valuation would be the interest of the plaintiff in the property that would be affected by the suit. 31 M. 89 (F.B.); 13 M. 56; 14 M. 169; 15 M. 294; 11 M. 266; 6 M. 192; 75 I.C. 115. But see 15 A. 378; 32 C. 734; 8 Bom.P.J. 334 in which a different view has been held. See also 11 M.L.T. 155.

SEC. 16.—As to pecuniary limitations, see S. 15, supra; and as to other limitations prescribed by law, see S. 92, infra. and S. 32, Bombay Civil Courts Act, 1869, Small Cause Courts Acts, Provincial and Presidency.

SCOPE AND APPLICATION OF SECTION.—This section does not apply to chartered High Courts, vide, S. 120; applies to movables. 96 I.C. 691=1926 L. 503. In suits relating to movable property the Court within whose jurisdiction the movable property is kept has jurisdiction to try the case. 147 I.C. 591=1934 A. 226. Transfer of place where subject-matter is situated to jurisdiction of different Court does not deprive Court which originally entertained the suit from jurisdiction to try to its conclusion. 47 M. L.J. 448=87 I.C. 152; 1928 M. 746=28 L.W. 885. The jurisdiction of Courts in British India is governed by the same principles as are applied by Courts of Equity in England except in so far as they may be at variance with legislative enactment. S. 16 does not lay down any rule of law different from that prevailing in England. 28 S.L.R. 54=155 I.C. 677=1934 S. 123. Non-compliance with the provisions of this section and of Ss. 17 to 20, is in no way fatal to the jurisdiction of the Court and does not render a decree passed by a Court of competent jurisdiction a mere nullity so as to empower the executing Court to refuse to execute it on that ground. 25 S.L.R. 204=131 I.C. 182=1931 S. 47. Where in a money suit immovable property is attached before judgment and the objector's claim as owner is allowed, a suit by the plaintiff for a declaration that the property belongs to the defendant should be instituted in the Court within the local limits of whose jurisdiction the property is situate. 1941 C. 363.

SEC. 16 (a): IMMOVABLE PROPERTY.—As to definition of term, see Cl. (25) of S. 3, General Clauses Act, 1897. Trees standing on land are immovable property. 19 B. 207; but they are no longer such when cut down. (ibid.). Growing crops are not immovable property, see S. 2 (13), supra.

IMMOVABLE PROPERTY IN FOREIGN COUNTRY—JURISDICTION OF BRITISH INDIAN COURTS.—The English Courts, and so also British Indian Courts, have jurisdiction in personam in respect of foreign immovables against persons locally within their jurisdiction, in cases where there is an equity between the parties arising from contract, fraud, or trust, provided that the decision of title be not directly involved. But such an equity must be of a personal nature, either a fiduciary relationship or privity of some other kind between the parties. Such jurisdiction in personam has always to be exercised for the purpose of deciding the existence of a valid trust in respect of foreign immovables and for the purpose of giving relief against fraudulent and inequitable dealings with regard to foreign immovables; for ordering accounts of rents and profits and for appointing a receiver of foreign property; and although the Courts have not and could not put the receiver in possession of such property, they have given effect to such orders by dealing for contempt the party preventing possession being taken. 28 S.L.R. 54=155 I.C. 677=1934 S. 123; 23 N.L.R. 170 (suit for mesne profits as to immovable property situated within foreign jurisdiction). British Indian Court has no jurisdiction to pass a decree upon a mortgage of immovable property situated in Berar. 4 N.L.R. 61; 1935 N. 192; 31 N.L.R. 43 (Sup.)=159 I.C. 739=1935 N. 250 (F.B.).

SEC. 16 (b).—When in a suit for partition of movable and immovable property, the latter is situated outside the jurisdiction of the Court, leave can be granted to withdraw the suit, so far as it relates to it and relief may be granted so far as the movables are concerned. 28 M. 216; 25 S.L.R. 275=131 I.C. 186=1931 S. 50; 4 B. 482; 1926 L. 503; 27 M. 157. This clause does not include a suit for dissolution of partnership. 41 A. 513=17 A.L.J. 567=50 I.C. 156.

SEC. 16 (c).—Suit for a declaration that a mortgage in favour of the defendant is invalid, falls under the section. 23 M.L.J. 679. Where a Court grants a decree declaring a charge on immovable property situated wholly outside its jurisdiction, a purchaser under such decree would be treated only as a purchaser under a money decree. 8 A. 117. A suit to enforce a charge created on the land for Government revenue on it can be instituted at the place where the land is situated. 29 M.L.J. 639=39 M. 795. Where lands are situated in 2 districts, and an order has been passed by the revenue authorities for the payment of the revenue regarding both the lands in one of the Districts and they were so paid; neither the order nor the payment would show conclusively that a civil suit in respect of that land lies within that district. 149 I.C. 758=1933 P. 555.

SEC. 16 (d): RIGHT TO OR INTEREST IN IMMOVABLE PROPERTY.—WHAT ARE.—This clause includes a charge on immovable property. 25 S.L.R. 204=131 I.C. 182=1931 S. 47. Right of fishery in enclosed water. 24 C. 449; a right of ferry, 13 M. 54; right to have a water course opened. 4 W.R. 107. Right to maintenance claiming charge on immovable property in defendant's possession. 40 B. 337=32 I.C. 985; 42 L.W. 647=158 I.C. 1012=1935 M. 1043. Widow's estate in husband's immovable properties. 23 B. 1. Suit for money due on promissory note with claim for charge on immovable property. 96 I.C. 752=1926 L. 660. Suit by vendor or vendee to enforce specific performance of contract to purchase land or by vendee for return of purchase money owing to vendor's default to convey. 143 I.C. 759=1933 M. 436. See also 33 C. 1065. But see 9 Bur.L.T. 119=36 I.C. 431. Suit for recovery of unpaid purchase money. 28 M. 227; Suit for declaration of plaintiff's right to rent, where it is denied by the defendant. 22 B. 22.

RIGHT TO OR INTEREST IN IMMOVABLE PROPERTY, WHAT ARE NOT.—A suit for arrears of rent, although the plaintiff's title to the property may incidentally come in question. 6 B.H.C.A.C. 29; 10 I.C. 267=9 M.L.T. 372. Suit for declaring validity of adoption. 30 L.W. 691. Suit for declaration of title and for administration, declaring prior probate proceeding as not binding. 1926 L. 456=94 I.C. 1046; 1926 L. 503=96 I.C. 691. A suit for declaration that the plaintiff is beneficiary interested in a decree for sale, although it did not run in his name. 26 A. 603. A suit for dissolution of partnership even though partnership assets include a factory. 41 A. 513=50 I.C. 156. So also a claim for accounts relating to a factory. 1931 L. 673=32 P.L.R. 464=132 I.C. 218.

SEC. 16 (e).—This clause refers to tort

(f) for the recovery of movable property actually under distraint or attachment, shall be instituted in the Court within the local limits of whose jurisdiction the property is situate :

Provided that a suit to obtain relief respecting, or compensation for wrong to, immovable property held by or on behalf of the defendant may, where the relief sought can be entirely obtained through his personal obedience, be instituted either in the Court within the local limits of whose jurisdiction the property is situate, or in the Court within the local limits of whose jurisdiction the defendant actually and voluntarily resides, or carries on business, or personally works for gain.

Explanation.—In this section “property” means property situate in British India.

17. Where a suit is to obtain relief respecting, or compensation for wrong to, immovable property situate within the jurisdiction of different Courts, the suit may be instituted in any Court within the local limits of whose jurisdiction any portion of the property is situate :

affecting immovable property as in the case of trespass. 20 C. 689.

SEC. 16 (f).—As to jurisdiction in a suit for recovery of movable property under attachment by a foreign Court. See 14 I.C. 279=1912 M.W.N. 524. In suits relating to movable property, the Court within whose jurisdiction the movable property is kept, has jurisdiction to try the case, 147 I.C. 591=1934 A. 226.

PROVISO.—See 43 Bom.L.R. 293. ‘Defendant’ means all the defendants where there are more than one. 73 I.C. 405=1924 C. 443. A suit by the vendor to enforce specific performance of a contract to purchase land is a suit for land within the meaning of S. 16. The proviso appears to extend the section to a suit by the vendee. Hence the Court in whose jurisdiction the property is situated has jurisdiction to try the suit even though defendant does not reside within the jurisdiction of the Court. 143 I.C. 759=1933 M. 436; But see 9 Bur.L.T. 119=36 I.C. 431. When the relief granted by the award is a declaration of proprietary title to certain immovable property, the proviso is not applicable and the Court outside whose jurisdiction the property is situate has no jurisdiction to file the award. 55 A. 542=1933 A.L.J. 741=1933 A. 380. See also 153 I.C. 300=1934 S. 183 (2). The fact whether the charge over immovable property was or was not the subject-matter of reference is not material. 25 S.L.R. 204=131 I.C. 182=1931 S. 47. See also 32 P.L.R. 464=132 I.C. 218=1931 L. 673. Suit for mesne profits of lands situated outside British India can under the proviso be instituted in a British Indian Court, if the defendant is residing within its jurisdiction. 46 B. 108=68 I.C. 510=1922 B. 188; But if the defendant is a non-resident foreigner the suit would not lie in British Indian Court. 41 L.W. 381=1935 M. 545=68 M.L.J. 506. The Secretary of State for India in Council is not a person who dwells or carries on business or personally works for gain within the local limits of Calcutta within the meaning of the proviso. 40 C. 308. On this section (proviso). The proviso will not apply when the property is in the possession of the plaintiff. 20 C. 689.

SEC. 17 : OBJECT AND APPLICABILITY OF SECTION.—This section is only permissive, and so where the properties are situate in different jurisdictions, the section is no bar to parties bringing successive suits. 32 I.C. 423=3 L.W. 107 (22 B. 922; 14 C. 835, Foll.) See also 3 M.H.C.R. 376; 14 M. 324; 12 C. 566; 59 I.A. 268=63 M.L.J. 336 (P.C.). See also 1941 M. 129=(1940) 2 M.L.J. 520. The object of the section is to avoid plurality of suits. 16 A. 359. As to applicability of section to movable property, see 96 I.C. 691=1926 L. 503. A British Indian Court cannot pass a decree in respect of property situate outside British India. But it can pass a decree in respect of property situate outside the local limits of its jurisdiction when the suit is to obtain relief in respect of that property as well as property situate within its local limits. 43 P.L.R. 489. This section does not apply to Chartered High Courts in their original Civil jurisdiction. (See S. 120, infra.) As to applicability to Oudh Rent Act, see 13 R.D. 130. 1941 M. 129 (Applicability to arbitration proceedings). All the Courts situated outside the Santal Parganas to which S. 17 applies have concurrent jurisdiction with the Courts inside the Santal Parganas for the trial of suits in which the properties involved are both outside and inside the Santal Parganas and the value of the properties exceed Rs. 1,000; and therefore in ordinary circumstances the Gaya Court has jurisdiction to try such suits, barring of course the restrictions placed under S. 5 of Santal Parganas Regulation (1872). 13 P. 486=152 I.C. 301=1934 P. 292. The C. P. Code including this section extends to Courts established under the Bengal, Agra and Assam Civil Courts Act. 63 I.A. 311=15 P. 567=40 C.W.N. 1061=1936 P.C. 189=71 M.L.J. 60 (P.C.). The choice given by this section can be utilized only if the Code applies to both the Courts. (ibid.). Where a plaintiff has two or more causes of action in the suit he can take advantage of the provisions of S. 17, C. P. Code, if the joinder of such causes of action is permitted by the succeeding provisions of the Code, for instance, O. 1, r. 3 and O. 2, r. 3. If he cannot do so and the joinder of the causes of action is bad for multifariousness, then the

Provided that, in respect of the value of the subject-matter of the suit, the entire claim is cognizable by such Court.

18. (1) Where it is alleged to be uncertain within the local limits of the jurisdiction of which of two or more Courts any immovable property is situate, any one of those Courts may, if satisfied that there is ground for the alleged uncertainty, record a statement to that effect and thereupon proceed to entertain and dispose of any suit relating to that property, and its decree in the suit shall have the same effect as if the property were situate within the local limits of its jurisdiction :

Provided that the suit is one with respect to which the Court is competent as regards the nature and value of the suit to exercise jurisdiction.

(2) Where a statement has not been recorded under sub-section (1), and an objection is taken before an appellate or revisional Court that a decree or order in a suit relating to such property was made by a Court not having jurisdiction where the property is situate, the appellate or revisional Court shall not allow the objection unless in its opinion there was, at the time of the institution of the suit, no reasonable ground for uncertainty as to the Court having jurisdiction with respect thereto and there has been a consequent failure of justice.

19. Where a suit is for compensation for wrong done to the person or to movable property, if the wrong was done within the local limits of the jurisdiction of one Court and the defendant resides, or carries on business, or personally works for gain, within the local limits of the jurisdiction of another Court, the suit may be instituted at the option of the plaintiff in either of the said Courts.

NOTES.

suit cannot be tried in either of the Courts within whose jurisdiction the properties are situate. 1940 A.L.J. 110=1940 A. 205. The Court passing decree under this section as to immovable property situated outside its jurisdiction, can also execute it in respect of that property. (See S. 38, infra). 'Courts' means Courts in British India. 39 Bom.L.R. 1287=174 I.C. 116=1938 B. 121. As to where properties are situate within jurisdiction of a British Indian and a foreign Court, see 1938 B. 121.

COURTS.—'Courts' means Courts to which the Code applies. The Court of a district subject to the Code has no jurisdiction to entertain a suit so far as it claims a decree for sale of mortgaged land situated in a scheduled district. 42 M. 813=46 I.A. 151=51 I.C. 185=37 M.L.J. 11 (P.C.); or in respect of properties situate out of British India. 54 B. 495=59 M.L.J. 379 (P.C.). See also 42 C. 116=27 M.L.J. 459 (P.C.); 33 B. 373=2 I.C. 489. But if in such suits, properties within jurisdiction also are involved, relief may be given with reference to such properties, while declining relief with reference to the rest. 14 C. 836; 22 B. 922. As to application of section to Courts in Berar which are foreign Courts but to which the C. P. Code has been made applicable, see 39 Bom.L.R. 1287=174 I.C. 116=1938 B. 121.

BONA FIDES OF PARTIES.—Jurisdiction vested in Courts—Whether can be taken away by proof of plaint items not being within jurisdiction—Bona fide suit protected. 1930 N. 189. A bona fide compromise as to properties situated within jurisdiction will not divest the jurisdiction of the Court to proceed with the trial regarding the claim as to rest of properties outside jurisdiction (included in the suit) unless it was shown that the compromise was a mere continuance to defeat the policy of the rule of procedure as to local jurisdiction. 12 M. 380; 30 A. 560.

ILLUSTRATIVE CASES.—Where the question that arises for decision is common as against all the defendants, but the property in dispute is situate in different districts, S. 17 read with O. 1, R. 3, is applicable and the plaintiff can bring a suit in any one of such districts. 124 I.C. 202=37 L.W. 681=1933 M. 622. But where plaintiff brought a suit to recover several properties situated in Lahore and Oudh, claiming Lahore properties under a trust deed, as trustee, and Oudh properties under the terms of a will, held, that there were distinct and separate causes of action, and a single suit cannot be instituted in one place regarding all the properties. 59 I.A. 268=7 Luck. 324=1932 P.C. 172=63 M.L.J. 336 (P.C.). Suit regarding house and land in Court within whose jurisdiction house alone is situate—Appeal from decree filed in proper Court—Claim regarding house abandoned in appeal and confined only to land not within jurisdiction of appellate Court—Competency to hear appeal. 1938 O.W.N. 104=172 I.C. 637=1938 O. 65.

SEC. 18: REASONABLE GROUND FOR UNCERTAINTY.—This may be caused by absence of notification as to the boundaries of a district. 24 C. 449. The boundaries may have also been changed by fluvial action, and uncertainty may be caused thereby.

SEC. 19.—This section is applicable only to torts committed in British India and only to defendants residing in British India. 39 M.

NOTES.

433=28 I.C. 394. As to the place of suing where the wrong consists of a series of acts, see 3 L.B.R. 164. As to suits against the Secretary of State for damages in respect of tort committed by him, see 50 M. 449=1927 M. 689=53 M.L.J. 355.

MEANING OF TERMS.—The word 'resides' refers to natural persons and not to legal entities such as limited companies or Governments. The words 'carry on business or personally work for gain' are inapplicable to the Secretary of State. The business intended by the section is a commercial business and not a business of State or Government. 50 M. 449=1927 M. 689=53 M.L.J. 355.

SEC. 20: SCOPE OF THE SECTION.—See 19 M. 477; 19 A.L.J. 696=65 I.C. 93. The Code does not forbid the institution of a suit against a defendant resident in British India even if the decision may involve adjudication regarding plaintiff's title to immovable property outside British India. 23 N.L.R. 170. Cause of action arising in native state where parties reside—British Courts have no jurisdiction to try suit. 54 B. 192=32 Bom.L.R. 171. Court's jurisdiction does not cease because the place of cause of action ceases to be in its jurisdiction after the institution of the suit. 1928 M. 746=28 L.W. 885. Agreement cannot confer jurisdiction where there is none. 1929 S. 227. Effect of failure to take objection as to territorial jurisdiction in a suit for money for goods supplied 168 I.C. 714=1937 N. 94.

QUESTION OF JURISDICTION—MODE OF DETERMINATION.—The question of jurisdiction is to be determined with reference to the allegations in the plaint and not with reference to the pleas. Where it was alleged in the plaint that according to the agreement, which was the basis of the suit, the amount claimed was payable at the place of suit, the question of jurisdiction could not be separated from the merits of the case, and the Court should allow the parties to produce their full evidence in regard to the execution of the agreement before coming to any decision as to whether the suit was cognizable by it or not. 151 I.C. 726=36 P.L.R. 6=1934 L. 803.

SEC. 20 (a): ACTUALLY AND VOLUNTARILY RESIDES, ETC.—Under S. 20, residence means permanent residence, not a temporary or casual residence as traveller. 54 I.C. 65 (Bur.); 38 B. 125 Foll. But see 14 I.C. 573 (M.). See also 34 M. 257; 143 I.C. 357=34 P.L.R. 908=1933 L. 120. A Government servant liable to be sent to various places but stationed in one place for several years cannot be said to have only a temporary residence there. 11 I.C. 851=4 Bur.L.T. 183. The mere fact that the defendants had their ancestral home within the jurisdiction of the Court would not give jurisdiction to it. 64 I.C. 688 (1)=19 A.L.J. 822; 38 I.C. 62=112 P.R. 1916. But see 57 C. 65. The fact that the debtor had a family home in a particular place is not conclusive of the question whether he resided there. 145 I.C. 755=34 P.L.R. 658=1933 L. 851 (1). The words "actually and voluntarily resides" applies only to natural persons and not to legal entities. 1930 L. 818.

CARRIES ON BUSINESS.—The test of 'carrying on business' is not the continuity or intermittency of the business, but the fact of owning interest in the business and receiving profits. 28 N.L.R. 118=140 I.C. 63=1932 N. 114. 'Carrying on business' is used as distinct from personally working. It does not involve personal appearance or personal effort. It means having an interest in business, a voice in what is done, a share in the profit or loss and some control upon the business. 19 A.L.J. 696=65 I.C. 93. See also 4 M. 29; 96 I.C. 887=31 C.W.N. 174=1926 P.C. 88 (P.C.). But where business is carried on by an agent, he should be an agent in the strict sense of the term. 23 M. 458. 'Carrying on business' in S. 20 means having an interest in the business transaction at the particular place and a voice in what is done and a share in the gain or loss. Where an insurance company having a head office at Calcutta has a sub-agency office in Nagpur, and all business in connection with the policy-holders are transacted by sub-agency office and a Bank account is also maintained in that place, the company must be said to be carrying on business at Nagpur within the meaning of S. 20. 1941 N.L.J. 37. The employment of a mere commission agent without power to enter into contract is not enough. 8 B.H.C. 102; 12 B. 507; 8 C. 678; 73 I.C. 205=1923 L. 427; 29 S.L.R. 292=164 I.C. 1015=1936 S. 121. Partnership contract by P and D firms both having head offices at Calcutta—P firm having branch at Muzaffarpur District—Contract that jute be purchased by P at Muzaffarpur and sold at Calcutta by D—Suit by P for dissolution of partnership and accounts at Muzaffarpur Court. Held, that purchase of suit for purpose of business could not necessarily be 'carrying on business of partnership,' and hence Muzaffarpur Court had no jurisdiction. 160 I.C. 353=1936 P. 6. Whether mere letting of house property through an agent can be said to be carrying on business. 66 I.C. 865=1922 L. 164. A minor

(b) any of the defendants, where there are more than one, at the time of the commencement of the suit, actually and voluntarily resides, or carries on business, or personally works for gain, provided that in such case either the leave of the Court is given, or the defendants who do not reside, or carry on business, or personally work for gain, as aforesaid, acquiesce in such institution; or

(c) the cause of action, wholly or in part, arises.

NOTES.

French subject cannot be said to carry on business in British India merely because he has immovable properties there. 20 L.W. 691. A corporation resides wherever it carries on business, irrespective of the location of its Head Office and if a Bank has 50 branch offices, it has 50 separate and distinct jurisdictions. 4 P.L.J. 141=48 I.C. 943; 1933 L. 11=14 L. 42=149 I.C. 473. See also 8 C. 678; 56 M.L.J. 299. "Business" means commercial business and not business of Government. The whole of a province cannot be said to be a single place for the purposes of Expl. II and a Government cannot be sued at any place within that province. 1930 L. 818=126 I.C. 514.

SEC. 20 (b): LEAVE OF THE COURT.—Leave may be given even after the institution of the suit. 30 B. 570; 68 M.L.J. 205. An application for leave under S. 20 (b) can be made after the passing of a judgment on the preliminary issue relating to jurisdiction but before the plaint is ordered to be returned for presentation to the proper Court. 145 I.C. 706=27 S.L.R. 230=1933 S. 179. As to considerations by the Court before the grant of leave, see 1938 N. 262. Leave may be granted without previous notice to the defendant. 64 I.C. 794; 25 A. 603. The leave can be granted in appeal by the District Judge. 35 I.C. 74=4 L.W. 411. Where leave was sought for but refused, the suit, cannot go on with the defendants on the record, when no permission was granted by the Court. 46 B. 229. A defendant may be taken to have "acquiesced in such institution" if he does not object. See 6 M. 349; or apply under S. 22; 30 B. 81. As to when and how objection to jurisdiction is to be taken, see Ss. 21 and 22. When cause of action arises in Court's jurisdiction—Leave if necessary. 1929 S. 170. If leave is granted without notice to the opposite party Court can in the exercise of its inherent jurisdiction, hear objections and pass necessary orders under S. 151. 150 I.C. 559=1933 L. 266. As to proper procedure for objection regarding grant of leave without notice, see 174 I.C. 815=1938 Pesh. 15; leave may be granted to implead even a non-resident foreigner in personal actions. 47 L.W. 552=1938 M. 731. Discretion of lower Court in granting or refusing leave will not be lightly interfered with by the appellate Court, but where the lower Court has refused to exercise its discretion in a fit case, the appellate Court can interfere. 145 I.C. 706=27 S.L.R. 230=1933 S. 179.

SEC. 20 (c): CAUSE OF ACTION.—As to interpretation of term, see I.L.R. (1937) A. 234=167 I.C. 897=1937 A. 208. Not to be construed in the light of the old Code of 1882, but as defined in English Courts. I.L.R. (1937) A. 234. The expression means the bundle of facts which is necessary to be proved to entitle the plaintiff to a decree. 29 B. 368; 22 C. 451; 23 C.W.N. 517; 30 B. 167; 39 A. 506; 31

M.L.J. 816; 72 I.C. 920=1923 M. 109; 1924 N. 308; 65 I.C. 425=1922 O. 109; 147 I.C. 591=1934 A. 226; 61 C. 1023=39 C.W.N. 293=1935 C. 160; 27 S.L.R. 230=145 I.C. 706=1933 S. 179; 30 S.L.R. 182=1936 S. 229; 57 B. 306=35 Bom.L.R. 168=1933 B. 179. It means everything which if not proved gives the defendant an immediate right to judgment, every fact which is material to be proved to entitle the plaintiff to succeed, and every fact which the defendant would have a right to traverse. 58 C. 539=134 I.C. 65=1931 C. 659; 60 C. 918; 28 S.L.R. 102; 1934 R. 234. Where a matter is not necessary to be proved by plaintiff to succeed in his claim (e.g. receipt of registered notice of demand), it will not form part of cause of action, 1937 C. 643. A bona fide voluntary assignment affords a valid cause of action not only against the assignor, but also against the original debtor. 1926 S. 31; 145 I.C. 706=27 S.L.R. 230=1933 S. 179; 34 P.L.R. 771=1933 L. 940 (Assignment of promissory note within jurisdiction giving rise to cause of action). The cause of action must be antecedent to the institution of suit. 4 P.L.J. 387 (393). The term means the cause of action as it was at the time when the right to sue arose for the first time. Per Krishnan, J., in 31 M.L.J. 816. It has no relation to the defence set up or to the character of the relief prayed for in the plaint. 16 C. 98; 46 I.C. 913. For place of filing an application under Sch. II, para. 17, see 1933 L. 18.

CAUSE OF ACTION—SUITS ON CONTRACT.—The cause of action in suits on a contract arises at the place where the contract was made or where the contract was to be performed or performance completed or where in performance of the contract any money to which the suits relate was expressly or impliedly payable. 1 R. 231; 7 N.L.J. 25; 79 I.C. 30; 13 I.C. 943=16 C.W.N. 325; 27 I.C. 129=8 S.L.R. 107. See also 145 I.C. 464=1933 L. 559; 9 I.C. 824; 11 B. 649; 31 M. 223=134 I.C. 65; 1926 C. 100; 1929 S. 227; 58 C. 539; 57 B. 306=35 Bom.L.R. 168=1933 B. 179; 26 S.L.R. 167=139 I.C. 114=1932 S. 9. If there is a contract made by means of correspondence between the parties, part of the cause of action arises where some of the letters are written or sent, and a suit can therefore be instituted at that place. 39 C.W.N. 174. In suits arising out of contracts, a part of the cause of action arises where the letter or telegram of acceptance of the offer is received and delivered. 54 L.W. 345=(1941) 2 M.L.J. 481. If the parties to contract for supply of goods agree that the delivery is to be made at a particular place, a cause of action would arise there in part at least, because under the terms of the contract, it is the place where a part of the contract is to be performed. And if owing to the action of the buyer the seller is unable to perform the contract at the place agreed upon, he will have a right to institute his suit there. In a suit for damages for breach of contract the cause of action consists of making the contract, and of its breach, so that the suit may be filed either at the place where the contract was made, or at the place where it should have been performed. 56 A. 828=1934 A.L.J. 1093=1934 A. 740; 16 C.W.N. 325; 50 I.C. 139; 21 B. 126; 27 M. 494. See also 27 M. 355. 103 I.C. 37 (2); 19 S.L.R. 207. Where the plaintiff residing in a place T gave orders to the defendant firm in M to send certain goods for which he sent an advance and instructed them not to send the goods per V.P.P. and when the goods were sent by V.P.P. in contravention of his order he refused to receive them and claimed the refund of the advance paid by him by a suit in the Court at T. Held, that the Court at T had jurisdiction as the contract was made and was to be performed or the performance thereof completed at that place. 40 L.W. 498=1934 M. 581=67 M.L.J. 296. Where no place for the performance is prescribed by the agreement, the place where it is intended by the parties that such contract should be performed ought to supply the forum. 13 Bom.L.R. 46; 11 B. 649; 31 M. 223.

BANKER AND CUSTOMER.—A fixed depositor cannot bring a suit for repayment from a Bank in any place where he may happen to reside. It has to be filed only in the place where the Bank is situated. I.L.R. (1940) A. 207=1940 A.L.J. 94=1940 A. 243.

CONTRACT OF SALE.—A contract is made where it is accepted and the buyer at Agra cannot sue at Agra for breach of a contract to sell goods concluded by acceptance at Delhi. 41 A. 602. On this point, see also 60 I.C. 481; 2 L.L.J. 555; 53 I.C. 331; 22 P.L.T. 282; 43 P.L.R. 158. Cause of action may arise in the place of delivery of goods, if such place is an essential part of the contract. 39 A. 368. See also 144 I.C. 828=1934 L. 44. Even if the price was stipulated to be paid at another place. 1930 N. 90. A suit on account of non-delivery of goods may be brought in a Court of the place where delivery and payment were to be made. 42 A. 480. On this point, see also 71 I.C. 38; 39 M. 195; 43 A. 334; 77 P.R. 1909; 65 I.C. 282; 1924 L. 349; 79 I.C. 30. Where goods are ordered by V.P. the place of suing is the place where the goods were delivered and paid for. 42 A. 619. The cause of action for a suit by the seller for balance of accounts due from the buyer arises at the place of consignment of the goods to the railway. 24 I.C. 423=1914 M.W.N. 803. Delivery to carrier is equivalent to delivery to buyer. 1925 L. 555=89 I.C. 751; 144 I.C. 828=1934 L. 44 (66 I.C. 501 Not Foll.). Cause of action arising in place where money is payable. See 42 A. 480; 1925 O. 209. Payment is due at creditor's place in absence of express or implied specification. 83 I.C. 339; 118 I.C. 898. See also 1937 N. 39=1937 R. 433. Place of performance of contract is place where money is payable. See also 86 I. C. 1046; 89 I. C. 181=1925 N. 408; 40 M.L.J. 806 (P. C.); 1930 O. 91. In a contract of sale of goods by Calcutta firm to Madras firm, where the payment was to be by hundies to be drawn by the former upon the latter, the cause of action for a suit to recover money overpaid arose in Madras, the payment having been made in Madras. 47 M. 403=46 M.L.J. 82. When there is a clause in the contract that all claims should be decided at a particular place, whether suit can be instituted, at any other place where cause of action may have arisen. See 144 I.C. 828=1934 L. 44. See also 110 I.C. 727; 113 I.C. 783; 119 I.C. 481; 49 M.L.J. 25 (P.C.). Contract—Principal and agent—Supply of goods by agent—Balance struck at principal's place of business—Suit by agent at his place of business—Maintainability. 152 I.C. 802=1935 L. 68. See also 1937 S. 317.

PARTNERSHIP SUITS.—A suit for dissolution of partnership can be brought only at the place of its business. 42 P.R. 1916=33 I.C. 953; or where the partnership is entered into, 1929 A. 236; 32 P.L.R. 464=132 I.C. 218=1931 L. 673. If there are two such places at any one place, 23 L.W. 361=92 I.C. 915=1926 M. 427; 50 M.L.J. 298. A suit for dissolution of partnership carried on in foreign territory is maintainable in British India if the parties are resident there. 23 Bom.L.R. 543=63 I.C. 959=45 B. 1228. Where the transactions had at a place cannot be said to amount to "carrying on of business," that place cannot have jurisdiction to entertain suit for dissolution of partnership and accounts. 160 I.C. 353=1936 P. 6 (Distinguishing 1926 M. 427.)

CONTRACTS OF AGENCY.—Where goods are sent to a place to be sold there and a sale takes place in contravention of instructions, a suit for damages will be at place A. 1924 N. 308. In a suit for damages caused by the agent's negligence, cause of action was held to have arisen in the place where the agent's negligence occurred and the Court elsewhere had no jurisdiction. 34 A. 49; 1922 N. 167; 94 I.C. 287=1926 S. 238. The cause of action in a suit for accounts against an agent arises at the place where the contract of agency took place or where it was to be performed and where account was to be rendered or was refused. 55 I.C. 266=12 Bur.L.T. 198; 94 I.C. 287=1926 S. 238. See also 6 L. 153; 1924 A. 530; 9 L. 455; 1929 S. 227; 1929 L. 605=119 I.C. 481; 182 I.C. 734; 33 Bom.L.R. 1364=135 I.C. 170=1932 B. 42; 163 I.C. 397=1936 R. 251. It cannot be laid down absolutely that the principle that the debtor is bound to seek out his creditor and pay his debt is applicable in India even for the purpose of determining the local jurisdiction of a particular Court to entertain a suit. Assuming that that rule of English law either in terms or by analogy could be applied in India, it cannot be extended to a case not arising out of the relationship of debtor and creditor, as for example, a contract of agency. Where a person employs an agent to do acts for him at a particular place, the legitimate inference is that the contract is to be performed at that place. S. 213 of the Contract Act cannot be read as laying down that the agent should render accounts at the principal's place. The principal has to demand accounts at the agent's place of business. A suit by a principal against his agent for accounts should therefore be instituted at a Court having jurisdiction over the place of business of the agent. 51 L. W. 747=A.I.R. 1940 Mad. 588=(1940) 1 M. L.J. 558. Where money was intended to be paid to the plaintiff at his place, part of the cause of action arose there. 46 M.L.J. 371. Unless the contract clearly indicated the contrary a commission agent is liable to render account only at the place where all the business is transacted. 46 A. 465. See also 152 I.C. 802; 92 I.C. 273=1926 L. 287. The general rule is that a suit for accounts against a commission agent must be filed at the place where the commission agent works. 42 P.L.R. 203=A.I.R. 1940 Lah. 171.

CONTRACT FOR REMUNERATION FOR SERVICE.—The defendant wrote a letter from S to plaintiff at F calling upon him to go to S to treat the defendant. After plaintiff's arrival at S an agreement regarding the fees, payment, etc., was arrived at S and the plaintiff was to be paid at S. Plaintiff sued for the fee fixed at F; held, that the cause of action arose at S as the whole contract was made at that place. Held further, that as there was no failure of justice caused by the suit being tried at F the objection as to jurisdiction need not be given effect to in revision. 148 I.C. 875=1934 A. 549.

SUIT FOR MONEY.—The cause of action for the payment of a debt will arise at the place where the debt is payable. 20 I.C. 683 (Bur.). If there is nothing as to the place where the money under a bond is payable, the Court must be guided by the intention of the parties. 49 I.C. 950. Payment actually made by debtor at place other than where creditor resides resists the above presumption. 1930 L. 818=126 I.C. 514. The debtor must seek his creditor and pay him. 27 I.C. 1027=1926 M. 1207. See also 24 A.L.J. 48; 23 L.W. 3=1926 M.W.N. 108; 53 I.A. 58=53 C. 88=49 M.L.J. 806 (P.C.); 118 I.C. 718=1929 L. 868 (1); 131 I.C. 303 (2)=1931 L. 431. I.L.R. 1937 N. 97=167 I.C. 700=1937 N. 39 (Suit for maintenance amount based on agreement which had fixed no place of payment); 1937 R. 433 (Suit for money based on loan and not on promissory note). Where loan was made at creditor's residence in British India to defendant residing outside British India, and the contract was silent as to the place of payment, held that the creditor could institute a suit for the recovery of the amount in the British Indian Court having jurisdiction over his place of residence 59 B. 365=37 Bom.L.R. 357=1935 B. 283.

SUIT ON NEGOTIABLE INSTRUMENTS.—A suit on promissory note lies at the place where it is drawn and signed and dated. 28 M. 19=1939 Pat. 294. Also where money on a promissory note was intended to be paid. 2 P.R. 1916=31 I.C. 698. The assignment of a promissory note is a part of the cause of action and the assignee can sue on it in the Court within whose jurisdiction it took place. 31 M.L.J. 816; 34 P.L.R. 771=147 I.C. 229=1933 L. 940. See also 21 S.L.R. 192. But not in the place of his residence even if assignment says, that money should be paid there. 1929 C. 306=119 I.C. 295. See also 155 I.C. 953=1935 N. 144. As to where promissory note was signed at one place and delivered at another place, see 1937 Lah. 800; 171 I.C. 278=1937 N. 241. (Pro-note describing plaintiff as resident of M, but delivered at B: Held Court at B alone had jurisdiction). The cause of action on a hundi arises at the place where it is endorsed by the payee. 22 C. 451. See also 107 I.C. 218. The dishonour of a hundi by non-acceptance constitutes part of the cause of action in a suit against the drawer. 20 B. 133. Where a hundi drawn in Cawnpore for acceptance and payment in Calcutta is so accepted and paid in Calcutta, part of the cause of action arises in Calcutta. 47 C. 588. Where in respect of sale of goods at Tuticorin to plaintiff residing thereby defendant carrying on business at Rangoon, the contract was that plaintiff should make payment by hundies, and the defendant should obtain payment by endorsing the same at Rangoon, held, that Tuticorin Court had jurisdiction to entertain suit for damages for short delivery. 41 L.W. 519=1935 M. 665=68 M.L.J. 504 (F.B.). S. 20 is subject to limitations of S. 19. An action in tort for wrongful conversion of a hundi is subject to the rule in S. 19 and must be instituted in the Court within the limits of whose jurisdiction the defendant wrongdoer resides; and the Court within whose jurisdiction the hundi is endorsed over to the plaintiff will not have jurisdiction. But if the suit is one for money had and received upon an implied contract, the position would be different, for in this case, S. 20 would determine jurisdiction. 30 S.L.R. 182=1936 S. 229.

MATRIMONIAL SUITS.—In matrimonial suits to which the Divorce Act does not apply, questions of jurisdiction should be decided under this Code. 54 I.C. 65=12 Bur.L.T. 120. A Court is competent to try a case of breach of contract of betrothal when the breach took place within its jurisdiction, though the defendants may be residing elsewhere. 37 I.C. 114=93 P.R. 1916. In a suit for damages for breach of contract to marry, part of the cause of action arises at the place where the marriage is to take place, though the agreement to marry is entered into at another place. 65 I.C. 812. A suit for restitution of conjugal rights may be brought either where the husband resides or the wife resides. 18 B. 316; 54 I.C. 120. In a suit for restitution of conjugal rights the mere fact that the plaintiff has his home within jurisdiction is sufficient to give the Court jurisdiction. Even where the defendant is not resident within its jurisdiction and the parties had at no time been living together within that jurisdiction the Court cannot refuse to entertain the suit. 59 M. 392=1936 M. 288=70 M.L.J. 288 (on appeal from 67 M.L.J. 271 which held otherwise). But where wife's father is also impleaded and injunction is claimed against him, so far as he is concerned it cannot be maintained at the plaintiff's place when the father lives beyond jurisdiction. (Ibid.). A suit for dower lies in a Court within whose jurisdiction the marriage and divorce took place. 32 C. 146. See also 18 A. 400. A suit for recovery of prompt dower lies also in the place where the plaintiff resides, on the principle that debtor must follow creditor unless there is different contract between them. 63 C. 726 = 40 C.W.N. 392 = 1936 C. 97. Suit by wife against husband and father-in-law for maintenance and return of stridhan property entrusted at time of marriage—Place of suing—Suit at place of wife's residence not maintainable—Rule of debtor seeking out creditor is not applicable to such cases. 53 L. W. 686 = (1941) 1 M.L.J. 784.

SUITS FOR DAMAGES FOR TORTIOUS ACTS.—If tort is committed within the limits of one Court and the tort-feasor resides within the limits of another, both Courts have jurisdiction. 39 M. 483 = 28 M.L.J. 310. Where a person purchases a ticket for journey by railway at A, but fell out of the train and was injured owing to the neglect of the Railway Co., at B, the cause of action for a suit for damages arises at B and not at A. 42 A. 488. See also 9 L. 140 = 112 I.C. 153. A suit for defamation may be instituted at the place where the defamatory matter was published. 13 B. 178. In a suit for malicious prosecution and arrest part of the cause of action arises at the place where the person is arrested. 6 Bom.L.R. 141.

INSURANCE CONTRACTS.—In cases based on contract of insurance, the words 'cause of action' do not include the loss or damage of the property insured, which is merely a cause of the cause, the real cause of action being failure to pay money under the contract. 1 R. 231 = 76 I.C. 482 = 1924 R. 2. But see 1928 N. 305 (2). The only definition of cause of action that will work if it has to be applied to cases of all kinds is the entire set of the facts that gives rise to an enforceable claim. In the case of an insurance policy payable at death, the claimant must prove the death of the insured; hence the place of the death of the assured is a place where the cause of action arises, so as to give jurisdiction to the Court of that place. The words "on proof to the satisfaction of directors, that the sum assured has become payable" mean only proof of death of insured. 28 S.L.R. 192 = 151 I. C. 516 = 1934 S. 76; 44 I.C. 694 = 22 C.W. N. 517; 41 I.C. 392 (M.); 34 Bom.L.R. 815 = 140 I. C. 262 = 1932 B. 292. See also 98 P.R. 1918 = 45 I.C. 900 = 29 P.L.R. 1918; I.L.R. (1937) A. 234 = 167 I.C. 897 = 1937 A. 208. (Insurance against burglary); mere receipt and forwarding of proposal of policy by sub-agent to Head Office which alone could accept or reject the same does not form part of cause of action. 45 L.W. 616 = 170 I.C. 279 = 1937 M. 571; 167 I.C. 669 = 1937 Sind 17. See also 1941 N.L.J. 37. An Insurance Company having its office at Lahore appointed certain person working at Meerut as the chief agent for Rajputana and Bundelkhand area. The appointment was made at Lahore and all the payments were to be made at Lahore and all accounts were to be rendered at Lahore. Subsequently disputes arose between the parties and the appointment was cancelled. The Company instituted suit at Lahore against the agent for recovery of certain sum due by the agent. Held, that cause of action arose at Lahore and the Court at Lahore had jurisdiction to try the latter suit. A.I.R. 1940 Lah. 85.

LEASE.—A lessee of a grove must apply to the lessor to fix a place for payment of the premium due; and when he does not do so, he has to make the payment at the lessor's place of residence, because he, as a debtor, has to find the creditor. Therefore a suit by the lessor for the premium due can be instituted at the place where the lessor lives, since part of the cause of action arises there, though the lands may be situate and the lessee may reside in a different place. 18 R.D. 403 = 15 L.R. 527 (Rev.). A instituted a suit in the Court of Small Causes at X against her agent D, for recovery of Rs. 100 being the unpaid balance of the premium collected by D in respect of a lease in favour of B. On D pleading that he had recovered Rs. 800 only and the remaining Rs. 100 was paid by B to A herself, A amended the plaint impleading B claiming the sum from B in the alternative. The grove to which the lease related was situated at Y and A resided at X where most of her property was. Held, that the cause of action accrued to A at X as under S. 49, of the Contract Act, there was an implied promise to pay at X. 1933 A. 147 = 150 I.C. 289. See also 48 L.W. 438 = 1938 M. 977. As to form in suits for rent, with and without an additional prayer for ejectment, under S. 66, B. T. Act, see 27 C.W.N. 542 = 1923 C. 619 = 77 I.C. 253.

SUITS AGAINST NON-RESIDENT FOREIGNERS.—A British Indian Court has jurisdiction to entertain a suit if the cause of action arises within its jurisdiction, even where the defendant is a non-resident foreigner. 59 B. 365 = 37 Bom.L.R. 357 = 1935 B. 283 (suit for recovery of loan); 35 M.L.J. 189 (a case against a foreign ship-owner for short delivery of goods). See also 56 A. 828 = 1934 A.L.J. 1093 = 1934 A. 740. Neither the fact that the rent sued for is in respect of property situated in a Native State, nor that defendant is resident of a Native State, will prevent British Indian Court from entertaining the suit for rent where the rental agreement had been executed in British India. 157 I.C. 281 = 1935 M. 545 = 68 M. L.J. 506. The question whether its decree could be enforced against him in the foreign Courts is one for consideration of the Courts of that State. 35 M.L.J. 189. See also 29 M. 69 (suit against a subject of a protected Native State). On this point, see also 187 I.C. 19; 20 B. 133; 17 B. 662; 30 I.A. 220 = 13 M.L.J. 287 = 26 M. 544 (P.C.); 25 B. 528.

ARBITRATION.—Refusal to refer to arbitration by the other party is a fundamental part of the cause of action in an application under Sch. II, para. 17 to have the agreement filed in Court. Such refusal confers jurisdiction. 1933 L. 18 = 150 I.C. 674. It is immaterial that the proposed arbitrator resides elsewhere, and the cause

Explanation I.—Where a person has a permanent dwelling at one place and also a temporary residence at another place, he shall be deemed to reside at both places in respect of any cause of action arising at the place where he has such temporary residence.

Explanation II.—A corporation shall be deemed to carry on business at its sole or principal office in British India or, in respect of any cause of action arising at any place where it has also a subordinate office, at such place.

(a) A is a tradesman in Calcutta. B carries on business in Delhi. B, by his agent in Calcutta, buys goods of A and requests A to deliver them to the East Indian Railway Company. A delivers the goods accordingly in Calcutta. A may sue B for the price of the goods either in Calcutta, where the cause of action has arisen, or in Delhi, where B carries on business.

(b) A resides at Simla, B at Calcutta and C at Delhi. A, B and C being together at Benares, B and C make a joint promissory note payable on demand, and deliver it to A. A may sue B, and C at Benares, where the cause of action arose. He may also sue them at Calcutta, where B resides, or at Delhi, where C resides; but in each of these cases, if the non-resident defendant objects, the suit cannot proceed without the leave of the Court.

21. No objection as to the place of suing shall be allowed by any appellate or revisional Court unless such objection was taken in the Court of first instance at the earliest possible of action as to the other reliefs also have arisen elsewhere. 150 I.C. 674.

SUITS TO SET ASIDE DECREE ON THE GROUND OF FRAUD.—A suit to set aside a decree obtained by fraud, where no other relief is claimed, cannot be maintained in any district outside the district in which the fraud was committed and the decree obtained. 29 A. 418; 25 A. 48; 36 A. 564. See also 21 Pat.L.T. 259=1940 Pat. 444. Defendant fraudulently obtained a decree in S and transferred it to A and in execution had the plaintiff arrested in A. Held, a suit to set aside the decree could be filed at A as the material portion of the cause of action accrued at A. 39 A. 607; 5 C.W.N. 559. See also 3 Luck. 142=4 O.W.N. 1103; 1927 L. 778=100 I.C. 164 (2). As to whether the Court in whose jurisdiction the property attached under the decree is situate, has jurisdiction to entertain a suit to set it aside, see 37 A. 189. Decree obtained at one place and transferred to another place for execution. Suit to set aside can be filed at either place. 7 L. 61=94 I.C. 377.

REVISION AND APPEAL.—No hard and fast rule as to revision can be laid down in cases of decisions as to jurisdiction under S. 20 and each must be decided on its own merits. 1923 L. 565. See also 41 A. 602. Where leave to sue is granted or refused by the trial judge, his discretion should not be lightly interfered with in appeal. But where the trial judge has refused to exercise his discretion, the appellate Court can interfere. 27 S.L.R. 230=145 I.C. 706=1933 S. 179.

EXPL. I.—Defendant having permanent dwelling at one place and temporary residence at another for carrying on business—Goods sold to defendant and document got executed at place of temporary residence—Suit is maintainable at place of permanent dwelling, where there was no intention on the part of defendant to abandon the idea of returning to it. 143 I.C. 357=34 P.L.R. 908=1933 L. 120 (57 C. 65, Appr.; 2 Bom.L.R. 605, Not Foll.; 42 P.R. 1916=112 P.R. 1916, Dist.). See also 1936 L. 853. The onus of proving that he has abandoned his permanent residence lies on the person who so alleges. 1936 L. 853.

EXPL. II.—The plaintiff carried on business at Amritsar. The defendant firm had its head office at Bombay and a sub-office at Amritsar. This sub-office conducted correspondence with its local customers, received orders and moneys were received and disbursed. The orders placed at Amritsar were not, however, binding unless they were accepted by the head-office held, that the defendant firm was "carrying on business" at Amritsar and a suit filed at Amritsar was regular. (45 I.C. 900, R.) 14 L. 42=140 I.C. 473=1933 L. 11.

SEC. 21: SCOPE AND APPLICABILITY OF SECTION.—Section 21 is new and the alterations in procedure are retrospective in effect. 87 P.R. 1914=26 I.C. 543. Section does not apply to cases of want of pecuniary jurisdiction or of exclusive jurisdiction. I.L.R. (1937) A. 670=170 I.C. 706=1937 A. 515. The rule embodied in S. 21, is not limited to appeals and revisions in the same suit. 1941 N.L.J. 1=A.I.R. 1941 Nag. 36 (F.B.). There is a distinction between an absolute want of jurisdiction and an irregular assumption of jurisdiction. 36 C. 193. It is a well established rule that where the Court has no inherent jurisdiction over the subject-matter of a suit, its decree is a nullity even though the parties may have consented to the jurisdiction of the Court. The parties cannot, opportunity and in all cases where issues are settled at or before such settlement, and unless there has been a consequent failure of justice.

NOTES.

by their mutual consent, convert it into a proper judicial process although they may constitute the Judge their arbitrator. 27 C.W.N. 542=1923 C. 619. See also 146 I.C. 204=1933 M. 471=38 L.W. 896. Even when objection is not taken, when there is a complete absence of jurisdiction, acquiescence of the parties cannot give the Court jurisdiction in the matter. (41 I.C. 276; 36 I.C. 457 and 70 I.C. 396, Rel.) 142 I.C. 613 (1)=1933 M. 346; 1933 M.W.N. 208; 9 A. 191=13 I.A. 134 (P.C.); 11 M. 26; 14 I.A. 160; 9 Bom. 266; 8 B. 313; 9 B.H.C. 242; 38 C. 639; 1931 A. 454; 33 Bom.L.R. 1364=135 I.C. 170=1932 B. 42; 6 Luck. 697; 31 N.L.R. (Supp.) 57=161 I.C. 877=1936 N. 1 (F.B.). The exception contained in this section cannot be so interpreted as to have a wider application than what is justified by the terms of the section. 27 C.W.N. 542=1923 C. 619. It is only when the Court is competent to try, and the parties join issues and go to trial that this section is applicable, and the defendant cannot subsequently dispute its jurisdiction. 31 N. L. R. (Supp.) 57 (Noted supra). But this section does not apply to a case where the objection is not one as to the place of suing, but one going to the nullity of the order of the first Court on the ground of want of jurisdiction and it can be taken at any time. The Court of a district subject to the C. P. Code has no jurisdiction under S. 17 to entertain a suit so far as it claims a decree for sale of mortgaged property situated in a scheduled district and the order for sale of the land can be set aside although no objection to the jurisdiction of the first Court was taken. 42 M. 813=37 M.L.J. 11 (P.C.) overruling. 34 I.C. 411. See also 152 I.C. 135=35 P.L.R. 482=1934 L. 652; 7 A. 230; 13 M. 25; 2 B.H.C. 40; 12 B. 155; 13 B. 424; 13 M. 273; 33 B. 664; 13 B. 650; 23 B. 22; 97 I.C. 770=1926 C. 1101; 33 Bom. L.R. 1364=135 I.C. 170=1932 B. 42; 6 Luck. 697=9 O.W.N. 847=1932 O. 313. Section cannot apply where the case is one of inherent incompetency of British Indian Court the cause of action arising outside British India. 10 Lah.L.J. 87. Section does not apply to execution of foreign judgments. 86 I.C. 492=1925 M. 788; 120 I. C. 279=1929 L. 449. The section does not apply when the question is whether the suit is triable on the small cause side or regular side (1931 O. 411), or to a case triable in the Original Side of the High Court where part of the cause of action arose outside its jurisdiction and leave to sue had not been obtained therefor. 56 B. 324=34 Bom.L.R. 236=1932 B. 291; 40 C.W.N. 65=164 I.C. 907; 160 I.C. 818=1935 R. 517. (1929 C. 358 Rel. on; 1926 M. 421; 1920 M. 1019; 1925 M. 117, Dist). Section does not modify Cl. 12 of the Letters Patent (Cal.). 56 C. 940. Where the provisions of the Arbitration Act are wholly inapplicable to an award under the Act, it cannot become capable of enforcement under the Act merely on account of the failure to raise any objection in the Court filing the award. This section is not applicable to such a case. 35 P.L.R. 482=152 I.C. 135=1934 L. 652. The section applies where there is want of territorial jurisdiction not merely at the institution of a suit but at any stage during the progress of it. 47 M.L.J. 448=87 I.C. 152; 47 M. L.J. 192=87 I.C. 341=1924 M. 697; 46 M. L.J. 250. As to right of party to challenge jurisdiction of Court chosen by himself, see 1937 M. W. N. 1292. Section 21 makes it abundantly clear that non-compliance with the provisions of Ss. 15 to 20 is, in no way, fatal to the jurisdiction of the Court, and does not render the decree passed by a Court of competent jurisdiction a mere nullity so as to empower the executing Court to refuse to execute it on that ground. 190 I.C. 881=A.I.R. 1940 Sind 150.

CONDITIONS FOR APPLICATION OF SECTION.

—(1) AT THE EARLIEST OPPORTUNITY.—All conditions mentioned in the section must be fulfilled before decree can be set aside. 96 I.C. 544 (1). Objection should be at the earliest opportunity. 49 M. 74=50 M. L. J. 161. If the plea as to objection is taken in the original proceedings at any stage thereof the Court should return the plaint for proper presentation. The question of delay mentioned in S. 21 is only applicable to appeals and revisions. 10 I.C. 980=4 S.L.R. 264. See also 53 I.C. 331; 8 B. 313; 9 B. 266; 23 B. 679; 10 M. 211; 93 I.C. 103. A question of jurisdiction, as to whether a suit will lie in a British Indian Court, which is a question of law depending upon public documents requiring no proof, can be raised in the appellate Court. Section 21 is no bar to such a question being raised at any stage of the proceedings. But where British Indian Courts have power to deal with the lis, S. 21 comes into play and operates as an estoppel. 28 S.L. R. 54=1934 S. 123=155 I.C. 677. Trial Court dismissing suit as against one defendant on ground of want of jurisdiction—On appeal by other defendant, appellate Court passing decree against him. 1935 C. 153. The principle underlying the section is that objection to jurisdiction may be waived and it applies as well to collateral proceedings as to proceedings in appeal or revision. 47 M.L.J. 448. A defendant who objects to the jurisdiction of a Court cannot be said to have acquiesced in the trial of the suit if he does not apply for a transfer. 27 I.C. 232=18 C.W.N. 1340.

(2) FAILURE OF JUSTICE.—A decree passed by Court having no territorial jurisdiction over the subject-matter will not be set aside on that account in the absence of proof of prejudice or failure of justice. 149 I.C. 1050=36 P.L.R. 99=1934 L. 233. Where there has been no failure of justice, the plea as to want of territorial jurisdiction cannot be entertained in appeal. 49 I.C. 441; 55 I.C. 442; 36 I.C. 431; 1922 L. 164; 1929 A. 236; 31 P.L.R. 616; 1932 L. 135=32 P.L.R. 874=136 I.C. 17; 131 I.C. 603=1931 A. 556; 32 P.L.R. 50=1931 L. 142=131 I.C. 276. In a suit on a promissory note where defendant on whom onus lay remained ex parte and without satisfactory reasons and a decree was passed without jurisdiction, neither the appellate nor the revisional Court would interfere if there was no failure of justice. 158 I.C. 252=1935 M. 574. The question cannot be gone into in second appeal unless it was raised at the earliest possible moment in the course of the suit. 48 I.C. 465; 41 I.C. 161. An objection as to territorial jurisdiction raised before appellate Court must be determined on merits to ascertain whether there has been a failure of justice. 42 A. 74; 37 I.C. 114=93 P.R. 1916; 87 P.R. 1914=26 I.C. 543; 1922 O. 124; 19 A.L.J. 305=62 I.C. 399; 45 L.W. 616=170 I.C. 279=1937 M. 571. When a suit is instituted in a British Indian Court the Court must determine whether it has jurisdiction to hear the suit or not by the aid of the Code. In case of doubt as to whether a Court had jurisdiction the objection cannot be entertained by the appellate Court unless there has been a consequent failure of justice. 147 I.C. 591=1934 All. 226. See also 1933 P. 555=149 I.C. 758. Although the objection was taken at the earliest opportunity before issues were settled the High Court refused to interfere in revision as there was no prejudice to the parties. 44 I.C. 694=22 C.W.N. 517. See also 2 Pat.L.R. 74=80 I.C. 745; 40 P.L.R. 234.

APPLICABILITY OF SECTION 1 TO EXECUTION PROCEEDINGS.—Though S. 21 does not in terms apply the principle underlying it, being one of general application, applies to execution proceedings. Where an objection to jurisdiction is not taken before the sale of the property in execution, it cannot be raised at a later stage. 40 L.W. 284=152 I.C. 891=1934 M. 573. See also 28 L.W. 885=1928 M. 746; 42 P.L.R. 374. An execution sale after confirmation cannot be avoided on the ground that the Court had no territorial jurisdiction over the property. 24 M.L.J. 70. See also 43 M. 675=39 M. L.J. 203 (F.B.); 46 M.L.J. 250. The rule of territorial jurisdiction does not apply to execution of mortgage decrees. 49 M. 74=50 M.L.J. 161. The section applies to all objections based on the alleged infringement of the provisions of sections 16 to 18, C.P. Code, as regards the institution of suits relating to immovable property. A Court executing a decree could not entertain an objection on the ground of want of territorial jurisdiction. 43 M. 675=39 M.

L.J. 203 (F.B.). See also 50 M. 882=52 M.L.J. 605.

(2) APPEAL.—Although section 21 does not in terms apply to appeals, the principle under-lying it is of general application, so as to cover proceedings other than original suits. Hence where an objection as to jurisdiction is not taken in the lower appellate Court, the plea must be deemed to have been waived and cannot be raised in second appeal. [43 M. 675 (F.B.); 55 M. 801 (F.B.); 87 I.C. 152; 87 I.C. 341, Ref.] 29 N.L.R. 342=1933 N. 318. Decree cannot be questioned in an appellate Court when the objection has not been raised in the trial Court. 93 I.C. 103=7 O.W. N. 1079; nor a Court of second appeal. 1930 M. 541. Where first appellate Court upholds objection to jurisdiction and returns plaint for proper presentation, the plaintiff may agitate the matter in second appeal, even though it may not be specifically set forth in memo. of appeal. 131 I.C. 603=1931 A. 556. Respondent to appeal raised preliminary objection based on fact that suit has been overvalued, at a late stage after appellant's arguments had proceeded for some time. Held, the Court will not refuse to hear the objection though it may disallow costs to respondent. 14 P. 414=16 Pat.L.T. 103=1935 P. 160. Section 21, is no bar to an appellate Court reversing a preliminary decree for accounts passed by a Court of first instance against a commission agent, when the latter Court has done nothing more than deciding the issue of jurisdiction and passing a preliminary decree as a matter of course on the defendant admitting that he is the accounting party, as the real trial of the suit is to begin only hereafter when accounts are to be taken. 42 P.L.R. 203=A.I.R. 1940 Lah. 171.

(3) REMANDED CASE.—Neither S. 21 in terms, nor any principle underlying it is applicable to a remanded case being dealt with by a Court other than the Court specified in the order of remand. 44 M.L.J. 238=72 I.C. 314.

(4) APPLICATION TO SET ASIDE EX PARTE DECREE.—Section applies to application to set aside ex parte decree. 52 A. 947=1930 A.L.J. 997.

DECREE WITHOUT JURISDICTION—INDEPENDENT SUIT TO SET ASIDE DECREE—MAINTAINABILITY.—Section 21 does not provide against the question of jurisdiction being agitated by means of an independent suit. It only bars the raising of the question for the first time in a later stage of the same suit before the appellate or revisional Court. 1931 A.L.J. 240=131 I.C. 248=1931 A. 454; 1923 C. 619=27 C.W.N. 542; 31 N. 22. Where a suit may be instituted in any one of two or more Courts and is instituted in one of such Courts, any defendant, after notice to the other parties, may, at the earliest possible opportunity and in all cases where issues are settled at or before such settlement, apply to have the suit transferred to another Court, and the Court to which such application is made,

Power to transfer suits which may be instituted in more than one Court.

NOTES.

SEC. 22:—SCOPE AND APPLICATION.—This section and section 23 do not apply to a case in which the question is whether a suit should be tried by a Court subordinate to a High Court or by a High Court or the Chief Court of Oudh. Such a case is not covered by any specific provision of the Code; and in the absence of a rule of law specifically applicable thereto, it is open to the High Court to exercise powers similar to those contemplated by Ss. 22 and 23. If it appears that the plaintiff has chosen a forum in utter disregard of the convenience of both parties, for some ulterior object and in abuse of his position as dominus lites the High Court can, in the exercise of its inherent power, determine which of the two Courts having jurisdiction should try the suit. 1934 A. 14=56 A. 201=1933 A.L.J. 1507. Neither this section nor section 23 applies to Chartered High Courts in exercise of Original Civil Jurisdiction. 56 C. 940=1929 C. 358. Ss. 22 and 23 do not provide for the transfer of a case from a Court subordinate to one High Court to the original side of another Court. 69 I.C. 772. See also 57 I.C. 649=1 Pat.L.T. 389. This section has to be invoked only in cases where option is given to the plaintiff to choose his own forum. (Vide sections 16 and 20); 12 A.L.J. 896=24 I.C. 318; 71 I.C. 268=1923 A. 288. The provisions of the section are mandatory. An application for transfer cannot be maintained after the settlement of issues. 78 I.C. 608=1925 L. 175; 11 P.R. 1917=35 I.C. 616; 88 I.C. 531=1925 L. 322. The provision as to notice is mandatory. 107 I.C. 593. Both Courts must have jurisdiction in order that an application can be made under section 22 or section 23. Where jurisdiction is denied, no application for transfer can be made. 24 I.C. 318=12 A.L.J. 896; 71 I.C. 268=1923 L. 288 (2). 24 I.C. 707; 48 I.C. 105=21 O.C. 217. In an application for transfer under sections 22 and 23, the question of want of jurisdiction of the trying Court cannot be raised. 34 I.C. 707; 1 Pat.L.T. 277=56 I.C. 920. In a suit pending before the Original Side of the High Court an application to transfer the case to the Court where the suit ought to be tried should be made under section 22, on the Original Side of the High Court which has seisin of the case. And the Court has power to pass such an order under section 151. 12 R. 548=151 I.C. 573=1934 R. 265 (F.B.).

GROUND FOR TRANSFER.—The plaintiff has always a right to choose his forum. The jurisdiction conferred by sections 22 and 23 must be exercised very cautiously and only when a clear cause has been shown. The mere fact that it would add to the defendant's convenience is no ground for transferring a case. 73 I.C. 860. See also 13 B. 178; 69 I.C. 772; 69 I.C. 239; 54 I.C. 935=167 P.R. 1919; 34 I.C. 686; 25 I.C. 874; 24 I.C. 707; 57 I.C. 649=41 A. 381; 32 I.C. 613=14 A.L.J. 242; 1928 L. 183; 1927 L. 14=97 I.C. 390; 1928 L. 159=106 I.C. 869. A suit can be transferred only upon two grounds, viz. (a) that there will not be an impartial trial by the trying Court, or (b) that there is manifest preponderance of convenience to the petitioner, if the suit is transferred to the other Court. 56 I.C. 920=1 P.L.T. 277. See also 33 I.C. 797; 106 I.C. 870=1928 M. 15; 4 O.W.N. 1114; 97 I.C. 390=1927 L. 14.

BIAS OF JUDGE.—The apprehension that there will not be an impartial trial must be such as a reasonable man might reasonably be expected to have. 1923 L. 564. The fact that a Judge has decided a point of law arising in a case analogous to the case is not a good ground for transferring the case from his file. 67 I.C. 228=1922 L. 369; 15 I.C. 569. Where the Judge merely took an erroneous view in disposing of a certain application but there is nothing to suggest any bias in his mind for or against any party an application for transfer cannot be entertained. 1934 A. 37 (2). Observations injudiciously and thoughtlessly made by the Judge, not a sufficient ground for transfer. 29 I.C. 29. But see 133 I.C. 876 (1).

SECS. 22 AND 23.—Sections 22 and 23, are concerned with a case where a plaintiff has the choice of two or more Courts in which he may properly institute a suit. In cases to which Ss. 22 and 23 apply, the power to transfer is conferred by section 22 and the forum to which the necessary application has to be made is provided by section 23. The High Court has jurisdiction to transfer a suit pending in a Court subordinate to it, to a Court subordinate to another High Court. 1940 N.L.J. 231=1940 Nag. 145. 1941 N. 311; see also 1940 A.L.J. 611.

SECS. 22-24. In cases of transfer, the convenience of parties is indeed a factor which enters into consideration, but the convenience of both parties have to be weighed and the decision would ultimately turn on the balance of convenience. A plaintiff is the dominus lites and he has a right to institute the suit at a place of his choice. Where a defendant wants a transfer, it must be seen whether the considerations of convenience are so overwhelming on the side of the defendant as to override the claims of right. I.L.R. (1941) Nag. 311=1940 N.L.J. 231=1940 Nag. 145.

CONVENIENCE OF PARTIES.—Convenience to

after considering the objections of the other parties (if any), shall determine in which of the several Courts having jurisdiction the suit shall proceed.

23. (1) Where the several Courts having jurisdiction are subordinate to the same Appellate Court, an application under section 22 shall be made to the Appellate Court.

(2) Where such Courts are subordinate to different Appellate Courts but to the same High Court, the application shall be made to the said High Court.

(3) Where such Courts are subordinate to different High Courts, the application shall be made to the High Court within the local limits of whose jurisdiction the Court in which the suit is brought is situate.

24. (1) On the application of any of the parties and after notice to the parties and after hearing such of them as desire to be heard, or of its own motion without such notice, the High Court or the District Court may at any stage—the parties and witnesses would be a good ground for transfer. 1924 O. 410. Balance of convenience may be considered in deciding an application for transfer. 72 I.C. 592=1923 L. 383; 44 A. 278; 69 I.C. 717. An order of transfer passed without regard to the convenience of the parties and without hearing the other party is illegal. 33 I.C. 797=23 C.L.J. 295. On this section, see also 85 I.C. 852=6 Pat.L.T. 540.

Sec. 23.—As to scope and application of section, see 50 A. 201; 56 C. 940 and 69 I.C. 772 noted under section 22, supra. Section 23 postulates that the several Courts concerned shall both have jurisdiction. Where a plea of want of jurisdiction is taken by one of the parties in one Court, an application by that party under section 23 (3) cannot succeed. 1941 All. 27=1940 A. L.J. 611. The Original Side of a High Court is not subordinate to the Appellate Side of the High Court within the meaning of section 23 (3), C. P. Code. (11 L. B.R. 446=77 I.C. 408=1923 R. 22, Overr.) 12 R. 548=151 I.C. 573=1934 R. 265 (F. B.); 27 M.L.J. 645=27 I.C. 455; 45 C. L.J. 71=100 I.C. 331=1927 C. 290. But see contra 1928 L. 183 (1922 L. 306, Diss. and 1923 R. 22, Foll.). The High Court may order a transfer of a suit pending in a Court subordinate to it to a Court under a different High Court where another suit between the same parties is pending. 35 C. 541. See also 51 B. 26=100 I.C. 154=1927 B. 79; 1928 P. 640=110 I.C. 699. But see also 20 I.C. 758. A Subordinate Judge is nevertheless subordinate to the District Judge, although the appeal in respect of the particular case of which the transfer is sought lay to the High Court and not to the District Judge. 10 C.L.J. 208=3 I.C. 539. The Oudh Chief Court is a High Court. 4 O.W.N. 1114.

suits and no Court has jurisdiction to transfer a suit from one Court to another unless both Courts are subordinate to it. This power is entirely different in character and legal effect from the one in case of an order returning the plaint for presentation in proper Court. 40 I.C. 393=13 N.L.R. 81. Where a Court having really no territorial jurisdiction enquired fully into the case, but when the defect was found out, returned the plaint, held, it was a proper case in which the High Court should send it for disposal to the first Court itself. 21 A.L.J. 86=1923 A. 249. Under section 24, a transfer cannot be made from one Court to another unless the suit has in the first instance been brought in a Court having jurisdiction. There is no reason to make a distinction between lack of inherent jurisdiction and lack of pecuniary or territorial or any other kind of jurisdiction in that Court. 185 I.C. 467=15 Luck. 619=1940 Oudh 164; see also 42 Bom.L.R. 1093=1941 Bom. 69. All that is necessary to bring into play the jurisdiction of the High Court or the District Court to exercise the power of transfer and withdrawal given under section 24 is that the suit, appeal or other proceeding sought to be transferred should be 'pending before it' or 'pending in any Court subordinate to it'. The mere fact that the suit, appeal, or other proceeding is pending in a Court not having jurisdiction to dispose of the same cannot oust the jurisdiction of the High Court or the District Court to withdraw or transfer that suit, appeal, or other proceeding from the Court in which it is pending to some other Court competent to try the same. 150 I.C. 942=1934 A.L.J. 345=1934 A. 569. See also 54 A. 824=1932 A. 660; 53 A. 916, Diss. But see 53 I.C. 892=1919 P. 409; 125 I.C. 334; 1930 L. 195; 150 I.C. 839=1934 S. 95; 37 C. 574; 26 S.L.R. 277=139 I.C. 496=1932 S. 215. The word 'suit' where it occurs for second time in subsection (2), must be taken to include a proceeding; for otherwise parts of the subsection would be quite meaningless. 161 I.C. 54=1936 Pesh. 56. This section is wider in scope than section 22 and no notice

(a) transfer any suit, appeal or other proceeding pending before it for trial or disposal to any Court subordinate to it and competent to try or dispose of the same, or before institution of application for transfer is necessary under this section. 146 I.C. 38=1933 L. 635. The transfer of a case from one competent Court to another is not invalid because it may affect some other order of the Revenue Court. 53 A. 62=133 I.C. 319. This section contemplates transfer of case from one existing Court to another existing Court. Hence where a Small Cause Court has ceased to exist or the officer invested with small cause powers has been transferred and there is no other officer possessing such powers, there would be no Court from which the District Court can transfer the case to another Court. To such contingencies section 35 of Provincial Small Cause Courts Act applies. 54 A. 171=1931 A.L.J. 953=1931 A. 574 (F.B.).

GROUNDS FOR TRANSFER, WHEN SUFFICIENT.

—Convenience of parties, situation of property and heavy expenses already incurred in engaging Counsel. 101 I.C. 723=1927 N. 219; 27 N.L.R. 307=135 I.C. 402=1932 N. 49; 31 N.L.R. 162; 44 A. 278=65 I.C. 782=1922 A. 65; 160 I.C. 522=1936 Pesh. 5. See also 146 I.C. 38=1933 L. 635. But see 5 A. 60; 41 A. 381=50 I.C. 368. Where a Judge has already expressed an opinion, when deciding another appeal, on one of the questions that have to be decided in the appeal, it is desirable, in the interests of justice, that the appeal should be heard and decided by another Court. 152 I.C. 696 (1)=1934 L. 539=35 P.L.R. 468; 32 P.L.R. 388=133 I.C. 876=1932 L. 291. Transfer of appeal—Judge arriving at findings on evidence—Decree set aside and case remanded on appeal—Transfer to a different Judge desirable. 8 Luck. 347=10 O.W.N. 443=1933 O. 154. Where there are clear indications to justify a party in thinking that the Judge was prejudiced against him. 35 P.L.R. 38=147 I.C. 208=1933 L. 915; 77 I.C. 762=1923 L. 564; 1903 P.R. 88. Relationship of Judge to a party. 1932 S. 206; 1923 L. 564. Pecuniary or other personal interest in the case of the presiding Judge. 10 C. 915. To avoid conflict of decisions, as where one of two appeals involving same question is pending in District Court and the other in the High Court. 147 I.C. 637=1933 L. 1033. But see 163 I.C. 962=1936 P. 345, where in somewhat similar circumstances transfer was refused on the ground that no hardship was likely to be caused by allowing the appeals to be where they were.

GROUNDS FOR TRANSFER, WHEN NOT SUFFICIENT.—That defendant is an influential man of the locality is no ground. 98 I.C. 859=1927 L. 80 (1). Prejudice against pleader, if good ground for transfer. See 90 I.C. 559=1926 M. 359. The mere convenience of the defendant is no ground for transfer of a case and that a strong case should be made out where such transfer is prayed for. 146 I.C.

38=1933 L. 635; such as that the expenses and difficulties of the trial would be so great as to lead to injustice, or that the forum has been deliberately chosen by the plaintiff for the purpose of working injustice. 130 I.C. 523=1930 L. 944. The mere fact that in a case of communal nature the presiding Judge of the Court is a member of a rival community is no ground for a transfer of the suit from that Court. It must be shown that there is a reasonable apprehension in the mind of the applicant for transfer that he will not get a fair trial. 150 I.C. 334=36 P.L.R. 29=1934 L. 762. Where the evidence for the parties has been closed and even the arguments have been heard, it would be most inadvisable if at such an advanced stage when the judgment only is to be pronounced, a case is transferred to another Judge who will be handicapped by the fact that he shall have merely to pronounce judgment in a case in which he has taken no proceedings and recorded no evidence. (1926 M. 359, Foll.) 35 P.L.R. 574=1934 L. 593. Application for transfer after Court informs counsel of its order before it is pronounced is not maintainable. 39 P.L.R. 654=175 I.C. 525=1938 Lah. 95. Where a Commissioner passes an order of dismissal of a person from the office of Gatwal and a declaratory suit is filed in the Court of the Subordinate Judge who is also a Deputy Collector, the mere fact that the Subordinate Judge is subordinate to the Commissioner in his executive capacity is no ground for the transfer of the suit from his Court. He has to decide the suit sitting as a judicial officer and an appeal from his decision lies to the High Court. 1933 P. 638=146 I.C. 1087. The fact that the Judge has once decided the point of law is not good ground for transfer. 1930 L. 176=124 I.C. 687; 172 I.C. 910=1938 N. 126. See 133 I.C. 876. But see 8 Luck. 347=144 I.C. 570=1933 O. 154.

GROUNDS FOR TRANSFER—BURDEN OF PROOF.

—The onus of establishing sufficient ground for transfer lies heavily on the applicant. He must prove that he has a reasonable apprehension that he might not get justice in the Court in which the suit is pending. 35 P.L.R. 574=1934 L. 593; 153 I.C. 386; 41 A. 381=50 I.C. 368.

NOTICE.—Notice should be issued to the parties before a Court passes an order of transfer otherwise than of its own motion. 78 I.C. 614 (1); 58 I.C. 560=18 A.L.J. 351; 40 I.C. 111; 42 I.C. 746; 26 O.C. 62=74 I.C. 249; 1925 L. 189; 90 I.C. 287=23 A.L.J. 948; 84 I.C. 238=1923 L. 444; 1931 A.L.J. 1061; 14 L. 240=34 P.L.R. 540=1933 L. 558; 53 A. 916=136 I.C. 384=1931 A.L.J. 1061. entitled to personal notice, and notice to pleader in original Court is not sufficient. 14 L. 240. Transfer without notice is ground for setting aside ex parte decree. 1923 L. 44; 18 A.L.J. 351=58 I.C. 560; 53 A. 916. But according to Madras and Calcutta want of notice does not render the order of transfer void, but is a mere irregularity which may be waived. 1932 C. 265=137 I.C. 430; 13 M. 211; 21 M.L.J. 829=8 I.C. 7. S. 24 is wider in scope than S. 22 and no notice before institution of an application for transfer of case is necessary under S. 24. 146 I.C. 38=1933 L. 635.

AT ANY STAGE.—These words have been inserted in order to avoid the conflict of rulings that existed previously as to whether an order of transfer can be made after the hearing of the suit had commenced. See 22 B. 778; 26 M. 595; 7 A. 342; 15 C. 177.

SUIT, APPEAL OR OTHER PROCEEDING.—“Suit” includes execution application. 1926 L. 465; 47 A. 57. See also 49 M. 746=50 M.L.J. 161. Transfer of claim proceedings alone without transfer of execution proceedings, is legal. 175 I.C. 525=1938 L. 95. ‘Other proceeding’ includes an insolvency petition. 22 B. 778; and proceedings in execution, 39 M. 485=29 I.C. 119=29 M.L.J. 172; and a proceeding under Indian Companies Act. 9 A. 180. And claim under U.P. Encumbered Estates Act. 177 I.C. 136=1938 A. W.R. (C.C.) 77. But it does not include a proceeding under S. 476 of Cr.P. Code. 49 A. 460=101 I.C. 247=1927 A. 469. The word ‘proceeding’ in this section covers all proceedings contemplated at the date when C.P. Code, 1908, was passed and not a special proceeding not then in contemplation but established by a subsequent Act, viz., the Cr.P. Code Amendment Act XVIII of 1923. 49 A. 460. No Court other than the trial or appellate Court can file a complaint under S. 476, Cr.P. Code. 49 A. 460. Appeal under S. 476-B to District Judge transferred to Additional Judge—Complaint—Legality. 57 C. 831=34 C.W.N. 80. See also 1941 A.L.J. 46. (Proceedings for enforcement of injunction order).

PENDING.—A suit valued at Rs. 2,500 was filed in the Court of a munsif who had jurisdiction up to Rs. 5,000. He was transferred and his successor had jurisdiction only up to Rs. 2,000. Held, that the District Judge had power to transfer the suit to another Court under this section. All that this section requires is that the suit should be pending in a Subordinate Court which had jurisdiction at the time the suit was filed. 1936 A.L.J. 452=162 I.C. 903=1936 A. 335. Effect of transfer on interim orders, see 1941 A.L.J. 46.

‘COURT SUBORDINATE TO IT’.—A junior subordinate Judge is not subordinate to a senior subordinate Judge. 1 L. 158=52 I.C. 352; and so the latter cannot transfer a suit pending before him to the former (Ibid.) See also 59 B. 466=37 Bom.L.R. 255=158 I.C. 382=1935 B. 286. The Nagpur Divisional Court was held not subordinate to the Bombay High Court, although it was necessary for a decree for dissolution of marriage under the Indian Divorce Act IV of 1869. required confirmation by the High Court of Bombay. 40 B. 109=31 I.C. 331=17 Bom. L.R. 948. A District Munsiff is subordinate to the High Court, and the latter can transfer a suit from the former even after an application for the purpose has been dismissed by the District Court. 11 C.L.J. 218=5 I.C. 771; 87 I.C. 170; 103 I.C. 456=1927 P. 383; 1926 C. 326.

‘COMPETENT TO TRY’.—A superior Court has no jurisdiction to direct the transfer of a case from a Court subordinate to it to another Court which is outside its jurisdiction. 1924 N. 152. See also 88 I.C. 139=1925 L. 561; 150 I.C. 839=1934 S. 95. The expression ‘competent to try’ refers to competency as regards its pecuniary nature, and the nature and subject-matter of the case, and does not include competency from the point of view of territorial jurisdiction. 6 Luck. 347=10 O.W.N. 443=1933 O. 154; 54 A. 824=1932 A.L.J. 984=1932 A. 660 (1920 P. 29 and 136 I.C. 384, Not Appr.) The expression means ‘of jurisdiction competent to try; and S. 16 of Provincial Small Cause Courts Act is made elastic by this section. A small cause suit pending before a Sub-Court can be transferred to a District Munsiff for purposes of convenience and joint trial, even though the value of the suit transferred may be beyond the small cause jurisdiction of the District Munsiff. 55 M. 960=1932 M. 683=63 M.L.J. 689. But see 56 M.L.J. 649=1929 M. 513; 1927 M. 321; 52 M. 57=55 M.L.J. 671. A District Court cannot transfer a suit from one subordinate Court to another newly created and empowered to try subsequently instituted suits 1918 M.W.N. 291=45 I.C. 13. Unless pending cases are expressly transferred by notification effecting change in territorial jurisdiction of a Court, or unless there is specific provision in any enactment to the same effect, the Court in which the suit or appeal was instituted does not cease to have jurisdiction to decide the matter, despite the change in its territorial jurisdiction. 29 N. L.R. 342=149 I.C. 718=1933 N. 318; 58 M. 801 (F.B.). High Court can transfer suit from Presidency Small Cause Court to City Civil Court. 50 L.W. 634=(1939) 2 M.L.J. 841. High Court in Insolvency Jurisdiction cannot withdraw insolvency proceedings pending before a Sub-Judge in the Presidency. 49 B. 788. An insolvency petition under Presidency Towns Insolvency Act, pending in High Court cannot validly

- (i) try or dispose of the same; or
- (ii) transfer the same for trial or disposal to any Court subordinate to and competent to try or dispose of the same; or
- (iii) retransfer the same for trial or disposal to the Court from which it was withdrawn.

(2) Where any suit or proceeding has been transferred or withdrawn under sub-section (1), the Court which thereafter tries such suit may subject to any special directions in the case of an order of transfer, either retry it or proceed from the point at which it was transferred or withdrawn.

(3) For the purposes of this section, Courts of Additional and Assistant Judges shall be deemed to be subordinate to the District Court.

be transferred to a District Court. 38 M. 472=14 M.L.T. 184=25 M.L.J. 299. An order transferring an application for review to a Court other than the one which decided the case is illegal. 50 I.C. 910. District Judge in whose Court an appeal under S. 476, Cr.P. Code is pending cannot transfer it to a Subordinate Judge, as the latter has no jurisdiction to hear the same. 57 A. 785=1935 A.L.J. 473=157 I.C. 901=1935 A. 440.

POWERS OF HIGH COURT—Section applies to Chartered High Courts in their ordinary original civil jurisdiction. 56 C. 940=1929 C. 358. High Court can transfer suit from a District Munsiff's Court, even though the transfer may have been refused by the District Judge, as the High Court has concurrent jurisdiction with the District Court, and the District Munsiff is also subordinate to it. 11 C.L.J. 218=5 I.C. 771; 87 I.C. 170; 103 I.C. 456=1927 P. 383; 1926 C. 326. It is not necessary that a Court to which a suit is transferred in the proper sense of the word (i.e., transferred by the High Court under S. 24) should have concurrent territorial jurisdiction and the High Court may transfer a suit to a Court which has pecuniary jurisdiction though it may not have territorial jurisdiction to try the suit. Hence where mortgage suit or execution proceedings is transferred under S. 24 by the High Court to a Court which has otherwise no territorial jurisdiction, the Court can order sale of the property lying outside its local limits. 189 I.C. 166=1940 Rang. 133. tion so as to pass an order under Cl. 4 of that section. 41 P.L.R. 872=1939 Lah. 463.

POWERS OF A DISTRICT JUDGE.—A District Judge can transfer a case pending before him to the Additional District Judge. 13 I.C. 6=14 P.L.R. 1912. A District Judge cannot transfer a case to a Court not competent for any reason to try the same. 5 P.L.J. 588=57 I.C. 522=1 Pat.L.T. 637. See also 32 I.C. 788; 37 C. 574. Where an Appellate Court remands a suit for fresh disposal on the merits by the Court which first decided it, the District Judge can transfer it to his own file and decide it. 19 I.C. 552=9 N.L.R. 40 (21 A. 230, Dist). A District Court to which a case has been remanded by the High Court has power to transfer it to the Court of the Additional District Judge, unless the terms of the High Court's order expressly limited those powers. 44 A. 211; 12 A.L.J. 1094=25 I.C. 141. If a District Judge transfers a case remanded by the High Court to a Sub-Judge who disposes of it without objection being taken as to his jurisdiction, the irregularity would not affect the decision on its merits. 23 I.C. 425=15 M.L.T. 304; 19 C.W.N. 143=23 I.C. 69=19 C.L.J. 408; 12 A.L.J. 1094=25 I.C. 141. Transfer of case from Munsiff to Sub-Judge who acts as Small Cause Court is within the District Judge's power, though a party is thereby deprived of his right of appeal. 36 I.C. 881. S. 16 of Provincial Small Cause Courts Act is no bar to the exercise of powers of transfer of the District Judge under this section. 37 P.L.R. 177=154 I.C. 112=1934 L. 901; 151 I.C. 385=1934 A. 530; 147 I.C. 334=1935 A. 350. The District Court can withdraw a transmitted execution proceeding to its own file and dispose of it. 39 M. 485=29 M.L.J. 712.

DELEGATION OF POWERS BY THE DISTRICT JUDGE.—The power of transfer under S. 24 can be delegated by the District Judge, but when so delegated it must be exercised in accordance with law. It can only be exercised in cases pending in a Court subordinate to the Court exercising the power. 52

(4) The Court trying any suit transferred or withdrawn under this section from a Court of Small Causes shall, for the purposes of such suit, be deemed to be a Court of Small Causes.

25. (1) Where any party to a suit, appeal or other proceeding pending in a High Court presided over by a single Judge objects to its being heard by him and the Judge is satisfied that there are reasonable grounds for the objection, he shall make a report to the Provincial Government,<sup>1</sup> [which] may, by notification in the official Gazette, transfer such suit, appeal or proceeding to any other High Court :

A small Cause suit may therefore, be transferred to a regular Court irrespective of the small cause powers of the Court to which the suit is transferred. Suit in a Small Cause Court for Rs. 900 may be transferred to sub-Court even though small cause jurisdiction of Sub-Court was only up to Rs. 300. 56 B. 387=34 Bom. It was however held in 54 A. 171, that when the transfer is not or could not be made under this section, an appeal would lie; as in the case where an officer without possessing small cause powers hears a case which was pending before his predecessor in office exercising small cause jurisdiction. (38 A. 425 appr.; 13 A. 324 overruled). A District Judge cannot transfer a case of a small cause nature to a subordinate Court not invested with the powers of a Small Cause Court so long as the Small Cause Court capable of trying it is in existence. 43 I.C. 314. But see 55 M. 960; 1934 L. 901; 147 I.C. 334; 56 B. 387. The section does not apply to cases transferred from a Court of Small Causes to Honorary Munsiff's Courts in U.P. and the decrees passed by the latter Courts in such cases are appealable. 54 I.C. 435; 50 I.C. 648.

REASONABLE GROUNDS FOR OBJECTION.—As to what would constitute reasonable grounds, see 25 Bom.L.R. 713=82 I.C. 352=1924 B. 90.

SEC. 26: SUIT.—See O. 4, R. 1, infra. Any proceeding which does not commence with a plaint cannot be deemed a suit. 23 C. 723; 6 A. 269 (P.C.); 22 M. 256; 13 L. 672=33 P.L.R. 508=1932 L. 374. It is not sufficient that the proceeding is capable of terminating in a decree or an order having the force of a decree. (Ibid.) An application to file in Court an agreement to refer to arbitration under para. 17 of Sch. II of the Code is not a suit. (Ibid.) The essentials of a suit are (i) opposing parties, (ii) a subject in dispute, (iii) a cause of action, (iv) and a demand of relief. 31 B. 393=9 Bom.L.R. 530.

PRESENTATION.—Presentation must be by delivery to the Court or to its officer either personally or by a pleader. 15 M. 137. Sending by post is not sufficient. (Ibid.) See however 8 M. 411. For valid presentation neither time nor place is essential. A Judge may validly accept a plaint presented at his private residence or at any other place, and after office hours. 65 I.C. 674=1922 N. 167; 47 M. 312=79 I.C. 1017=1924 M. 448; (Ibid.) Plaint returned for presentation to proper Court and re-presented is not continuation of the old suit but filing of a fresh suit. 52 B. 548=1928 B. 421=30 Bom.L.R. 970. But not so where plaint is returned merely for amendment and re-presented. 2 A. 832.

SEC. 27: SUIT DULY INSTITUTED, MEANING OF.—Where a suit is dismissed for non-payment of deficit Court-fee, review without notice to the other side is not illegal. Until the suit was registered, the suit could not to have been said to be duly instituted 26 C.W.N. 391=70 I.C. 43=1922 C. 234. See also 52 B. 548. Where a suit has been duly instituted the Court should issue summons to defendant whether he be adult or minor. 22 B. 971. See also 14 C. 204. As to the manner prescribed for service, see O. 5, infra.

SEC. 28.—See in this connection O. V, R. 23, infra. As to sufficiency of service, the transmitting Court should presume the correctness of the return made by the serving Court, although the presumption is not irrebuttable. 10 B. 202; 33 A. 649=11 I.C. 39. But see 22 C. 889, where it was held that the transmitting Court should not act upon any such presumption.

SEC. 29: WITNESS IN NATIVE STATE—FAILURE TO APPEAR—PROCEDURE.—There is no law by which witnesses in Native States which have made arrangements for mutual service of processes with British India can be compelled to obey the processes, i.e., punished if they fail to do so. If the witnesses so

(a) make such orders as may be necessary or reasonable in all matters relating to the delivery and answering of interrogatories, the admission of documents and facts, and the discovery, inspection, production, impounding and return of documents or other material objects producible as evidence ;

(b) issue summonses to persons whose attendance is required either to give evidence or to produce documents or such other objects as aforesaid ;

(c) order any fact to be proved by affidavit.

31. The provisions in sections 27, 28 and 29 shall apply to summonses to give evidence or to produce documents or other material objects.

32. The Court may compel the attendance of any person to whom a summons has been issued under section 30 and for that purposes may—

(a) issue a warrant for his arrest ;

(b) attach and sell his property ;

(c) impose a fine upon him not exceeding five hundred rupees ;

(d) order him to furnish security for his appearance and in default commit him to the civil prison.

SEC. 32.—See 1929 A. 850. Section does not apply to a person who has been merely ordered to produce documents. 58 I.C. 281=5 P.L.J. 550.

SEC. 33: HEARD.—Judgment passed without opportunity given to parties for being heard is illegal and liable to be set aside on appeal. 91 P. R. 1904; 159 P.W.R. 1906; and it is not a mere irregularity that could be condoned under section 99. 57 I.C. 34. Where case is transferred after hearing arguments, it is illegal for the transferee Judge to pass judgment without giving fresh opportunity for parties to be heard. 57 I.C. 39. So also where Judge who heard the case was succeeded by another. 110 P.R. 1886. Section requires only hearing and does not insist that any part of the proceedings should have taken place before the Judge passing judgment. 87 P.L.R. 1905.

DECREE.—It is the duty of Court to draw up the decree. 52 I.C. 479=66 P. R. 1919. And party is not bound to apply to Court to do so. 78 I.C. 996=20 N.L.R. 131; 38 B. 331. A mere paragraph in the judgment not drawn up in form of a decree and not embodied in a separate form, does not amount to a decree. 1 L. 223=54 I.C. 913. Omission or neglect to draw up a decree following judgment does not deprive party of his right to appeal. 52 I.C. 479 (supra). In cases requiring succession certificate, decree cannot be passed without production of the certificate. 57 I.C. 650. But Court cannot stop drawing up of decree for deficit Court-fee. 11 P. 532.

INTEREST.

34. (1) Where and in so far as a decree is for the payment of money, the Court may, in the decree, order interest at such rate as the Court deems reasonable to be paid on the principal sum adjudged, from the date of the suit to the date of the decree, in addition to any interest adjudged on such principal sum for any period prior to the institution of the suit, with further interest at such rate as the Court deems reasonable on the aggregate sum so adjudged, from the date of the decree to the date of payment, or to such earlier date as the Court thinks fit.

NOTES

SEC. 34: SCOPE AND OBJECT OF SECTION.—This section has no application to interest antecedent to the date of suit, but is concerned only with interest during pendency of suit and after decree. 60 I.C. 288=32 C. L.J. 239. Court has no power to award interest merely because money due is withheld—Facts must be alleged and proved which would make the Court hold that it is payable under a provision of law or a settled principle. 1941 N.L.J. 371. As to object of section, see 106 I.C. 270. Courts are entitled to give interest in their discretion, and this can be given under this section, and also under section 73, Contract Act. 162 I.C. 352=1936 R. 141. Decree cannot be amended for granting interest. 15 A. 121; 35 I.C. 218. Nor can executing Court grant it. 23 C. 357; 3 Bur.L.J. 58=82 I.C. 427=1924 R. 275. Where decree conforms to the judgment, omission to award interest in the judgment even when it is due to an accidental slip or omission, decree cannot be amended to include interest. 50 L.W. 719=(1939) 2 M.L.J. 751=1940 Mad. 29.

FOR PAYMENT OF MONEY.—A decree for sale in enforcement of a mortgage or charge is not a decree for the payment of money. 24 C. 766; 21 M. 364; 19 A. 174; 29 M. 65. A decree for maintenance even when amount is charged on immovable property, is one for payment of money. 47 L.W. 327=178 I.C. 414=1938 M. 522=(1938) 1 M.L.J. 437. Section does not apply where the decree is not for a definite sum of money, but only for partition and accounts. 49 B. 282=94 I.C. 686=1925 B. 406. Decree for money must be construed as including a claim to unliquidated damages. 51 M.L.J. 243. But see 60 I.C. 288=32 C.L.J. 239. The word "money" in the section should not be understood in the limited sense of an ascertained sum of money. The expression "decree for payment of money" is very general and must be construed as including a claim to unliquidated damages, and cannot be restricted in its operation to a claim to liquidated damages. The section leaves the question of granting or refusing interest on damages to the discretion of the Court. 42 Bom.L.R. 750=A.I.R. 1940 Bom. 369. Judgment-debtor depositing decretal amount in Court and applying not to pay to decree-holder without security during pendency of his appeal. In appeal amount of decree was reduced. Decree-holder cannot claim interest since date of deposit, nor judgment-debtor on surplus amount deposited by him. 1929

INTEREST DURING PENDENCY OF SUIT.—In money suits, question of interest after institution of suit passes from domain of contract into that of judgment, and plaintiff cannot as a matter of right claim interest. 161 I.C. 862=1936 P. 191. The Court has a discretion as to the rate of interest to be awarded after the institution till judgment, and where the Courts below had awarded 8 per cent., the Privy Council refused to interfere. 43 M.L.J. 66. It is a judicial discretion to be exercised on proper judicial grounds. 26 C. 39 (P.C.).
